Rape Sentence Disputed by Supreme Court

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada found itself in an unprecedented predicament Tuesday, unable to agree whether the Ontario Court of Appeal had the right to increase the sentence of a convicted rapist.

The high court, which normally sits with three, five, seven or nine judges, heard the case with eight—four in favor of the appeal, four against. It is the first time the court has had a tie, or in effect, a non-decision.

It had been asked to decide the case of Edgar Wesley Hill, who pleaded guilty to rape and wounding in 1973 and was sentenced to 12 years. He appealed the length of the sentence to the Ontario Appeal Court which increased it to life.

Hill's lawyers argued before the Supreme Court that the Crown gave notice it would seek a longer sentence more than two months after the deadline for seeking leave to appeal. They said there was no Crown cross-appeal submitted by the deadline.

The legal point left for the high court to decide was: Where the Crown does not cross-appeal to have a sentence increased, does the Ontario appeal court have the power to increase the sentence?

The 4-to-4 split means that the Ontario court's decision stands and so does Hill's life sentence.

However, there is a possibility that Hill's lawyers will be able to petition the court for a rehearing before a full court of nine judges.

The Supreme Court never sat with an even number of judges before the appointment of Chief Justice Bora Laskin about two years ago. Before, if a judge was sick or unavailable and his absence would mean an even-numbered bench, the court made other arrangements.

After today's split decision, Chief Justice Laskin will have to decide whether the court should sit with even numbers in future.

Writing for the four justices favoring dismissal of Hill's appeal, Justice Louis-Philippe Pigeon said Hill's lawyers had reasonable notice that an increased sentence would be sought.

But Justice Wishart Spence, writing for the other side, said the Crown uses intimidation when it tells an accused that if he appeals for a shorter sentence, then it will seek a longer one.

Prisoners Flee

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Police are searching for two prisoners who fled the local jail Monday after they were left unattended to paint the front entrance. Police said the two men, aged 20 and 21, are both residents of nearby Tecumseh and were working without guards as part of a rehabilitation program.

Lisbon Wrecked By Revolution

LISBON (Reuter) — Eighteen months of revolution have wrought havoc on the elegant buildings of central Lisbon, with scarcely a corner of wall space escaping the attentions of political bill-posters and left-wing graffiti artists.

Militants of the Communist party, the Maoists and the Socialists as well as agents of the more staid centre parties have exercised a form of revolutionary over-kill on the sides of banks, apartment blocks and luxury hotels.

Colorful posters exhorting all anti-Fascists to attend the latest mass rally are multiplied in 10s and 20s along the city's streets, edging out advertisements for soft-porn films and tocobola, the Portuguese soccer pool.

Graffiti ranges from the artistic to the plain sloppy. In some places left-wing parties have used the blank canvas of walls and hoardings to paint elaborate pictorial histories of the revolution's advance.

But elsewhere, the feet of unknown soldiers and dead kings are spattered with partisan and already fading reminders of how to vote, or in some cases why not to vote at all.

The pressure on space means the slogan writers have to attain greater heights to get their message over. The regal equestrian statue of Dom Jose I stares out across the River Tagus from Comercio Square, oblivious to the rising tide of propaganda which has all but reached his horse's fetlocks.

Moose Are Too Loose

WINTERLAND, Nfld. (CP)—Residents of this small farm settlement on Newfoundland's Burin Peninsula are complaining that moose are so plentiful they are visiting the farmers' field and munching on the annual cabbage crop.

The situation became so serious at one point this summer that the hunting season on moose was opened by the provincial tourism department three weeks ahead of schedule.

Other Newfoundlanders are having trouble of another kind with big game etc. more precisely, with big game management.

More than 28,000 applications were received by the wildlife department for moose and caribou hunting licences but only 11,823 permits were issued.

Traditionally, available moose and caribou hunting licences were awarded on the basis of drawing names from a hat, but during the past few seasons a computer service was used to process applications.

As is the case now in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, the Newfoundland government is considering a program for testing the skills of those applying for hunting licenses. Newfoundland already has a hunter training program.

The province is also sponsoring extensive testing and study programs aimed primarily at studying the movement and feeding habits of caribou.

In the 1960s some animals were introduced to uninhabited offshore islands and they prospered so well that hunters have been allowed in on occasion to help thin the herds.

Aviation History Made In North Carolina

KITTY HAWK, N.C. (CP) — A look across the lonely stretches of North Carolina's Outer Banks leaves little doubt about where man's first flight in a heavier-than-air craft took place. It was from sand dunes near here 72 years ago.

These Outer Banks seem an appropriate place for the birth of aviation, for from the air they look like long, thin, sandy landing strips and they stretch for miles protecting the coast of North Carolina. Sandy beaches studded with lighthouses and cottages on stilts face the Atlantic and wooded hummocks lie in the lee.

The Banks attract holidayers who love the surf, dunes, great fishing, informal living and seafood restaurants. Steady breezes blow across them, as they have for centuries.

It was the winds that lured the fathers of aviation here in the first place. Orville and Wilbur Wright were bachelor brothers who lived to tinker and experiment when they weren't busy running their bicycle shop, and turning out a daily newspaper in Dayton, Ohio.

As boys, they loved to watch birds soar and float, daydreaming and envying them. Not content just to wonder and speculate about flying, they did something about it, practice-gliding and experimenting with small gliders.

They came to Kitty Hawk in 1900 to try out the local winds and ran up sections of cloth wings themselves on a sewing machine.

On their second trip to the Banks in 1901 they set a gliding record of 332 feet and to do more testing built a wind tunnel, much like the type used today. From it they learned more about wind pressure on wings, and in 1903 glided more than 600 feet and made more than 1,000 glider flights.

They felt they now were ready to build a plane powered by a motor and, after many disappointments, finally assembled a plane with a 12-horsepower motor. They launched it off Kill Devil Hill Dec. 14, 1903, and even though it remained airborne for only 3½ seconds before nosediving into the sand, the brothers were elated.

They repaired the damage and with Orville at the controls and Wilbur running alongside holding the wing to help balance it, and men of the Kill Devil Hill Lifesaving Station standing by, the plane flew 120 feet in 12 seconds.

'Hell of a Job' Says Pelletier the Diplomat

OTTAWA (CP) — Gerard Pelletier, politician, sat down and became Gerard Pelletier, diplomat.

"I'm surprised to read that some think it is a glamorous job," he said. "Some think it's a sinecure."

"It really isn't. It's a hell of a job."

So the former state secretary and retiring federal communications minister de scribed his forthcoming job as ambassador to France.

Mr. Pelletier was interviewed as he cleaned out his communications office to make room for another Quebecer, Pierre Juneau, the former head of the Canadian Radio Television Commission appointed to take his place.

Rugged job or not, the quiet, mild-mannered journalist-turned-politician with sparkling blue eyes displayed something akin to excitement as he talked of ending his 10 years in the Commons.

The 56-year-old Pelletier expressed regret at leaving politics, at the same time calling it "the toughest job you can imagine."

"I've been at it 10 years and I'm not getting any younger. For the last two years I've been toiling under a strain."

Besides, "in another way it's a political role that an ambassador has to play."

"I'll be pursuing the same objectives of government in a different field."

Mr. Pelletier was bound for Paris to replace Leo Cadieux, another former Liberal cabinet minister who held the ambassadorship for five years with what is generally regarded as distinction.

Before leaving, Mr. Pelletier was to visit the governments of Ontario, New Brunswick and Quebec to hear their comments on Franco-Canadian relations. He would talk with other provincial governments at some later date.

Government and external affairs officials say his appointment signals no change in Canadian policy toward France. Mr. Pelletier agrees.

Rather, the new ambassador will continue Mr. Cadieux's work to help good relations get better and erase th last vestiges of ill-feeling left from the era of the late president Charles de Gaulle.

Senior external affairs officials acquainted with both the present and future ambassadors say Mr. Pelletier is a good choice to build on Mr. Cadieux's work in helping warm the "close and unusual" relations between the two countries.

These officials discount charges made by Tom Cossitt, Progressive Conservative MP for Leeds, Ont., after Mr. Pelletier's appointment that political interference has resulted in a serious morale problem in external affairs.

They say Paris and London are two capitals where a political animal is needed as ambassador because of the sensitivities of the Canadian relationship with Britain and France. Paul Martin now is high commissioner in London after lengthy cabinet service.

Mr. Pelletier and others also suggest that the appointment of a man with close ties with the cabinet shows the French that this country is serious about good relations.

"The French feel that a government is going out of its way to please if they find that a member of the government has been appointed representative in Paris," Mr. Pelletier said.

Meanwhile, as he prepared to leave office he sought once again to dispel the "legend" of the three Quebec wise men—Pierre Trudeau, Jean Marchand and himself.

The wise-men label was hung on the three federalists when they were persuaded to come to Ottawa by the late Lester B. Pearson in 1965 in an effort to improve his government's Quebec representation in Parliament. They were old friends who had worked together in Quebec.

Mr. Pelletier and Mr. Marchand eventually became ministers of the Trudeau government but, insisted Mr. Pelletier, there was no inner clique running the affairs of government.

"Politics have a way of creating myths. This is one of them. "We never considered ourselves as working in an inner group . . . It's a legend to think that the prime minister, Marchand and I met every week to plot."

In fact there had been less contact among the three old friends in Ottawa than there had been in Quebec.

"We were working in the same place but not close together."

True, they could understand each other and explain to others. But there was no inside track to Mr. Trudeau's office for Mr. Pelletier.

"I was always a bit mystified by reports indicating we were running a tight little operation," he said.

He said he sat in "solitude" for three years, while Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Marchand were in cabinet and he still was a back-bencher.

He was appointed secretary of state by Mr. Trudeau in 1968 and spent tough years in that portfolio as he fought the government's bilingualism and biculturalism battles. There was little respite as he went from there to communications and battles with Quebec over cable television.

What were the highlights of his political career.

Well, he never was sure what highlights meant, but he would best remember being an artisan of the Official Languages Act and of the Opportunities for Youth and Local Initiatives Programs.

He thought he was "useful" in providing cultural help to language minorities and he found satisfaction in his work on the cabinet's external affairs committee. Now he was looking forward to taking over from Mr. Cadieux.

"I'm inheriting a good shop," he said.

Entertainer Is Still Active

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP) — After 60 years as an amateur entertainer, Stuart Cant still is going strong.

Arthritis has slowed him down a bit, but the 69-year-old, who got his start in 1915 in a brother act working for army recruiting, remains active, bringing his puppet show to shut-ins at nursing homes and hospitals.

He has 12 puppets, makes their wardrobe and records their voices. It takes about three weeks to perfect the puppets, especially animated ones such as his drummer and piano p'ayer. Prons are made from old household articles.

Mr. Cant writes many of the songs he sings in the hour-long puppet show and is also a well-known artist in southern Saskatchewan.

Stanfield Again Urges Wage, Price Controls

MONTREAL (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said Tuesday that if his proposals for wage and price controls had been implemented in 1974, Canada could have avoided some of its current economic problems.

"It is a waste of time for the government to act unless it show restraint," Mr. Stanfield told reporters after a political rally in support of Jacques Lavoie, 38, the Progressive Conservative candidate in the east-end Hochelaga riding byelection Tuesday, Oct. 14.

The need for wage and price controls was a major plank in the Conservative platform during the spring 1974 federal election campaign.

He said Mr. Trudeau now has been forced to call for urgent measures of restraint to correct the problems in the economy.

Mr. Stanfield, addressing the rally earlier from a prepared text, described the Liberal government in Ottawa as living "in a world of illusion."

"It sleeps, it dreams, but the awakening could prove to be brutal, because this beautiful dream is transforming itself little by little into a nightmare," Mr. Stanfield told about 150 party supporters.

"Two years ago I was a prophet of doom, convincing the government about inflation," he said. "Today I look like a forerunner."

He said public figures and groups now are speaking out about the seriousness of the state of the Canadian economy. "These people "demand today in loud voices that firm action be taken to contain the hemorrhage, else we will surely perish," Mr. Stanfield said.

Mr. Stanfield told reporters after the meeting he understands two people will declare themselves as candidates for the Conservative leadership in the next week.

Mr. Stanfield arrived from Ottawa by plane Tuesday evening, and was scheduled to go to New Brunswick today.

Mr. Lavoie is running against Liberal Pierre Juneau, 52, in the riding in which more than 30 per cent of the voters speak French. Mr. Juneau was sworn in as federal communications minister Aug. 29 following the resignation of Gerard Pelletier who held the riding since 1965. Mr. Pelletier was appointed ambassador to France.

The riding has returned Liberal members in every federal election since 1921.

Onias Tyrott, 32, a longshoreman with no previous political experience, is the candidate for the New Democratic Party. Gerard Costain is an independent candidate in the byelection.

Paper Strikers Mount to 24,000

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A strike by 350 paperworkers, called Tuesday at the Consolidated-Bathurst pulp and paper mill at Portage du Fort, Que., brought to 22,000 the number of Canadian Paperworkers Union (CPU) workers on strike across the country.

The strikes have nearly cut in half Canada's total daily production of 38,500 tons of newsprint.

Meanwhile, the B.C. government passed emergency legislation Tuesday to force all striking pulp and paper workers in the province back to work for 90 days. They have been on strike since mid-July.

CPU president Henry Lorrain said in a statement the legislation would "seriously undermine the position of pulp and paper workers in Ontario, Quebec and the Atlantic provinces."

"We are in fact on the verge of a national strike," he said.

A national strike would involve about 40,000 of the union's 53,000 members. The remainder are working under existing contracts.

CPU negotiators are asking for a 18 hourly across-the-board increase in a one-year contract for all paperworkers in Canada except British Columbia. They are also demanding a cost-of-living-based hourly increase for each .35-point increase in the cost-of-living index.

Workers currently earn a minimum of $4.82 hourly except in B.C. where the base rate is $5.10 an hour.

In British Columbia the union is seeking a $1.50 hourly wage increase over one year, with a cost-of-living clause.

Stittsville Weekly Joins Press Council

OTTAWA (CP) — The daily Sault Ste. Marie Star and the weekly Stittsville News will join the Ontario Press Council Jan. 1, council chairman Davidson Dunton said today.

The additions bring the number of newspapers participating in the council to 10, including nine dailies and one weekly. The council decided last year to open its membership to weekly newspapers.

The membership increase is the first since the council was established in 1972 by eight Ontario dailies—Brantford Expositor, The Spectator of Hamilton, Kitchener - Waterloo Record, London Free Press, Ottawa Citizen, Owen Sound Sun-Times, Toronto Star and Windsor Star.

The press council's chief activity is considering complaints from the public about the conduct of the press in gathering and publishing news, opinion and advertising. It also considers complaints from members of the press about the conduct of individuals and organizations

Reds End Bucs' Hopes

SPARKY ANDERSON

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Cincinnati Reds left with the National League title, a yearning for their first World Series victory since 1940, and a compliment from Al Oliver of Pittsburgh Pirates.

"They'll go all the way," said Oliver. "They definitely have the best team I've seen since I've been in major league baseball."

Oliver's eighth season ended Tuesday night when the Reds beat Pittsburgh 5-3 in 10 innings in the National League West decider.

The Reds swept the series in three games even though rookie John Candelaria, who had Pittsburgh pitched brilliantly in the third game, completed his playoff record with 14 strikeouts.

"This is the greatest day of my life," said Cincinnati manager Sparky Anderson, whose club won World Series Saturday in Boston against the American League champion Red Sox.

The Reds dealt Pittsburgh its final defeat about a half-hour after the Red Sox beat Oakland A's 5-2 in the AL playoff.

"I'm ready to play in Fenway Park," said Cincinnati's Pete Rose, who has provided the key spark in the title-clincher.

It was Rose who hit a two-run single in the eighth and gave Candelaria in the eighth and gave Cincinnati a 3-2 lead. But then the Pirates pulled to a 3-3 tie on a two-run homer by Frank Taveras.

Rose helped the Reds deliver the final winning run in the 10th.

"I never thought it would end in three," said Anderson. "I always thought it would go five games, just like I said at the start."

For a while, it looked like the 32-year-old Candelaria would give the Pirates the repeated performance of their two winning losses in Cincinnati.

"Candelaria was overpowering and ready to go," said Joe Morgan of the Reds.

"It was probably the greatest performance by a lefty against us all year," said Rose.

Candelaria started with a flourish, striking out the first four batters.

Dave Concepcion hit a solo homer over the left field wall in the second inning and Rose lost one hit allowed by Candelaria when the left fielder misjudged.

Oliver hit a two-run homer off the Pirates' ace to give Pittsburgh a 2-1 lead off Candelaria.

"I felt great when Ollie hit that homer," said Candelaria said. "But the feeling didn't last long."

Candelaria's enduing began in the eighth—after he struck out Cesar Geronimo and George Foster, who raise his total to 16. That matched the phenomenal 16-strikeout record set by Joe Coleman of Detroit against Oakland in 1972.

But Candelaria then walked pinch-hitter Merv Rettenmund on four pitches, and Rose followed with his single. Rettenmund that landed near a Pirate batter in the left field stands.

The Pirates loaded the bases in their ninth on single by Willie Stargell and Richie Zisk and a walk to Bob Robertson.

Reliever Elias Sosa, Eastwick, who got the victory, then yielded sacrifice fly to pinch-hitter Duffy Dyer to force in the tying run, but Reliever Steve Blass filed out to centre to end the inning.

The Reds put the game away with a 10th-inning push that let Cincinnati "get back out of a two-strike hole.

"We knew he might bunt with two strikes, but he just did a great job with it," said manager Danny Murtaugh of the Pirates.

Griffey took second on a bunt by reliever Ramon Hernandez, moved to third on an infield out and scored the winning run on a single by Joe Hague. Hernandez Rose followed with a single to left and scored the final Cincinnati run on a double by Morgan.

Cincinnati reliever Pedro Borbon replaced Blass in the 10th and Stargell in the 10th to give the Reds their third loss in six years.

Armbrister Is Happy To Make Contribution

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Ed Armbrister had a dream of destiny.

"Sooner or later I knew I was going to contribute," said the seldom-used Cincinnati utilityman whose 10th-inning sacrifice fly helped the Reds beat Pittsburgh Pirates 5-3 Tuesday night and win their third National League title in six seasons.

"I've been telling them all year it's going to be my turn in the playoffs" said the champagne-soaked Nassau native.

Armbrister, 27, was given in in the trade that brought Joe Morgan and Cesar Geronimo from Houston in 1972, played a pinch-hitting role in Cincinnati's two-game sweep of the Boston Red Sox in the World Series.

Swift Ken Griffey had opened the 10th by beating out a bunt after taking two strikes. Griffey distracted Hernandez into a balk, advancing to second.

Geronimo's grounded moved Griffey to third, setting the stage for Armbrister's fly ball that gave the Reds a 4-3 lead.

"His first pitch was a fastball and I just figured he was going to come back with another one," said Armbrister, who hatted an anemic .185 during the season.

His fly ball to centre field scored Griffey and, after Pete Rose Singled, Joe Morgan's double gave the Reds their final two-run cushion.

Griffey summed overcast with his bunt—including Reds manager Sparky Anderson.

"I'm as surprised as you were," said a bourse Anderson amidst the bedlam of the Reds dressing-room.

Anderson, who led the Reds to a 108-victory season—most ever in Cincinnati's 99-year history, felt the pennant was a just reward.

"We were by far the superior team in the National League and we proved it today," said the after-board manager.

Pirates Take Loss in Stride

PITTSBURGH (AP) — They were swept from the National League Championship Series last night, but Pittsburgh Pirates stayed loose and even managed some clubhouse needling.

"We have players who really do care a great deal about this game," team captain Willie Stargell was saying after the Pirates were beaten 5-3 in 10 innings by the World Series-bound Cincinnati Reds.

"Oh, Willie," team-mate Dave Giusti interjected. "you're making me cry again."

"Cousin," Stargell responded with a slight smirk, "you've never shed a tear a day in your life."

Even rookie pitcher John Candelaria, who matched a league playoff record with 14 strikeouts, was able to smile. "I take a sip of beer and I can't accept the wait until next season.

"It's not the end of the world." he said. "I gave 100 per cent and I'm just happy to be here."

A reporter asked Candelaria what happened on an eighth-inning pitch that Pete Rose hit for a two-run homer.

"Didn't you see?" Candelaria responded with a relaxed smile. "He belted the thing clear over the fence."

Pirate manager Danny Murtaugh was in his rocking chair as usual, munching his usual cheese and crackers and sipping his usual apple cider.

Rookie Sharp In NHL Debut

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Gord Laxton was nervous when he found out he would start and a bit wobbly after his National Hockey League debut Tuesday night, but he showed the rookie goalie performed like a seasoned veteran.

The 20-year-old Philadelphia goalie turned aside 26 shots, including several close-in under pressure, leading the Penguins to a 4-2 victory over Washington Capitals in the opening game of the NHL's 26th season.

Following six more games tonight and three on Thursday, all but one of the league's 18 teams will have seen action. Toronto Maple Leafs won't play their first game until Saturday, when the schedule has Chicago Black Hawks at New York Rangers, California Seals at Atlanta Flames, New York Islanders at Kansas City Scouts, Los Angeles Kings at Montreal Canadiens, St. Louis Blues at Detroit Red Wings and Vancouver Canucks at Minnesota North Stars.

The Leafs completed the NHL exhibition schedule Tues'17 night with a 8-1 triumph over Oklahoma City Blazers, their Central Hockey League farm team.

In World Hockey Association exhibitions Tuesday, New England Whalers edged Quebec Nordiques 7-6 and Calgary Cowboys edged Houston Aeros 4-3.

"I really can't tell you how I play right now," Laxton confessed as he sat in the dressing-room at the Capital Centre in Landover, Md., after his debut, seemingly a bit stunned. "I don't know, because I'm still up on cloud nine."

The goalie, who played last year for Kansas Wheatfield Bruins, the Western Canadian Hockey League champions, said he was informed Monday afternoon by coach Mare Boileau that he would start.

Given a 2-0 lead on goals by Dave Burrows and Jim Hadfield, early in each of the first two periods, Laxton was working on a shutout until defenseman Greg Joly put a shot past him at 15:00 of the second period.

Another goal by Washington rookie Tony White, just 12 seconds after Philadelphia had taken mission, tied it 2-2. But instead of folding, Laxton stopped 14 shots in the third period and survived a four-minute stretch when Capitals were shorthanded.

A slapshot by defenceman Colin Campbell broke the tie at 5-41 and Syl Apro scored Philadelphia's second power-play goal at 18:28.

At Oklahoma City, Stan Weir scored twice as the Leafs fired 50 shots at Oklahoma City goalie Mike Palmateer.

Paul and Mike Byers with less than two minutes to play gave the Whalers their first New England's Tom Webster and Quebec's Marc Tardif had two goals each.

A Calgary crowd of 6,812 (spectators saw the Cowboys record their first exhibition win with the help of two goals by Danny Lawson. Larry Lund scored twice for Houston.

The Bruins made their final cut Tuesday, demoting veteran goaltenders Ross Brooks and Bob Brederick, rookie defenceman Mike Milbury. Brooks and Brederick will join Gerry Meehan of Boston who will share the job with Gilles Gilbert.

The Islanders sent defenceman Pat Price and goalie Bob Bourne, a 16-goal scorer last year, to the minors. Price spent last year with Vancouver Canucks in the Pacific and was the top pick in the World Hockey Association draft.

Break Works Against Losers

OAKLAND (AP) — Oakland A's went down proudly, praising their rivals—particularly Carl Yastrzemski.

"He's a legitimate superstar, the best outfielder in the game," said Reggie Jackson.

Jackson was victimized twice by Yastrzemski in Boston's 5-3 victory Tuesday night that gave them the American League baseball championship in a five-game series and sent a play off.

"The thought when Jim Hegan hit hurt it was a break for us," said A's captain Sal Bando. "It turned out to be the worst thing that happened."

Yastrzemski, 36, was moved to left field from first base when Hegan, who replaced him, broken hand late in the season.

Hegan, 37, spent the week talking about Yastrzemski's play—a fourth-inning throw that nailed Jackson trying for a double and an eighth-inning dive for a drop of Bando's fly ball squelched Oakland's best rally—they were admiring the hadn't played the kind of game Ted Williams used to play, a consecutive world championship.

"We were beaten pretty fairly," said catcher Gene Tenace. "Yastrzemski is it."

"We made mistakes, but they had to do everything right on the baseballs." said centrefielder Bill North, one of five Oakland starters held hitless in the play in a row and had to go through this. This is tougher."

Ballard Wants More Muscle

TORONTO (CP) — President Harold Ballard of Toronto Maple Leafs says he would gladly part with six of his veteran stars if it meant to build a team in the roughhouse style of the National Cup champions Philadelphia Flyers.

The players Ballard would trade to send elsewhere are defenceman Bob Seiling, Bob Neely and Brian Glennie, forwards Lanny McDonald and Inge Hammarstrom and goalie Doug Favell.

"We've got to sound a lineup that can take on a bunch of zoons when they come in the building," Ballard said Tuesday in an interview. "You've got to play it rough if you want to be successful."

Ballard who said he and not general manager Jim Gregory makes the decisions on hockey sonnel, says he has been looking trade. Ballard says he wants seeking a hard-nosed defenseman and a tough forward.

High on his trade list has been two hard-nosed defencemen, one of Buffalo Sabres and Steve Durbano of Pittsburgh Penguins and a tough forward, left-winger Dan Maloney of Detroit Red Wings.

"I'm looking for a guy who knocks the crap out of people he will go wild," Ballard said of his ideal defenceman. Durbano is wild and I like that," said Ballard, who praised Maloney as a player who "won't take crap from anyone."

Ballard has also made overtures for Mickey Redmond, the U.S.-born Detroit Red Wings winger and Pittsburgh centre Syl Apro, one of the former Toronto star.

So far Ballard's trade efforts have been fruitless.

HAROLD BALLARD

Ballard said the only Leafs not expendable are centre Darryl Sittler, defenceman Borje Salming and Ian Turnbull and left-winger Dave (Tiger) Williams.

"I'm trying to trade McDonald, because I expected more for my money and Hammarstrom seems affected by an injury—he Philadelphia hits every time the Flyers come to town.

Ballard repeated his defence of his decision to let its centre Norm Ullman and Dave Keon, who went to Edmonton Oilers and Minnesota Fighting Saints of the World Hockey Association, respectively.

"They were old and weren't going into the corners," he said. "You can't blame them, though. I'm not expected to take care of them."

OAKLAND (AP) — Boston Red Sox, inspired by the play of 36-year-old Carl Yastrzemski, fly the American League pennant today after destroying the Oakland dream of four successive World Series triumphs.

"It's a very strange feeling," admitted Charles O. Finley, the A's owner. "But you can't win them all."

Boston, with a 5-3 victory Tuesday night, swept the best-of-five league playoff with three wins in a row and now returns home to open the World Series on Saturday against Cincinnati Reds of the National League.

"We've won during the season in Boston, and we proved that even if for us in this series," declared Yastrzemski whose fielding gem in the eighth inning was the turning point of the final game.

"I was made a diving slop of a drive by Reggie Jackson and held him to a single instead of a double or a triple. One run did make the difference in the game, was stopped at third and the next batter, Joe Rudi, hit into a long-winding double play.

Sharing in the credit was relief pitcher Dick Drago who threw a fast sinker that Rudi hit on the ground.

Finley had to watch the game on television in New York because business commitments kept him there Monday and Tuesday. He had promised to be on hand for game No. 4—another dream that disappeared.

In the three games, Boston out-hit the A's 31-19 and five of the Oakland starters, Reggie Campaneris, Bill North, Billy Williams, Gene Tenace and Bando, who played in the field seven after winning in 1972 and 1973.

"Defensively they made the difference in the games for them," said Dark. "They outpitched us and outhit us."

Southpaw pitcher Ken Holtzman tried to pitch on two days rest after his own defence let him down in the first game, won 7-1 by the Red Sox.

"It just wasn't there," he said. "I was stiff."

Boston scored on unearned run in the fourth inning to tie the scoreless duel between Holtzman and winning pitcher Rick Wise.

The Red Sox added three runs in the fifth on hits by Rick Burleson, Denny Doyle, Carl Yastrzemski and Carlton Fisk Campaneris, Bill North, Billy Williams, Gene Tenace and Bando.

Cesar Tovar walked as a pinch-hitter in the ninth for Oakland and eventually scored on an infield out after Claudell Washington singled him to third. Tovar stole second in the eighth before Yaz and relieve Drago choked off the rally.

For the series Yaz collected five hits, including a home run. During the season he had played primarily at first base, returning to left field, his old position, when Jim Rice was hurt.

"No one is saying much about the coming series against Cincinnati, Yastrzemski said. Johnson said he probably would start game one against Lefty Tiant in Saturday's opening game at Fenway Park.

Hightower, Tiant, who was 19-12 on the season, admitted he was tiring in the eighth inning against the A's.

"I was mainly throwing fast stuff to go as hard as I could for as long as I could," he said. When he left the game with one out in the eighth, he had allowed the three runs, two of them earned, and six hits.

DICK DRAGO

Garner, didn't get a hit all series.

"They just outplayed us," admitted losing manager Alvin Dark who pitched for A's to the World Series crown in 1974 after nations for any shifted transfer.

Both the United States Congress and baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn want a team back in the U.S. capital. Earlier officials have delayed a lawsuit over the city's plan to Amerikan League franchise in 1969 because of assurances Seattle would get another team.

Veteran's Big Play Keys Boston Victory

OAKLAND (AP) — "At first I didn't think I had a chance to stop it, but I knew I had to stop it to hold Jackson at first so I dove as far as I could."

Veteran outfielder Carl Yastrzemski at Boston Red Sox was talking about the play of the game as his team was beaten Dark's American League pennant with a 5-3 victory over the Oakland A's giving Boston the best-of-five series 3-0.

"We all knew how important it was when he made that play," said winning manager Eddie Johnson. "It cut off a sure double and possible triple."

The run already was home in the eighth inning, cutting the Boston lead to 3-2, and was given on with one out when Jackson hit the ball to left field. Claudell Washington was thrown out from second and Sal Bando was reached third but Jackson would have crossed home plate and Jackson would have had extra bases if Yastrzemski hadn't made his diving stop.

Jackson called it "Dick Drago's from the bullpen to pitch to Joe Rudi. Drago threw one pitch and Rudi hit into an inning-ending double play.

"I threw as hard as I could to turn the double over and keep it low so he would hit it on the ground," said Drago the Red Sox celebrated with the usual champagne shower.

Fortunately the ball went where I wanted it and he hit it on the ground.

The double-play went from second baseman Denny Doyle and on to Cecil Cooper at first.

Jackson, a great star as Luis Tiant in the Saturday opener at Boston, he said: "You're getting a little ahead of me but I'd say 'yes.'"

Labatt's Gets Ally In a Bid for Giants

TORONTO (CP) — R. Howard Webster, chairman and president of the Canadian Mail, has joined forces with Labatt's Brewery Ltd., of London, Ont., in a bid for the Canadian Giants of baseball's National League.

Webster said Tuesday in Montreal that Gerry Snyder, who helped secure a National League franchise for that city was behind the latest effort to bring a major league franchise here next year.

"Labatt's is doing the upfront work and asked me to intervene the deal," Snyder said. "We've had some talks with Webster and we're hoping it comes before the World Series ends."

Late last month, a New York report said Webster had joined with a group of Canadian group headed by Lorne Duguid to make an offer for the Giants.

"After meeting with the Duguid people we're thinking of joining forces to make a bid to pursue this with Labatt's."

Horace Stoneham, owner of the Giants, is reported to have set a price of $10 million for the Giants. That figure would include Candlestick Park, which sort of an 18-year lease at San Francisco Candlestick Park.

"We've got to have an answer by the 15th, annual baseball meetings roll around in December," said Webster. "Time is short and it will be impossible to organize a schedule and the financing of operating a baseball club."

If the Canadian group does get the franchise, it would be a m . unanimous approval from the National League. The National League owners for transactions involving franchises.

Approval for a shift of the franchise to Toronto might be difficult, however, due to local political reasons. Washington and Seattle are preferred destinations for any shifted franchise.

Charges Denied By 2 NFL Teams

NEW YORK (AP) — Representatives of Atlanta Falcons and Los Angeles Rams denied charges Tuesday that their National Football League teams leased players last summer be cause of their activities in the NFL Players' Association.

The testimony of Jack Faulkner and Gary Turnbull of the Rams and Frank Walt and Bob Griffin of the Falcons was given during hearings at the New York office of the National Labor Relations Board.

Faulkner, director of player personnel and Turbill, the Rams' trainer, disputed an accusation made by Bill Curry, former Los Angeles centre and one-time Falcon who said he was released by Houston Oilers solely for his union activities.

Curry was signed by the Rams as a free agent after being released by Houston Oilers.

Faulkner also countered an identical charge made by Tommy Mel Alexander, current NFLPA president, who said he was traded to New Orleans Saints solely for his union activities.

Griffin said that it was the conclusion of the Falcons' coaching staff in January, 1974, that based on his performance during the 1973 season. Reaves was in a couple of steps and could be replaced."

Faulkner's testimony dealt with Curry's physical condition and his ability to play the Rams' offensive scheme, which he left from the Oilers in September, 1974. Curry, who was then recovering from a knee injury, had testified earlier that he was fit enough to participate in a full scrimmage against the Rams' staff defensive Merlin Olsen on Sept. 4, but Faulkner denied that.

Faulkner said Olsen, wasn't allowed to take part in such a drill on that date, that Curry had not been declared physically fit for such a drill on the date by the Rams trainer and, in any case, a substitute like Curry would line up against a tougher substitute and a regular like Olsen.

Faulkner said Curry did not participate in regular team drills with the Rams until Sept. 12 because he had first great tive rehabilitation program for his knee.

Faulkner concluded his testimony by commenting about Alexander, who he had made an NFL. I cited Alexander in 1963, when he was head coach and general manager of Denver Broncos.

"In my opinion, over the years he has lost that great toughness he had," said Faulkner. "He no longer came up aggressively to stop the sweep. When a player starts to look to ease up and save himself, it hurts your team. Obviously, I would hate to replace such a player."

Harper Turns to Courts

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Judge Robert Kelleher of the U.S. district court said Tuesday he will schedule a trial as soon as possible in the court actions being launched by Terry Harper against the National Hockey League.

Harper's lawyer, Phil Kelly, said Judge Kelleher denied without prejudice an application by Harper for a preliminary injunction and separated antitrust arguments from Harper's claims of a breach of contract and a number of other personal matters.

Judge Kelleher's clerk said arrangements for both sides, on Oct. 6, will present arguments regarding anti-trust matters. A trial date will be set at that time.

Harper, captain of Los Angeles Kings of the NHL last season, is suing to remain with the Kings. He was traded to Detroit Red Wings last June 25 in a deal which sent Marcel Dionne to Los Angeles.

Harper says he was traded unfairly to the Red Wings as compensation for Dionne, who played out his option last year, became a free agent and signed with the Kings.

Defendants are Jack Kent Cooke, owner of the Kings; his California Sports Inc.; all NHL teams and NHL president Clarence Campbell.

Harper's other action is for breach of contract, intentional and/or negligent misrepresentation, unilateral mistake and other charges that the Red Wings and Kings conspired to illegally negotiate for him.

Harper, like Dionne, played out his option last year and was a free agent June 13. At that time, Kelly said, Harper was induced to sign a two-year contract with the Kings, thinking he would be a member of the team for the 1975-76 season. Twelve days later, he was traded to Detroit.

Re-instatement Doesn't Impress Gerry Cassan

OTTAWA (CP) — Being reinstated to the Canadian National speedskating team has not impressed Gerry Cassan.

When the 20-year-old Ottawa native was informed of the Canadian Amateur Speedskating Association's (CASA) decision reached during the weekend, he said:

"I'm not exactly sure why I'm being reinstated after what the coach said about me last season . . . I do not consider myself on the national team until I get a letter which says Gerry Cassan is on the national team."

Even then, the CASA may have to retract some statements about him and accept continuing bad relations between him and national coach Jorrit Jorritsma.

Cassan, Sylvia Burka of Winnipeg and Andrew Barron of Edmonton have been reinstated to the national A team after being dropped Jan. 31 because of charges they had broken training rules on curfew, drinking and entertainment.

But Cassan said in an interview this week that the charges are untrue and the real problem was personality clashes with Jorritsma.

"We agreed with his programs but not his philosophy," said Cassan, 200-metre gold medalist at the 1974 junior world sprint championship. "He said the Canadians were not as good as the Europeans; we couldn't meet their standards; and we didn't have the attitude of international skaters."

Rams Still Undefeated

RICHMOND HILL, Ont. (CP) — Richmond Hill Rams remained undefeated, holding Wexford Raiders to a 6-6 tie in the only Ontario Hockey Association Provincial Junior A game Tuesday.

Wexford scored three goals in the final eight minutes to gain the tie.

Richmond Hill goals were scored by Bob Osborne, Bob Febbo, Dan Jones, Larry Kimble, Mike Gallaugher and Ken Paraskevin.

Islanders Cut Two

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — New York Islanders of the National Hockey League cut their roster to 20 players Tuesday by sending rookie defenceman Pat Price and left wing Bob Bourne to Port Worth Texans in the Central Hockey League.

The 6-foot-3 Bourne, acquired from Kansas City Scouts during the 1974 training camp, scored 16 goals and 23 assists for 39 points in 77 games with the Islanders last season.

Price, who signed with the then Vancouver franchise in the World Hockey Association as an 18-year-old in 1974, was the Islanders' top choice in the amateur selection this summer. He was eligible because he never had been drafted by an NHL club.

"We are not unhappy with the way Pat developed in camp," said Islanders general manager Bill Torrey. "It's only unfortunate that he is trying to crack one of the better defences in the NHL.

"The rules allow us to dress only 19 players and we're going to carry 20. At their stage of development and age, the worst thing for Bou ne and Price would be to ride the bench."

James Healey (left) of 4 Lyndale Crescent, Belleville, is assisted by his son, Gerry, as he proudly displays 27-lb., 53-inch Muskellunge caught during a recent excursion in Skinner's Bay on Moira River just north of Foxboro. He used 50-lb. test line on a pro reel with a Suick muskie thriller lure for the catch.

Not This Time, Son

Gerry Healey came within a leap of snaring his biggest Muskellunge ever in September but it was his father who enjoyed the glory of the catch.

James Healey of 4 Lyndale Crescent, Belleville and his son were fishing the evening of Sept. 23 in Skinner's Bay, on the Moira River just north of Foxboro, when the event occurred.

The two were casting from a boat in about 15 feet of water when, at about 7.10 p.m., the Muskie leaped over Gerry's lure and latched onto his father's.

After a 45-minute battle, Mr. Healey came out the victor. The prize was a 27-lb., 53-inch Muskie — his third this year and the largest he has ever brought in.

"It was a fair struggle," he commented, "he took me around in the boat anytime he wanted to go until I palyed him out."

The Muskie's size compares favorably with others caught in the Moira River. Mr.Healey said last year's record was 46 lbs. and the rumored records say 50-pounders have been caught. Exact records are apparently not kept, he added.

Mr. Healey used 50-lb. test line on a pro reel with a Suick muskie thriller lure. He said he has sent the muskie away for mounting.

"I had just cast out and it jumped over the top of my lure," Gerry said with a wince as he recalled his father's prize catch. He said the largest Muskie he has caught weighed 12 lbs.

Bayside Seniors Are Rolling

By TOM GAVEY
Sports Staff

In the Western Conference of the Bay of Quinte High School soccer league the Bayside Secondary School team seems to be fond of 7-2 scores.

First they defeated Albert College 7-2 and then they chalked up the same score against East Northumberland. The two wins put them in first place, two points ahead of Trenton High School.

Centennial Secondary School had trouble defeating Picton, edging them by a 5-4 score.

Sir James Whitney came up with a good effort to defeat Albert College 7-2 in their scheduled hook up. The win moved SJW a point up on Brighton and into a tie with Centennial for third, place in the West.

Trenton defeated Picton 4-0 to move into second place in the Western Conference. The loss put Picton in the cellar, they have yet to pick up a win.

Senior standings are close, Bayside leads the pack with eight points, followed by Trenton with six. Tied for third are Centennial and Sir James Whitney, both with three on the board. Brighton has two points while Picton and Albert College share the cellar.

In Junior play Centennial took one on the chin, as they lost 4-1 to the Picton squad. The win moved Picton into first place in the Junior West.

East Northumberland and Bayside battled it out to a 3-2 tie in their league play.

Picton took one from Trenton High School by a tight 3-2 score to continue to dominate the Junior West.

As things stand Picton is in first with six points and Centennial is a close second at the four point mark. Brighton has three points and Trenton has two to round out the top four. Bayside is on the board with one point and Sir James Whitney is in the cellar.

Canadians Take Over at the Top

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Backed by the outstanding goaltending of Bob Mears, Kingston Canadians defeated Hamilton Fincups 5-1 in an Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A game on Tuesday before a crowd of 1,450.

In the only other league action, Ottawa 67s and St. Catharines Black Hawks battled to a 2-2 tie at St. Catharines.

The Canadians win, their fifth in six starts, enabled them to regain sole possession of first place in the Leyden division. The Fincups, winless in their last four games, are in fourth place in the Emms division.

At Hamilton, Ron Davidson, Larry Murphy, Rob Street, Mike Crombeen and Ken Linseman scored for the Canadians, who led 1-0 at the end of the first period and 3-1 going into the third.

Dany Shearer scored then Hamilto goal at 19:26 of the third period.

The Fincups fired 44 shots at Mears, who was especially sharp early in the first period when his team played short-handed for almost five minutes.

The Canadians managed 23 shots at Mark Lockon in the Hamilton goal.

There were 18 penalties, 10 of them to Kingston.

League play resumes Thursday with Toronto at Peterborough, Hamilton at Windsor and Kitchener at Ottawa.

Ottawa withstood extreme pressure from St. Catharines to tie in the third period to salvage their tie with the Black Hawks.

Playing before 628 fans, the Hawks took a 1-0 first-period lead on a goal by Mark Fiorentino. Ottawa tied the score in the second on a power-play goal by captain Peter Leo.

The Hawks again took the lead early in the final period on defenceman Barry Callahan's first goal as a junior. But two minutes later, Doug Wilson bounced a shot to off the pads of St. Catharines' goaltender Rob Froese to give the 67s the tie.

Ottawa outshot the Hawks in the first two periods and finished with a 41-30 margin.

Chargers Whip Saints

Centennial Secondary School Senior Chargers revenged their season record at 3-3 in Bay of Quinte High School Football League play Tuesday, turning back Quinte Secondary School Saints 19-8.

It was the second straight loss for Saints who opened with a pair of wins.

In Junior action, Trenton High School Tigers waited until the late going to pull out a 26-6 win over Bayside Red Devils. It was the fourth win in as many starts for Tigers.

Trailing 6-0 at the half, the Senior Chargers scored the only points after the interval to chalk up the victory.

Centennial opened the scoring in the game on the first of two touchdowns by speedy halfback Paul Hipkin.

Then, Quinte went to work and halfback Scott Bowen put six on the board. A two-point conversion made it 8-6, Saints, and they added another point on a wide field goal attempt.

Chargers took the lead for keeps in the third quarter. Again, it was Hipkin lugging the ball to paydirt.

Paul Brother scored the final touchdown of the game and the winners added a single point.

Moira Trojans and Trenton lead the league with 3-1 records. They meet in Trenton today.

Centennial and Quinte are next in line. Centre Hastings and Bayside Secondary School own identical 1-3 records.

At Trenton, the Junior Tigers seemed reluctant to extend their winning streak to four games.

It wasn't until the final 10 minutes of play that Tigers' attack came together after the defence had created scoring opportunities.

Bayside opened the scoring the way to an upset victory but frittered away several great chances to wrap it up, especially in the second quarter when Tigers ran into a string of penalties.

In front 6-3 heading for the final quarter, Red Devils coughed up the ball three times on interceptions and a blocked punt sealed the visitors' fate.

Bayside opened the scoring early when Mitch Hinds raced 85 yards on a counter play for a major. The attempt at a two-point conversion failed and that was it for Devils.

And when the best Trenton could manage in the first 45 minutes of play was a field goal by Mark Scuccato who split the uprights from a difficult angle, it appeared that one Bayside major would be enough.

Trenton began to show signs of snapping out of its doldrums in the third quarter when flanker John Webb ate up good yardage on the reverse and halfback Henry Peterson slugged it out up the middle. But Red Devils hung on.

The running of Jeff Steiner and quarterback Brian Hanson's ability to pick the hole on the keeper, highlighted Trenton's attack when it finally got untracked.

Hanson ran for a pair of touchdowns and the third Tiger major came when Dave Day broke through to block a Bayside punt and an alert Darrell Fairman fell on the ball in the end zone.

Tigers got two points on a safety touch and added another on a single off a wide field goal attempt. Scuccato added a pair of conversions.

Two in a Row For Chuckwagon

Chuckwagon Foods is making no bones about welcoming the new clubs into the Gas House Hockey League. Monday the caterers downed Belleville Con Engineering 4-1 and Tuesday night they stopped Bi-Temp 5-2.

The other two games were much closer as the Yardmen nipped Kelly's Esso 3-2 and Jim's Pizzeria and Procter and Gamble skated to a 3-3 tie.

Grant Sage scored his second and third goals of the young Gas House season in helping Chuckwagon to the victory. Fred Stickle, Donald Donaldson and Wayne Brown each added singles. Wally Dalzard and Gary Sero drew two assists apiece.

Bob McKay and Jim Drummond replied for Bi-Temp. Rick Meens, Dan Lupenette and Terry Rappell each scored once in the Yardmen win. Mike Lynch and Bernie Rohar tallied for Kelly's.

Procter and Gamble is the only new club that has fared well at all. Dave Woods, Bob Kiddie and Jim Inesson each scored once for the late GHHL entry while Ted McBride, Mike Evans and Terry Trice shared in the scoring for Jim's.

One That Got Away

Dash for touchdown by Trenton High School Junior Tiger flanker John Webb is cut short as Bayside Secondary School defender Steve Feckitt reaches out to get hand on ball. Bayside Red Devils recovered fumble but wound up on short end of 26-6 score. Trenton team, sporting 4-0 record, meets Quinte Secondary School Saints, at Quinte, Friday.

Huskies Battle Way To Junior C Victory

BOWMANVILLE (Special) — Frankford Huskies trimmed down in playing six Tuesday night following their 6-5 victory here. Huskies management made their final cuts getting the club down to 21 players for their opening game of Ontario Hockey Association Junior C season this Friday.

While management was trimming the team, local fans were plotting to trim a player. Brian McIntosh, after receiving a game misconduct for whaling a home town boy, was headed for the dressing room when the fans decided they should even the score. Before things got too far out of hand, Huskies management and a few players intervened and stalled long enough for arena personnel to make the scene.

In all, Bowmanville and the Huskies rolled through a rough and ready contest earning 46 minutes in penalties apiece.

The visitors opened the game's scoring when Rick Matheson tallied on a pass play with the McIntosh brothers, Brian and Dale.

Frankford held a 3-1 lead at the end of the first as Jean Doucette and Dale McIntosh potted goals. Joey Edwards assisted on Doucette's marker and Matheson and brother Brian helped McIntosh to his.

Nick Vanseggelaan scored the only goal of the first period for the home team. In the second period, Don Sticher and Al Emard put Bowmanville back on even terms. The middle 20 minutes ended in a 3-3 tie.

That didn't last long, however, as Frankford jumped into a 6-3 lead at the 46 second mark of the third period. Rob Arbuckle scored this one from Matheson.

John Masterson combined with Harry Grills and Ken Just to give the Huskies a 5-3 lead and Rick Momsma tallied the winners sixth goal from Mike Graham.

John Wood and Mike Roberge were the marksmen for Bowmanville in the final 20 minutes.

Huskies season opener is at 8.30 p.m. in Lindsay.

Success of New Cabinet Determines Life of Minority Government

TORONTO (CP) — There were problems facing Ontario Premier William Davis in determining the make-up of his new cabinet, which was announced Tuesday.

Just how successful he was in meeting those challenges will determine the success and longevity of his minority government when Ontarios 30th legislature convenes Sept. 30.

Mr. Davis introduced seven new faces to the cabinet Tuesday, reshuffled eight old ones and left 10 veterans where they were.

He reduced the cabinet from 27 to 26, hardly a drastic reduction considering that the Progressive Conservatives had 74 members prior to the Sept. 18 election and 51 after it.

The premier has often said that his most difficult chore is picking a cabinet, and this time he faced geographic and political considerations from his own side of the house and of the opposition's.

That explains the presence of new faces John Smith (Hamilton Mountain) as minister of correctional services; Parrott (Oxford) in colleges and universities and James Taylor (Prince Edward-Lennox) as minister of community and social services.

Mr. Smith is the only Hamilton representative. Dr. Parrott gives the cabinet a new voice in southwestern Ontario where the PCs suffered stunning reversals Sept. 18; and Mr. Taylor adds a cabinet voice in Eastern Ontario.

Another political consideration for Mr. Davis is his cabinet restructuring was to keep up the morale of the caucus. The top-off here is Lorne Henderson, the Lambton farmer whom the premier made a minister without portfolio.

Mr. Henderson, 63, first elected to the legislature in 1963, will probably be the liaison between the caucus and cabinet.

Mr. Davis also chose two political freshmen for his new cabinet, the first time that has been done since 1963.

One is Roy McMurtry, a Toronto lawyer as attorney-general. Mr. McMurtry, a close friend and confidante of the premier, is expected to wield big influence in the cabinet.

The other is Dr. Bette Stephenson (Toronto-York Mills), a past president of the Canadian Medical Association who is the new labor minister.

In attempting to placate the opposition, Mr. Davis removed Donald Irvine (Carleton-Grenville) from the housing portfolio and replaced him with John Rhodes, who may be more acceptable to NDP Leader Stephen Lewis.

Mr. Irvine, who was under constant criticism from the opposition parties for his stand against rent controls, is now a minister without portfolio.

Mr. Davis' decision to leave Education Minister Thomas Wells as minister of education also probably met with the NDP leader's approval.

The senior cabinet minister in terms of service, James Auld (Leeds) has been transferred from colleges and universities to management board, where he will be responsible for negotiations with the province's civil service.

How well Mr. Davis succeeded with his political juggling act will be determined by the performance of his cabinet in the months ahead.

A mis-step in a crucial area could lead to an early election.

Trudeau Inaugerates Institute

MONTREAL (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau arrived to participate in inauguration ceremonies Tuesday for the newly-expanded Clinical Research Institute of Montreal.

He is also to attend a celebration marking the 10th anniversary of his nomination as Liberal candidate in the northend Town of Mount Royal.

The prime minister was joined in the afternoon ceremony at the institute in downtown Montreal by Gerard Lemaire and minister of justice, representing the provincial government. Both governments funded the $4,825,000 extension which more than doubles the size of the institute.

Members of the institute have achieved international repute for their research in various fields of clinical medicine.

He assured about 200 people attending the ceremonies the institute would continue to enjoy government support.

Drug Administration Orders Insulin Labels

OTTAWA (CP) — The dead space in insulin syringes will be virtually eliminated under mandatory health standards soon to be implemented, federal health protection branch spokesmen said Tuesday.

The United States Food and Drug Administration Monday ordered warning labels to be placed on insulin syringes because the dead space might lead to harmful dosage errors when diabetics use two different kinds of insulin.

Dead space is air in the syringe, needle hubs and needle shaft that is not figured into the calibrated drum of the syringe itself.

The Canadian spokesman said the health regulations will eliminate the manufacturing of plastic and glass insulin syringes with a capacity of 40 units per cubic centimetre or 80 units per cubic centimetre and replace them with a 100-unit-per-cubic-centimetre syringe in which the dead space will be negligible.

FCC Will Study U.S. Programs in Canada

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) has agreed to investigate a petition that it act to prevent U.S.-produced television programs being shown in Canada before they are seen in the United States.

The FCC, which has responsibility for regulating U.S. broadcasting, will begin inviting comments on the petition, filed by ABC-TV, next week, officials said Tuesday.

The commission will start its inquiry by inviting comments from all interested parties to the dispute, officials said. It aims to be in a position to recommend which drops, if any, should be taken within 90 days or so.

Under the current system, many Canadian TV stations, as well as the networks, buy programs produced in the United States with the condition they can be shown in Canada before being aired in the U.S. The Canadians argue that since most viewers live within range of U.S. border stations, part of the potential Canadian audience would be lost to American outlets if programs were released at the same time.

The ABC petition contends American viewers near the border too often watch Canadian TV in order to see programs earlier than they would get them through their local outlets.

Money Decreased

VICTORIA (CP) — Tourism traffic to British Columbia this summer showed a slight rise from last year, but tourists spent less, the provincial travel industry department reported.

Three Women In New Cabinet

TORONTO (CP) — The voice of women will be heard loud and clear in the new cabinet named Tuesday by Premier William Davis.

For the first time in the province's history, or for that matter in the history of any other province as far as anyone can recall, there are three women ministers.

Dr. Bette Stephenson, elected Sept. 18 as member for Toronto York Mills in her first try at elected office, was no great surprise for a cabinet job. Her post is labor wise.

The former president of the Canadian Medical Association is well known for being her own woman and having some theories that are known to conflict with the government's.

But Premier Davis just laughed at any suggestion their views would clash.

"We always welcomed new points of view," he said in an interview.

Margaret Scrivener, member for Toronto St. David and a parliamentary secretary to the minister of housing in the last legislature became minister of government services.

Stanfield Demands Action

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield demanded decisive economic leadership from the Trudeau government Tuesday as Progressive Conservative MPs ended a two-day caucus on the reopening of Parliament next week.

"We're determined . . . to insist that the government bring forward measures that are comprehensive and courageous," he told reporters at a news conference.

Conservative MPs would not stand for "the sort of cosmetic measures" tried earlier this year when the government sought unsuccessfully to negotiate a voluntary restraint agreement with business and labor leaders.

Lalonde Challenges Doctors

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister Marc Lalonde said Tuesday if doctors and other medical professionals don't lessen their wage demands the quality of health care will suffer.

Mr. Lalonde told about 125 people at a health sciences conference that the new federal medical care cost ceilings leave room for adequate wage increases, but not excessive ones.

He urged the provinces to take a hard line against high wage demands.

"If a precedent is set, the domino effect carries it across the country. The very large wage and salary increases recently given to the hospital sector in . . . put great pressure on the other provinces for matching increases they cannot afford."

Mr. Lalonde also defended the government's plans for medical care cost ceilings and to replace the present hospital insurance act within five years.

Judge Attacks Parole Board

OTTAWA (CP) — The chief justice of the Supreme Court of Canada delivered a stinging attack on the operations of the National parole board in a minority judgment released Tuesday.

In remarks which may be slightly out of date because of administrative changes made by the board, Chief Justice Bora Laskin said:

"The plain fact is that the board claims a tyrannical authority that I believe is without precedent among administrative agencies empowered to deal with a person's liberty.

"It claims an unfettered power to deal with an inmate, almost as if he were a mere puppet on a string."

The opinion was delivered in giving a dissenting judgment to a 6 to 3 decision by the court not to interfere in a case of a man who served a long period in penitentiary dispite the fact that his sentence had expired.

It is the second supreme court case in a year that has dealt with failure by the parole board to give reasons for revoking or suspending parole.

SAFE THAWING FOR FROZEN TURKEY

To serve frozen turkey at its safe and delicious best, thaw it carefully.

Slit the underside of its plastic bag, and place on a rack over a tray, to catch drips. If time allows, thaw in the refrigerator - about 5 hours per pound. To thaw at room temperature, observe special precautions. After slitting the bag, wrap in a double layer of brown paper bag or cover with a heavy towel. Allow about 1-1/4 hours per pound for thawing.

Refrigerate thawed turkey no more than one day. Better still, wash, stuff and roast as soon as it is pliable. Turkeys may be thawed in their plastic bag under cold running water, if preferred.

Gauvin Becomes Canadian Consul

OTTAWA (CP) — Michel Gauvin, Canadian ambassador to Greece who became well known as a truce observer in Vietnam, is to be the first Canadian consul-general in Strasbourg, France.

The external affairs department announced the appointment of Mr. Gauvin in a series of ambassadorial changes today.

Mr. Gauvin, 56, is being appointed to a position that normally would be considered lower in rank than the ambassadorships he has held.

But an external affairs spokesman said the government regards it as an important appointment. Mr. Gauvin would be the first appointment to a post that was agreed upon in talks between Prime Minister Trudeau and French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing in Paris in 1973.

Canada has been seeking ways to achieve closer relationships with Europe to lessen its dependence on the United States.

Mr. Gauvin, originally from Quebec City, has been ambassador in Ethiopia, Portugal and Greece.

He gained some fame as outspoken head of the Canadian International Commission for Control and Supervisions in South Vietnam in 1973.

He will be replaced in Athens by Arthur Andrew, 59, now assistant undersecretary of state for external affairs.

Mr. Andrew, 59, originally from Pictou, N.S., has been ambassador to Israel, Cyprus and Sweden. He was appointed head of the external Far East division in 1970 and subsequently was made director general of external's Asia and Pacific bureau.

Mr. Andrews had considerable involvement in the negotiations that led to diplomatic relations with the People's Republic of China. Establishment of those relations by Canada in 1970 set a pattern followed by many other Western countries.

Other appointments:

—Ronald Stuart Maclean 47, originally of Canrose, Alta., appointed ambassador to the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) in Paris. He has served in New Delhi, Paris and Tokyo and now is seconded to the defence, external and cultural affairs division of treasury board. He replaces Peter Towe who will replace Mr. Andrews as assistant undersecretary of state.

—Douglas Hicks, 57, originally from Kingston, Ont., now director of external's South Asia division becomes ambassador to Ethiopia. Mr. Hicks has served in San Francisco, New Delhi, Nairobi and Accra and has been director of the information division at external affairs here.

—Ralph Reynolds, 55, originally of Sarnia, Ont., now ambassador to Ethiopia, becomes ambassador to Costa Rica Panama, Nicaragua, Honduras and El Salvador. He has served in Prague, Geneva, Copenhagen and Warsaw. Mr. Reynolds replaces Gilbert Craig Langille who died in office last March.

Opening lead—Jn

By Oswald & James Jacoby

If today's hand were played in the national charity duplicate the spaces are so that there would be several thousand bidding sequences. Some pairs would just reach game. Others would reach six notrump, down one after a club lead. Some would play in six diamonds (also down one).

The few who would be in six clubs would also be lucky to be one short, although there is a perfect safety play available.

Playing in six clubs, South wins the spade lead, draws trumps, cashes three hearts in order to get rid of his small spade, ruffs dummy's last spade and since he is in his own hand proceeds to lead a low diamond and to play dummy's eight upon East wins and is end-played.

Suppose West held the four diamonds if they included just two honors West would win and be forced to give South a ruff and discard. If West held all three honors, and did not play one that eight spot would have won the trick. If he played one, South would win with dummy's king, lead back the eight; duck and let West be end-played.

Suppose diamonds were 5-2. Then there would be only one diamond loser and everyone would make the slam.

Ask the Jacobys

A Colorado reader asks, "Your one notrump opening is trained to three. The five of spades is led. Dummy holds queen-10, you hold ace-nine. Which spade do you play from dummy?"

As the old three-card monte dealers used to say, "You pay your money and you take your choice." Against an expert we tend to play the queen. Experts prefer to lead from a king than a jack. Against others, we tend to play the nine. Experts seem to hate to lead from a king.

To Your Good Health

Excess Alcohol Damages Liver

By G. C. THORSTEDSEN, MD

Dear Dr. Thorstesen: Would you tell me the symptoms one has when the liver starts to fail? I have been drinking since my teens and consume at least one six-pack of beer and a couple of ounces of whisky each day now. I feel okay but I was told by the doctor to stop drinking.

He took a blood test, then said the test indicated my liver wasn't too good. I am 5-9, weight 180 pounds, and am 6 feet 9 inches tall.—A.B.

Your doctor's warning following the blood test should have given you a clue to one of the symptoms. The liver has many metabolic functions. An important one is regulation of sugar in the body. It also controls nitrogen metabolism.

Alcohol can be toxic to the liver, causing fat to infiltrate its substance or actually destroying liver cells. There are several tests to measure liver function. If your doctor made only one, it may have dealt with the level of enzymes in the blood or the amount of bile present.

Usually, a battery of these function tests gives a better picture than a single one. As to other symptoms, a yellowish tinge to the skin (jaundice) is a classic one. There may be a swelling of the abdomen, an early liver failure, but the blood tests will give a better picture.

Although you are feeling okay now and your weight and height statistics look pretty good, you'd best take your doctor's advice. Your drinking seems to have gone far beyond the recreational stage anyway.

Dear Dr. Thorstesen: Could you tell me something about Paget's disease, or osteitis deformans? How does it affect a person, and what can be done for it? Is there any way to prevent becoming disabled by it?—Mrs. B.F.

Dear Dr. Thorstesen: Could you please print in your column something about Paget's disease of the bones? I've had operations on both breasts for this.—Mrs. M.B.K. Is disease of the breast? I've had operations on both breasts for this.—Mrs. M.B.K.

As these letters indicate there are two unrelated Paget's diseases, a confusion explained by the fact that both were first described by the same man, Sir James Paget, an English surgeon.

The more common type, of which the first letter writer is called osteitis deformans. Of unknown origin, it occurs in persons over 40 usually, and is associated with a change in the bone. Rigidity is absent calcium sufficiently.

The bones become fragile, resulting in pain in the weight-bearing portions of the skeleton—the spine, pelvis, legs. There can be a bowing of the legs or a shortening of the spine because of compression of the vertebra. Changes in a skull structure can cause hearing impairment.

Fortunately, modern drugs can lessen the pain and reduce deformity in this once-crippling disease. Treatment includes use of calcium supplements, besides in calcium absorption Sodium fluoride, a phosphonate preparation called disodium etidronate, and an antibiotic called mithramycin are also prescribed.

The second Paget's disease affects the nipples of the breast. It is apparent to the eyes and can be mistaken for that. There is usually a lump present. The most effective treatment for this malignancy is mastectomy.

Dear Dr. Thorstesen: I have a bad skin condition. It is red and purple. Could you please suggest the best method of recovering? I want my eye to be normal.—Black Eye.

By the time you read this you will probably have recovered. If you used cold compresses on the offended eye, you would have used the most effective method.

The reason the eye area becomes so unsightly is because the skin is thin and highly vascular (meaning there are lots of blood vessels there). At today's prices, the Hindemith beefsteak remedy has lost its appeal, but the trick is it never accomplished much, except perhaps if it was cold.

Revising Displays

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian War Museum is revising its Second World War display. It needs donations of military artifacts, related to history concerning, in particular, Canadian servicemen. In charge of the displays is L. E. Murray, chief curator, Canadian War Museum, 360 Sussex Dr., Ottawa K1A 0M8.

Promotes More Travel

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta has been the hardest hit in Canadian tourism industry, with only a 9-per-cent increase this year, reported Travel Alberta. The provincial department now is promoting more extensively in areas such as California, the Pacific Northwest and Ontario where there are high population densities.

Supreme Court Jury Convicts 2 Prisoners

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario Supreme Court jury convicted two Millhaven penitentiary prisoners Tuesday of murder in the Jan. 4 stabbing of Dwight Cabana, 41, also a prisoner at the penitentiary.

William Kaulback, 27, and James Cavanagh, 27, were found guilty of murder punishable by life imprisonment 6½ hours after Mr. Justice Edson Haines completed his address. The 12 jurors retiredto the courtroom four times for further instructions.

During the trial, Edward Johnston, a Millhaven prisoner, testified that he and a partner, whom he refused to name, committed the murder.

Crown attorney Norman Matusiak said Johnston's confession was unreliable since it was not made until eight months after the murder.

Cabana was described by witnesses as a homosexual bully who terrorized other prisoners. Johnston testified that he and another man killed Cabana because he was forcing a prisoner 10 years younger to perform homosexual acts.

Cavanagh and Donaldson testified that they were not involved in the killing.

A prisoner who was a Crown witness and whose name may not be published for protective reasons told the court that he saw Cavanagh stab Cabana while Donaldson stood guard outside the cell.

Walton Rose and Niels Orsted, the defence lawyers, said the 12 men in the jury should disregard the evidence of the Crown's witness and rely on Johnston's testimony.

Mr. Justice Haines said during his address to the jury that the criminal record of the Crown's witness seemed to be less serious than the records of most prisoners testifying for the defence.

Ford Praises Son

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — President Ford said Tuesday he has never tried marijuana himself but he praised his 22-year-old son, Jack, for being frank and honest about his own experience with it.

The president was asked his reaction to his son's disclosure in a Portland, Ore., interview in which Jack said: "I've smoked marijuana before and I don't think that's an exceptional for people growing up in the 1960s." Jack added that he thinks the law should treat marijuana as it does wine and beer.

The president said: "I can disagree with what some of the children do" but "as long as they are honest with us and give us an opportunity to give our views—I don't think I should go any further."

Ford had long opposed legalization of the private use of marijuana. He told a recent news conference in Washington that "I do not believe we have sufficient evidence at the present time to warrant any recommendation in that regard."

Cancer Experts Claim Cures

GENEVA (Reuter) — International cancer experts said Tuesday they already have the means to cure most victims of a major cancer killer among women.

Treatment available at present could cure nearly 60 per cent of women with cancer of the cervix, the experts said after a three-day review meeting in Monaco organized by the Geneva-based World Health Organization (WHO).

The cure rate could be greatly increased if every country used proper screening facilities which caught the disease in its early stages, and follow-up techniques for the whole female population, the medical experts added.

Cancer of the cervix was associated with early and frequent sexual experience, promiscuity and poor personal hygiene, said a WHO communique on the meeting.

The experts agreed that radiotherapy, used in treating 70 to 80 per cent of these cancer victims, was still the most effective means of fighting the disease.

DDT Bans Not at Fault

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Bans on pesticides such as DDT are not to blame for this summer's outbreak in the United States of mosquito-carried encephalitis, Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) Director Russell Train said Tuesday.

He said EPA has tried to set the record straight on that point, but "it has not deterred some members of Congress from making the same baseless charge on the floor of the House."

Nor has EPA's explanation kept Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz from "spreading the same story on repeated occasions," he said.

Train said DDT was largely abandoned for mosquito control before the 1970 ban because the insects had become resistant to it.

Inflation Helps This Businessman

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto businessman, continually searching for ideas for new or better products, says inflation is helping his business, not hurting it.

"Inflation is the biggest ally we have," says Byron Alexandroff, 27-year-old vice-president of Lawrence Peska Associates Ltd., a firm that promotes and markets new products.

"When the economy is depressed, our business is booming. When business in other companies starts to slow down, they start searching for new products . . . and that's where we come in."

His firm helps inventors develop ideas and promotes their products to industry.

Of the thousands of ideas reviewed by his company each year, Mr. Alexandroff estimates between 30 and 30 per cent are rejected in the initial screening because they are not marketable, too expensive to produce or duplications of existing products.

Mr. Alexandroff, whose staff includes engineers, marketing personnel and patent attorneys, describes the classic rejection as the product proposed to do something "like grow hair or get rid of warts or wrinkles." Although the idea is usually a good one, the product is just not marketable, he says.

Mr. Alexandroff says most of the ideas are improvements to existing products. People invariably come up with the solution after the problem, so when a product fails, somebody thinks of a better one that can do the same job, he explains.

He describes the average inventor as creative, cautious, suspicious, intelligent and greedy. Most want recognition, monetary rewards, normally paid in the form of royalties that can range up to 10 per cent.

Postal Union Pushes for Mail Strike

OTTAWA (CP) — Postal union chiefs stood firm on their original contract demands Wednesday, rejecting a conciliation report and announcing their intention to seek a strike mandate from their 22,000 members.

If there is no progress in negotiations, a strike could come next week.

The union announcement came as Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey said he was basically pleased with the conciliation report, prepared by Judge Jean Moisan of the Quebec Superior Court, but feared there was little negotiating room left on the wage question.

Jean Burton, president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW), said union leaders would ask their members for support in an effort to gain original contract objectives, including a $3.26-an-hour wage increase.

The Moisan report proposed pay raises equal to those won by letter carriers in negotiations last spring, plus weekend and shift premiums.

The Moisan proposal would immediately raise the average hourly pay of the mail sorters and postal clerks to about $5.50 from $4.26.

The workers also would receive raises of 40 cents an hour Jan. 1, a further increase of 30 cents July 1, 1976, and a cost-of-living adjustment effective Jan. 1. Retroactive pay dating back to the start of the proposed new contract would total about $1,300 to $1,400.

Price Index Slows Sharply Last Month

OTTAWA (CP) — The rise in the cost of living slowed sharply during September after three successive months of strong increases, Statistics Canada reported today.

The consumer price index rose only two-tenths of one per cent during September, in the three months between June and August alone, it had risen almost four per cent.

The news of a slower inflation rate comes only days before the government is to reveal its package of economic measures to attempt to control inflation and unemployment.

Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau has called a meeting of provincial premiers for Thanksgiving Monday, Oct. 13, to enlist their support for the federal measures. Parliament is to resume Tuesday after a two-and-a-half month holiday to deal with the measures.

Main reason for the moderate September rise in living costs was lower prices for some foods, particularly vegetables. Beef and dairy products also cost less, but pork and poultry increased again.

Pork prices are currently about 42 per cent above the year-ago level, Statistics Canada said.

Higher energy prices for fuel oil and gasoline in certain provinces, as well as increased electricity and gas rates in several cities, were largely responsible for the overall index rise, slightly higher than expected.

The September increase in living costs was lower than the 0.7-per-cent rise in August. The index had risen 0.6 per cent in July.

The index was 10.4 per cent higher than a year ago, Statistics Canada said.

The September rise in living costs was a return to the situation before June. From June to prices suddenly started shooting up. Between January and June, consumer prices advanced at rates better one per cent a month.

But this was followed by a 1.5-per-cent jump in June and 1.4 per cent in July—the fastest rises than since mid-1974. The index went up another one per cent in August.

The only component of the index that declined in September was food, but it is a heavily weighted component and went down seven-tenths of one per cent.

By contrast, higher costs for homeowners and for renters put the housing component of the index up nine-tenths of one per cent and clothing was eight-tenths of one per cent higher.

The consumer price index in September was at 161.5. Based another way, this means that a basket of consumer items that could be bought for $100 in 1971 cost $161.50 last month. The same basket cost $141.20 in August and $107.30 a year ago.

The purchasing power of a 1971 dollar had dropped to 71 cents by September.

The index is based on a 1967 survey of items a typical consumer is expected to buy. It rates the major component indexes this way: Food, 25 per cent; housing, 31 per cent; clothing, 11 per cent; transportation, 15 per cent; and other items 18 per cent.

Private Armies Battle As Beirut Seeks Help

BEIRUT (AP) — Private armies of Christians and Moslems battled in the streets here today as Premier Rashid Karami again sought Syrian mediation from President Hafez Assad in Damascus.

Unofficial estimates of casualties since Wednesday ranged up to 60 dead and more than 200 wounded.

A heavy rainfall, the first this season, stifled the gunfire for 20 minutes shortly after dawn. But street fighting resumed as the sun rose.

"Armed men are everywhere," Beirut Radio announced. "All roads are closed. There is no change in the situation."

Machine-gun battles raged in several residential areas. Snipers lay and bomb blasts terrorized suburbs outside the main combat zones.

Fires started in Wednesday's battles burned out of control until the arrival of 12 fire engines from Syria to help hard-pressed Lebanese crews.

Government sources said Karami left for Damascus before dawn in a last-ditch attempt to gain Syrian mediation.

Syria had sent Foreign Minister Abdul Halim Khaddam to mediate in the last round of sectarian fighting here, resulting in a temporary ceasefire that ended after the Moslem feast of Eid el Fitr.

Late Wednesday night, Karami expressed support for a Kuwaiti proposal to convene an urgent conference of Arab foreign ministers to discuss the Lebanese situation.

Chilean Refugees Hold UN Officials

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — About a dozen armed Chilean refugees were holding five United Nations officials and employees under threat of death today, but Argentine authorities agreed to let them leave the country if they find another country to go.

The group, including two women, burst into the offices of the UN refugee commission Wednesday, demanding that the UN take them to another country.

The group's spokesman mentioned Sweden and Belgium but said the refugees would go to any democratic country that would receive them.

The spokesman warned that if police used violence "we must respond in kind."

He said the group had revolvers and a hand grenade.

The group originally seized 14 hostages, but eight women and one of the men were later freed.

Campbellford Child Dies

CAMPBELLFORD (CP) — Aaron Scott Birgitt, 4, was killed Wednesday when he was dragged into the path of a combine harvester on his parent's farm here.

He was the only son of Clayle and Marie Birgitt. The couple has a daughter.

Campbellford is about 25 miles east of Peterborough.

Annual Land-for-taxes Auction Attracts Standing Room Only

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Chances of a bargain these days may be slimmer than ever, say the veteran observers between bids.

But hope for a good buy is still high as some of the back-country bushland acreages are among tracts up for offers at the yearly Hastings County land-for-taxes auction.

Wednesday the annual standing-room-only crowd was back to jam the main court room at the county buildings as the Hastings treasury department staged its 1975 sale.

The bidders offered a total $99,475 for 33 land parcels put on the block by deputy treasurer Harold Mason.

Few were likely newcomers to such proceedings. An annual event held by Ontario municipalities, the sales involve lands on which tax payments are in arrears for more than three years.

Many follow the auctions, not only from year to year, but from county to county.

Wednesday — as usual much of the curious crowd was from outside the area. Many of the repeat purchasers were from the Toronto region, exactly officials said later.

Calling it a sale for taxes is just a traditional euphemism. Bids seldom outstrip the amount of arrears listed.

One Turnstonian, attending the Hastings auctions for five years, was not surprised at the bids. Prices offered have climbed four times since he started coming to the auction.

Gordon Phillips, professional engineer from Flower Hill, who often makes the round of the land-tax auction circuit, spoke in lotteries. "The success rate has to be seen in a broader perspective.

"People only talk about the winners. This is how lotteries work. There probably will be a couple of good deals — but people like auctions."

He pointed to a bidder who, he said, in another county obtained property for $700, eventually reselling it for $7,000. But later, the same individual procured an island at a later auction — only to discover it was totally under water except in the fall.

There also is a one-year waiting period after the sale during which defaulting landowners have the opportunity to pay the taxes due and redeem the properties.

Yet the lure of possible land-ownership — hitched to the excitement of an auction — remains irresistible, as evidenced by some of the bids holding. Prices produced multiplied many times over the contracted tax arrears. About $3,500 was saved in taxes on properties listed.

Nonetheless, the land-for-taxes sale is still attractive — a straightforward process without all the immediate complications of detailed conveyancing.

"You just like to win something — and you don't like to pay too much for it. It's a very easy way to buy," said Mr. Phillips.

2 Million Animals Die

TORONTO (CP) — More than two million animals died unnecessarily in Canada last year in research experiments for non-medical testing of weed killers, cosmetics, fire extinguishers and poisons, British clinical psychologist Richard Ryder said Wednesday.

3 Army Officers Arrested in Spain

BARCELONA (AP) — Sources here said today that police investigating sedition in the military have arrested three army officers.

The three were arrested Wednesday night in this city on Spain's northeastern Mediterranean coast, a home base have been battling a terrorist offensive for seven months.

They were the first military arrests since police discovered an underground group of dissident army officers in March two months ago and arrested nine officers on sedition charges.

Those arrested Wednesday were identified as Artillery Commander Enrique Lopez-Amor, Capt. Juan Diego Garcia and Capt. Arturo Urrutarai Granados. All are known for their liberal views and were named last August in papers filed against the nine.

Reports of the new army crackdown came hours after terrorist violence claimed another life. Nine policemen and four civilians now have been killed in the nine days since five terrorists were executed.

The latest victim was a young policeman wounded in a terrorist attack in Madrid Oct. 1 as Gen. Francisco Franco celebrated the 20th anniversary of his rise to power.

Cabinet Conflict Ded by Davis

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis said Wednesday the government is going ahead with a solution to the problem of high rents but did not commit his minority government to a rent-review board.

He said in an interview that reports of a disagreement in his cabinet, sworn in Tuesday, over the question of whether to introduce rent-review board legislation when the legislature sits Oct. 28 were not true.

Shortly after being sworn in Tuesday as housing minister, John Rhodes said that setting up rent-review boards might not be the best solution to rent-gouging by landlords.

During the election campaign, Mr. Davis promised the government would allow rent-review boards to take rent-gouging cases to court which would leave the power to roll back rents.

Opposition leaders reacted swiftly Tuesday to Mr. Rhodes's comments.

Trenton May Get Assistance Bureau

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

The Quinte Information and Assistance Centre may soon open a one-day-a-week office in Trenton in response to public criticism that it was left "out of the lurch" when the centre moved back to Belleville.

Trenton resident and member of the centre board of directors Vera Farrow said Wednesday she had 10 people feel that we just shoved them out and left.

The centre, at the time operating under the name of the Citizens Bureau, expanded in Trenton for 16 months under a Local Initiative Program grant. It closed its Trenton offices in mid-1975 to return to Belleville, where it was originally formed in 1972 under a previous LIP grant sponsored by the United Community Service.

Centre staff member Bill Hockley told the board last night there was some concern when the consumer-help group left Trenton. "Some people suggested that we left them in the lurch," he added.

The board authorized staff to look for office space for a one-day operation, but indicated no additional costs could be incurred. No date was set for the branch opening.

Study Leaves Many Areas Untouched Stress Councillors

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — A background study of the Picton-Hallowell Urban Area met with criticism Wednesday night during a public meeting held by the Prince Edward County Planning Board.

Hallowell Township clerk-treasurer John Mallory observed the survey project industrial development, housing needs and a population increase of from 2,000 to 3,000 persons but the cost of needed services is not projected.

"Do residents realize the kind of homebuilt that could descend through water and sewerage rates?" he asked.

Mr. Mallory added that he is concerned for residents of the study area and noted that "serious consideration" of costs is needed as taxes could double or triple.

The study includes statistics involving an area of approximately 3,200 acres with 700 acres lying within the municipal boundaries of Picton. The remaining 2,500 acres are in Hallowell Township.

The study was explained by Roy Wight, chairman of the Prince Edward planning board, and Prince Edward County planner Rizaddin Ahmed who stressed it is "facts and figures", not a plan. The statistics it contains must be translated to graphs and maps before they can be used as a plan.

Basis of the study is Prince Edward's official plan which was approved at local level and now is awaiting ministerial approval. The official plan provides for more detailed secondary plans of urban areas to be completed within one year of its approval.

A traffic count contained in the study shows that all county road terminate in Picton and Highways 33 and 49 pass through the town. Concern was expressed that too much traffic could adversely affect the commercial and service areas.

The study indicates that 10,000 cars pass through Picton daily but there were only 401 parking spaces according to a 1961 survey.

Picton councillor Charles Hepburn questioned this figure and suggested such heavy traffic would be likely to occur only in the tourist season.

Picton's town engineer David Hickman criticized the $16,000 study for omission of consideration of hydro services.

He said that if the industrial base in the area is increased the electrical system cannot be overlooked.

Picton reeve Larry Richardson asked if the planning board is planning for actualities or just projections.

He noted that the county's official plan is generally accepted but there are still pressures from interested persons with money.

"And many of these pressures will bring to bear on councils and those may pass a policy in conflict with the county plan," suggested the reeve.

He referred to proposals for sub-divisions in areas not considered for development by the official plan.

Hallowell reeve Keith MacDonald also asked how much of the public input obtained during the meeting would be incorporated in the study.

County planner Rizaddin Ahmed said that the planning board's goal is to dictate the types of growth and non-growth here. Power should not go to "the bureaucrats" in the province.

"Where there is no local mechanism the province acts by ministerial orders," he explained.

Here's The Study

Prince Edward County planner Rizaddin Ahmed Wednesday explained the Picton-Hallowell Urban Area Study to a public meeting at the Parish Hall in Picton.

The study, a compilation of statistics was strongly questioned by several municipal councillors and area residents.

Merchants Show Little Interest in Plaza Plan

PICTON — If a shopping plaza were constructed on the outskirts of Picton downtown stores could be forced to close and the community would lose assessment of commercial facilities says Prince Edward County planner Rizaddin Ahmed.

At a public meeting held Wednesday to discuss the Picton-Hallowell urban study Mr. Ahmed referred to a proposal for a shopping centre near Picton as a possible reason for the land freeze imposed on Hallowell Township last year.

Mr. Ahmed said in many small communities in Ontario the main streets are clogged by shoppers and motorists driving through the towns. When a plaza with ample parking is constructed downtown merchants lose business and some are forced to close.

"Once the shops close blight sets in. Vacant properties are left and the community loses assessment of commercial facilities," he observed.

"The province feels these plazas are harmful to small communities in terms of planning," said Mr. Ahmed.

Several persons attending the public meeting said the plaza could be an asset. It was suggested that shoppers would find parking space are likely to drive to Belleville where there are plazas.

Picton reeve Larry Richardson observed that there were no Picton merchants at the meeting although downtown parking and protection of the town's core were under discussion.

"If you are to get something meaningful there must be a real effort to get to the merchants," he told the Prince Edward planning board.

"When people are interested in their pocketbooks they turn out," observed Hallowell reeve Keith MacDonald.

Mr. Ahmed said the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce and the Picton Merchants' Association were notified of the public meeting.

Body Discovered

TWEED — A post-mortem was to be conducted today in Belleville General Hospital on the body of a 43-year-old Tweed woman presumed drowned while drawing water from the Moira River here Wednesday.

Tweed village police Chief Barry Wallace today released the dead woman's name as Theresa Van Meer, 62, of 545 Moira St., Tweed.

Police say the woman went to the river near her home to draw water. When she did not return as quickly as expected a search began and her body was discovered by Tweed resident James Hanna of Moira St.

Investigation into the incident continues.

Stolen Car Recovered

BRIGHTON — A Toronto man was arrested for being in possession of a stolen car, Thursday morning, on Highway 401.

A spokesman for the Brighton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police said Ron Eaton was travelling east and driving erratically when he was stopped and a check showed the car was stolen.

OMB Hearing Approves End to Land Freeze

PICTON — A holding bylaw to lift a residential land freeze on Hallowell Township was approved at an Ontario Municipal Board hearing here on Wednesday with the provision that an amendment be made.

Hallowell Township solicitor John Mallory said the property of Enrico Antognini is to be excluded by the bylaw to permit development of a pond and other conservation work on his farm land.

He said the OMB has instructed Hallowell township council to call a special meeting to pass the necessary amendment.

When a subdivision for Wardings Corners was proposed last year and rumors of other developments such as a shopping plaza were reported ministerial order in council placed a land freeze on Hallowell Township since township lacked simple zoning or land use bylaws.

Last February Hallowell Reeve Keith MacDonald and his council met with housing minister Donald Irvine to protest the freeze. Mr. Irvine informed council that if Hallowell Township were to pass its own holding or land use bylaw the minister's restricted order on residentential buildings would be lifted.

Hallowell council prepared and passed a local bylaw last April but because of Mr. Antognini's objection an OMB hearing was required.

Mr. Mallory said there will be a great deal of red tape before the holding bylaw is officially approved and the land freeze lifted.

Residents Asked Views

PICTON — The Prince Edward County Planning Board will circulate 700 questionnaires related to the planning background studies of the Picton-Hallowell Urban Area.

The questionnaires state that urban development policies of the proposed county plan recommend that all non-farm oriented urban type of development should be directed towards existing urban centres. Also, due to existing depressed economic conditions in Prince Edward the plan endorses Prince Edward County council's efforts to pursue establishment of light industry in the area.

"However, before Prince Edward County Planning Board undertakes formulation of planning goals and objectives for Picton-Hallowell urban area, it feels the necessity to obtain some broad and specific views of local citizens and other bodies, on some important planning issues concerning this area."

The questionnaire asks if Picton's commercial facilities are adequate to residents' needs, if development of a plaza would be bad for the town and if "through" highway traffic on Main Street impedes shoppers.

Doctors' Monetary Claims a Potential Issue for Davis in Another Election

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — The province's doctors may be about to give the government the election issue which it so urgently needs.

Premier Davis and his party found out in September what it is like to try and win an election without an issue.

They had nothing constructive or even appealing to talk about.

They had to base their appeal on a return of "strong" government; without being able to give any potent, down-to-earth reason why they were strong.

And as the campaign developed and the NDP brought out real, increased and its other emotional issues, they found themselves forced on the defensive, and looking weak rather than strong.

One can assume that the party leaders have said to themselves, never again.

Good issues aren't all that easy for a government to come by.

For an administration in power a good issue should be positive (personalities, as Davis found, are no good) and have close appeal to a broad section of the public.

In the old days a government could always create a problem by offering programs which meant spending more money. But in these days of inflation high government spending this road is closed.

Today, in fact, there is little a government can do to create a good issue. Which means it must sit idle, hope for the best, and if a good issue comes along, grab it.

For a while it looked as though the government might be given an opportunity by the civil servants. But now it appears they are going to be reasonable, and particularly won't threaten to strike. Its leadership has NDP leanings and evidently is not going to rock any boat.

But there is some sign that the doctors may provide what the civil servants aren't—a good, and popular excuse to go to the electorate.

In bargaining for a new fee schedule the medical profession has made an apparently exorbitant demand of a boost of up to 50 per cent.

If it continues with a firm bargaining position, and it would seem it probably will, the government will have and have a large body of public opinion behind it.

Doctors as a group aren't all that popular today and their image comes particularly before taxes and expenses, look extravagantly large.

A ready-made scenario would be for the government to resist and then work it to go to the people, saying it wanted an election.

The people would almost certainly support it and the opposition would be handicufed.

Obviously a very close eye has to be kept on the negotiations.

Thefts Up in City

Belleville's crime rate remains pretty constant. In some categories, such as theft involving the dollar sum and bicycles, and with the end of the year still some way off, it is on the upswing.

As Chief Douglas Crosbie observes however, citizens can help minimize the opportunities presented to the criminal element — by locking up before going out, similarly with their cars and taking the keys with them. Lock those bicycles too.

Figures until the end of August, with those for all of last year in brackets, are as follows: Sexual offences, including one case of rape: 6 (7), Assault 154 (209); Robbery 5 (6); Breaking and entering 282 (325); Theft of Motor Vehicles 71 (40); Theft Involving Property over $200 — 101 (76); Theft involving Property under $200 — 841 (774). Of the latter 282 were bicycles, compared with 199 last year. There have been 458 cases of Wilful Damage this year, compared with 396 last year. In recent days, and not included in the above statistics, another case of rape was reported.

Sticking out like a sore thumb is the big jump in the number of car thefts, as well as other forms of theft. Perhaps it's a reflection of our times, but let's not make it easy for those who indulge in such wrongdoing. Look to the security of home and property and be on the lookout for any untoward activity. It's one way of assisting the police perform a difficult job.

Crisis of Democracy

Can capitalism and the Western democracy of which it is a part survive? Can they cope with the increasing pressures of the modern world which include the babel of that modern phenomenon — participatory democracy — and the propagandizing of individuals and groups?

Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey examined the threat to our political system and to social order in a remarkable address to the Canadian Daily Newspaper Association in Vancouver recently.

Warning that "totalitarian society awaits and abets the demise of democracy . . . that freedom itself is in danger," Mr. Mackasey went on to suggest that our system of democratic capitalism, having reached the peak of its success, "is faltering."

"It's overloaded," he said. "New demands are piled on top of old commitments. Demands for cleaner air and water . . . better working conditions . . . safer products . . . demands of minorities, women's and citizen's groups.

"Add the demands of almost every sector of the work force, and add the cost of the power plays they stage to get them — and you see why the Marxists have a new theory: they say capitalism will fail because it can't meet all these demands; all our social demands will create a crisis of capital." Indeed, consider in this context that the Soviets are said to have been behind the Arab strategy of boosting oil costs to the West.

The minister worries too about the new plurality of society, in which the individual is less that than a number in a computer . . . about the fact that "we are fast approaching everything we rejected; a monolithic government, a controlled economy, materialistic values, a society that oppresses the individual . . . and that we and the Soviets have reached the same dead-end by different routes."

There is much more in Mr. Mackasey's crystal ball, in this speech which articulates the fears of many and which no other member of the government has seen fit hitherto to enunciate. But he ends on a positive and hopeful note. "Our society will survive," he predicts, on how necessary goals are met.

He sees a "new awakening," along the lines of what Henry George — a "great and wise American" — once said: "Social reform is not to be secured by complaints and denunciations; by the formation of parties; or the making of revolutions; but by the awakening of thought and the progress of ideas."

Mr. Mackasey alludes to the constructive work of people such as Rachel Carson and Ralph Nader and has praise for our "free press," an institution that has helped western society evolve, representing its conscience. The media and individuals such as these he sees as part of a system that is still alive, and responsible.

In these days of strain and doubt, Mr. Mackasey's message is one of hope, offering the prospect of a new thrust to meet testing times.

The Battle Against Pollution: Is Government on Losing End?

Editor:
The Intelligencer:

It was a surprising and refreshing performance by the Ministry of the Environment put on for the citizens of Ontario. Promoting the ministry's great recycling and antilitter programs to conserve resources and clean up the natural environment, in the recent election at a reported cost of $200,000, out of the pockets of the Ontario taxpayers.

Is this a valid commitment by the ministry to recycling and the reduction of waste? Or is it another one of those pie in the sky commitments, as that the Ministry of the Environment representatives pull out of a hat every now and again. For if what has been happening in Belleville and area in last several years is an example the ministry will find a way to renege on this promise as they have on others.

The old Belleville and Thurlow garbage dumps, rat-infested, breeders of disease, were closed up and replaced by sanitary land fill sites, supposedly to eliminate the environmental problems associated with open dumps.

But it soon became apparent that the Aikens and Thurlow sanitary landfill sites were that in name only. Poor maintenance became a common occurrence, garbage left uncovered, burning, garbage polluting the air. Why have the Ministry of the Environment officials allowed this to continue year after year? Is it not the obligation of the Ministry to see that these sanitary landfill sites are operated as prescribed by the regulations of the Environmental Protection Act?

The Ministry of the Environment officials have a solution for "unauthorized waste disposal sites". Allow the people responsible to cover up the waste, hiding it from view, close their eyes to what is taking place, and hope there will be no serious environmental or health problems in the future. Can the ministry assure the people of Ontario that their best interest is being safe-guarded by the decisions being made by the ministry concerning unauthorized waste disposal sites?

Litter continues to plague the Ministry of the Environment, as non-returnable containers and other useless materials are scattered over the landscape, into our rivers bays and lakes. Making a mockery of the words Ontario the Beautiful.

But undaunted by past failures to come to grips with litter problems that continue to grow. The ministry seems content to promise action on non-existable containers some time in the future.

The complacent attitude adopted by Ministry of the Environment representatives in Kingston, Belleville and Toronto, concerning environmental problems in the Belleville area is no surprise, for the Ministry of the Environment seems to believe that it is a good policy never to do today what you can put off till tomorrow. And the evidence is beginning to show that the price will be high both in money and the health of the Ontario people. Who has an answer why this destruction of the natural environment is allowed to continue?

Renovation of Homes Is An Inflation Beater But No Job for Amateurs

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

The cost of renovating a house, like the cost of housing itself, has been rising steadily as building material prices and labor rates advance.

Nevertheless, growing numbers of home-owners are finding that renovating is an interesting and even money-saving — alternative to buying or building a new house.

The alternative becomes especially compelling when the choice is between an outmoded but reasonably priced older house in an established and attractive area of the community, vs. an expensive modern house in a new, barren subdivision.

But you pay a price—in terms of convenience and peace of mind—for the financial economies when you renovate. It is not nearly as simple as moving into a new-built house would be.

Perhaps the simplest form of renovation would be the addition of a room to an older house by enclosing an existing space such as an old-fashioned porch. Walls, windows, wiring and heating could be provided for as little as $1,000—even less if you supply the labor yourself.

Between $500 and $600 of this would probably be spent on wiring, provided that it could be extended from the house's existing electrical service.

Wiring, plumbing and carpentry are always the primary concerns—and expense items—in renovating an older house.

Of these, plumbing usually costs the most. A simple two-piece washroom, for example, would add about $1,000 to the cost of renovation.

Costs go up as the scale of the renovation projects broaden. Costs can be contained to some extent if you are prepared to supply a good deal of the heavy labor yourself.

But be warned. While tearing out the interior of an old house may not be fine work, neither is the original plaster and walls, and retain the wood lath underneath the walls.

To impart a dramatic, modern appearance to the interior of an old house, some renovators recommend removing the smallest room in the house and extending the space upward or outward to make a two-story open area with a gallery at the level of the upper storey.

The first step is to remove the floor-boards carefully—that is not a job for amateurs. Determine in which direction the joists go and remove those in the area that is to be opened up, then double up on the end joist.

Renovating the exterior of an older house can be as simple as installing a stripper new door or cleaning and refurbishing the old brick.

On the other hand, the exterior work can extend to repointing—or even to restuccoing, a solution favored by many renovators.

To re-stucco, plan on a cost (labor and materials) of about $1 per square foot. Today's materials, based on polyvinyl acetate, are waterproof and long-lasting.

Store — hour Controversy

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Perhaps there is another way of solving the shopping store-hour problem.

It is a false argument that people need 168 hours a week to shop. Six days of 24-hour week, an employee, on any shift, can find plenty of time to shop during reasonable store-hour times are. It is known that Sunday help must be paid at times minimum and obviously the Sunday afternoon shopper will be expected to help carry the extra costs.

Would it not be better to let the minority pay the extra? By banning all stores open for six months on a provincial basis, a survey could be run to find out just when people wished to shop. Then the majority could rule. An established percentage of perhaps 80 per cent of shoppers would then indicate the shopping hours. Those times when the balance of the shopping public would be designated as off-hours.

Under the jurisdiction of the Ontario Sales tax officer an audit of the extra costs be collected during off-hours on all sales and services, in the entire province. Half of this would be returned to the store or service, person at the end of the month. This would lead to more efficient operations resulting in savings to the majority, or benefit all of the people.

Under this system shops are not restricted by anything other than their own ability and desire to compete.

Chamber of Commerce President P.C.McGuire has forwarded a letter to Bert Parks, program M.C., advising him of the commercial prospecting possibilities in Hastings County. He stated that the area, 80 to 100 miles north of Belleville has developed into one of the leading uranium areas of Canada.

Fire drills for employees of local hotels are part of the new program being inaugurated by Arnold W. Smith, deputy commissioner of the Liquor Control Board. As a result of a recent conference held with inspectors and officials of the fire marshal's department, 20 new rules for fire prevention have been drawn up. Since the new regulations have been in effect, Fire Chief Lynch and members of the fire department have made periodic inspections of Belleville hotels.

Spain and Portugal — Same Habitat, Differing Ideology

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

The very different political events taking place in Portugal and Spain are resulting in considerable speculation that they will have an effect on each other.

With the exception of tiny Andorra high in the Pyrenees between Spain and France, and the British self-governing Crown colony of Gibraltar, the Iberian Peninsula is filled with Spain and Portugal.

When the two dictators, the late Antonio Salazar ruled supreme in Portugal, along with Spain's Generalissimo Francisco Franco, the two nations seemed in harmony, their authoritarian powers seeing eye-to-eye on world and domestic affairs.

Even when Franco and Salazar met to compare notes and congratulate each other on parallel strongmen regimes, the two countries were not pursuing parallel courses in Europe.

Portugal was and is, in spite of chronic leftwing upheaval, a full member of NATO (North Atlantic Treaty Organization), while Spain has never been accepted in it.

Portugal under monarch and dictator has maintained the oldest bilateral treaty in the world, signed with England in 1373 during the reign of Edward I.

Spain and Britain have been at each other's throats, ideologically when the Labour government has been in power because many of the senior Labor party leaders fought in the Spanish civil war of the late '20s against Franco and his troops.

Moreover Franco has constantly demanded the return of Gibraltar to Spain, a continuous campaign which has resulted in his sealing off the Rock from mainland Spain.

In effect the Spanish and British have maintained a love-hate feud since the civil war, with leftwing politicians bashing "that Fascist Franco" while hordes of middle-class Englishmen, many of them unfoundedly voters for Labour, flock into Spain for cheap holidays and once cheap land.

But between themselves, the Spanish and the Portuguese are very different races, the Portuguese if anything more gloomy and intensive than the Spaniards, possibly a result of the greater proximity of the Portuguese to Islamic culture and blood to a long Arab past.

Not that Spain isn't free of the Spanish whose similar Arab heritage sometimes has led to bloodshed death for a cause, his cruelty and his passion.

So say the Anglo-Saxon observers of Spanish ways who pretend there has been no cruelty or passionate ways, in past British history.

Nevertheless if their situations are any judge, it is true the Portuguese show more of the propensity to wait and see than the Spaniards. Four revolutions (so far) have been largely bloodless.

In the Portuguese bull ring the bull is never killed, but led away more or less intact.

The Portuguese heritage where they have ruled or conquered is much more easily inclined to miscegenation, (intermarriage between the races) than is the heritage overseas of the imperious and aristocratic Spaniard, no matter what was his stature in society.

These are a few of the many reasons why it is unwise to anticipate a Portuguese-style overthrow of Franco. Franco who seems as firm as ever at 83, in his Spanish fortress.

Ask what the Bulgarian and the Greeks have in common because they live next door to each other in the Balkans. Not very much is the anything except geographical proximity.

So it is elsewhere in Europe with Spaniards and Portuguese.

Firefighters Keep Close Watch on Building Hazards

TRENTON — Trenton has become a large classroom this week as members of the fire department visit all the industrial and commercial buildings and schools to educate residents in fire safety and prevention.

More than 250 industries and businesses will be inspected by the two-man crews of off-duty firefighters who check for hazardous conditions such as blocked exits, overloading of fuses and expired fire extinguishers.

"The men are working not only to educate the public but also to learn valuable information about buildings they may one day be fighting a fire in," said Inspector Robert Haker.

The inspectors find many minor violations during the tours but if anything major is discovered Inspector Haker will do a followup investigation to ensure the situation has been rectified.

"We used to find many more violations, but this program of going right into the building, inspecting and following up, has been working well and has reduced the infractions to a minimum," said Inspector Haker.

Mr. Haker said some of the businesses do not respond immediately but when they realize it will be followed until the violation is corrected, they usually comply.

"Many people don't realize a store must have the same amount of space between the counters as the exit doors are wide," he said. During sales and holiday seasons most of the stores start to edge into that area and have less space but if you warn them they usually move the displays."

The firefighters visit all the schools in town and give lectures, show films on fire prevention and personally conduct fire exit drills to check procedures.

The inspections are not just an annual event, he said.

"Throughout the year we check business, as part of the followup and also as normal routine, advising them on new prevention methods and ways of upgrading their automatic systems," Inspector Haker said.

Most of the owners and managers respond well to the visits but it is difficult to induce them to upgrade a system if it may cost a lot of money, he said.

"In many cases if some restaurants would install an automatic device that monitors their grease fryers, for example, the amount of money saved on insurance premiums would be far in excess of the cost of putting in the new systems but it is hard to get people to invest."

Hees, O'Neil to Ride In ARC Bike-a-thon

TRENTON — It has just been announced that the next time George Hees, MP for Prince Edward-Lennox races he will be challenged by Hugh O'Neil, local MPP, and even if you don't know their party affiliations it will be easy to tell them apart.

Mr. Hees, a newly declared senior citizen, will be wearing 65 as his identifying number during a 65-mile bike-a-thon Oct. 18 to raise money for the Trenton Adult Rehabilitation Centre (ARC) industry, while Mr. O'Neil will be wearing 38, the number of years the Tories held power in the Quinte riding before being defeated by the Liberals in the Sept. 18 election.

More than 250 people are expected to partake in the bike-a-thon which will leave from outside the ARC Industries and travel to Frankford, cross the River and return to Trenton through Glen Miller.

The money raised will be used to underwrite the ARC Industry's operating expenses, said Robert Haker, a volunteer worker for the group.

The bike-a-thon is being held at Thanksgiving time to allow people to express how thankful they are, whether they are parents of retarded or normal children, Mr. Haker said.

Cards May Lessen Damage

TRENTON — Town businessmen in Quinte will put a special form which will supply the fire department with information about who to contact in case of an emergency at Sept. 18 elections.

"This new system is being carried out by the firefighting team making inspections during fire prevention week," said Inspector Robert Haker.

"With this information on hand we hope to be able to contact the owners and manager and have him arrive quickly and let the firefighters into the building before they have to force entry," said the Inspector. This procedure will save the a lot of money in the case of small fires when entry can be gained without destroying the doors or windows."

Proper Ventilation

Capt. Bus DeMille of the Trenton Fire Department inspects a fryer ventilator at a local restaurant during Fire Prevention Week. Officials members of the department have been visiting all town businesses and industries to check safety devices and procedures. Followup inspections will be performed if they discover serious violations, but the men said most of the owners and managers co-operate and correct infractions.

Speeding Cars Prompt Petition to Councillors

Thurlow Township Council Wednesday approved supporting two traffic control petitions to be submitted to the Ontario ministry of transportation and communications.

Dr. Gerald Williams submitted the petitions requesting reduction on the speed limit on Highway 14 to Stirling Road and prosecution of motorists parking on the sides of Highway 14 at Main Street in Foxboro.

Dr. Williams told council traffic on Highway 14 wouldn't present a problem if drivers adhered to the 60 mph posted speed but motorists travel the section doing 70 to 75 miles an hour.

The township does not have authority to lower speed limits on a provincial highway.

Dr. Williams presented a petition to council signed by about 30 persons requesting the speed limit be dropped to 40 miles an hour.

He said he doubted the limit would be dropped to 40 and he was really only seeking a reduction to 50 or 55 mph.

He also presented a petition signed by about 20 persons requesting prosecution of trucks parking beside the section of highway near Foxboro.

River Level Discussed

Dr. Gerald Williams told Thurlow township council Wednesday he is tired of getting the "last shuffle" from Moira River Conservation Authority.

"In 1974 the river level went down. This year it was repeated. I feel I'm getting the last file," said Dr. Williams.

"I think maybe we are too," said Reeve Horace Casey.

Dr. Williams said: "I think there's no reason why they (the authority) can't expropriate the Corbyville dam."

He told council he is considering requesting the federal or provincial government to hold an inquiry into the actions of the authority.

"What's the point in spending millions dewlt below," he said referring to water level control in Belleville.

Reeve Casey said council has approached the ministry of natural resources concerning the dams.

Dr. Williams said control of the Corbyville dam should be turned over to the authority.

Captain Promoted

Don MacInnes, captain of the Sidney Township fire department for over five years, has been moved up to the deputy chief post in a reshuffling of personnel prompted by the retirement of former deputy chief Steve Watts.

Mr. MacInnes, 44, was a captain in the eastern division of the volunteer fire department. He replaces Mr. Watts, a founding member of the fire department in the late 1960s, who is retiring due to mounting business pressures.

The new deputy chief's former post is being filled by Morley Cameron, a carpenter. Mr. Cameron has had over three years experience with the department.

The eastern division of the department, working out of a fire hall off Wallbridge-Loyalist Rd., covers the area north of Highway 401 and east of Aikens Rd.

The appointments became effective Oct. 1.

Buell was treated and released from Lennox and Addington County Hospital for minor injuries. Aubry did not require hospital treatment.

Sunday Hours Bring No Protest in Picton

PICTON — Although many Belleville residents have protested the Sunday opening of supermarkets such as The A and P stores policy has not been offered here.

Manager of the A and P here, Fred DeRoche, said this week his supermarket remains open on Sundays during the summer months for the convenience of tourists and local shoppers. No objections were made by Picton residents to the Sunday store hours.

Mr. DeRoche said the store now is closing on Sundays only because weekend holidays decreased with the end of the tourist season.

The IGA store has been open on Sundays "for several years" says manager Russell Gardiner and there have been no complaints from the community.

Mr. Gardiner noted that when smaller stores began to remain open on Sundays a number of years ago he opposed it and worked toward community support of Sunday closing.

He added that he approached the local clergy and referred to the Lord's Day Act but could gain no effective backing.

Royal Commission

Ontario

Electric Power Planning

On July 17, 1975 Her Honour Pauline McGibbon, Lieutenant-Governor of the Province of Ontario, approved an Order-In-Council establishing an independent commission under the chairmanship of Dr. Arthur Porter to hold an inquiry pursuant to the provisions of the Public Inquiries Act into the long-range planning of Ontario's electrical power system.

The Commission has been instructed to examine the long-range electric power planning concepts of Ontario Hydro for the period 1983-1993 and beyond, to relate them to provincial planning, to the utilization of electrical energy and to environmental and socio-economic factors; and to report on a priority basis on the need for certain Ontario Hydro projects presently under consideration.

To ensure that its reports will reflect the views of a representative cross-section of the people of Ontario, the Commission is anxious to meet at this early stage in a preliminary and informal fashion with as many persons, groups and organizations as possible.

Accordingly, the Commission has decided to hold a series of Preliminary Public Meetings around the province to inform the public of the Commission's activities, to encourage the participation in them and to invite comments and questions on the manner in which the Commission should conduct its inquiry. The Preliminary Public Meetings will be as informal as possible and will not involve the taking of evidence or cross-examination of witnesses. However, they will be followed in due course by appropriate public hearings during which there will be ample opportunity for concerned citizens to express their views on the many aspects of electric power planning which touch and concern every person in this province.

Preliminary and informal meetings will be held in the following areas. Locations and format of meetings in each area will be published in local papers. London: Tuesday, October 28th and Wednesday, October 29th. Windsor: Thursday, October 30th. Sarnia: Monday, November 3rd. Kitchener: Tuesday, November 4th. Sault Ste. Marie: Wednesday, November 5th. Timmins: Thursday, November 6th. Toronto: Wednesday, November 12th and Thursday, November 13th. Ottawa: Monday, November 17th and Tuesday, November 18th. Cornwall: Wednesday, November 19th. Owen Sound: Monday, November 24th and Tuesday, November 25th. Wingham: Wednesday, November 26th. Hamilton: Monday, December 1st and Tuesday, December 2nd. Welland: Wednesday, December 3rd. Thunder Bay: Monday, December 8th and Tuesday, December 9th. Kenora: Wednesday, December 10th. Kingston: Monday, December 15th and Tuesday, December 16th. Peterborough: Wednesday, December 17th.

The Commission invites interested persons, groups and organizations to attend these Preliminary Public Meetings to:

1. to learn about the terms of reference, objectives and implications of the Commission;
2. to discuss with the Commission a list of the issues, either general or local, which the Commission ought to consider; and
3. to discuss with the Commission the manner in which its inquiry ought to be carried out, the procedures, timing and location of the public hearings, the dissemination of information to the public and the use of this inquiry as a means of increasing the public's awareness of the relationship between electric power and the quality of life in Ontario.

Because of the nature and purpose of the Preliminary Public Meetings, lengthy written submissions would not be appropriate but all persons, groups and organizations, particularly those who for any reason may not be able to attend the aforesaid Preliminary Public Meetings, are invited to submit their views on the above-mentioned matters either in writing by letter or other written communication delivered or mailed to the Commission not later than four days prior to a Meeting. The Commission's address is: Royal Commission on Electric Power Planning, 7th Floor, 14 Carlton Street, Toronto, Ontario M5B 1K5 and its telephone number (call collect) is: 1-416-966-2111.

Companies Can't Account For Mercury Shipments

MONTREAL (CP) — A federal government agency says that major chemical companies are unable to account for up to 65 per cent of the mercury they purchased between May, 1972, and April, 1973.

Leo Buffa, director of Environment Canada in Ottawa, said in a radio interview Wednesday that the discrepancies have come to light since companies began keeping strict purchasing records years ago.

A published report said the highest levels of mercury "unaccounted for" were at Dunstar's plant in northwestern Quebec at Lebel-sur-Quevillon, where 18,527 out of 34,966 pounds of mercury originally purchased cannot be traced as product box, solid, liquid, or atmospheric waste.

Oshawa Council Votes To Keep Airport at Site

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — Mayor Jim Politicary says the city's executive committee has voted unanimously to keep the Oshawa Airport at its present site.

He made the announcement at a meeting of the Durham region's planning and development committee which has been called on Tuesday to hear comments from local, regional, provincial and federal officials on the airport's future.

The executive committee's decision is a reversal of policy set by two city councils. The present council and the previous one have supported in principle the idea of relocating the airport and authorized Mayor Politicary to meet with federal officials in pursuing the matter.

The mayor said the executive voted in private Monday to keep the airport at its present location after learning the federal government "really wasn't interested in relocating it."

Bikes in Toronto Parks Termed a Major Mistake

TORONTO (CP) — Tommy Thompson, Metropolitan Toronto Parks Commissioner, said Wednesday introduction of bicycles into Toronto parks was a mistake.

Mr. Thompson told the executive of the Metro Toronto and Region Conservation Authority that a bicycle coming at a mother with two or three children walking in a park can be a frightening experience.

Margaret Returns Home

OTTAWA (CP) — Margaret Trudeau left the Ottawa Civic Hospital Wednesday afternoon with her six-day-old baby boy, who still does not have a first name.

She did announce the boy's middle name, Charles-Emile, before heading for home with the prime minister to see her other sons, Justin, 4 and Sacha, 2.

Later in the afternoon Justin and Sacha went with their babysitter to greet grandmother, Mrs. James Sinclair, who arrived by plane from Vancouver.

Charles-Emile was named after the prime minister's father, who died in 1955.

Charles-Emile Trudeau founded the Automobile Owners Association in 1919 and this forerunner of modern automobile associations made him a millionaire by the early 1930s.

Charles-Emile Trudeau was the son of a French-Canadian farmer and he originally trained as a lawyer.

Fires Decrease

OTTAWA (CP) — There were 1,357 forest fires in Canada during August, the environment department said Wednesday. This compares with 2,045 fires in August, 1974, and an average 1,656 for the month during the previous decade. Affected were 291,000 acres compared with 157,000 for August, 1974, and an average of 281,000 for the month during the decade.

Beer Strike Over

VANCOUVER (CP) — Beer supplies began returning to normal Wednesday following an end to the strike by truck drivers and warehousemen employed by Pacific Brewers Distributors Ltd. the strike, by about 200 members of the Brewery and Soft Drink Workers Union, Local 300, began Aug. 29 and caused beer shortages in the lower mainland, the interior and on Vancouver Island. A company spokesman declined to disclose details of the settlement reached with the union but said the return to work was "100 per cent."

Arabian Sheik Seeks 12 Beautiful Bodyguards

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuter) — An Australian said Wednesday he is looking for 12 super-fit, beautiful, but ruthless girls to become bodyguards for an Arabian sheik.

Frank Monte, a private detective who earlier this year recruited mercenaries for an unnamed Arab country, said the girls would earn the equivalent of $400 a week.

He told reporters he suggested the girl guards to an unidentified eldrich Persian Gulf sheik and the sheik approved the idea.

"If these birds think they are going to have an easy time, they've got another thing coming," Monte said.

"If some guy walks up and says to one of the royal family, 'I've got a gun in my pocket,' I want the bird to put out her gun and blast him in the head without hesitating. This is the law of the land.'"

He said that applicants would have to survive a gruelling, 10-day commando course, and tests of their mental capacity.

Oil Export Tax Raised $1.05 a Barrel

OTTAWA (CP) — The export tax on crude oil shipped to the United States will be raised by $1.05 a barrel effective Nov. 1 to match recent increases in world oil prices, the national energy board (NEB) said Wednesday.

A board spokesman said the increase will raise the tax on high quality oil to $4.30 a barrel from $3.45 and on heavy oil to $4 from $2.95.

The country currently exports 230,000 barrels of oil a day to refiners in the United States.

The board decision follows an announcement late last month by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) that its prices would increase Oct. 1 by $1.05 to $11.51 a barrel from $10.46.

Because of transport delays, the new OPEC prices aren't expected to affect sales in North America until Nov. 1.

The federal government levies a tax on oil exports to cover the difference between a frozen domestic price of $8 and the higher international prices. Funds from the tax are used to offset the cost of subsidizing the 890,000 barrels of oil imported from the world market daily for use in eastern provinces.

Bomb Threats Crank Calls

OTTAWA (CP) — Two bomb threats Wednesday, which prompted evacuation of mess halls at both divisions of the Canadian Forces Base here, later were dismissed as crank calls.

Capt. Carl Wenck of the military police said Ottawa police warned them about possible bombs in mess halls at Uplands airport and the Rockcliffe military base. Military police evacuated both mess halls but found nothing in their searches.

Advisory Council Urges Ottawa To End Sex Stereotyping

HALIFAX (CP) — The Advisory Council on the Status of Women says the federal government should establish clear guidelines for occupational qualifications in an effort to end sex stereotyping by employers.

At the end of a two-day meeting here, the council also recommended that government clearly state the principle of equal pay for equal work and follow the equal pay practice itself.

The council will ask the government to empower a human rights commission to administer the recent Canadian Human Rights Bill without outside interference.

The council's chairman, Dr. Katie Cooke, said a priority for the coming year will be further study to determine why little progress has been made in promoting women to senior positions in the public service.

"There should be a rationalization of all sexual offences under the Criminal Code," Dr. Cooke said. "At present, seduction, assault, rape and incest are all listed as separate crimes."

India Cuts Phone Lines In Reuter Offices Here

NEW DELHI (Reuter)—The Indian government cut off Wednesday the Telex and telephone lines of the Reuters news agency office in New Delhi and the home telephones of its three correspondents.

Chief censor Harry d'Penha told the news agency the action was taken because of a report last Monday on the beating of political prisoners in New Delhi's Tihar Jail.

The report has not been denied but d'Penha called it a serious violation of censorship regulations.

The home and office telephone line.. of the Australian Broadcasting Commission representative were also cut Wednesday, apparently for the same reason.

The Telex and home and office telephones of United Press International have been disconnected for the last week.

Similar action had been taken earlier against the New York Times, The Associated Press and two West German correspondents.

Washington Tightens Arms Sales

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The U.S. defence department, in a move to tighten control over foreign arms sales, has directed that any country buying arms is a U.S. government-sponsored deal must be told the identity of the agent and his fee, senior Pentagon officials said Wednesday.

Recent testimony by congressional committees has disclosed that middlemen have been paid millions of dollars for aiding U.S. firms to land huge arms contracts, mostly to the Middle East.

The officials said in an interview the new guidelines were spelled out in a directive issued to officials in the last two months.

U.S. 1976 Election Will Be Nightmare for Secret Service

WASHINGTON (CP) — For the Secret Service, that silent branch of the United States treasury department assigned to guard the president and other prominent figures, election year 1976 is shaping up as a nightmare.

Under law, the service must provide protection for all presidential and vice-presidential candidates right from the first primary.

As things stand now, with a baiful of Democrats chasing their party's nomination, it may mean up to a dozen separate operations. The Secret Service already is borrowing agents from sister organizations—up to 200 from the customs service alone.

And while the silent service won't discuss its problems, lawmakers generally concede that it is a hopeless task at the best of times.

"No matter what they do, any nut—as long as he is willing to get caught or killed—can devise a way to do what he thinks he has to do," says Representative Charles Rangel, Democrat from New York.

Representative Robert McClory (Rep. Ill.), a sponsor of national gun-control legislation, agrees.

In the case of the president, McClory says, "there's only one way to be absolutely sure," and that's to lock him up, a prisoner in the White House.

As election year draws closer, President Gerald Ford is campaigning increasingly hard. So far this year, nine persons have been arrested and charged with threatening to kill him.

Eight of those arrests came within the last two months as Ford has made himself increasingly visible around the country.

They ranged from a pathetic, hung-over drunk who phoned his threat long-distance to the White House, to two women who actually put the president under the gun.

Lynette (Squeaky) Fromme, 26, failed to get a shot off before she was captured in Sacramento; Sara Jean Moore, 45, had her arm deflected as she pulled the trigger in San Francisco.

Not so well chronicled was the case in Sacramento last August when Thomas D. Elbert, 34, medical technician and former counterfeiter, was arrested and charged. He had been out of jail for only 90 days—after serving five years for similar threats against Richard Nixon when he was president.

The case of Salvatore Thomas, 32, arrested in Minneapolis about the same time, shows a striking parallel to the Elbert case. Thomas was convicted in 1968 for threatening then-president Lyndon Johnson. Sentenced to a mental institution, he was free on a technicality when he threatened Ford.

September was an even more-active month for the Secret Service, in addition to the Fromme and Moore cases.

Garp DeSar, 31, and Preston Mayo, 24, were picked up on burglary charges in Santa Barbara, Calif. The Secret Service was called in when investigators found a medical pad in their car, covered with notes outlining a plot against the president.

In Tampa, Fla., Karl Monday, 25, went to the Secret Service for advice on where to buy a gun. He said he had been hired by the Central Intelligence Agency to kill Ford.

Clinton Alexander, 49, who tried to phone in his threat from Oklahoma City was asked when he sobered up.

"I was drunk for two or three days," he said. "I really must have tipped off."

Few congressmen believe there is any clear-cut legislative answer for assuring the safety of public officials.

Two years after John Kennedy was killed by a sniper in Dallas, Tex., legislation was passed making it a federal crime to kill—or attempt to kill—a president, president-elect, or any other official in direct line of succession.

In 1968, following the murder of Senator Robert Kennedy in Los Angeles, Congress enacted another law—providing Secret Service protection for all candidates for president.

And the same year, when Martin Luther King was slain by a rifleman in Memphis, Tenn., still another law was passed—designed to prohibit interstate mail-order gun sales.

Representative Charles Vanik (Dem. Ohio), suggests that Ford at least may have to find a way to alter his pattern of meeting the public.

"He may have to do it spontaneously rather than on a scheduled basis."

Hugh Scott, Republican leader in the Senate, says presidents and candidates should limit their casual exposure to the public "until we can see whether this madness is temporary."

The bloody history of American politics should give Scott his answer.

In addition to Kennedy, three U.S. presidents have been assassinated while in office—Abraham Lincoln, 1865; James A. Garfield, 1881, and William McKinley, 1901.

Young Children Tackle Major Social Problems

OTTAWA (CP) — Racial discrimination, lying, cheating, injustice and drug abuse—pretty heavy topics for six-to-nine-year-olds, right? Wrong, says the federal health department, which has produced and is testing a reader called The Hole in the Fence that deals with these problems, using 30 vegetables as the stars of simple stories with a meaning behind them.

"We're using this book primarily to fight drug abuse because we believe the problem starts much earlier than usually thought," said Dr. A. B. Morrison, head of the health protection branch.

"By tying drug education to life experience we are showing these young kids that there are other ways, more positive ways, to deal with personal fears and anxieties."

"The kids see the vegetables feeling useless, bitter and overwhelmed by certain situations and realize they are not alone. I think this is a very big step."

It's certainly a long way from Dick and Jane.

Each vegetable has a distinct personality. For example, Cucumber is a bully, Carrot is a show-off and Cauliflower is an old grump.

Always in the background is Mushroom, the only non-vegetable character, who comes through the hole in the fence into the garden and offers a magic potion to vegetables with problems.

Mushroom says the potion will help the vegetables feel good and forget their problems—for a slight fee.

Drugs are never mentioned directly.

"What we are trying to make the kids realize is that the magic potion, be it alcohol or drugs, does not really solve a problem, but only postpones it and at the same time costs them something," Dr. Morrison explained.

The highly, often humorously, illustrated book has been tested with students in Grades 1 to 3 in Hamilton and Burlington, Ont., the Maritimes and in Montreal—where it was called Mon Jardin, Mes Amis. It was a big hit with the children, Dr. Morrison said.

"The kids loved it, and we were amazed at how quickly they picked up the allegory behind the stories. I think people have often underestimated the understanding of children."

More than three years of work and $120,000 have gone into the book. The federal health department hopes provincial authorities will become interested in it.

Manitoba has already ordered a substantial number of the readers, said Dr. Morrison.

The problem with traditional drug abuse programs is they tend to make drugs sound mysterious and arouse kids' curiosity. We think this book will dispel some of that."

"I think this book lets the kids know they are not alone with their problems and that there are other ways of dealing escape hatches."

After further testing The Hole in the Fence will probably be ready for distribution next September, Dr. Morrison said, and will cost about $2 a copy.

14th Century Nun, Modern Woman Debate in Religious - Feminist Film

OTTAWA (CP) — If Catherine Benincasa of Siena were alive today she would be 650 years old but Catherine with the contradictions women face in the 1970s.

That's the message in Catherine's Song, a religious-feminist film written, produced and acted by Sara Lee Stadelman, an artist and founder-director of the Women's Wood Centre at Palmer Rapids, Ont., who addressed a national meeting of the Catholic Women's League (CWL) here.

The short film, in which the basic prop is a coffin contains a bizarre dialogue between a 14th-century nun, St. Catherine, proclaimed a doctor of the church in 1970, and a contemporary woman who pulls her hair in rollers, watches television and drinks martinis.

Ms. Stadelman, whose religious fervor is expressed in every statement she makes, plays both parts.

"Patience is a special virtue attributed to women," the modern woman says.

"But virtue is like a flower and if you—r—r too long in water they stink," replies St. Catherine.

St. Catherine was a radical nun and it is the radicalization of Christian women that Ms. Stadelman seeks.

"St. Catherine was a real political leader. She was expected to live a cloistered life of prayer but she went out on her own, chose her lover, married him, and wrote for the dialogues," Ms. Stadelman said.

St. Catherine's lover was Jesus Christ and it is her dialogue that inspired the film script.

Although Ms. Stadelman never explained her film at length, maintaining that its meaning depends on the viewer's understanding, she was quick to reply to the reactions of the CWL audience.

One group said the film meant to them that the church did not and does not recognize women for what they are.

St. Catherine is not criticizing the church. The criticism is aimed at ourselves because we are the church." Ms. Stadelman passionately told the group.

"If women have not been recognized in their fulness it is because we have not recognized Christ in each other," she said.

Contemporary women were asked to live up to many expectations, not unlike St. Catherine, "but to be fully dimensional today a woman has to kick the world away and ignore some of these pressures," Ms. Stadelman added.

One young woman summed up her feeling about the film when she said women must leave their homes, go out into the community and say loudly what they feel.

"That prison, that cell, is the symbol of humanity," Ms. Stadelman says, as modern woman, says in the film.

But it is coming out of the womb, or out of the nun's cloistered life or out of the home, that Ms. Stadelman emphasizes. Near the end of the film, black tape, symbolizing hurs, is ripped from the top of coffin where modern woman rises through most of the scene.

Ms. Stadelman has been involved in religious theatre for two decades and has just recently started expressing her religious art on film.

She lives what she calls a life of "obedience, poverty and chastity," at the Morning Word Centre, 90 miles west of Ottawa, where religious artists work.

Ann Landers

Mom Must Be Honest And Refuse to Eat Out

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 47-year-old divorced woman with a heartbreaking problem I can't handle. It's my wonderful married daughter who lives in the suburbs with her three children in a mortgaged, refinanced home. She is all bankruptcy's door.

I know her kids eat jelly sandwiches and beans all week so they can take me to a swell place for dinner every Friday evening. I don't want to hurt her feelings but I know the score from A to Z and it's killing me.

I don't need to go to a fancy shmantzy place to eat. In fact, I dig when I see her pull out a $50 bill to pay the check. Fifty dollars could buy food for the family for a whole week.

Ann, I lived through the Depression and I'd rather carry a hot dog in my purse and give the kids $5 for fruit or ice cream than let this dear girl treat me to any more expensive hotel dinners. What can I do about it?—Just Sick

Dear Gram: You can buy it on that well-known line and tell your daughter that unless she lets you bring a basket supper to her home from now on, you refuse to come. Make it plain that you don't want, nor do you enjoy restaurant food, and from now on it's going to be your way or not at all.

Dear Ann: I'd like to add something to your recent column on love and sex. No excuses, just facts. To start with, I was pretty naive when I got married. I had two children, a lousy marriage which I stayed with thinking it would be better for the children to be raised with two parents! and I had to work a full-time job.

My husband was a rotten father, but I waited till they grew up before I decided to have a fling. At the ripe old age of 40 I fell in love. It was not mutual. Mr. X (to his everlasting credit) played it straight. He never lied and said he loved me. He said he needed me for the sex his wife denied him. He always told me his wife was a fine woman but a cold fish and he would never leave her. So, we decided to have an affair and break it off when the excitement was over.

After eight months my heart broke and he'd had enough. I thought we parted friends. But when I phoned him one day to say hi, his cold reception left me stunned.

He also admitted to me that he had told his wife everything! That nearly killed me. I wished I have died before telling anyone about us.

Why can't former lovers remain friends? Does anyone know the answer?—Still Hurting

Dear Still: Some lovers can but yours was a heel. He proved it by telling his wife. Good riddance, honey.

Dear Ann Landers: I was horrified at your advice to the woman whose cousin couldn't throw away newspapers or magazines. Her place was piled ceiling-high with periodicals that week had years.

Unfortunately, the poor dear was an inveterate cigarette smoker. You were afraid she'd set the apartment on fire, and advised: "Talk to the apartment manager. Tell him she's a fire hazard and to shape up or else."

Don't you realize the woman is a severe neurotic? The inability to throw anything away is part of her illness. Your advice should have been: "She MUST stop smoking."—Shame On You

Dear Shame: Of course she's a compulsive neurotic—just like smoking is another one of her symptoms. Those combined compulsions could spell death every person in that building. That's why I suggested the manager be informed. I hope the reader took my advice.

Ensure The Safety Of Your Family

Consider fire safety for your home. A new concept in home fire safety is now available to the consumer. Until the Smokeguard was designed, most home fire detectors were triggered either by heat or visible smoke, or both. None of them were as prompt to sound an alarm as a system using the ionization principle, built-in to the Smokeguard. Ionization detectors are so sensitive that they can respond to even slight changes in the air caused by fire or combustion. When the products of combustion (visible or invisible gasses) or smoke enter the small inner chamber of the detector, the electronic sensor detects the minute change and sounds the alarm. Ensure the safety of your family. Investigate the purchase of a Smokeguard from Moira-Schuster Fuels, 17 S. Pinnacle St.

Take Care Of Your Child's Eyes

The Canadian National Institute for the Blind and Quinte Optical, 54 Bridge St. E. are bringing you each week, tips for family eye care. Here is some helpful advice on the care of your children's eyes. Much of what a child knows, he learns through his eyes which change with growth. A regular professional eye examination before entering school and once a year thereafter is the most sensible procedure to be followed for real protection. During the growing years, eye problems are fairly common. An estimated one in every four children need some kind of eye care; delay can result in permanent damage to their vision as well as serious psychological and educational handicaps. Neglect of children's eyes has even caused blindness. Consult Quinte Optical for an eye check-up today.

Say hello to Clint Cader while you're there, he's back from holidays and ready to give you a good deal.

ALL IN THE FAMILY by Isabel Huggan

You Can Defuse Arguments By Giving Others the B.O.D.

A teen-age girl asks her best friend to go downtown with her after school. She has some errands to do, and wants to stop at a restaurant for a Coke and a chat.

"No," says the friend. "I've got a detention in math and then I've got to go home."

Half an hour later, errands done, the girl walks past the restaurant and sees her friend sitting the with three other girls.

Because the teen-age ego is often a tender and easily wounded thing, her immediate response is apt to be hurt surprise, followed by feelings of rejection, resentment, and eventually hostility toward the no-longer-best-friend.

The healthier alternative to this unhappiness is to give the friend the B.O.D.

Giving the B.O.D. allows for the possibility that the detention ended early, that the friend had a little extra time to spend with the next person who asked her to go for a quick Coke. Giving the B.O.D. prevents quarrels before they start, and can end them if they've begun.

Take, for example, the situation that couples sometimes find themselves in, the kind of minor incident that can flare into a real fight.

Although she is tired and busy, the wife decides to make her husband his favorite cake when she gets home from work, as a little gesture of affection. She hurries to get it in the oven, so that its distinctive odor will greet him as he comes in the door.

He's a little tired and grumpy too, but smelling the cake as he enters the kitchen, he decides to have a little fun teasing his wife, and says, "Oh Lord, have you made that cake again? Is it the only dessert you know how to make? Why don't you try something different for a change?"

Somehow, the joking tone he had meant to use doesn't come out as he intended and his voice just sounds mean and sarcastic. His wife turns in disbelief, and tears come to her eyes.

"That's the last time I ever do anything nice for you," she says, feeling self-righteous, indignant, and mortally offended.

"I was only kidding," says the husband. "I didn't mean it the way it sounded. Give me the B.O.D., eh?"

At this point the wife can refuse to believe him, and decide that in fact he really does hate her cooking, and that this was a moment of truth. Or, she can remain angry, simply on the grounds that it was a stupid, insensitive way for the husband to behave.

Or she can do as he asks, and give him the B.O.D — the benefit of the doubt.

And if she does, there'll be no tears or anger or hurled cakepans.

Giving someone the benefit of the doubt means that you take a positive and trusting attitude to whatever they've done. The tone of voice that sounds sarcastic, annoyed, bored or malicious, is neutralized by the B.O.D. The action that seems heartless, thoughtless, or deliberately insulting, is regarded as unusual, rather than indicative of worse things yet to come.

Learning to give others the B.O.D. is most beneficial for those who are chronically thin-skinned. Being able to believe that the other person didn't mean to upset you is the mark of a confident, self-assured and well-adjusted person.

And using the B.O.D. is one way to reach that kind of maturity.

Use this calculator to measure the efficiency of your oil or gas furnace. The book explains everything that you and your serviceman should do to save fuel and money. Both free when you send in the coupon below.

How much of your heating dollar is going up in smoke?

Get your furnace in shape for winter—so you can be both warm and a little richer. You'll cut your fuel bill by as much as 25%, and help to conserve Canada's fast-dwindling energy reserves:

AS A NATION we waste more energy than some countries consume in total. We're on an energy binge that we can no longer afford. Modest cut-backs now will be easier to face than shortages and even higher prices in a few years time.

For every $100 you spend on energy at home, more than half of it goes into heating. So your furnace is a great place to start saving.

Check the efficiency of your oil furnace.

A little dirt, a little soot, a forgotten furnace check-up may seem trivial. But in the months ahead they could cost you big dollars.

Is your oil furnace working at top efficiency? Find out for yourself: if

Look for a dirty flame. Lift the flap that covers the small hole on the front of your furnace. If you can see black smoke coming from the tip of the flame, your burner needs adjustment. Call the serviceman.

Inspect for soot. Shut the furnace off and poke a flashlight inside the box. Soot acts as an insulator; a large build-up can waste as much as 20% of your fuel. If you find an accumulation of soot, it's time for a service call.

Check the barometric damper. This valve between the furnace and chimney bumps open and shut as the wind blows and as the furnace cuts in and out. It draws cool basement air into the chimney so most of the warm air stays in the furnace. If it sticks in any position, you're wasting energy. Clean the hinges and give them a drop of oil.

Put your serviceman to work twice a year.

A thorough oil furnace check-up in summer and again in mid-winter can cut as much as 25% from your fuel bill. (If you have a gas furnace, a good serviceman should go over it once a year.)

Remember, it will take your serviceman about two hours to do a good job on an oil furnace, somewhat less on gas.

He should remove soot from the firepot, heat exchanger and pipes. He should check the stack temperature. Perhaps he should try an oil nozzle 10% to 20% smaller for the lowest firing rate recommended for your furnace).

But that's just the beginning.

If you're paying for a complete check of the furnace and heating system, make sure you get it. Start by reading The Billpayer's Guide to Furnace Servicing.

It's a free book that explains, step-by-step, everything you and your serviceman should do to save fuel and money. (See the coupon below.)

It has a complete oil and gas furnace checklist to be filled out by the service mechanic after each visit. It even has a calculator for determining your overall furnace efficiency.

3
Lower your thermostat.

Dropping your setting from 72° to 68°F will save about 10%. On a yearly bill of $400, that's a worthwhile $40.

If each of us saves 10%, Canada will conserve 8 million barrels of oil and 24 million cubic feet of natural gas each year.

For an even bigger saving, drop the thermostat further at night. Also when you're going to be away for a few days. By the way, doctors tell us that cooler home temperatures are more healthful.

It's time to pay the piper.

We can't live in the future as we do now. The resources simply won't be available. Here are a few facts to ponder:

- From 1960 to the present time, the average energy consumed by each Canadian has almost doubled. Continued increases of this size invite shortages and economic problems in the years ahead.
- If we continue to consume at our present rate of increase, Canada will need twice as much energy in 12 years.
- The capital costs of developing new sources of energy will soar to $110 billion over the next 10 years. That's an investment of about $20,000 for each Canadian family.

It's no longer a matter of choice. We must save energy to save ourselves.

Free information to help us all.

TWO FREE BOOKS: The Billpayer's Guide to Furnace Servicing shows you how to save money and Canada's energy resources by proper furnace servicing. It explains what you can do, and what your serviceman should do. Free when you send the coupon below.

Ratepayers Delay Appeal to Ombudsman

Hillcrest residents will give two possibilities a chance to develop before deciding on seeking redress over bloated neighborhood taxes through Ontario's Ombudsman.

Hillcrest Ratepayers Association (HRA) Wednesday night decided to write the Ontario Municipal Board some more request enlightenment on chances of appealing the controversial cost of sanitary sewer installations that sent taxes rocketing.The group also vote to await the outcome of contact between Hugh O'Neill newly-elected Quinte MPP and the province's housing ministry.

Mr. O'Neill, whose assignments as a Liberal party critic includes housing, as yet has been unable to take any positive action. The ministry changed hands in this week's cabinet shuffle with John Rhodes replacing Donald Irvine — a minister whose personal visit to the northend neighborhood over the issue ironically cost him the good will of the HRA.

Mr. O'Neil told The Intelligencer he has contacted Mr. Rhodes' office to ascertain the current status of the Hillcrest complaint within the ministry.

However, he said he expects at some delay due to changes which are a normal sequel of the cabinet changes.

In the interim the HRA is to seek an explanation from the OMB on a letter which last week indicated little chance of an official review of the Hillcrest problem. The letter said no such action could now be taken unless denial of natural justice can be documented.

The association wants the OMB to tell it what has to be done to follow such a course.

Meanwhile, the HRA is now laying the groundwork for appealing the situation Ombudsman Arthur Maloney — should such a move become necessary.

Maintenance Bylaw Clears Committee, City Planning Body Next Hurdle

By COLIN BRUCK
Staff Reporter

A minimum maintenance bylaw for Belleville cleared its first and possibly highest hurdle Wednesday night by securing the approval of the subdivisers' liaison committee.

The committee, composed mainly of home builders from the Quinte Home Builders Association, for the past year has been working on the bylaw which should serve to upgrade interior dwellings in the city.

The question of a minimum maintenance bylaw was brought up a year ago as a campaign promise by the mayor at the time Robin Jeffery.

With the approval of the liaison committee on a motion from Mayor Ben Corke, the bylaw document now will go to the city's planning committee.

From there the bylaw will be given final discussion and ultimate approval or rejection by city council.

Mayor Corke said because of the nature of the document he is very interested that the public have ample opportunity to see the bylaw before council has to make a decision on it.

"Likely, the planning committee will hold a public meeting or at least give the proposed bylaw the public direction," he said.

The bylaw covers the entire range of apartments, rooming buildings and yards, laying out specific recommendations of the condition all areas must be maintained.

The bylaw also allows for an inspection and enforcement officer to administrate the regulations.

"As this liaison committee has, I hope the planning committee takes a very serious look at the proposal," said Mayor Corke. "It has had considerable review already and bylaws like it are pretty well standard in many Ontario cities.

"It's a very important document for the welfare of the community," said Mayor Corke.

"It will require better standards from some landlords who haven't maintained their property over the years," he said.

"One thing it will do is ensure minimum health standards for rental dwellings which the cities do not control at this time."

Mayor Corke said providing the bylaw receives the approval of council, necessary budgets will be struck for the administration of the bylaw in the 1976 current budget.

Don Keller, a member of the committee and representative of area home builders said the bylaw will have no effect on new housing but it will "tend to keep older homes in better shape."

"Generally, it will maintain older districts in a more attractive state," he said.

When the bylaw was first discussed, many homeowners stormed city hall claiming neighbor would be pilled against neighbor — reporting bylaw infractions.

"Neighbors should have respect for each other's privacy and right to live in their own fashion," said Mayor Corke.

"While the city will likely take the initiative in enforcing the bylaw in some areas that are obviously in need of maintenance, we will wait for tenants to complain before we take any action," he said.

The bylaw will receive further discussion at the planning meeting to be held later this month.

Musician Walks Out

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Loyalist College administration will investigate policing methods at student council events following Wednesday's council-sponsored folk night which saw Jesse Winchester, Canadian folk recording artist, walk off stage 40 minutes before the end of his set.

"Our (administration) reaction to this is that it will never happen again," said Ernst Kneisel, public relations director, today on the event which saw some members of the audience sneak in liquor and drugs.

A small element in the crowd was vocal throughout the night despite repeated requests by Mr. Winchester, last of three performers, appeared disturbed at proceedings at the beginning of his performance and ended with a songtitle This May Be The Last Time We Will Be Together.

Mr. Kneisel said although liquor was not being served, such incidents could jeopardize the college's existence and commented, "we'll have to take steps to do our own (administrative) policing in all the events."

Council representatives could not be reached for comment by press time today.

The folk night was open to the general public and Mr. Kneisel added, "now, there's no guarantee that those causing trouble were college students.

"One incident doesn't make a bandyhouse out of us," he remarked.

Charlie Benson of the legal student services division, an ex-officio member of council, noted that the folk night was a unique event for council with its "co-context" style of performance.

Angry Artist

The look on the face of Jesse Winchester, Canadian folk recording artist, reflects the way he felt about Wednesday's folk night at Loyalist College. Winchester, miffed by a small, loud element in the crowd, finished his set 40 minutes early and quickly left the college to the dismay of the majority of the audience who was enjoying his music.

Camera Equipment Stolen

Thieves broke into the separate school board offices at 158 George St. Wednesday fleeing with camera equipment and cash valued at $630.

City Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said today entry to the Prince Edward-Hastings Separate School Board office was made by forcing a screen from a ground floor window and then forcing the window.

Camera equipment taken during the theft is valued at approximately $500.

Chief Crosbie said no one has been apprehended in connection with the robbery and that investigation is continuing.

Full House Praises Newest Pinnacle Play

By SUSAN MCCONNELL
Staff Reporter

George Leader and Joseph Tompetti would be proud of the cast presented by the cast of Around About 1883-84 at their hangings for the death of George Lazier in Prince Edward County some 81 years ago.

Opening night of the dou-drama at Pinnacle Playhouse Wednesday drew praise and a surprised response from the full house.

The workshop production, sponsored by Belleville Theatre Guild a first for writer-director Bill Cullo and produced by Verna Patterson, whisked the audience through the struggle and despair of the convicted men. The pa-ssion of a great love for a man ripped away from their home land.

The total audience involvement — a new experience for many theatre goers who came from the contributions of the cast in creating their own characters and leading the audience from one point of confusion to resolution and back to confusion again.

Actor Dave Gore, in the role of narrator and as a character was professional in guiding the play and constantly changing atmosphere in each act. Ted Bairstow was versatile in changing roles from the sensitive son of a gruff farmer to the executioner of the doomed men. Mike Hanley as the devoie minister and Larry Taylor as the condemned man and town doctor, all contributed believing performances. Steve Ferrero was excellent in his main role as a gruff old farmer while Linda Soetfella displayed her versatility switching from a romantic young lady to a lazy Dutch prankster.

The set, basic with the open concept of theatre workshop, managed to convey the true essence of a the rugged life in the rough planks and poles jutting from the stage. Costumes were basic black skirts and pants, white shirts and the then-fashionable waistvests.

The music, composed and performed by John Kidd, echoed the time period.

On the basis of the play — the mis-hangings of Leader and Tompetti in Prince Edward County sometimes forgotten as the actors continually feel the ability of the audience to react to the changing tones and presented in a mendatee take-for-granted attitude; only enhances the moral decision, for any, the play makes.

Tickets are still available for performances from Oct. 9 to 11 and Oct. 15-18 8:30 p.m.

Grading Rejected

The Hastings and Prince Edward County Board of Health Wednesday voted against a motion to investigate a policy of charging for grading restaurants on cleanliness.

The motion was introduced by Tweed Reeve Barbara Allen who said it would "make it competitive" for the restaurant to quickly upgrade their facilities.

She had taken exception to a letter written by Lloyd A. Elliston, chief public health inspector for the counties health unit, that there is sometimes three-week period between warning letters and followup inspections.

"I'm thinking of the incubation period," Reeve Allen commented.

However, Mr. Elliston asserted the board is the presence of bacteria is not a factor in the two months' restaurant rate. He said any problems which have arisen involve build-ups of grease.

Health Unit Report Shows Good Use of Dental Clinics

Families in Hastings and Prince Edward counties in 1974 collectively saved, in effect, $24,341 in dental fees by participating in a health unit fluoride treatment program.

The revelation was contained in a 1974-75 school year summary of dental services at the health unit to the counties board of health Wednesday.

Statistics show 47 clinic days were held in the two counties treating 2,211 students for an average of 96 per cent participation. The program was for Grades 1-2.

Seventeen schools held in-school clinics in Hastings County on 25 clinic days. treating 1,188 students for 97 per cent participation.

Six schools held in-school clinics in Prince Edward County on 10 clinic days. treating 320 students for 85 per cen participation.

During clinics held at district health unit offices, 153 students were treated on four clinic days at Bancroft, 547 students were treated on 15½ clinic days at Belleville and 103 students were treated on 2½ clinic days at Picton.

In dental health education for kindergarten to Grade 8, 31,425 students were reached in 1,397 classrooms visited.

Teacher orders for dental health materials found 273 teachers in 66 schools submitting orders.

In the mouthguard project, 799 students were fitted at 13 clinics.

Student To Join Agency

A Hastings County high school student will man Quinte Information and Assistance Centre phone and possibly engage in field work and consumer related research later this year.

The student's presence in the Coleman St. offices will indicate the centre's first-time participation in the Community Involvement Program run by the Hastings County Board of Education.

Centre directors agreed Wednesday to take in the student in the school board program geared to allowing students the chance to work in on-going agencies under job — like conditions.

Grade 12 students, aged 16 to 18 will work 10 hours each week for five months under conditions daily encountered by the staff of the agencies they will be placed in. Each will take an active role in an agencies operation.

Road Repairs Exceed Budget

Thurlow Townships roads department has already exceeded this year's annual budget by about $8,000.

The budget for the year was about $212,000. About $219,000 has been spent.

Reeve Horace Casey said in a council meeting Wednesday, perhaps roads for the year were underestimated by the roads department.

"We may be in a better state than we think we are," said Clerk Claire Horton.

"We may recover some money from Sidney Township," he said.

Sidney Township, he said, still owes Thurlow Township money for work done on boundary roads. The two townships split costs in half.

Former Robbed

DEMORESTVILLE — The Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police is investigating the theft of $150 in cash from a farm residence here.

Police say Philip Pearsall, RR 2 Demorestville, reported the money was taken from his home between 8 and 10 a.m. Wednesday.

No forced entry to the house was reported.

Library Reps Attend Day-long Seminars

The second workshop this year for the Lake Ontario Regional Library System took place all day Wednesday with Belleville Corby Library acting as host.

Director of the system, Barrie Robinson, said the seminars, scheduled at least twice a year, are open to all library staff from Haliburton County, west to Bowmanville and east to Kingston.

The seminars covered audio-visual materials with special guest speaker Moti Tahilani from Lindsay. They followed separate topics presented in the morning by various libraries

Speaker from the Belleville Library was Jean Williams with the topic Picture Books.

The library system sponsored financially by the provincial government, is a cooperative venture organized to supply more books and better library service.

Centre Launches Membership Drive

By AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

Quinte Information and Assistance Centre directors agreed Wednesday to launch a membership drive as an additional source of funds to operate the consumer-help group in Belleville.

The move was taken in light of the checkered history of the centre in acquiring grants. The centre, now funded by a $12,000 federal government grant, will run out of money in April, 1976.

Recently, in an effort to continue operation, numerous grant applications have been filed. Additionally, the centre, now a member of the United Way campaign, is expecting some funding through the United Community Services.

Wednesday's action was geared to secure other funding sources through sale of memberships and through donations.

All due-paying members and donors will receive receipts from the centre, but a prime inducement, receipts usable as tax deductions on federal income tax forms, proved to be unavailable.

Earlier this year, the centre was interpreted as a non-profit charitable organization. As such, it can issue under federal authorisation, receipts for tax purposes.

The board learned Wednesday the federal authorization needed to issue tax exempt forms was not immediately available. Staff, as well as board members, estimated up to a six-week waiting period.

Staff member Bill Hockley said the okay is sure so come, but the centre could not meanwhile accept donations with a promise of a tax exemption form at some future date.

Consideration was given to extending the membership period past the end of the fiscal year March 31, but board members concluded bookkeeping problems would arise.

New members will acquire the right to vote for an executive board when they attend the centre's annual meeting where they will receive an annual report.

Autumn Workshop

Olive Delaney, head librarian at Belleville's Corby Library, welcomes Moti Tahilani, left, guest speaker from Lindsay, and Barrie Robinson, centre, director of the Lake Ontario Regional Library system to the annual workshop held Wednesday.

Habs Humiliate Kings

By GLENN COLE
The Canadian Press

Los Angeles Kings will no doubt want to forget what happened in their Wednesday night as they opened their 1975-76 National Hockey League schedule against Montreal Canadiens.

The Kings, who gave Montreal stiff competition last season for first place in the Norris Division, were outclassed as they dropped a 9-0 decision to Montreal in one of six games.

In other action, California Seals edged Atlanta Flames 4-3, New York Rangers and Chicago Black Hawks fought to a 2-2 tie, Vancouver Canucks nipped Minnesota North Stars 3-2, St. Louis Blues and Detroit Red Wings tied 1-1 as did New York Islanders and Kansas City Scouts.

"It didn't look like the same Los Angeles team tonight," said Canadiens goaltender Ken Dryden, who blocked 28 shots, including a third-period penalty shot by Bart Crashley.

"That's enough errors by their team for three or four games. LA is a very good team. I'm sure it feels bad to open the season like that."

Jim Roberts, Guy Lafleur, Jacques Lemaire and Bob Gainey each scored two goals for the Canadiens with team captain Yvan Cournoyer getting the other.

A crowd of 15,251 saw Montreal fire 48 shots at former team-mate Rogatien Vachon, including 22 during a six-goal outburst in the final period.

Referee Bruce Hood called 46 minutes in penalties plus the penalty shot in the third period after Montreal defenceman Guy Lapointe bashed Crashley down from behind on a breakaway.

In Atlanta, Bob Murdoch completed a three-goal second-period barrage, lifting the Seals to their win over the Flames. Atlanta swept to a 3-1 lead after 1:29 of the second period on Tom Lysiak's second goal before California came to life.

Murdoch climaxed the rally when he scored a power-play goal at 12:41 of the middle period, beating Atlanta Dealie Dan Bouchard.

Rookie Ralph Klassen and Dave Gardner had the Seals other second-period goals with Gardners goal at 9:27 tying the score.

A power-play goal by Rick Middleton at 4:01 of the third period gave the Rangers their tie with Chicago.

Middleton connected on his third try from five feet out with Chicago's John Marks in the penalty box for holding.

Bill Fairbairn got the other New York goal with Ivan Boldirev and Bobby Sheehan replying for the Black Hawks.

Gerry O'Flaherty's unassisted goal at 18:06 of the final period lifted the Canucks to their win over Minnesota.

The winning goal came seconds after North Stars goalie Cesare Maniago broke his stick defending against a heavy Canuck offensive.

Bill Lochead scored at 18:05 of the third period to give Detroit its tie with St. Louis. Chuck Lefley scored the Blues goal at 3:05 of the final period.

In Kansas City before 6,500 fans, Guy Charron scored for the Scouts in the first period with Billy Harris replying for the Islanders in the second.

The Islanders appeared to have won the game with 47 seconds to play in the game, but referee Bob Myers ruled New York's Jude Drouin had hit the puck with a high stick.

In games tonight, the Canadiens visit the Bruins in Boston, Philadelphia plays host to Washington and Detroit visits Buffalo Sabres.

Olympics Move To Semi-final

Unable to put the ball past Belleville Olympics' goalie Gary Donovan while they held a clear edge in play early in the game, Quinte Hellenic dropped a 3-0 Trenton Challenge Cup decision, Wednesday.

Playing at Sir James Whitney School, Olympics began to take the offensive late in the first half and newcomer Dennis O'Donnell came close to giving his team the lead.

After 10 minutes in the second half, Dave Kidd broke the scoreless tie when he got the ball in the net after Hellenic's Zelton Vigh had made the save on a try by Chris Huckle.

It wasn't until the final minute of regulation time that Olympics got the insurance they were looking for. Chris Johnson found Kevin Kirby in the clear on a free kick and he fired a low shot home.

Bruno Di Genova and Bob Kitcher were solid performers for the losers.

Olympics meet Quinte Italo-Canadians in one half of the semi-final while Trenton Citizens Finance and Johnny Tony's hook up in the other showdown.

The Olympics-Italo match is scheduled for 11 a.m., October 19 with Citizens and Tony's to follow at 2 p.m. Both games will be played at Trenton Centennial Park.

The Challenge Cup final is set for Centennial Park, October 26 at 3 p.m.

Basketball Lancers Getting It Together

The Loyalist Lancer Basketball team once again is getting into shape for the upcoming Ontario Collegiate Athletic Association season. The look for this season for the Lancers will be a new one, new in the sense that only two members of the last year's club have been not to the practices.

Wednesday evening Lancers held their first refereed intrasquad game and the Yellow Team, led by 23 points from newcomer Wilf Lemoire handed the Blue Team 51-27 loss. The club has been practising for about three weeks and the players are still learning to adjust to each other's style of play.

Lancers' coach Rob Sinnson feels "This season's team does not have the individual stars like Bill Kyle and Jim Sutton but overall we have more depth and height than last year's club."

The teams played two 15-minute halves with seven men on each side on Wednesday in an effort to get the players in better shape.

"The edges are still pretty rough and they are still forcing the play but once they get used to each other they'll be alright" noted Sinnson.

Carl Ward and Dave Culmer both led Lancers players have been coming out to the practices - and Sinnson says that he will be looking to Culmer to lead the team on the floor.

Other scorers in Wednesday's game for the winning Yellow team were Ken Fairbanks and Chris Kennedy who each picked up 10 points. Culmer led Blues with eight points.

The Lancers will hold their annual Old Boys game Saturday afternoon at the college beginning at 3 p.m.

Broomball League Set With 6-team Grouping

Belleville Broomball League swerves into another season this Friday at Dick Ellis Rink. In two short years the league has established itself as an integral member of the local sporting community. It has established itself so well, that this season there are six teams competing for the league's championship. In its initial years, there were four teams.

Northern Electric and Golden Mile Restaurant are back for their third year. They are the only charter members of the six team loop. Retaining for the second year is last season's league champions, A and J Drive-In Restaurant from Trenton. The three new clubs are Belleville Radiator Service, Bancroft Sports Centre and Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund.

Even the executive has a new look. Jim Parks is the president for the 1975-76 season and Art McKay is the vice-president. Bob Brownlee holds down the secretary-treasurer's job and Trevor Percy and Joe Salstinik will handle publicity. Referees will be kept by Larry Coleman.

Each team plays a 20-game shedule with playoffs to conclude. All games are Friday evenings beginning at 8:15 p.m. at Dick Ellis Rink.

All Hockey Referees Invited to Clinic

In an effort to categorize the skills and levels of ability of hockey referees throughout the province, the Ontario Hockey Association is sponsoring various clinics whereby officials are graded.

The clinic for the Quinte District takes place October 25 at the Dick Ellis Rink and Centennial Secondary School.

Referees of any calibre are encouraged to attend this clinic in order to gain recognition from the OHA. Qualified OHA and Canadian Amateur Hockey Association referee instructors will direct the proceedings.

At the end of the day, a written examination will take place and based on a participant's score on that and his performance during the on-ice Sessions he may be invited to attend a second clinic later in the year.

More information may be obtained by contacting Blake Moynes, 962-5798.

Up and at 'Em

John Smith (right) goes up for two points on this try despite the efforts of Terry Lynch on the defence. The pair were working out with the Loyalist Lancers basketball squad in the first inter-squad game of the season for the club. The Lancers have been practising for the past three weeks in preparation for the upcoming season. The annual Old Boys game that brings back some of the stars from past seasons will be this Saturday at the college beginning at 3 p.m.

Trojans Move To the Top

In Bay of Quinte High School Football action on Wednesday afternoon the Moira Trojans travelled to Trenton to take on the Tigers in the only scheduled senior game. Moira was down 23-6 at half time but steady pressure by the visitors in the second half gave them a 29-23 win.

The Trojans main problem in the opening half was the number of penalties charged against them. Moira coach Hugh Cook estimated the club picked up 150 yards "in stupid penalties."

"Four touchdowns in the second half sparked the win that puts Moira all alone in first place with a 3-1 record.

Things were bad right from the beginning for the Trojans as they fumbled the first two kickoffs at their 25 yard line and both were recovered by the Trenton club.

John Lowe led the attack for the winners scoring three of their touchdowns. Rick North and Roger Sprague each had one. Sprague's major came on a 52-yard punt return Ralf Kollars counted two points in conversions to round out the scoring for the winners.

Mike Crawford and Mike McClelland both played strong games on the line for the visitors.

Paul Yates scored two touchdowns for Trenton with Greg Kendrick scoring the other.

Dave Lewis finished off the scoring for the Tigers with two singles.

In the only junior competition on Wednesday the Centennial Chargers thumped the Centre Hastings junior by a 20-8 score. John Hoyer led the winners with two majors and a two point conversion. All his points were scored in the final quarter of the game. Terry Thompson scored the other major for the winners.

All of the losers' scoring came in the fourth quarter as Kelly Welch ran for a major and then collected two points on a conversion.

Chargers win was their fourth of the season against one loss. Centre Hastings is 2-2.

Riders Trample Ticats But Injury List Grows

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa coach George Brancato is probably wondering what it is like to really enjoy a win.

His Rough Riders rolled over Hamilton Tiger-Cats 31-4 in an Eastern Football Conference game Wednesday night, but Brancato's post-game joy was tempered by concern over new additions to a growing string of injuries that have hit one of the EFC leaders this year.

Running back Jim Foley limped off the field in the first quarter and he's due for x-rays today to see if anything is broken. Reserve linebacker Bill Palmer broke his arm in the second quarter.

Brancato said in the Ottawa dressing room he will have to begin shopping around for another Canadian, probably for the specialty teams.

The Riders have already lost tackle Jim Coode, guard Tom Schmitz, fullback John Biedess, linebacker Wayne Giardino and rover Rod Woodward for the season. Brancato and general-manager Frank Clair have been kept scrambling to fill the holes.

But it wasn't all gloom for the Riders. Tight end Tony Gabriel caught three touchdown passes against his old team-mates and fullback Art Green picked up 233 yards running, pass catching and handling kickoffs and punts. He scored the other Ottawa touchdown.

Gerry Organ added a 16-yard field goal and four converts. Ian Sunter's 31-yard field goal and a 48-yard single by punter Ken Clark was all the Ticats could muster.

The main reason was the Ottawa defence, especially the line.

The defensive line upset Hamilton's offence and kept Ticat quarterbacks Jerry Keeling and Jim McMillan scrambling. A hard tackle by Mike Raines in the first quarter knocked Keeling out of the game until the fourth quarter and Brancato said the Ticats fell apart from there.

Hamilton coach Jerry Williams had little to say about his team's performance. "You can't be surprised when your defence gives up 31 points but of course our offence kept turning the ball over to the Riders."

Eastern Leaders

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Gerry Organ converted all four Ottawa touchdowns and booted a field goal in the Rough Riders' 31-4 Eastern Football Conference victory Wednesday night over Hamilton Tiger-Cats to break the 100-point barrier and increase his lead in the EFC scoring race.

Organ's seven points increased his total to 102 for an 11-point lead over second-place Zenon Andrusyshyn of Toronto Argonauts.

Don Sweet of Montreal Alouettes holds down third place with 88 points and Ian Sunter, who kicked a field goal Wednesday night for the Tiger-Cats, is in fourth with 72 points.

Art Green picked up his 10th touchdown of the year in Ottawa's win to move into fifth spot in the scoring race. Teammate Tony Gabriel doubled his previous output of 18 points with three touchdowns in the victory to move into a share of ninth place with 28 points.

Reds Planning to Run All the Way to Title

BOSTON (AP) — After stealing baseball's National League pennant, Cincinnati Reds are planning the biggest haul of all—the World Series.

Cincinnati, which stole bases almost at will in a three-game sweep of Pittsburgh Pirates in the best-of-five National League playoff, are preparing to hijack the World Series with a similar plan.

"We can steal, we can hit, we have the bullpen," says Pete Rose, brash ringleader of the Reds. "We did everything against the Pirates.

"I don't see why we should stop now."

The Reds worked out today in Cincinnati and planned to fly into Boston on Friday morning before taking on the Red Sox, the American League champions in the World Series opener on Saturday. The Red Sox went through a similar workout in cozy Fenway Park.

Although the Red Sox will have the advantage of the extra home game in the best-of-seven series, the Reds have been installed slight favorites by virtue of their extravagantly successful season.

Led by Rose, the Reds flashed through the National League West, winning 108 games en route to the West Division pennant.

"This is the best team I've been on in my 13 years playing in Cincinnati," says Rose who had 210 hits, including 47 doubles, a .317 batting average and 74 runs batted in in the leadoff position this year.

"This is the most complete team. This team has the long ball, the defense, home-run hitters, speed, good starting pitchers and the great bullpen."

Among the power hitters on the Cincinnati club are Johnny Bench and Tony Perez, two right-handed hitters who'll most have their batting eyes fixed on the friendly left field wall in Fenway called The Green Monster.

Bench, possibly the best catcher in baseball, was bothered by a sore left arm for most of the year but still managed to hit 28 homers and bat in 110 runs.

Perez, the first baseman who was traded by the Reds last winter, belted 20 homers and had 109 runs batted in. Second baseman Joe Morgan had his best season in 1975—.327 batting average, 94 runs batted in and 67 steals.

The Reds have an all-around team that excels on defence as well as offence. Their outfield includes three players with some of the most powerful arms in baseball—George Foster in left, Cesar Geronimo in centre and Ken Griffey in right.

Along with the lusty hitting and the tough defence, the Reds have a pitching staff that includes Don Gullett, the opening-day starter, Fred Norman and Gary Nolan and a bullpen anchored by Clay Carroll, one of the best in the game.

PETE ROSE

The Red Sox, who are starting unflappable Luis Tiant in the first game, know exactly what they have to do to beat the Reds.

"You can't stop good baserunners," says catcher Carlton Fisk.

"But if the pitchers do their job and keep them off the bases, that's how you stop them."

If Tiant pitches as well as he did in last week's American League playoffs against Oakland A's, the Red Sox are in business.

Boston's "old man" pitched a three-hitter against the three-time world champions, starting the Red Sox to a surprising three-game sweep.

The Red Sox, in the World Series for the first time since 1967, are a perfect blend of age and youth.

Outfielder Carl Yastrzemski, the respected veteran who is one of the two players left from the 1967 Red Sox team, calls this year's edition the best Boston club he's ever seen. Third baseman Rico Petrocelli, the other veteran, agrees with him.

The Red Sox dethroned the A's with dispatch and won't be easy pickings for the Reds, despite the Reds' verbal thunder.

The Red Sox are just as adept at defence and had the best hitting team in the American League this season, led by rookie Fred Lynn.

The young centrefielder, a dazzling defensive player as well as a dangerous hitter, batted .331, hit 21 homers and drove in 105 runs.

Cecil Cooper, a .311 hitter, replaced Yastrzemski at first base when the veteran moved to left field when Jim Rice was injured late in the season.

The Red Sox also have a highly-efficient double play combination in second baseman Denny Doyle and shortstop Rick Burleson. Either Dwight Evans or Bernie Carbo, two more from the talent-deep Red Sox pool, will play right.

Behind Tiant, Boston manager Darrell Johnson has Rick Wise, and Reggie Cleveland, a Swift Current, Sask., native.

Tiant Getting What He Always Wanted

BOSTON (AP) — For three years, Luis Tiant kept saying: "There are only two things I want in life—to see my mother and father again and to pitch in the World Series."

Luis, an only child, got his first wish in August when his parents arrived on a special visa authorized by Prime Minister Fidel Castro of Cuba.

Now, at the age of 35 and with his parents still here to watch, his second wish is about to be fulfilled. He's listed as the starting pitcher for Boston Red Sox in the 1975 World Series opener against Cincinnati Reds on Saturday at Fenway Park.

"Right now it's 98 per cent sure that Luis will start the first game," Boston manager Darrell Johnson said Wednesday after the Red Sox returned from an overnight flight from Oakland.

Plagued by back miseries, Tiant lost five of seven games starting in mid-August. But he came back to win his last three starts 2-1, 2-0 and 4-0 at home to help the Red Sox win the American League East title. He was foiled in a bid for a third consecutive 20-victory season, but finished with an 18-14 record.

Then he launched a three-game sweep over Oakland A's with a three-hit, 7-1 victory. The Red Sox took it from there, capturing their third pennant in Tom Yawkey's 42 years as owner.

The son of one of Cuba's all-time great players, Luis inherited his parents' advice not to become a major league pitcher. He went to Mexico and went on to become the ace of the Cleveland Indians before injuries threatened his career.

LUIS TIANT

Twin Honors

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Rookie outfielder Fred Lynn and manager Darrell Johnson of the American League champion Boston Red Sox have been honored in voting conducted by the Sporting News.

Lynn was the first rookie to be named American League Player of the Year since the baseball awards began in 1938. The centre fielder also was named 1975 Rookie of the Year.

Johnson was named 1975 Major League Manager of the Year in a poll of managers conducted before the Red Sox captured the league title Tuesday night against the defending World Series champion Oakland A's.

The National League Player of the Year Award is to be announced next week.

Lynn's .331 batting average was second in the league. He led the American League in doubles with 47 and runs scored with 103. Lynn hit 21 homers and drove in 105 runs.

In his second year as Red Sox manager, Johnson molded a mixture of veterans and youngsters into a cohesive unit "and got the most out of his material," said the weekly publication.

Yawkey Rates Yaz No. 1

BOSTON (AP) — A lot of great ballplayers have worked for Tom Yawkey since he bought Boston Red Sox in 1933—Ted Williams, Jimmy Foxx, Dom DiMaggio, Jackie Jensen, to name a few—but Yawkey believes Carl Yastrzemski is the best ever.

"Yes, I would say so. Certainly he is," Yawkey answered without hesitation when asked Wednesday where he would rank his slugging first baseman-left fielder with other Red Sox stars.

Better than Williams?

"I know that he was such a great hitter and Joe DiMaggio told me he was the greatest hitter he ever saw. And Ted could field better than a lot of people think.

"But Carl does more than the rest ever did I'm sure of that."

Yawkey had just returned from California with his Red Sox, who had just defeated Oakland A's hopes for four successive American League pennants with a three-game sweep of the playoffs.

A New Twist ?

BERNE (Reuter) — The world Alpine ski championship next season could be settled by a sudden-death race in the controversial parallel slalom new rules made available Wednesday by the International Ski Federation (FIS) indicate.

If two or more competitors are within 10 points of each other at the end of the season, the FIS said a challenge round would be held over the parallel slalom course during the final event of the year.

Last season Italian Gustavo Thoeni won his fourth World Cup by defeating Sweden's Ingemar Stenmark in a thrilling parallel slalom final at Val Gardena, Italy.

This type of skiing, in which competitors race against each other in pairs on adjacent tracks, was included in the World Cup for the first time last year. It was popular with spectators but criticized by some skiers who said it was an unpredictable test.

Boston Bruins' Dave Forbes Remains Troubled by the Past

BOSTON (AP) — As Boston Bruins prepare to open their 1975-76 National Hockey League season tonight against Montreal Canadiens, David Forbes remains troubled by thoughts of the past.

On a Saturday last January, a mid-season game with Minnesota North Stars changed the course of his life.

Forbes says he'll never forget the incident with Henry Boucha that brought him off the ice and into the law courts for trial this summer. But he hopes some good has come from the assault action, which ended in no verdict.

"I feel it's the responsibility of all pro sports leagues to get together and sponsor some sort of legislation that will let people know where they stand" on actions that take place during professional competitions, he said recently after a pre-season game.

"It should take place so that some jury doesn't go wild and drag somebody else through what I went through this summer."

What Forbes went through was arrest, indictment and trial after Boucha's right eye was badly injured during a scuffle last Jan. 4. It was the first time in the United States that a professional athlete was taken to court for violent actions during a game.

"Dragging it through the courts never made Henry's eye better, and it certainly didn't help me," Forbes said. "I just try not to think about it.

"I'm trying to get back to playing my own way."

Ironically, the two players had met before as friends.

"Henry was a friend of a friend of mine who played in the American Hockey League," Forbes recalled. "We went and had a few beers together in Boston one night a couple of years ago."

That was forgotten on Jan. 4. At 8:22 of the first period, Forbes threw an illegal elbow check at the Minnesota player and was knocked to the ice in retaliation.

After both received penalties, Forbes allegedly had threatened Boucha when they returned to action.

As they left the penalty box, Forbes punched Boucha on the side of the face, the butt of his stick still in his gloved fist. The rest is history.

CANADIAN SCHENLEY DISTILLERIES, LTD.

Do a little insulating this weekend.

You'll see the results on your fuel bills.

The high cost of heating is not a "grin and bear it" situation. You can do something about it. Improve your insulation.

1 Insulation saves fuel–saves money. It's very simple, a house with adequate insulation costs less to heat, because you lose less. And at today's fuel prices, you can't afford to lose very much.

2 You need at least 6" of insulation in your attic. Even if your house is only 5 years old, you may not have enough insulation. The insulation standards that your builder followed are no longer valid.

Building codes are being changed and 6" of insulation in the attic will probably be the new minimum for all new construction.

You can bring your home's insulation up to current standards yourself, with a minimum investment of time and money. In the process you'll be saving money on your fuel bill and adding to the real value of your home.

3 What kind of insulation should you get? Fiberglas* It's easy to install, readily available and inexpensive. It's also extremely efficient, rot and mildew proof, fire retardant and recognized everywhere as the best form of insulation. If you already have some insulation in the attic you'll probably need Fiberglas friction fit batts. They install without so much as a nail. Just stuff them between the joists in the attic, right over the insulation you have.

Measure the insulation you have now, then get Fiberglas friction fit batts thick enough to make 6". Since you'll be adding to existing insulation, do not use insulation with a backing or a vapour barrier. (You could be creating condensation problems.) All you need is plain, unbacked insulation–Fiberglas friction fit batts.

4 If you have no insulation at all? You need Fiberglas kraft faced batts with a built in vapour barrier. You'll need it 6" thick (that's called R-20) and you apply it the same way–laying it between the joists in the attic floor. The vapour barrier (the paper side) always goes next to the warm side. So in the attic, it's paper side down.

5 The Fiberglas booklet. It tells all. Your building supply dealer has a free copy of the Fiberglas booklet for you. It's called "HOW TO FIGHT THE RISING COST OF FUEL BY IMPROVING YOUR HOME'S INSULATION". Ask for it and read it. It'll tell you everything you need to know about insulating your attic, rec room, cottage and give you other tips on conserving energy.

To do the average house should take the weekend. But it's an investment that pays dividends on every fuel bill you'll ever receive.

NOTICE

ONTARIO ENERGY BOARD

NOTICE OF APPLICATION AND HEARING

TAKE NOTICE that the Board will hold a hearing commencing at 9 a.m. on Monday, the 27th day of October, 1975 at its Hearing Room, 9th Floor, 14 Carlton Street, Toronto, Ontario in respect of an application by Northern and Central Gas Corporation Limited dated the 30th day of September, 1975 (Docket Number E.B.R.O. 164-75) for an interim Order to recover the following increases in its cost of gas:

(a) An increase of approximately $1,521,874 in costs for gas purchased from TransCanada PipeLines Limited ("TransCanada") based on 1973 annual deliveries or 1.4c per Mcf on its gas sales for that period made effective April 1, 1975 by National Energy Board Order TG-2-75.

(b) An increase of approximately $2,256,449 based on 1973 annual deliveries or 2.1c per Mcf on its gas sales for that period arising from the renegotiation of Temporary Winter Service and Winter Peaking Service contracts with TransCanada and the filing of those contracts with the National Energy Board.

(c) An increase of approximately $97,401,902 based on 1973 annual deliveries or 67c per Mcf on its gas sales for that period that would result from an order of the National Energy Board approving in full the July 15, 1975 application of TransCanada for an increase in its rates for the sale of gas effective November 1, 1975.

Based on these effective increases, the application, if granted, would result in an increase in the rates to the Applicant's fixed rate customers (residential, commercial and small industrial) of up to $0.55 per thousand cubic feet ("Mcf").

For the Applicant's customers purchasing gas under Special Contract rates whose contract contains a full pass-through cost of gas escalation clause, this application, if granted, would result in increases in the upper and lower limits of the negotiable range of up to $0.55.

The application states that it is Northern's belief that the implementation of The Petroleum Administration Act will result in a price being set for Northern and Central gas purchases lower than the price which would otherwise come into effect and that Northern's rate request will be amended accordingly when these facts are known.

The Board has made a procedural Order dated the 1st day of October, 1975 in respect of the hearing. Copies of that Order and copies of the application may be obtained from the Secretary, Ontario Energy Board, 9th Floor, 14 Carlton Street, Toronto, Ontario M5B 1K5 or from Northern and Central Gas Corporation Limited, Suite 600, 300 Commerce Road, Willowdale, Ontario M2J 1P9.

If any person notified does not attend at the hearing, the Board may proceed in his absence and he will not be entitled to any further notice in the proceedings.

DATED at Toronto this 1st day of October, 1975.

Friday, Oct.10

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 19) Don't put your mouth in motion before your brain is in gear today. You could be very irritating to all concerned.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You'll find you're better at handling serious matters in the p.m. than in the a.m. Don't rush into decisions without weighing alternatives.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your first impulse tother is to look after your self-interests. You'll soon discover you'll be complish more by adhering to the spirit of give-take.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'll be asked to do a favor you consider an imposition. You'll find you not only feel good about doing it, but are having fun, to boot.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you don't succeed on the first try — and you probably won't — hang in there. It may take several attempts, but you'll catch the brass ring.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're apt to experience some domestic pressures early in the day. Later, things will get you're bright. You won't even remember what disturbed you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) An opportunity that will make or save you money will pop up suddenly. Be on your toes to grab it, for it will disappear as quickly as it appeared.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22) Iron out your schedule flexible today. You're going to make some sudden changes in direction. You won't want to be locked into an outmoded plan.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't be surprised today if someone who owes you an old debt comes forth and pays at least part of the obligation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your work habits won't be quite up to snuff today. Be careful how you handle tools, especially those that belong to others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You'll gain something of value today because one is a key position will help you accomplish things you could never pull off on your own.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A rendezvous with a person you're very fond of is in the cards today. It will be surprising, because you'll meet in a place you least expect to encounter brighter. You won't even re-her.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Slap-dash play works on occasion. South wins the first heart and goes after clubs. The slap-dash player bangs down the ace and king. This drops West's queen and South is sure of 10 tricks. He probably makes an eleventh by leading a diamond toward dummy's queen and may even wind up with twelve if the defense isn't too notch.

The expert declarer doesn't do nearly as well. He has bid three notrump and wants to win the game and rubber.

He does win the first heart and does lay down his ace of clubs, but his next club play is a low one toward the jack.

West takes his queen and goes about the business of setting up his hearts but this doesn't bother expert South at all. South wanted to guard against a 4-1 club break and the low club to lose the jack was a perfect safety play.

Give West four clubs he could take his queen then or later, but that would be his only club trick. If East held them he would take his quarry. Later on, South would lead a club from dummy and pick up the rest of the suit.

Ask the Jacobys

A Hawaiian wants to know what is meant by double dummy play.

If bridge were played with two players and two dummies it would mean that each of the two players would know where every card was. Then, they would be able to make all perfect plays. In other words, double dummy play is that which would occur in the location of all cards was known.

Had Them In Years

LONDON (CP) — At a luncheon in her honor recently, Princess Anne, the newspaper dubbed the "Forces Sweetheart" during the Second World War, broke into the nostalgic song of the World War I Allied Forces, White Cliffs of Dover and We'll Meet Again. "I just don't know how it happened to me singing," she said, "so I'd better sing." Many of the guests attending the event wept embarrassed.

Drug Therapy Helps Gout

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been plagued with gout since 1973—in my big toe on my left foot and also on my fingers. What causes a body to fabricate so much uric acid? Is it something I eat but should stay away from? I cannot get an answer to this from my family doctor.—Mrs. F.G.

The reason your doctor did not answer your question is because it is not at all clear why an excess of uric acid can appear in the blood. It is known that uric acid is the result of the metabolism of purine, a substance found in certain high-protein foods, organ meats, for example.

Normally, the body takes care of this matter nicely, retaining only a minute amount of the uric acid in the blood and expelling the rest in the urine. In some persons, men mostly, there is some metabolic flaw which allows an excess to accumulate in the blood. Along with this problem, the body does what it does on other occasions of such unctabelic errors—it looks for an escape route.

In the case of gout, the excess uric acid is deposited as crystals in the joints and cartilage. In about 70 per cent of cases, the big toe is the recipient of this unwanted substance. Pain is the result.

In the modern treatment of gout, drugs have emerged as the primary means of both alleviating attacks and of preventing future attacks. The drugs which can, in a sense, step into the metabolic process and block the body's formation of uric acid. Formerly, dietist to restrict high-purine foods (organ meats, gravies, legumes, etc.) was the only treatment, giving rise to the erroneous idea that anyone with gout must have been a self-indulgent glutton and drunkard.

Today, in chronic cases, diet restrictions are somewhat added to the usual drug therapy.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I participated in tests for a heart attack prevention study. My blood pressure was 110 over 70, and my serum cholesterol was over 295. I was not selected for the study, but the test results raised questions which I would like to have answered.

What is a normal serum cholesterol count for a man in his '20s? Is 295 dangerously high? What are the most effective drugs that can be taken to reduce the count? My diet is already quite low in fat. Would vitamin C help—T.L.B.

I guess you were not wanted for the study because they were looking for persons more susceptible to a heart attack than you. This should be consolation to you.

Your blood pressure was fine. As to the cholesterol, it would be unwise to draw any conclusions (happy or unhappy) from a single test. It can vary all over the place in a normal individual—from 200 to 300. This depends on the testing technique used and upon variations in time of day or whether does after a heavy meal, for example, when it would be harmlessly high. Under ideal testing conditions, 295 would not be considered dangerously high, though.

Vitamin C would have no effect on cholesterol level.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can you state some facts about the Pill? Specifically, how long would one have to start taking the Pill before marriage? Can one have a normal child after taking the Pill for a number of years?—A.R.

Last question first. You can have normal babies after long periods of using the Pill. It varies among women, but normal ovulation should be resumed within three months.

As to the matter of when a bride-to-be should begin taking the Pill, it is too, may vary, but it is wise to start one or two months before marriage.

One Man Promotes Town

CARBON, Alta. (CP) — The population of this community, 80 miles northeast of Calgary, has increased by 50 per cent in the last three years—a source of pride to all its new residents.

Hugh Bodmer, 30, has a full-time job revitalizing 10 communities in south-central Alberta.

"I prefer to think of it as stabilization and some measure of growth," said Mr. Bodmer, whose official title is project coordinator, regional resource project No. 1.

A graduate in political science and education, he is under contract to the communities to promote awareness of government programs to help small towns.

Mr. Bodmer was also involved with the organization of local development companies, in which each community sells shares for investment in the town. Shareholders in the plan expect to get their money back, plus an occasional dividend, but the main idea is to improve their town.

To date, 32 houses have been built under the program. When they started, cement closed down in nearby Acme, money was short and under the plan to build a new restaurant, later purchased by an Edmonton chef.

Mr. Bodmer was initially hired by the provincial government in 1971 to set up a task force on urbanization. When the provincial program failed 10 years later, the 10 communities opted to carry on with it, raised money, and hired him.

Most of the communities have decreased in population in the three years the project has been operating.

CP News Roundup

Miller Expresses Concern

TORONTO (CP) — Health Minister Frank Miller said Wednesday he does not "take lightly" a threat by Ontario doctors to opt out of the Ontario Health Insurance Plan (OHIP) if their wage demands are not met.

The Ontario Medical Association (OMA) urged provincial doctors on Tuesday to opt out of the plan to bank demands for a fee increase of between 35 and 50 per cent.

Under the plan, about 9,500 of Ontario's 12,000 doctors bill OHIP for all their patients and accept the 90 per cent of the fee paid by OHIP as full payment. Doctors who bill patients directly may charge the full OMA fee or above the fee as long as patients are told this before billing.

Bologna May Differ In Bacteria Count

TORONTO (CP) — A University of Guelph microbiologist says one package of bologna, ham or mortadella-cooked meat may contain up to 12,000 times more bacteria than the competitive package next to it but there are no government standards for the bacteria count in processed meats.

Dr. Cyriel Dultschaver bases his conclusions on recent laboratory studies of familiar brands of processed meat taken on a sample basis in southwestern Ontario.

He found the luncheon meats of one major distributor contained, on the average, 12,000 times as much bacteria as the same meat packaged by a competitor.

Samples of luncheon products of two other well-known meat distributors were found to contain 760 times and 360 times the amount of bacteria as the low-bacteria sample.

Dr. A. K. Morris, director of the federal meat inspection program in Ontario, says there are no bacteria-count standards for processed meat.

Dr. Morris said in an interview that standards have been discussed by the department of health and welfare.

"They probably will come up with standards, but there is nothing now," he said.

Few Historical Reasons for Thanksgiving

By BRIAN McKENNA
The Canadian Press

For most national holidays, Thanksgiving has been kicked around quite a bit in Canada.

The fact that the annual holiday on the second Monday of October exists is in present form at all probably has more to do with the workingman's desire for a three-day weekend than historical or cultural ties.

Although traditionally a North American feast day—the United States celebrates on the fourth Thursday of November—the idea of giving thanks for the year's blessing has its roots in antiquity. The early Hebrews practised their feast of Festa cost and Tabernacles and there was thanksgiving in pagan Rome.

In Canada, one of the earliest recorded days of thanksgiving was Sept. 21, 1763. It was proclaimed by British authorities in colonial Halifax to mark peace between Britain and France after the Seven Years' War, much of which was fought on Canadian soil.

From then until well into the 20th century, Thanksgiving was proclaimed at the government's pleasure on a variety of dates in mark everything from war victories to the return to health of ailing royalty.

At one point in the late 1800s it was taken over as a church celebration, though not a civic holiday. After the First World War the holiday was held in conjunction with Armistice Day, but that ended after 10 years, in 1931, after strident protests from veterans.

In fact, a Thanksgiving holiday on the second Monday of October did not become official until an act of Parliament was passed in 1957 when the date had become more or less established through annual proclamation since 1931.

An exception was in 1935 when disgruntled Canadians held their Thanksgiving on the third Thursday of October after then Prime Minister R. B. Bennett and his Conservative party decided the second Monday would be a good day for a general election. It wasn't—Mackenzie King's Liberals won by a landslide.

The mode of celebration itself, turkey dinner and the trimmings, seems to have come from the United States, where the Pilgrims held their first Thanksgiving at Plymouth, Mass. in 1621.

The custom grew in popularity throughout New England and survived a number of denigrating assaults from prominent southerners. One came from President Andrew Jackson who would have nothing to do with the "Yankee holiday" which he asserted was a "relic of puritanic bigotry."

But Jackson was overruled by Abraham Lincoln in 1863 and Thanksgiving has been a national holiday in the U.S. ever since.

The tradition of eating turkey on Thanksgiving seems to have little to do with Canadians or the pilgrims.

The name turkey itself appears to be a corruption of "turkie", an Indian word used to describe the flightless, unginly-looking bird. Under either name, the wild turkey has never inhabited Western Canada and appears to have been restricted largely to southwestern Ontario.

Accidental Spraying of Insecticide Leaves 3 Families Homeless

BY ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Three Belleville families have been forced from their residences for a week due to insecticide fumes which resulted from accidental use of a high-concentrated residual insecticide.

Dan Raddon, pesticide control officer with the provincial ministry of environment in Belleville, says apartments at 51 Isabel St. and on Harriet St. were sprayed Oct. 3 in the early afternoon with chlordane 48%, a 96 per cent concentration which is not supposed to be for sale to the general public.

He says the vendor who sold the chemical will remain unidentified pending further investigation.

Also affected is an upstairs apartment at 215 Isabel St. which was infiltrated by fumes which came through the floor.

Mr. Raddon says the label on the gallon can was not read previous to spraying. It contains a printed warning which advises, "do not use as a space spray."

A spokesman for Belleville General Hospital said two children and one mother were treated and released last week for insecticide inhalation.

They are identified as seven-year-old Dwayne, four-year-old Sandra and two-year-old Donald Richard of 51 Isabel St., 17-year-old May and two-month-old Brian Vance of 215 Isabel St. 11-year-old Roseanne and seven-year-old Sherry Hill of Harriet St. and four-month-old Harvey Miller who was at the Hill apartment with his mother.

Mr. Raddon said the two apartments were sprayed by landlord Mark Kalbis who is assisting the families while they have alternate accommodation.

He says apartment surfaces are being swabbed and air samples taken by chemists from the ministry laboratories office. Swab and air samples have been sent to Toronto for analysis twice this week but the level of chlordane is still too high to permit occupancy.

Mr. Raddon says the safe level is 5 ppm in the air but the families will not be permitted to return until the level is 1 ppm according to manufacturer's.

"The level is higher than allowed for occupancy," he said Thursday. "But it is at a reasonable level."

"It slowly dissipates or evaporates into the air," he noted.

Mr. Raddon said as well as swabbing, clothing had to be laundered, furniture spread out, curtains dry-cleaned, mattresses aired and expired foodstuffs disposed of.

He indicated it might be a long wait before the apartments can be occupied again. "We should get these people permanent accommodation," he commented. "One woman has six children."

Trudeau Disagrees
Macdonald Sees Policy as Drastic

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Donald Macdonald used the term "frightening"—and Prime Minister Trudeau disagreed with him—as cabinet ministers talked into Thursday night about the new anemployment they will unveil next week for the battle against inflation and unemployment.

"... the kind of restraints we have in mind are unprecedented in peacetime," said Mr. Macdonald as he entered an evening cabinet session which virtually completed the government's proposals. "If you don't find it as frightening as I do, then let me know."

Some four hours later, at midnight, the ministers emerged from their meeting and Mr. Trudeau disagreed with his finance ministers description of the measures.

"I am surprised Mr. Macdonald would use those words. We're not trying to frighten anyone.

"We assume that people want the government to take action and that's what we're doing."

Meanwhile, with the proposal being threaded into shape through the late-night cabinet session, Prime Minister Trudeau's office has booked time on national television so the prime minister can talk to the Canadian people Monday night after the cabinet has polished three hours with provincial premiers.

The broadcast, on the CBC, the CTV Television Network and Global, is set for 9 p.m. EDT, despite protests from opposition parties that "partisan" broadcasts should not be made on the eve of elections.

There are two federal byelections Tuesday.

The drama continued to build steadily Thursday as ministers dropped more hints of severe economic measures, as financial officials worked into the night on their assignments, as a team of writers stood by to put everything on paper and as corridors buzzed with reports of a new and mighty control board with power to roll back excessive increases in prices and incomes.

One reliable source said freezes were being put out for a chairman for the new board, which would likely swallow up the present Food Prices Review Board.

Beryl Plumptre, the chairman of the existing board, would remain a high-profile assignment in the new structure, said the source, but the chairmanship likely would go to someone with broader experience in general economics.

Cabinet had been expected to complete its economic package by Thursday afternoon, but debate took more time expected to go into the weekend. "We're refining it at the time—presentation, substance," said the prime minister.

Mr. Macdonald, while calling the proposed measures "unprecedented," would offer few details but would not say whether there will be actual price and wage controls, or what other steps may be taken to wrestle down inflation.

However, Mr. Trudeau made it clear that cabinet proposals won't necessarily include the final details. His Monday meeting with the premiers, to be held at 24 Sussex Drive, would be a consultation, not a mere briefing. "I'll be consulting them," he said. "There will still be room for amendments after that."

And he said business and labor groups also would be given an opportunity to influence the measures.

Arafat Supervises
Beirut Ceasefire

BEIRUT (AP) — Street fighting between Lebanese Christians and Moslems abated at dawn today under a Syrian-sponsored ceasefire personally supervised by Palestinian guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat.

Premier Rashid Karami did not announce what new security measures were agreed on by himself, Arafat and Syrian President Hafez Assad. But he returned from Damascus Thursday saying: "The worst is over."

Beirut radio announced there were "no more incidents since 6 a.m."

"But most approaches to the city are still dangerous due to the presence of armed men."

Roads around the northern city of Tripoli also were reported closed by armed men manning barricades, following repeated clashes between Moslems and Christians in neighboring hill villages.

Lebanons civil strife results from efforts by Moslems, their numbers swelled by Palestinian guerrillas whom they support, to obtain more political power from the Christian establishment and a leftist struggle for a better economic deal for the country's mostly Moslem lower classes.

Palestinian sources said the Syrian-backed guerrilla group Saiqa will play a larger role in helping Lebanese security men patrol the ceasefire in Moslem areas, under the personal supervision of Arafat.

In Christian areas, the security forces will be assisted by right-wing militiamen of the Phalange party and Interior Minister Camille Chamoun's National Liberal party.

Similar ceasefires have been broken in the past, with both sides accusing the other of resuming hostilities. Although many Palestinian guerrilla groups have professed neutrality in the Lebanese conflict, witnesses have reported increasing evidence of guerrilla units fighting alongside Moslems and leftists against the Christians.

That apparently prompted Karami's trip to Damascus.

Kidnap Victim In Poor Condition

DUBLIN (AP) — A Roman Catholic priest acting as mediator in the abduction of Dutch businessman Tiede Herrema said today he is in touch with the kidnap gang and that he understands Herrema is "mentally exhausted, tied hand and foot, blindfolded and with cotton wool in his ears."

Herrema, 53, chief executive of the Dutch-owned Ferenka, steel plant in Limerick, was seized near his home eight days ago. His captors threatened to kill him Sunday unless three imprisoned Irish Republican Army guerrillas were freed from jail. The government refused and the deadline passed with no word on Herrema's fate.

Rev. Donal O'Mahony, the mediator, would not say what his form of contact is with the kidnap gang. Early this morning, however he sent a message to them on the state radio, saying:

"I wish to thank you for your communication to the Ferenka company yesterday and so assuring us that Dr. Herrema is alive.

Fraser Joins PC Leadership Race

OTTAWA (CP) — Entries for the Progressive Conservative leadership race continued to build up Thursday as John Fraser, MP for Vancouver South, officially entered the startling gate while Sinclair Stevens remained in the background.

Mr. Stevens, MP for York-Simcoe remained at his Newmarket, Ont., headquarters as supporters began mounting a "Stevens a winner" campaign here. There seems little doubt that he will enter.

Mr. Fraser, 43, made it official and told a news conference he wanted an opportunity "to give direction to the political trends which will be set our country."

Mr. Fraser's announcement came 24 hours after Flora MacDonald, MP for Kingston and The, Islands, officially declared her plans to run. Earlier, Heward Grafftey, MP for Brome-Missisquoi, got off to an early start in the race.

More are expected next week. Patrick Nowlan of Annapolis Valley had planned to make his announcement this week, but did not want to become jammed in the starting gate. He will declare next week.

So far Mr. Stevens appears to have the most declared caucus support. The national committee for Sinclair Stevens, headed by Arnold Malone, MP for Battle River, Alta., includes seven other MPs, all from Ontario and the West. The 48 founding members represent most provinces and include one a college principal to former wrestler Whipper Billy Watson.

Sakharov Will Accept Nobel Prize

MOSCOW (AP) — Andrei Sakharov accepted award of the Nobel Peace Prize with "genuine pleasure" and said it was for all those "who struggle for freedom, human rights, for openness."

Sakharov, the 54-year-old nuclear physicist who has become the Soviet Union's leading voice in the struggle for human rights, said he will go to Oslo to accept the award if he is allowed to return.

There was no immediate reaction by the official Soviet press, but there seemed little doubt the Kremlin will be angered by award of the prize to a person who has become known around the world as a symbol of dissent.

Sakharov said he believes the Soviet government will "read with reason."

"I want to believe that this will not be taken as a challenge."

He said he considers the prize "an expression of the spirit of tolerance that by itself definitely should be a part of detente."

Doctors Argue Patient Abuse Increases Cost

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Some doctors, in a recent survey, said some patients are responsible for the rising cost of medical services in Ontario.

Trenton doctors William Weaver and John Bonn said about 10 per cent of the patients they see during office hours do not require the services of a physician and say this practice was not prevalent until after the inception of the Ontario Health Insurance Plan (OHIP).

Most doctors form clinics or alliances allowing them to rotate services with only one physician on call per night being responsible for all the emergency cases.

"The theory behind this practice is a patient wants his family doctor but will be satisfied with any doctor in an emergency situation" said Dr. Bonn.

Both doctors said the percentage of abuses increases to 30 per cent during non-office hours when people show up at emergency wards and demand treatment for problems that could wait until regular office hours.

"Not only does this disturb the doctor, but it also adds to the cost of services," said Dr. Bonn. OHIP pays $7 for a regular office visit, $12 for an emergency call and $17 if it is after 6 p.m.," said Dr. Bonn.

"Perhaps the problem could be solved if there was a system to alert OHIP to the abuses but this mechanism does not currently exist," said Dr. Bonn.

Dr. Bonn said he knew of a group of area physicians who charged every abuse and "medically necessary" when filing their bills with OHIP but the money was still paid and the problem still exists.

Doctors Average $42,730

OTTAWA — Doctors earn more than any other occupation group — an average of $42,730 in 1973, revenue department statistics show.

Lawyers were next with an average of $36,500.

Trenton Doctors See Service Cuts As Necessary

BY JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Some local physicians say it may be necessary to withdraw all non-essential services to dramatize the economic situation of the Ontario medical community.

The doctors, in interviews this week, said the time may have to be taken if they are no granted at least part of the 25-30 per cent fee increase they are currently negotiating for with the Ontario Health Insurance Plan (OHIP).

Additionally, three Trenton doctors contacted said they might have to start charging for preparing various medical forms; claiming they are spending up to 10 extra hours a week on the clerical work.

All the doctors said the increased medical costs will eventually have to be borne by the public, through higher general taxation or by paying the doctors directly if OHIP only grants a partial increase.

"I owe my patients a good service and I am dependent on them for my living but there are some changes that are necessary," said Dr. John Bonn, of Trenton.

"I won't strike but I will withdraw all non-essential services such as routine physicals, filling out accident forms and working in hospital committees if it is necessary to focus attention of the problem," said Dr. Bonn.

The biggest complaint the doctors have is the decrease in net income.

"The press keeps publishing surveys saying doctors are the highest paid in Ontario and make an average of $42,000 annually but this does not show that physicians net incomes, the money they can spend on their families, has decreased by almost 28 per cent because of inflation," said Dr. William Weaver, Trenton.

The public does not realize the time the doctors spend working in comparison to the wages they earn, said the physicians.

"I see patients on the average of 42-45 hours a week during office hours and hospital visits and then spend an additional 15 hours attending to emergency cases at the hospital, said Dr. Bonn.

Dr. Bonn said he was not complaining about the hours and said he injoyed his work but it was no longer a matter of getting a raise but rather just not falling behind.

The doctors said if the situation continues many members of the Ontario Medical Association (OMA) will withdraw from OHIP and bill the patients individually and then they will have to recover the money from the insurance plan.

The fee increase has been a contentious issue in Ontario for almost a month as the negotiations have been proceeding between OHIP and the OMA. The 30 Trenton doctors will wave a chance to join other area doctors to discuss the problem at a meeting of the Quinte chapter of the OMA in Belleville on October 29.

Allmand Proposes Tighter Gun Laws

TORONTO (CP) — Federal Solicitor-General Warren Allmand said Thursday that a series of proposals including tighter gun control laws and an end to capital punishment should be among the ingredients by the end of the month.

The proposals also will include reductions in parole and more compensation to the victims of crime.

Mr. Allmand, at a meeting of the York South Liberal Association, refused to discuss details of the proposals because he said they have not been approved by the cabinet.

He said he wants to extend limits on gun ownership to all firearms and ammunition, requiring anyone who buys or receives arms or ammunition to have a federal licence.

"We're also thinking of putting street criminals and civil liability on the control of guns," he said, adding that civil liability will require the co-operation of the provinces.

He said the government will consider a proposal calling for a person whose gun is stolen to prove he had taken reasonable steps to lock it up.

Mr. Allmand said proposals will be discussed with provincial attorneys-general as soon as they are tabled in the Commons.

The government also is considering a requirement that persons convicted a second time of violent crime be forced to serve half their sentence before they are eligible for parole, he said. At present, prisoners can apply for parole after serving one-third of their sentence.

Portugal Cracks Down On Left-wing Extremists

LISBON (Reuter) — Portugal's hard-pressed government early today moved to crack down on left-wing extremists.

A statement after a three-hour meeting condemned any use of violence, "especially by members of minority political groups," and warned the government would take action against those responsible.

The statement said the government will confer with the military council of the Revolution on ways to guarantee the stability needed for it to rule effectively.

It said that the government has been the victim of an orchestrated campaign to undermine its prestige and cause its downfall.

The statement attacked the Communist-dominated news media. It referred to glowing terms to recent demonstrations backing the government by the Socialists and centre-left Popular Democrats (PPD)—the two biggest political parties—and reprimanded "irresponsible" all parties that object to its drive for law and order.

Parade Takes Shape

There's more to a parade than a procession of people and floats. There is a lot of planning as members of the Quinte Santa Claus Parade Committee know.

Their second meeting for this year's parade, held recently showed plans are well underway for the Nov. 29 venture.

Among candies and treats for the children and the presentation of old St. Nicholas himself, at least 40 floats constructed by local groups and organizations, eight band from all over Ontario, horses and more than 100 walking clowns and entertainers will grace Belleville downtown early that Saturday morning. A grand total of 1,500 will be marching or riding in the parade

But the final production, although unrehearsed, is the result of hours of backstage work and planning.

Tag days, to raise the necessary funds for the parade, will be held Nov. 14 and 15 when volunteers will be placed in prominent downtown locations.

The committee will meet again on Oct. 21 at 7:30 p.m. at Ben Blecker auditorium in the former EMO office.

Floyd Johnston, 25, of 28 Centre St. in Belleville was remanded in provincial court here Thursday to Oct. 16 to set a date for trial on a charge of assault causing bodily harm in connection with an attack on a 31-year-old city woman here late last Saturday.

However, no decision was reported on the disposition of an additional charge of rape in connection with the same incident.

Shoppers in the Quinte area may join the contest by filling out entry forms at the following places of business. Geen's Pharmacy Ltd., Fry Fred Sales, Goodman's Store for Men, Arthur A. Sills and Son, Foxboro Fabrics, Esso car Wash, Bellevue Plumbing Mart, Quinte Sewing Centres Ltd., Swiss Dale Honey Fried Chicken, The James Texts Ltd. The local couple to win the prize will be selected during the first week of January. Their European vacation begins March 5.

Getting Ready

Newspapers Family Affair For One Hillcrest Family

Older brothers from top left: Richard, 16 Chris, 17, and Randy, 13, watch their younger brothers Jeff, 14, and Steven 13, count newspapers and stuff them into carrier bags prior to the five boys heading off to do their Hillcrest area paper routes. The five boys are among about 275 carriers in Belleville.

For the Thrashers of Sale Blvd., newspapers are a family affair.

Rain, snow, or sleet, the five Thrasher brothers, sometimes their sister Heather, and, on occasion, their parents Shirley and Douglas Thrasher, deliver The Intelligencer to 156 households in the Hillcrest area.

But the five brothers, ranging in age from 13-year-old Steven to 17-year-old Chris, are the heart of The Intelligencer delivery system in the city's northeastern section.

The Thrasher family team started five years ago when middle-son Randy, 15, delivered 80 papers in Hillcrest. But his route was soon split, being a little too large for a small boy according to his mother, and Randy's oldest brother Chris took over half.

The enterprise mushroomed from that point to include even the youngest Thrasher boy, who now has delivered papers two years. Not to be left out, the parents pitch in as well.

Mrs. Thrasher keeps track of the money the boys collect, watches the bank accounts, and makes sure papers are paid for.

The boys' mother, along with her husband, said they have occasionally pitched in to deliver papers when their sons were sick or away on vacation.

CORTS Official Endorses New Marina at Trenton

At the threshold of the Trent Canal system — seems a logical site for the major marina long contemplated by town officials.

That was one reaction Thursday as to the major make the latest bid for help in establishing such a large-scale boost to the tourist industry.

The comment came from Harry G. Hooke, chairman of the advisory committee to the Canada - Ontario - Rideau - Trent - Severn waterway (CORTS).

The view was expressed after Trenton administrator Aubrey Sharp presented a brief for CORTS attention on the long-hoped-for marina project — which town council and community groups have been pursuing since 1967.

The proposed marina planned for 250 boats — would be a service not only to Trenton, but to the entire CORTS corridor — 345 miles of waterway thinking Ottawa and Georgian Bay, said Mr. Sharp.

Thus it not only is a Trenton hope but a CORTS priority, argued the brief.

Currently, a federal government study is underway on to seven boats, is the only facility.

But Trenton "simply cannot afford" a project of such magnitude.

Therefore the committee was asked to help provide the "financial avenues" needed.

Mr. Sharp said while the project had been discussed by town council, private enterprise sources had "not really" been canvassed for interested reaction. What was required was help in finding direction to financial avenues.

Mr. Hooke said the committee would tap CORTS' resources for any suggestions.

Wayne Brooks, Trenton member of the committee, said he would relay any suggestions that might be produced by CORTS.

Some Producers Not Paying Levy on Eggs

BY MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Unless fundamental changes are initiated in the Ontario Egg Producers Marketing Board policy many egg producers will withold levies says Kurt Kaiser, a prominent Quinte area egg producer.

Mr. Kaiser, who has 3 houses at Cassey but Prince Edward County and in Hastings and Lennox and Addington counties, told a Federation of Agriculture meeting here this week the levies will be paid if changes are made in board policy in favor a national plan for egg production, prices and levies.

He said that he informed the Marketing Board in September that "we have instructed our producers not to withold our levies in total and return them to us for safeguarding."

Levies now are set at six cents per dozen and are forwarded by the grading station to the Marketing Board in the producer's name.

Mr. Kaiser suggested that perhaps 25 per cent of Ontario's egg producers may be withholding their levies now.

Unless the Ontario Egg Producers Marketing Board changes policy a court ruling may be required to force farmers to pay the levies witheld.

Mr. Kaiser said "there must be uniform prices and levies all across Canada. There is no economic reason that justifies price differentials in excess of three cents per dozen between the provinces."

He also noted that Ontario is the only province where producers are limited in the number of birds they can keep.

"I'm not happy to be at 60 per cent of my base quota just because I'm an Ontario producer," he remarked.

Mr. Kaiser added that the Ontario Board has called for a cut in flock size from a base quota established for individual farms from 1969 to 1972. Other provinces in Canada have not stated similar requirements.

Later this month an opinion poll will be held through local county agriculture and food offices throughout Ontario.

The ballot asks if producers favor the present plan known as the Ontario Egg Producers Marketing Plan which includes production control and at the present time includes participation in the Canadian Egg Marketing Agency (CEMA)?

He observed this question places producers in an unfair position. Many Ontario producers are opposed to the organization and the policies of the CEMA but they also feel that an egg marketing agency is essential to the future of egg producers.

A former member of the board of directors of the OEPMP, Mackenzie Brown of Picton said the ballot evades the issue. By including participation in the CEMA in the question concerning the Ontario plan the province is forcing support of this agency.

Mr. Brown resigned this year as a member of the board of directors of the OEPMP because of an alleged illegal agreement with the CEMA.

Survey Prompts Complaints

PICTON — A questionnaire asking farmers if members of the Ontario Egg Producers Marketing Plan (OEPMP) is ambiguous and misleading in its wording says Kurt Kaiser of Kaiser Lake Farms in Prince Edward and Lennox and Addington counties.

"The questionnaire will be introduced Oct. 14 to obtain the opinions of Ontario egg quota holders concerning the future of the OEPMP.

At a Federation of Agriculture meeting here this week Mr. Kaiser said one question asks "Are you in favor of the present plan known as the Ontario Egg Producers Marketing Plan, which includes production controls and, at the present time includes participation in the Canadian Egg Marketing Agency (CEMA)?"

He observed this question places producers in an unfair position. Many Ontario producers are opposed to the organization and the policies of the CEMA but they also feel that an egg marketing agency is essential to the future of egg producers.

Developer To Meet Council

PICTON Town council has scheduled a special meeting October 28 to discuss a subdivision agreement between the town of Picton, the Picton Public Utilities Commission and the Jayel Development Corporation Ltd.

Purpose of the meeting will be to decide whether or not Jayel has honored the agreement.

Delays in the Pitt Street condominium project were explained in a recent letter to council forwarded by the solicitor for Jayel Developments. The letter referred to difficulties in meeting deadlines because of "practices and procedures set down by our Provincial legislative bodies."

Little Interest In Mouthguards

The dental services department at the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit is disappointed in secondary school student response to its September mouthguard project, says Dr. Dennis A. Warrick, director.

He said only 237 students took advantage of the project when the department was prepared to handle 500.

Clinics were held in every high school in the two counties last month with custom-made mouthguards available at a cost price of $4.

Dr. Warrick said hockey accounts for half of all dental injuries with the second highest being football at 17 per cent. Basketball, lacrosse, soccer and volleyball comprise the other 33 per cent.

In addition, 37 per cent of dental injuries occur at the schools, he pointed out.

Craft Programs Outlined

PICTON — New programs for the Prince Edward Arts and Crafts Association were outlined recently at the first fall meeting of the organization.

This year a course in Macrame will be offered at Benson Park Hall by Donald Skidmore while crewel embroidery will be taught in Wellington by Mary Freeman.

A class in crochet work will be held at Benson Hall under the instruction of Thelma Calnan and caning classes will be offered through the high school program at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute.

Regular meetings of the Arts and Crafts Association are held at Benson Hall on the last Monday of each month. Membership is open to all interested persons.

Open House

Sidney Township Fire Department deputy chief Bill Leiford demonstrates a protective helmet to ensure it is among equipment on display at the Fire Prevention Week inspired open house Thursday. Part of that "equipment" is Smoopy, the south division's mascot, given to the department by a contract for the school a truckload of stuffed toys in a truck fire on Highway 401.

Firearm Mishaps Prompt Police to Issue Reminder

Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville have issued an emergency reminder to Quinte area parents due to recent incidents of youths being injured with firearms in their jurisdiction.

Constable Don Kuzyk, community services officer, has pointed out "some aspects of firearm legislation which he says will be helpful for parents with children who either use or wish to own firearms.

He noted that Section 82(1) of the Criminal Code says, "a firearm is any barrelled weapon from which any shot, bullet or other missile can be discharged and that is capable of causing serious bodily injury or death to the person, that includes anything that can be adapted for use as a firearm."

Constable Kuzyk related some facts about air rifles and pellet guns — firearms readily obtainable by parents for their children.

He explained "pellet guns .177 calibre and larger are air-soft rifles . . . B.B.'s will penetrate skin and eyes . . . (and) pellet guns of a pump type will shoot through tin cans."

"These then would be considered as firearms according to . . . the Criminal Code," he commented.

Regarding possession of a firearm, Constable Kuzyk stated Section 87 of the Criminal Code says, "everyone who . . . gives, lends, transfers or delivers any firearm or ammunition to a person under 16 years who is not a holder of a permit under which he may possess it, is guilty of an offence punishable on summary conviction."

He explained the permit to possess a firearm may be issued by provincial police or city police departments to persons between 14-16 years of age.

"Because of the obvious dangers inherent in the firearm, a personal visit to one of the police offices would be necessary and parents should also accompany the applicant," he remarked.

"The above is federal law effective throughout Canada," Constable Kuzyk emphasized. "Firearms and ammunition may be acquired by a peace officer and may become forfeit to the Crown if in contravention of above."

He added there is a provincial law for possession for hunting. "In 1968, it became mandatory for all new hunters under 20 years of age to complete a hunter safety course before being eligible to purchase a hunting licence," he said.

"No person under 15 years of age is accepted for the hunter safety course," he said.

Infant Nutrition Stressed

Nutrition week across Canada, coming up Nov. 2-8, has drawn attention to lack of nutrition involving infants, says Olga Wallace, director of nursing for the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit.

"We're concerned about nutrition with infants," she told the counties board of health this week.

Miss Wallace explained that in infant treatment at Belleville General Hospital, "they're finding the mothers are not feeding the infants properly."

She related that the nutrition department in the provincial ministry of health is currently preparing a position paper on infant feeding and if it receives government approval, it will be used as an official guideline.

New Members Welcomed

MARMORA — The local branch of the Red Cross Society met at the Marmora Library recently with about 15 members present.

A letter of appreciation from the Marmora Recreation Committee for the donation of $250 was read by the secretary.

Health Unit Expands School Dental Program

The Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit has released a list of dental services activities for 1975-76.

Classroom dental health will be expanded to twice reach kindergarten to Grade 6. Previously, Grades 7 and 8 were reached only once.

It will include brush-ins for Grade 2-4, Brow-ins for Grade 6, Murphy the Molar for Grades 1-2 and the use of 10 different films.

Fluoride clinics will also be introduced, consisting of school students and students from Grades 1-3. Previously, only Grades 1-2 were reached.

Dental health week will have a Grade 5 poster contest and other activities during February.

For those families not able to utilize a fluoridated water supply, similar reductions in tooth decay (up to 65 per cent) can be obtained through the daily use of fluoride tablets or drops for children up to 14 years of age.

Families using private wells can utilize the health unit's free well-testing and prescription service.

The health unit also will have special programs for northern Hastings County and other interested schools upon principal request.

Dental services will supply toothbrushes and paste for none brushing programs, particularly for rural schools where the majority of students are bussed.

P.M. Sidesteps Factor of Food as Counter to Third World Economic Pressure

By RICHARD JACKSON

Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA — "We are paying three and four times more for our oil to the Arabs and Venezuelans which means there is a transfer of wealth out of Canada, leaving us less to share among ourselves," philosophizes Prime Minister Trudeau.

"There can be no correction of this transfer of wealth short of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries changing their monopolistic practices.

"So the price of oil will go up as fast as the Arab nations and Venezuela want them to, and there's nothing we can do about it."

Four days later the OPEC oil cartel raised its prices another 10 per cent with the threat of further increases in nine more months.

The academically-minded Prime Minister, sounding as if he were lecturing his university economics class, can only wring his hands and plead helplessness.

So unless you are reconciled to acceptance of the Prime Minister's surrender, you have to look elsewhere for signs of resistance.

To Washington where President Ford and State Secretary Kissinger both have noted that the supposedly economically-deprived Third World has been learning that.

Learning that what OPEC works with oil — what the Prime Minister, steeling himself, has been so bold as to deplore as "monopolistic practices" — can and is being worked with coffee, rubber, bauxite and other regionally restricted world commodities.

And so both President Ford and Dr. Kissinger have blamed the issue of OPEC prices with North American food policies — implying that grain exports to the hungry Third World could be used as a countervailing force against the inflationary price fixes of oil and other monopoly commodities.

The President went to the United Nations to sound a warning.

He didn't go so far as to tell the Arabs and the Venezuelans that they can't eat their oil.

But he has been quoted as saying in the General Assembly that: "It is not our policy to use food as a weapon despite the pressure with oil."

Not exactly a naked threat. Just a heavy hint that exactly could be misunderstood.

The threat President Ford left to his Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz, who has put it this bluntly:

"Food is a weapon. Food, especially grain, is one of the principal tools in our negotiating kit — not only the less developed countries, but also some of the major powers are at least partially dependent on food imports from North America."

According to a report compiled following the World Food Conference in Rome, the United States and Canada provide just short of three-fourths of the world's grain supplies "and their role as the prime, enormous and dependable supplier is certain to grow over the next few years."

Yet Prime Minister Trudeau says "there is nothing we can do" about the Third World coupling Canadian commodities with what he calls "monopolistic price practices" not only with oil, but coffee, and other industrial essentials as raw asphalt and bauxite.

The report from the Rome Food Conference also warned that with control over three-quarters of world grain exports, "North America can exert enormous political and economic power."

In times of severe shortage — as in recent years with the Soviet importing massively from the North American grain producers — the Rome report adds that the power of food is so persuasive as to exert "moral-and-death pressure."

President Ford and Dr. Kissinger have sort of backed into the issue, noting that "it has not been policy" to use food as an economic lever.

Get the "it has not been," which suggests, as U.S. Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz at blunty puts it, that it actually "is a weapon" and is being used as a tool in trying to negotiate a ratcheting down of oil and other Third World commodity cartel rights.

Canada shares that North American food power, but the Prime Minister piously pleads helplessness.

Taylor in Cabinet

The appointment of Prince Edward-Lennox MPP James Taylor to the Ontario cabinet preserves the Quinte-area cabinet representation that began with retired Dr. Richard Potter as health minister and latterly in correctional services.

Mr. Taylor's elevation to cabinet rank, as minister of community and social services, is a tribute to his professional competence and his personal worth as demonstrated as a member of the legislature over the past few years.

The Prince Edward-Lennox member will bring his experience as a company lawyer wedded to service to the riding and travel overseas to a task that has to do more than most with the interests of citizens generally.

The appointment of Dr Bette Stephenson as one of the two new women members of cabinet is significant. A Metro Toronto MPP elected for the first time September 18, Dr. Stephenson is the tough-minded former president of the Canadian Medical Association — qualities she will now bring to the key post of Minister of Labor.

Dr. Stephenson joins Margaret Scrivener, the new minister of government services, and incumbent provincial secretary for social development Margaret Birch as one of three women members of cabinet.

The cabinet shuffle is as timely, in the context of what must be done in Ontario in the days ahead, as it is evidence of new thrust. It combines new blood with the experience of the past and augurs well for the future of government in this province.

Hydro Power Progress And Environment

The terminology used in the announcement of the new hydro power installations in Prince Edward is eloquent of the times.

In terms, that is, of preservation of the environment, aesthetics, natural beauty — it doesn't matter how it is described it all adds up to the power the country will need, while avoiding as much as possible the spoiling of the surrounding countryside.

Thus we have a project involving what is described as a "low profile" transformer station at Elmbrook, near Picton, and transmission lines.

"Low profile" is very much in the modern idiom, and as much as anything it reflects the public "input," to embrace another piece of modern jargon, that has gone into the planning.

It means that Hydro has got the message, although just how much the environment is affected will only be known when it is completed.

Amin Under Fire

President Idi Amin of Uganda appeared at the United Nations recently in a bemedalled field-marshal's uniform that could probably anything seen on military contemporaries anywhere.

The whole effect was one of caricature which must have served only to heighten the aura of eccentricity that surrounds him.

Amin was in the news a while back when he prevailed a British teacher who had styled him a "village tyrant" in a book he was writing and which Amin apparently got wind of.

The Briton had been threatened with execution and Amin relented only after negotiations with British officials and a visit by Foreign Secretary Callaghan.

At the UN Amin railed against South Africa and its apartheid policies, but Amin himself projects the image of a tyrannical dictator. The eviction of the entire Asian population — the merchants of the country — was a case in point.

Latest to speak in this vein is Daniel Moynihan, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations. Mr. Moynihan has called Amin a "racist murderer" and has called upon other African leaders to repudiate what he stands for. This was a reference to the countless number of Amin opponents believed to have been put to death since he came to power.

But the fact is, Amin remains unchallenged — for the time being anyway. What the future holds for him personally or for the African continent will be of consuming interest to the rest of the world in the days ahead.

Rust-proofing a 'Poor Investment' Says Auto Protection Executive

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Anyone who proudly buys a shiny new car is a potential victim of what is a growing number of companies that claim to be able to protect it from the ravages of rust.

But after a couple of years, a surprising number of rust-proofed cars start to show rust spots.

The Automobile Protection Association (APA) recently carried out a survey of its mailing results among a random selection of Canadian motorists.

Two-thirds of the 300 replies received by the Montreal-based APA turned thumbs down on the rust-proofers.

On the basis of that survey, the association "cannot recommend rust-proofing until warranties, product quality and customer relations are improved," says Mr. P. Edmonston, APA president.

He sums up rust-proofing as a poor investment in a report in the October issue of Canadian Consumer.

Prices of rust-proofing vary widely. One firm charged $65 and $120 on two cars of approximately the same size. A second firm charged $120 and $300 on two other cars, again of similar size.

That's why Mr. Edmonston recommends that potential customers compare prices of the various competitors.

Don't choose rust - proofing by guarantee alone.

Although most rust-proofers promise a refund if rust occurs, Mr. Edmonston said that many consumers who replied to his survey were denied refunds.

Some warranties were found to be vague and confusing, he added.

One stipulation in some warranties is that the car be brought in for a free follow-up inspection two years after the rust-proofing treatment.

Some owners were charged $5 to $10 for their "free" check-up, and some complained that they were not told that warranties became void without this inspection.

Warranties were not honored by any dealer other than the original, in most cases. Thus, if that dealer went out of business, or if the customer moved to another area, the warranty was worthless.

One Montreal-er, unable to get satisfaction from the dealer under the terms of the warranty on his car, waited more than two years after the car was rust-proofed, collected $300 when he took the rust-proofing dealer to small claims court.

Information on how to obtain legal remedies is available from the Automobile Protection Association, 22 St. Joseph Blvd. West, Montreal, H3V 1N7).

From personal experience, I have found that rust-proofing retarded the onset of rust by about one year on cars I have owned.

That extra year of driving, before road salt and moisture began to eat away at the car, was probably worth the price of the rust-proofing job.

Follow-up service? My dealer applied extra rust-proofing material at no charge after the body had been repaired following one or two minor accidents.

This is the normal rust repair to appear, the dealer came up with some ingenious explanations as to why the warranty did not apply in that particular type of rust.

There are more than 20 rust-proofing firms operating in Canada.

Mr. Edmonston of the APA urges potential customers to make sure that the dealers guarantee is "validated" (which might require that you fill out a questionnaire), and to contact the rust-proofing firm's reputation through local consumer associations or the Better Business Bureau.

Sweden's Social and Economic Progress

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

What will Sweden look like in the 1980s? Does anyone in Canada care? We should because we are on the same route the Swedes have taken before us — what the economists call the post-industrial state.

A recent study published by the Swedish Institute, an arm of the government of Sweden, and written by Professor Ulf af Trolle at the Goteborg School of Economics, indicates Sweden will continue her policies of major state involvement in all aspects of industrial and personal life.

This was earlier called "the welfare state." A phase which Canada is probably still in and which we have pursued in a much more leisurely fashion according to those who have admired the Swedish model.

The difference between a welfare state and a post-industrial society is not easy to define. For example, does the guaranteed annual wage mean the last major move of the welfare state or the first one of the post-industrial state?

It probably means the former since it gives the worker a financial security he doesn't have in the old-fashioned market economy, but it prevents him for the time of greater self-fulfilment in the post-industrial stage.

That expression refers to a future time when much human self-betterment, expressed in the new emphasis of adult education, leisure activities, creative arts, a shorter work week, will predominate in Canadian society.

Given the tremendous increase in adult educational activities in Sweden, which is at its esoteric courses not necessarily benefiting the student financially, we are probably at the beginning of the post-industrial society when striving for upward mobility in a job no longer has first priority.

If so, Sweden again appears to be ahead of us. It is good and also frustrating sign for those Canadians who have always admired their experience, but an ominous one for those who believe we are economically doomed without the Protestant work ethic.

However Professor Trolle's analysis points up several strange differences between the Swedish and Canadian experiences as northern democracies, which we prefer to overlook.

He writes: "Our reputation for high-quality products forms one of the cornerstones of our success, even though its strength has gradually diminished because other countries have been narrowing our lead."

Such products as the Saab and Volvo cars, the latter being a major seller in Canada where we have never been able to produce an indigenous automobile, are sold in the consumer markets of the world.

We have such high-technology products, but somehow or other we cannot sell them easily abroad and we argue with ourselves at home about their prospects. The longterm future of Canadair-designed STOL (Short Take-Off and Landing) aircraft is the chief example in mind.

But a more important factor is the high level of stability, even in a time of growing oil prices and inflation, which exists in Swedish society between industry and labor.

Sweden in the 1980s will look about the same to us, relatively speaking. It will be far ahead on the road to total security for individual citizens, more painlessly brought about than here.

Sunday Store Opening

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

We, the Consistory of the Maranatha Christian Reformed Church, would like to express our clearly as possible our concern and indignation about the Sunday opening of the A & P and Food City supermarket. It is our conviction that the Christian who is deeply dedicated to his Savior, the increasing determination of the Lord's Day, the Sunday, is a matter of great distress. But this gradint-loss of the hallowed character of the Sunday is, however, symptomatic of something that goes much deeper. Many have forgotten or do not know that all of life is to be holy to the Lord. If men would know this and try to practice it, the matter of keeping the Sunday would take care of itself.

It was not God's pleasure that his people should toil endlessly, day after day. One day a measure of relief from daily work might be experienced. Therefore, Christians should do their utmost to preserve the element of rest on the Sunday and to combat anything that might lead to further desecration of the Sunday. The practice of shopping on the Sunday and of using this day specifically in religious pursuit is one of the outstanding marks of nations that choose to call themselves Christian.

All who make of their Sunday a day of business flagrantly disregard a great blessing from God and seek to promote the further erosion of the day of rest. Sunday is a special day. It is a gift to the people to rest from busy traffic, crowded stores, a competitive world and the tensions that can build up inside yourself. This is the day that new strength must creep in through resting and the sharing of fellowship in a worship service at the church. Always remember Sunday is your gift; a gift from God, to you.

We as a church must live our conviction in all that we do and say. Based on this conviction we are asking all our members who to boycott the above mentioned stores for, as long as its policy of Sunday opening is maintained. We must stand united against these attacks upon the day of rest and worship. We urge all to join us in this battle.

HENRY KATERBERG
Pastor and chairman of the Consistory.

Role Of Churches

Editor:
The Intelligencer:

The letter from Mr. Nevill of Bridge Street United Church has prompted me to write.

For years now, the public has been gradually informed of the vast estates and holdings of churches around the world. Some of these institutions are now known as being the largest corporations in the world.

We have let churches dictate such things as divorces, child birth and various other "private" matters and now they we let them dictate how we use our Sundays!

Again, Sunday shopping dictate another aspect of our personal lives then there is no telling where they will stop!

A PRIVATE CITIZEN.

Race Factor in Britain

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Events of the Canadian scene are pondering if the twin evils of inflation and unemployment are being replaced by mounting racial strife in racial overtones in the urban areas.

In the United Kingdom, native and generous government opened the doors of the Mother Country to immigrants. They poured into the country with little or no education of formal skills and ways or cultures, determined to plunder the economy of all that was available and to make as much of the race but as possible.

Ethnic ghettos are springing up in most large centres and the shrill voices of the colored minority are being encouraged by the rights of recently established occupants of the country. Gangs of colored youths roam the streets and violence and vandalism are the order of the day for the country. Most people are aware that immigrants must take a big share of the blame but the British people have had to stand by helplessly and watch their country and culture taken from their hands to be replaced by an alien way of life unasked for or unwanted by the natural inhabitants of the country.

This can be seen as bad in this country yet — but we are well on the way. Unless we start to pay at' ention to our inherit-ance and to make it clear to first we are foreigners in our own country.

The way things stand in Canada at the moment, only a white person can be guilty of "racism", yet the loudest voices are from the colored world, who came here to be Canadians.

We are pleased to welcome all those that our country can assimilate but it should be made plain to them that they are expected to become Canadians and all that means. We do not need an ersatz Canada made up with the philosophies of the modhut rewilds of the Third World.

I like Canada the way it is — with imperfections but built in. It should not be necessary for us to capitulate to the emissaries of the Third World and thereby but the end to the dream of that our ancestors fought so hard to establish.

New Art Gallery Grows from Studio

BY SHARON AIRHART

At the top of two flights of narrow stairs above the city's old public utilities building, there is an unexpected room of arches and columns and 18-foot ceilings.

Renee Kulhack stumbled upon that room when she was searching for studio space this summer and decided that it had to be turned into an art gallery for her own work and the work of other area artists.

"Absolutely fantastic is the only way I can describe it," Renee says. "It's perfect for a gallery."

Open now for three weeks, Renee has the work of 15 artists hanging on the walls of her gallery. In a glassed off area she works at her own specialty, portrait art.

Though she is just 19, Renee is almost a veteran portraitist: at 13, her first commission came from the principal of Sir Mackenzie Bowell School where she was a grade eight student. She was to paint the school's namesake. She did and he still hangs there and she still has the bracelet she received for her work.

After leaving Centennial Secondary school three years ago, Renee has devoted herself full time to her work, specializing in pastel portraits on commission. Last spring she ran a small portrait shop in Trenton which she closed in favour of owning a bigger place in Belleville.

From a photograph, Renee will do a 16 x 20 portrait for $30; if you prefer a brief sitting, you can have a quick sketch for $15.

She has produced more than 30 portraits, some at fairs where she set up her easel and pastels to gain experience.

"I decided to specialize in portraits because there's a lot of opportunity and no competition. I think its the hardest field of art but I have a knack for it," she says.

Renee adds that if she stuck to landscapes she might become a good landscape artist but "everybody else is good at it, too."

She thinks that people prefer a pastel to a photograph because "a photo is cold; it shows every flaw. A painting is more interesting and it's a piece of art as well."

She hopes that people will feel free to browse and that they'll make it up the stairs to her third floor location — among the paintings on display and not be put-off by "Toronto ideas" that keep them from art galleries.

To promote the casual feeling, she's decorated with plants and birds and even provided a couple of comfortable chairs for leisurely viewing.

Artists hung in the gallery are Estelle Hinson, Mrs Pederson, Freda Eves, Ab Elliot, Bob Perkins, Tom Lassing, Barb Whalen, Jerry Stapley, Marjorie Findlay, Paul Thrasse, Loyola McCabe, Alan Rosenplot, Catherine Hoolet, Linda Ives and Eleanor Allen.

An unexpected space made an art gallery happen here.

ELEANOR AND FRANKLIN — ELEANOR, THE YEARS ALONE

By Joseph P. Lash

Eleanor and Franklin is the enthralling story of the plain, gracious girl whose marriage to her dazzling cousin forged her into a sweetness-and-light for millions the warm and outgiving humanity which is the very best of America.

In his second and final volume, Eleanor the Years Alone, Mr. Lash's task is more difficult. With the death of her husband, Mrs. Roosevelt's life became more and more one of public service. She devoted herself to international causes in which she symbolized America's conscience. She was active right up to her death and although the record lacks the human drama of her earlier years, one has to feel respect and affection for this indomitable, open-hearted woman.

This book is available in the Corby Public Library.

'Women Won't Be Top Executives for 25 Years

VANCOUVER (CP) — A management consultant and executive career counsellor says women are unlikely to break into the spots of any major North American corporation before the turn of the century.

Dr. Eugene Jennings, professor of administrative science at Michigan State University in East Lansing, predicts it will be at least 30 years before even one of North America's 20 largest corporations will have a woman president.

Dr. Jennings says the reason is the sheer boredom of middle-management jobs.

He says top management personnel is drawn out of the pool of middle-management personnel and, although a number of women hold the middle-management jobs, they tend to quit them.

Dr. Jennings, a specialist in treating executives anxiety and neurosis, says most of those who quit are married, with husbands who work full-time and can support them adequately. Bored by their work and free to leave, woman quit, he says.

"They're quitting not because they can't hack it, but because they don't want to hack it and because their husbands are already full-time breadwinners and they have opinions that many men don't have," says Dr. Jennings.

He says that although the quitting rate for women is not much higher than for men, their departure has greater effect because of the fewer women in their positions.

Dr. Jennings says that a number of women are in the $30,000-to-$50,000-a-year management jobs. However, he says, their numbers are small compared to the number of male managers.

A woman primarily interested in proving herself for the feminist movement is unlikely to make it in the pyramidic corporation world, he says, adding that top management personnel are selected on the basis of past achievements and productivity.

"You can yell and shout about women's rights," said Dr. Jennings, "but if you don't meet the rest of the bottom line, you won't get anywhere.

"The women who tend to get far in corporations don't tend to be far out of the women's movement."

Dr. Jennings says government jobs are far better areas for feminists to prove themselves because they are not under any pressure to produce there.

He says, however, that corporations are becoming more mature in their policies of hiring women, after making many mistakes in the late 1960s. Employers then looked for people who had ambition and knew what they wanted to go, says Dr. Jennings.

He says a number of high achievers with low tolerance for boredom joined the corporations and never made it.

"Now they realize a woman can be feminine and a team player and a self-starter," says Dr. Jennings. "Corporations are maturing and getting rid of their sexist orientation."

"But it's not happening as fast as many women and federal bureaucrats prescribe over equal opportunity laws in the United States would like."

Dr. Jennings was in Vancouver for the eighth annual Canadian conference of the International Foundation of Employee Benefit Plans, which ended Wednesday.

Body Is Prison for Transexual

TORONTO (CP) — Michelle Snowden of Toronto lives in a kind of private hell—a transexual physiologically trapped between male and female roles by half-completed cosmetic surgery.

Michelle, not her real name, was born in the Maritime provinces, the eldest of five children, including two brothers. But she has always considered herself a woman and recalls passing up the rougher games with her brothers or other contemporaries in favor of staying in the house with her mother.

"When we play-acted I was always the damsel in distress," she recalled in an interview. At age 18, she moved to Toronto where she retained her male identity but wore female clothes on occasion.

About 10 years ago, she adopted female clothing exclusively and approached a plastic surgeon for a sex-change operation after receiving approval from two psychiatrists.

Ontario government health insurance paid for the initial changes which included breast implants and silicone breast implants but was refused to foot the bill for additional surgery that would involve removing the male sex organs unless Michelle becomes a patient at the gender identity clinic at Clarke Institute of Psychiatry.

Michelle has refused, saying she objects to criticism doctors at the clinic have made of her appearance as a woman. She also disagrees with methods used at the clinic which have approved surgery for only 12 of transexuals studied between 1970 and 1974.

Instead, she has undergone examination by a gender identity team in Montreal which included a gynecologist, a urologist, a plastic surgeon and psychiatrists. The team approved surgery, but Ontario medicare still insists on approval by the Clark Institute.

"Can you imagine what my life is like socially and psychologically," said Michelle, who cannot afford the estimated $3,000 it would cost to have the transformation completed on her own.

"I am breaking the law everytime I go into a women's washroom in a public place."

In fact, at one point in a restaurant where her plight is known to the proprietors, she has been refused admittance to either washroom on the grounds that she is neither male nor female.

Public's Attitude to Rape Bound to Change Slowly

HALIFAX (CP) — Society and governments will slowly change their attitude toward the victims of rape, says Raisa MacKlovich of the social concerns committee of the Advisory Council on the Status of Women.

"Great change is the only way to alleviate the unwanted necessity of radical action which people in general are scared of," she said in an interview Tuesday.

Ms. MacKlovich is attending a closed three-day meeting of the committee. Specific recommendations from the meeting were to be outlined later today.

She said women have to be educated not to be afraid or ashamed to report rape and should be encouraged to believe that the way they dress is not the cause of rape.

"A victim should not have to go for what she might have done to cause rape . . . she should not be blamed by society for what some violent man has done to her by force," she said.

Women need strength, pride and comfort from society to cope with the psychological trauma associated with rape and should not have to undergo special training for a world in which they have as much right as men.

Ann Landers

Even Non-Swingers Can Get Venereal Disease

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 20-year-old college student, a junior, and one you can point to as living proof that you don't have to be much of a swinger to get VD. One experience did it for me.

The following questions and your answers might help thousands of young people around the country who are smart about lots of things but very stupid about others.

1—Is it possible to get VD from deep-kissing a person who is infected?

2—If you suspect you have picked up something, what should you do?

Please print the answers, Ann, and God bless you for the help you'll be giving millions—Once Was Enough For Me.

Dear Once: The answers are as follows:

1—Yes. It is indeed possible to get VD from deep-kissing an infected person. If that individual has an open sore in his mouth or on his tongue and you have a cracked lip or even a mild abrasion, VD can be transmitted.

2—Any person (regardless of age) who suspects he may have picked up VD should go at once to the county, city or state health department, to his family physician or to any hospital or clinic for a confidential, painless test. Within two to seven days he will be notified of the results. If the results are positive, treatment should begin at once. Often it is free or very inexpensive. Parents will NOT be notified.

Both gonorrhea and syphilis are readily cured if caught early. If not treated, the results can be sterility, blindness, severe arthritis, insanity and sometimes death.

Dear Ann Landers: I m a 16-year-old boy with a 19-year-old problem. He is my brother who thinks he's my father.

Herb tells me what to do, what not to do, who I ought to be hanging around with and what time I should be home. He's always on my back about something or other.

My mom and dad work in a family business and both Herb and I help. So who do you think gets all the lousy jobs? You guessed it.

When I complain to Mom or Dad about Herb's bossiness, they say, "Listen to him. He's been 18, but you've never been 21." What do you say Ann Landers?—Need A Friend.

Dear Need A Friend: You've the cause brother Herb! He may seem like a pain in the gazzazz today, but you'll thank him later. Listen to him. I hate to belabor the point, but he HAS been 18, and you've never been 21. If you think I let you down, Son, I'm sorry, but I gotta tell it like it is.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a guy 17. Four months ago my girlfriend gave me two white mice for my birthday. They've had three litters since and now I have 18 mice.

The mice from the first litter are just about old enough to start their own families. I've been doing a little arithmetic and it's pretty obvious that I'm going to need another cage and eventually a bigger apartment.

I don't want to offend my girl by giving the mice away but I'd like to know if it is possible to get male mice "fixed" so they won't reproduce. Thanks for your help, Ann.—Three Or More.

Dear You: Yes, mice can be "fixed"—but it's too expensive considering the alternatives. I suggest you give the males (or females) to a university lab. Tell your girl it is a mouse she'll understand. And may I suggest to other readers who like to give pets as gifts—it's best to select a couple of brothers.

Cold, Sterile Pediatric Wards Criticized in Maritimes Survey

HALIFAX (CP) — An extensive study of 30 general hospitals in the Maritimes provinces across Nova Scotia poorly in "desirable environmental standards for child patients."

"Pediatric units in Nova Scotia's general hospitals are usually swaddled in long white empty corridors with little or no visual interest to stimulate the minds of young patients," writes Elizabeth Lasker, principal author of the report.

She said one deficiency is that no general hospital in the province has any kind of play program or provision for school work for children.

The exact opposite is true in the province's new hospital, the Moncton Hospital, St. Joseph's in Saint John, and Hôtel-Dieu de St. Joseph in Tracadie all rated high. Additionally, most New Brunswick hospitals had managed to strip away "the cold white sterile atmosphere of hospitals."

Miss Crooker, a teacher, was director of the child life program, coordinating school and recreational programs for the highly - regarded Izaak Walton Killam Hospital for Sick Children in Halifax before doing the study.

Since publication of the survey, sponsored by the federal department of national health and welfare, 425 copies have been circulated to hospital administrators in Canada and the United States.

"Depending on the age of the child, the seriousness of the illness and his length of stay in the hospital, pediatric patients experience curtailment of their growth and development without programs of recreation and learning," she explained. "These kinds of programs also reduce levels of fear and apprehension in patients."

Endorsement of the study came from the Association of Care of Children In Hospitals and the Canadian Pediatric Society and the study has recently drawn the attention of the Nova Scotia department of education.

Rising Costs Mean Fewer Mink Pelts

HALIFAX (CP) — Mink production this year is expected to continue its steady decline as growing numbers of breeders are forced out of the industry because of rising costs.

Jim Noble, president of the Canadian Mink Breeder Association, says the small rancher no longer can keep up with the rise in production costs.

Noble says the fate of the industry in Canada may well hinge on the fall fur auction in Montreal. If it goes well he predicts that the lagging confidence of some ranchers may be restored and the industry may stabilize.

The positive factor pointing at the possibility of a good sale is the comparatively short supply of pelts going onto the market because of the cut in the number of ranchers.

A good sale this year could attract newcomers to the industry which would have the effect of helping it up off its collective knees, he says.

Oshawa Mayor Rejects North Pickering Plan

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — Oshawa Mayor John Pickering said Thursday he completely rejects the planned North Pickering project and that the region's city councillors will fight to ensure the province withdraws its plans for what he called a community of 75,000.

The mayor said he realized the project would not be economically feasible after studying provincial government documents which put the financial requirements of the new community well beyond the means of the region.

He said the province proposes more than $170 million in capital projects for social services alone in North Pickering with half the costs borne by the region.

He estimated that once services were built, annual operating expenses would amount to about $45 million, more than tripling this year's total operating budget for the entire region.

Home Buyers Grant May Be Extended

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has yet to decide whether to extend the $500 grant for first-time home buyers beyond Oct. 31, A government official said Thursday the grant is a top-priority legislative item when Parliament resumes next week.

No major new housing legislation is expected during the session.

Truscott Supports Capital Punishment, If Proof Exists

TORONTO (CP) — Steven Truscott, who at 14 was sentenced to hang for the 1959 rape-murder of a 12-year-old girl, said Thursday he supports capital punishment in cases of absolute proof.

Capital punishment should not be applied in cases where circumstantial evidence is involved, he said in a copyright interview by Toronto radio station CHUM.

In a radio interview since his parole in 1969, Mr. Truscott also said that after talks with fellow prisoners, he feels most criminals consider capital punishment a deterrent only when they are caught.

Now living under an assumed name, Mr. Truscott is married and the father of two children.

After 16 years, he maintains he is innocent of the murder of Lynne Harper who was found strangled in a wooded area near Clinton, Ont., 45 miles northwest of London.

Psychiatrists attempted to gain a confession with treatments of LSD and pentabbel but were unsuccessful "because I wasn't guilty," he said.

Also interviewed by CHUM-FM station director Brian Thomas, Mrs. Truscott said she believes firmly in her husband's innocence.

Mr. Truscott said the locale of his trial in nearby Goderich, the county seat, hurt his case.

If the trial had been held in Toronto or in an area away from Clinton, he would have been acquitted, he said.

Mr. Thomas said the latest view expressed by relatives of the Canadian movie, Recommendations for Mercy, inspired by the trial.

The Truscott's two pre-school children do not know about their father's past and will be told when they are older, Mrs. Truscott said.

Mr. Truscott has some ideas about the identity of Lynne Harper's killer but has positive proof.

"I have strong feelings, the same as everybody else," he said.

High Taxes Undermine Mining Industry Here

TORONTO (CP) — Unduly heavy taxes and unrealistic policies of both the federal and provincial governments is seriously undermining the health of Canada's mining industry, says the executive director of the Ontario Mining Association.

Norman H. Wadge said Thursday the industry's reinvestment capital has been adversely diminished by recent taxation initiatives while the cost of developing new mines has skyrocketed.

Speaking to the Canadian Mining and Aggregate Equipment Manufacturers Association, he said federal studies show increasing world demand for metals will support at least a tripling of Canadian mine production during the next 30 years. This would require annual exploration investment of $200 million and capital expenditures of $1 billion a year, he said.

However, he said in view of the current political attitudes he considers it highly unlikely the industry will be able to muster the resources to achieve the growth potential.

Harbor Talk: CORTS' Harry Hooke (left), Bruce Cooper fisheries operator

Fisherman Stresses Need for Haven on Lake

There is no safe haven for 80 miles along the Quinte shoreline of Lake Ontario.

Yet it holds the most hazardous shore and shoals on the lake — as fresh-water veteran sailors call it the Devil's Playground.

For these reasons long-time commercial fisherman Bruce Cooper Thursday pleaded for a refuge along the coastline — a harbor at Wellington.

He made his case before the advisory committee of the Canada- Ontario-Rideau-Trent-Severn waterway (CORTS) at the Four Seasons Hotel.

There is no safe anchorage between Brighton and Point Traverse, said Mr. Cooper, a Picton resident and operator of Quinte Fisheries at Belleville. The coastline claimed its last storm victims two years ago when a coastguard cutter sank.

Yet, save for a sandbar near the entrance, a harbor already exists at Wellington, he said. Second World War it was in

Weeds Concern Resort Operators In Peterborough Lakes Region

A graphic warning about the feared threat lurking in weeds near to the tourist economy of the Peterborough lakes region was sounded in Belleville Thursday night.

The weed is known as Eurasian milfoil.

Without natural local predators its growth has spread — flourishing in spots — in the Kawartha Lakes' country, a prime Ontario tourist region northeast of the Quinte district.

Warnings of its possible impact were outlined to a federal-provincial advisory committee on outdoor resources management in a waterway route in which the Bay of Quinte is a central link — the Canada - Ontario - Rideau - Trent - Severn corridor.

"I hope you're not experiencing the same problem," John Thomas, Peterborough school teacher told the committee's audience of Quinte-Kingston district resource people, businessmen and citizens concerned with local waterways resources.

Mr. Thomas, vice-president, of a ratepayers association on Buckhorn Lake — one of the Kawartha chain and a lake he said is 85 per cent infested with milfoil — used color and infra-red photographic slides to underline the spread of weeds through lakes in his home area.

The Ontario government has been tackling weed problems in the area by harvesting. That now has stopped while the government assesses results, said Mr. Thomas.

top shape, used by airforce crash boats. Since then, it's fallen into neglect.

Efforts, he said, it still has its old government dock along with:

— An area that's relatively free of winter ice.

— Being centrally located for vessels between Kingston and Brighton.

— Adjacent West Bay could accommodate literally hundreds of boats seeking shelter from Lake Ontario storms.

Mr. Cooper asked the CORTS committee to recommend study of rehabilitating the harbor.

There are, he said, a "Godawful lot of storms" between Brighton and Kingston each year. Anyone shaved by fate in such a squall would pray for such shelter.

Bob Bailey, Napanee district manager for the natural resources ministry, told the committee studies have been under way along all of Ontario's frontages between Northumberland and Cornwall to assess harbor potentials. Wellington is one site that has been viewed by ministry officials.

Waterfront Examined

Funding Key Area of Study

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The Quinte Bay Front study on public waterfront facilities should be ready within two months.

But, despite its facilities-for-people thrust it likely will contain a bit of business-like advice:

Government may initiate proposals for services to the public, but, this doesn't necessarily mean government should produce services to the exclusion of private enterprise.

The broad hint came Thursday night from the professional drafting the study document for the Moira River Conservation Authority — Toronto consultant Ralph Crysler.

Mr. Crysler already has presented the draft of his findings to the authority, he told the advisory committee of the Canada - Ontario - Rideau - Trent - Severn waterway (CORTS) at the Four Seasons Hotel Thursday night.

He revealed no specifics of the study — which is to define waterfrontage resources for public use along the Belleville, Sidney and Thurlow township Quinte shoreline — which he began late last year.

But, in the draft, he said, he'd made a "very strong statement."

Mr. Crysler told the committee: "Government should not be involved in what private enterprise can or will do. Public money should not be expended to go into competition with private enterprise if private enterprise will provide the services."

His words was approval from committee chairman Harry G. Hooke, of Peterborough.

Mr. Hooke said it is easy to view recommendations from an organization set in motion by government — and then expect government should take over implementing such suggestions.

Mr. Crysler said he will now be preparing the final report for the authority which "hopefully will be out in four to six weeks."

His study could also be a pace-setter. It is the first attempt to localize specific planning proposals on a Quinte waterfrontage since the CORTS studies. Corts involves the 425-mile water-route between Ottawa and Georgian Bay. Hence its own studies are regarded as a planning overview which requires local followups for realization or adjustment.

As a result, the Crysler study and the earlier opening-day study of the Quinte Planning Board came in for commendation by Mr. Hooke.

But Mr. Crysler indicated such precedents should now be followed by other local authorities around the Bay of Quinte.

The Bay of Quinte, said Mr. Crysler, was an entity.

"I have a horror of seeing this developed in isolation," he said. "There must be a start made somewhere. I think the Moira . . . authority has made the start."

Belleville firefighters responded to the following call for assistance during a 24-hour period which ended at 8 a.m. Thursday.

Thursday, Oct. 9, 8:22 a.m.— Hot water spilt on detector in basement activated Alarm at Quinte Hotel, East Bridge and Pinnacle Streets.

17-year-old Convicted

A 17-year-old Belleville youth was convicted on eight counts of break, enter and theft in provincial court here Thursday and remanded to Oct. 27 for sentencing.

Until the next court date, a pre-sentence report will be prepared on Dennis Davis of 198 Station St.

The charges were in connection with a break-in at Motorland Chrysler Plymouth Ltd. at 200 North Front St., Aug. 17.

James Bateman, 17, also of 172 Station St., has been charged as well in connection with the same incident. He will appear in court Oct. 20 to set a date for trial.

Preservation of Moira Scuttle Holes Urged

There may be a chance that a natural phenomenon on the Moira River will be lost.

It's the Scuttle Holes east of Latta.

A local landscape curiosity, the limestone holes are where the Moira goes underground.

Their presence and potential for preservation for the public — was revealed by a Belleville woman, Ethel McKnight, before the advisory committee of the Canada-Ontario - Rideau - Trent - Severn waterway at the Four Seasons Hotel Thursday.

From a list of proposed Quinte district natural and architectural sites she deemed worthy of public preservation, Mrs. McKnight mentioned the Scuttle Holes.

At the meeting was Harold Thompson, vice-chairman the Moira River Conservation Authority.

He told the committee the authority recently has had a chance to purchase the site from its owner.

All that's lacking, he said, are the funds.

Loyalist Security Tightened

Cole Ward, president of the Loyalist College student council, took steps Thursday to tighten security on occasions of events which marred a Wednesday folk night in the college cafeteria.

The folk night, which included three performers, was a first-ever attempt by the council to stage an inconcert style of entertainment. It was open to the general public and liquor was not served.

Problems involved the illegal consumption of alcohol and usage of drugs smuggled into the cafeteria which contributed to an all-night display of rowdyism by a small but loud group of young people which went unchecked by council representatives on the scene.

The situation resulted in a call-off by folk artist Jesse Winchester, who left the college 40 minutes prior to the time set out in his contract.

"I don't blame him for leaving," said Mr. Ward. "I think that no action will be taken on the breach of contract."

"I'm going to write him a letter and apologize on behalf of the association."

He said the three council representatives in charge of folk night will be reprimanded for not fulfilling security requirements and added that one representative was a part of the rowdyism.

"I'm going to make sure there are no more concerts this semester."

Mr. Ward said he has reactivated a student group called the blue and gold society which, before it was disbanded several years ago, was in charge of "security of all council functions."

He said one or two non-licensed concerts will be scheduled in the winter semester next year and the blue and gold will operate them.

Dealer Says Fine Art Too Costly for Many

By CLIFF KENYON
Staff Reporter

Rick Telfer, a Hamilton area art dealer, is trying his shirt during a week-long exhibition and sale at Quinte Mall.

"The disposable income for the area is not in a level to justify purchasing paintings in the $200 to $300 range," said Mr. Telfer of Waterdown Gallery in Waterdown.

His display works by Canadian artists is at the mall until Saturday and includes what Mr. Telfer calls finer art pieces in the higher price range and "commercial" paintings at $100 to $175. The "seconds" also includes pieces of metal sculpture.

He said he didn't expect to make much money on the exhibit and came to Belleville to meet local artists and find out what they had to offer.

"It's an art conscious community. There are a lot of art groups doing a fine job."

The other purpose of displaying the work, he said, is to help educate people to appreciate fine art.

During the past five years people, he said, are "becoming more aware of the moment they can get from art."

He said although there is a greater art awareness a great number of persons are still interested in buying lower priced larger commercial "decorative" paintings that are worth little as an investment.

"If I came down here with strictly commercial paintings I could make $5,000 in a week."

Artists, he said, are in a dilemma. Artists and dealers have, said he, have to find a balance between commercial pieces and fine art.

Art Sale

Hamilton art dealer Rick Telfer, with an exhibit at Quinte Mall this week, says income in the Belleville area is not high enough to justify fine art purchases. He is displaying a piece by Robert Ross, a 24-year-old Burlington naturalist artist.

Kingston Attitude Attacked

Kingston has a reputation for being a difficult centre in which to locate business, one of its commercial spokesmen claimed Thursday in Belleville.

The charge came in a brief from S. A. Collins, first vice-president of the Kingston District Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Collins appeared with his submission before the advisory committee of the Canada - Ontario - Rideau - Trent - Severn waterway (CORTS).

Mr. Collins said potential investors are well aware of Kingston's reputation as a very difficult centre in which to start business.

This is a major deterrent to prospective entrepreneurs. Meantime, the city's tax base sees 33 per cent of property exempt from taxes.

The solution to the problem must come from within Kingston's municipal government, said Mr. Collins.

A reversal of attitude of the city administration is required."

Decline in Transit Users Not Serious Says Manager

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

Belleville bus riders are not rejecting the city's transit service despite disruption of service by a strike, a fare increase, and institution of an exact fare policy this year.

The assessment was made Thursday by Belleville Transit Commission manager Lewis McIlrickin after reviewing end-of-August figures outlining revenue and passenger totals.

Although an August passenger count showed a 12 per cent decrease, revenues for the month jumped by 31 per cent, something Mr. McMullin said belies a rule of thumb generally accepted by transit authorities.

In the past, he said, a 10 per cent drop in passengers is estimated each time a commission increases fares.

In Belleville however, it never holds true, said Mr. McMullin.

This is one factor that leads him to believe bus riders are fairly satisfied with the transit service.

Belleville's first transit strike in April, the fare increase and the exact fare policy, "could have affected our ridership."

"It's been a very disruptive year for us," Mr. McMullin said. "Every disruption you make tends to decrease service."

Total passengers in August amounted to 83,281, a drop of 12 per cent from the previous month last year. As of the end of August however, the average fare was 6.4 per cent, a figure Mr. McMullin said would change if one assumes passengers during the two-week April strike.

August, along with June and July, are traditionally slow months for transit systems. Passenger counts pickup in the fall and winter months.

The commission however, is expecting increased revenue this fall and winter months.

Everything is panning out fairly well," said Mr. McMullin. Had not the commission opted fares the deficit projected would have been $181,254 deficit this year.

Youth Held in Theft

A 19-year-old Burlington youth has been charged with possession of a stolen car following his arrest by city police here late Thursday.

Deputy-Chief Harold Reid identified the man today as Thomas William Hughes. He is being held in custody.

Deputy Reid said the car, owned by Mikas Automotive of Weston and reported stolen in Toronto Wednesday, was recovered undamaged in the rear of Budget Rent A Car at 510 East Dundas St. at 9:40 p.m.

Whalen had been charged by city police on the one count and by Ontario Provincial Police at Picton on four counts in connection with four fires in Prince Edward County.

Minutes later, a suspect was arrested while walking along Bayview Drive in Picton.

Officials Back Council Action

The Loyalist College administration will not interfere in college student council efforts to tighten security at council-sponsored functions, Ernest Kneisel, Loyalist public relations director, said Thursday.

He said it was the position taken during a Thursday meeting among college president Herbert Young, council president Cole Ward, student services director Art McPartlane and himself.

They discussed lack of security during Wednesday's college folk night which saw illegal consumption of alcohol, drug usage and rowdyism which forced one of the artists to cut short his set.

Mr. Kneisel said the group heard Mr. Ward's plans to avoid similar occurrences, including the formation of a student security force. The ad hoc administrative support in the steps he wants to take.

Three Vehicles Stolen

TRENTON Three used automobiles were taken from the Esso Fuel Zone service station on Dundas St. East sometime between 10 p.m. Thursday and six a.m. today, town police report.

One of the vehicles, a 1968 Dodge Charger, was recovered early this morning by the Belleville detachment of the provincial police. Police said they found the car: a half mile east of the Wallbridge-Loyalist Rd. on County Rd. 34 (Moira St. West). The car, police report, was rolled and sustained $500 damage. There were no occupants remaining in the car.

A second car was found by Belleville city police about 9 a.m. today near Palmer Rd. and west of Sidney St.

Trenton police report a window to the service station was broken which apparently allowed the car keys to be taken.

The only car still missing is a turquoise 1969 Ford.

Transit Contract Talks Soon

Already two weeks late, union wage demands by Belleville transit workers should be in the hands of the commission sometime today but will not likely become public for some time, Hugh Kerr, president of Local 126 of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers said Thursday.

Delivery of demands is the first step in negotiating a new contract. The current one expires at midnight Oct. 31.

Some urgency was expressed by both workers and the transit commission as neither said it wants a repeat of drawn-out negotiations that culminated in a two-week strike by drivers in April.

At that time, the 25-member local accepted a 21.5-per-cent wage increase that gave mechanics roughly 20 cents an hour more than the $3.40 drivers received.

On to a talon chairman Marylea Burtt said nothing Thursday concerning the BTC's negotiating stance other than she personally, is hoping to get a longer-than-one-year contract.

Negotiations will be conducted differently now. In talks over the 1975 contract, Mrs. Burtt said, the commission gave the union its top offer "right off the top" in an effort to avoid negotiations, which had already been delayed.

Upcoming talks will be different, but she was "not prepared to say how different."

Another Big Night for Habs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS Goaltender Dave Dryden waited a long time to start a National Hockey League game. After Thursday night, he may be wondering if the wait was worth it.

Montreal Canadiens, continuing their high-scoring ways that saw them shut out Los Angeles Kings 7-0 Wednesday night, put seven goals behind the rookie goaltender on route to a 9-4 victory.

Reece, a 27-year-old veteran of the Bruins' farm system who has spent the last three seasons in the American Hockey League, was unable to complete the game after taking a shot in the mid-section early in the third period.

PETE MAHOVLICH

Gilles Gilbert came in on relief and allowed the remaining Montreal goals.

In other NHL games Thursday night, Philadelphia Flyers edged Washington Capitals 5-4 and Buffalo Sabres beat Detroit Red Wings 4-0 behind Roger Crozier's 26th NHL shutout.

Reece, one of the few American-born goaltenders in the NHL, toiled with Rochester Americans of the AHL last season after two seasons with the now-defunct Boston Braves.

He played well in the exhibition season last year and was named Wednesday by Boston coach Don Cherry to start in the Bruins home opener.

Boston scored twice to a 3-3 lead in the first period, but Montreal came back with five goals in the second. Guy Lafleur and Peter Mahovlich scored two goals each for the Canadiens.

Steve Shutt, Carol Vadnais, Johnny Bucyk and Phil Esposito scored the Boston goals.

Reggie Leach scored with 1:55 left in the game to give Philadelphia its win over the vastly-improved Capitals.

Washington trailed 3-2 going into the final period, but tied the game on goals by Guy Lafleur and Blake Stewart.

Rookie Mat Robinson, the NHL' top amateur draft pick who played with Victoria Cougars of the Western Canada Hockey League last season, picked up his first NHL goal at 18:36 of the second period to give the Flyers their 4-3 lead.

Crozier was only called upon 10 times to post his fifth shutout in Buffalo's opening game of the season. Detroit's Terry Rutherford had 45 shots directed his way.

Buffalo took 23 shots in the first period, scoring on only one, a powerplay goal by Rene Robert at the 8:10 mark.

"They (the Sabres) really were moving the puck around in that first period," Rutherford said. "But you expect that here. What really impressed me was that they made us checked better than in the past and forced us to make some tough takes."

Detroit coach Doug Barkley was more than pleased with Rutherford's performance.

"He just played super. We need great goaltending to get us through this season and Jims given it to us two straight nights."

Barkley was referring to Detroit's 1-1 tie with St. Louis Blues on Wednesday night.

In tonight's other game, New York Rangers take on the Flames in Atlanta.

Jets Off on Right Foot With 5-3 Win in Opener

QUEBEC (CP) — A three-week stay in Europe by Winnipeg Jets helped the World Hockey Association team to a 1975-76 season on the right foot Thursday night as they defeated Quebec Nordiques 5-3 in the home opener for the franchise of Winnipeg coach Bobby Kromm.

"That's trip and an hour bus ride road," said Kromm. "However, we weren't at our best tonight. We gave up two bad goals in the first period and we had to come back."

Two goals by Ulf Nilsson paced the Jets attack, with single goals added by Anders Hedberg, Ted Green and Mike Ford. Christian Bordeleau, Michel Parizeau and Marc Tardif replied for the Nordiques.

"Naturally it showed up that Winnipeg played some games over there," noted Nordiques coach Jean-Guy Gendron. "I'll tell you, Winnipeg is going to be a serious threat for the Canadian Division title. They had a good finish last year and they started off well tonight."

Bordeleau, a former Jet, scored the game-tying with an unassisted goal at 2:39 of the opening period with Gerry Meehan getting the game winner later.

Parizeau shot Quebec ahead 2-1 with 16:47 gone but Nilsson's first goal tied the score six minutes later and Hedberg put the Jets ahead for good 60 seconds remaining in the opening session.

Hedberg's second goal was the only scoring in the second period and Ford made it 5-2 at 9:12 of the third before Tardif

Several Top Canadians Miss the Pan-Am Games

MEXICO CITY (CP) — Canadians are hoping to increase their hoard of medals at the seventh Pan-American Games starting Sunday but no one realistically expects them to improve on their third-place standing behind the United States and Cuba.

One reason is that at least two dozen of Canada's top athletes in sports as track and field, swimming and diving and weightlifting are not here, most of them because they chose not to come.

Another is that the Cubans, who finished second to the U.S. in Cali, Colombia, in 1971, are reported to have geared their whole athletic program to the task of overtaking the American, who have dominated the Games since they were inaugurated in 1951.

Four years ago, Canada won 76 medals, including 30 gold, 19 silver and 27 bronze, and that was a drop from 1967 when the Canadians captured 92 medals.

If Cuba is ever going to catch the United States, this may be the year. It has the Cubans, who are like the Canadians, have left many of their best athletes at home.

Notable absentees from both the Canadian and American teams are top swimmers Alan Thompson and Graham Smith, who still will be virtually a dual meet between the two countries. Canada will be represented by a team are such stars as Nancy Garrigan, 19-year-old backstroke sensation from Halifax who ranks No. 2 in the world, Becky Smith of Edmonton, top Canadian in the individual medley, and Stephen Pickell of Vancouver, a backstroke specialist.

The optimistic view of Canadian team officials, however, is that the replacements for those who didn't make the trips are all more competitive.

Bruce Robertson of Vancouver is expected to be the top medals in the 100-metre butterfly, a performance comparable to the form he displayed in the 1973 world championships in Yugoslavia where he won a bronze.

Other potential medal winners include Brazilian-born Jim Adams of Vancouver, who has been cleared by Brazil to compete for Canada, Joann Baker of Thunder Bay, Ont., national champion in breaststroke championship, and freestyle specialist Gail Amundsed of Vancouver.

In track and field, two of Canada's top high-jumpers, Claude Ferragne of Montreal and Greg Joy, have passed up the Pan-Am Games to train for the Commonwealth Games in Edmonton in August.

Joy, who is the world record holder, Bishop Dolegiewicz of Montreal, Jay Dahlgren of Vancouver and Dave Jones of Saskatoon in the pentathlon, middle-distance runner Abbie Hoffman of Toronto and Brian Sharpe of Victoria and Victoria are rated as medal threats.

Susan Nattrass and John Primrose of Edmonton, two champions in trapshooting, are expected to lead a strong showing in women's shooting competition.

Boxing executive Jerry Shears of Montreal says that Canada will be represented in the seven-man boxing team should another boxer join the sports. However, this is a sport in which Cuba is dominated by the Americans, Cubans and Venezuelans.

One Canadian boxer with a chance at a gold is Brian Gibson, formerly of Kenville, Man., and now of Montreal, a lightheavyweight who seems to have caused some concern in the Cuban camp although he is handled by a sprained ankle. Gibson was a gold in the North American zone competition in Miami this summer.

Alouettes Sizzle

J. I. Makes Pitch For a Superstar

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes are more than a little upset with J. I. Albrecht, former general manager of the team, and now employed by Toronto Argonauts.

Albrecht apparently spoke to Alouettes star Johnny Rodgers

Toronto Wednesday and asked him if he would like to be traded to Argonauts. Rodgers was in Toronto taping a television interview.

"I figured he was joking when he asked me if I'd like to play in Toronto," Rodgers said Thursday. "Then he asked me if I had a no-trade clause in my contract and I told him it because it's against CFL regulations."

Albrecht telephoned Alouettes coach Marv Levy and asked if he would consider trading Rodgers. Levy said no.

"I don't care how ridiculous it all is," Levy said. "I'm going to approach immediately to the commissioner. He (Albrecht) is trying to upset the Alouettes mind. He's not going to get away.

"He's going to destroy our teams, or try to." added general manager Bob Geary.

Albrecht said in a telephone interview he was serious in his attempt to get Rodgers.

"I wouldn't call up a telephone just to talk about hypothetical possibilities. I don't talk about anything just to talk."

McDonald's Players Get Awards at Banquet

By TOM GAVEY
Sports Staff

The Belleville McDonald's put an end to their 1975 season on Thursday night, not with a game, but with a banquet. The Macs held their first banquet at the Golden Mile Restaurant in Belleville.

Macs finished with an 11-42 record over the Ontario Fastball League season, although they did lose 17 games by one run. The consensus at the banquet was that the Macs will improve in the 1976 season.

"Some of the new players we have in mind are Danny Spring and Frank Kelly from Peterborough and Steve Campbell from the Elf's Juniors" co-owner Dale Duvall stated.

"We'd also like to get Ted Herr down to pitch for us" Duvall added.

Thursday night though it was time to reward the players who stuck it out over the 1975 season.

The trophies were presented by Paul Rutan, representative of Carling-O'Keefe, were watches. The watches went to four of the players who had been selected player of the month over the year.

For the month of May first baseman Frank Robinson was the winner, for his strong hal and good fielding during the period. Robinson batted .357 and scored one-third of the Macs runs in the month of May. In the fielding department he made just one error in 53 chances.

The award for June went to Terry Meagher, who played second and third base over the season. Meagher batted .395 during the month and made no errors in 21 chances.

For July, the winner was Macs' centrefielder Glenn Carleton, who batted .383 and scored one-third of the Macs' runs in the month. He was also high on the Macs' RBI list and was outstanding in the field.

For the final month of the season the winner was second baseman Gary Goyer, who came to the Macs over the year and batted .304 while making just two errors in 71 chances.

Also presented was the team's stop hitter trophy, which went to Larry Mavety, who is currently in Denver playing for the Spurs of the World Hockey Association. Mavety powered four homers for the Macs over the year and also brought his batting average up 40 points between the end of July and the season's finish.

The team's Most Valuable Player award went to right fielder Steven Ling, who was consistent over the 1975 season. Ling played in 51 of the Macs' 53 games and finished second in hitting and RBIs on the team. He led the team in triples and singles and came up with a home run.

The McDonald's players also made a presentation to manager Harold Reid, in appreciation for all he did for them over the year.

Named Club MVP

Steve Ling (right) receives most valuable player award from Belleville McDonald's general manager Doug Adams at Ontario Fastball League team's presentation banquet, Thursday, at Golden Mile Restaurant. Ling played in 51 of the club's 53 games and was near the top in the hitting department.

Bather Leads Albert

Paced by the 21-point performance of Lorna Bather, Albert College Tigers picked up their first win in four Bay of Quinte High School Basketball League starts, Thursday, upping Centennial Secondary School 36-34.

It was a close match all the way. Scores by quarters were all in favor of the winners, 11-10, 18-14, 27-24 and the final two-point edge, 36-34.

Tops for Centennial was A. Ashton with six points.

Bobcats Taking Aim At Markham Royals

When the Belleville Bobcats take to the ice tonight against the visiting Markham Royals at the Memorial Arena in the 9 p.m. scheduled contest, the visitors will be coming up against one of the Metro Junior B League's hottest teams.

The Cats, who are undefeated in their first two games of the season, will be looking to add the Royals to their win column after a week's layoff since defeating the Kingston Township Voyageurs last Friday. The locals have compiled eight straight victories including six pre-season wins.

Belleville's well rounded team has been able to put the puck in to net we manaing to hold opposition to long shots. Credit is due to the wingers who are hustling back to check and the effort of the defence at the blue line.

To date the Belleville squad has scored no fewer than five goals in all of their games this season (including exhibition games) while only in one game did the opposition manage to score five goals. During season play the locals have scored 16 goals while allowing only five goals against.

The latest news from the Bobcat management is all good, as far as local fans are concerned. Joey Edwards who saw a bit of pre-season action with the Cats will be dressed and signed for this evening's contest with the Royals and will make a welcome addition to the blue line corps.

"We will be going with three forward lines, three sets of defence and two spare forwards," explained coach Meehan Bonnar who also announced the signing of winger Robin Chase.

John Murphy will not see action in tonight's contest nor will Harold Roberts who is now trying out for the Frankford Huskies of the Junior C league.

When asked if the week's layoff will have any effect on the Cats performance tonight Bonnar said "We've had two practices since the last game and in Wednesday's session we worked especially hard on the skating drills, I think we'll be in fine shape."

"We'll be dumping the puck into their end and have the wingers come in and chase the puck," Bonnar explained concerning a plan of attack for the encounter with Markham.

Bonnar is also looking for a top game tonight from Scott "Scooter" Samis who has yet to score a point despite the high scoring first two games of the season. Bonnar feels that Samis will be flying from now on giving the attack added punch.

Bob Moore will get the call for the Cats tonight in goal. Moore starred in the locals first victory of the season at Scarborough when Belleville handed the Whitby Young Bruins a 7-3 setback.

Centurions Blast Red Devils 52-20

Centre Hastings Centurions regained their winning ways in Bay of Quinte High School Football League action Thursday, And coach Barry Pyear's squad, lower of its last two outings after an opening game win, did so in convincing fashion.

While erecting their season record at 2-2, Centurions rolled over Bayside Secondary School Red Devils 52-20.

In the Junior section, Napanee and District Collegiate School gained the upper hand when they met Prince Edward Collegiate Institute in a confrontation of winless clubs.

Final score in that one was 25-0.

Joe Brooks put three touchdowns on the board for Centurions and halfback Harley Willemsen added a pair. Greg Carrol romped for a major after intercepting a pass. Blaine Wickens and Cliff Reid each added one touchdown.

Names of Bayside scorers were not available.

Al Picton, quarterback Greg Reid fired a pair of touchdown strikes to flanker Danny Hinnes and counted two majors himself. The winners added a single to their production.

High School Basketball Moves to Evening Slot

Basketball fans in the Bay of Quinte area will get their fair share of excitement this season thanks to a new format in the local Secondary School League.

One night during each week of the Bay of Quinte Secondary School Basketball League schedule, four of the top six senior clubs will clash in a doubleheader that's not only convenient for students, but also for basketball enthusiasts through the region.

The battle grounds for these an-court confrontations are Quinte, Centennial and Moira Secondary Schools. Each of the 11 doubleheaders is scheduled for Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday with the first during the week of November 18.

Unlike previous years, the high school league has been broken down into an A and a B Division depending on the strength of the club. Prior to the drawing up of the 1975-76 schedule, teams were split according to location of schools.

The A Division is the one that involves itself with midweek presentations. In it are: Belleville Collegiate (BCI), Nicholson Catholic College (NCC), Quinte, Moira, Centennial and Trenton High.

Though BCI lost all but one of its starters this year, the crop of junior harvested this season will be more than enough to make it a contender. Coach Brian MacKenzie guided the seniors to the Central Ontario AA title last year and gained top seed at the all-Ontario tournament in Sudbury before coming up flat and bowing out of the running.

Nicholson, under the watchful eye of mentor Gary Duggan, is expected to be the toughest team in the area for the upcoming season. Only two members of the 1974-75 squad have graduated and neither was a starter, although both added depth to the bench. The Nicks, with an enrolment of under 500, earned the Central Ontario A championship and then captured the all-Ontario A title in Collingwood last year.

The other club with top billing in the tight six team A Division is Quinte Saints. Jim Murray coached the Saints to the AAA (top class of high school ball) Central Ontario championship the last two years to qualify for the provincial tournament. After a sixth place finish two years ago, the Saints were eliminated in the opening rounds of the all-Ontario tourney last year. However, all but one of Quinte's starters will be returning this year and with the upcoming juniors, the Saints will have the magic combination of experience and depth.

Big things are predicted for the Tigers of Trenton for 75-76. Two seasons ago this particular squad won the Central Ontario AA Junior title. Last year the club was split between senior and junior, but this year they're re-united and could easily have matured enough during the past year and a half to give the bigger Belleville squads a run for the Bay of Quinte championship.

Both Moira and Centennial are the dark horses of the six team set up. The Trojans didn't really have an opportunity to show their strength during the 1974 campaign since Moira was involved in the construction of a new gymnasium. This year, though, they have a permanent home and should be a ball club to be reckoned with.

The Chargers of CSS never really lived up to expectations last year. But this year, if the club gets, should be in the thick of things.

The remaining senior clubs, Picton, Brighton, Napanee, Madoc, Bayside and Albert College, will all participate in B Division and operate on the same home-and-home timetable as last year.

All junior and midget clubs will be broken into east and west divisions and participate in a home-and-home schedule.

Reid's, O'Brien's Are QHL Winners

Early reports from the Quinte Hockey League indicate that the O'Brien Steel entry was in no hurry to get a team together for the 1975-76 campaign.

League play opened Thursday night at Memorial Arena. O'Brien Steel seems to have put it together in a hurry. The club scored a 4-3 win over Belleville Bobcat.

In the other half of the twin bill, Reid's Dairy pinned a 5-1 loss on Devlin Construction.

Leading th charge for the O'Brien Steelers was a pair of Prudden with two goals and an assist. Kevin Allen potted a goal and drew two helpers while Dave Horwood was good for one and one.

Only two of the three goal scorers for Belleville were included in the game report. Jason Morris and Ted Waite were each credited with a goal. Single assists went to Waite, Ron Pointer and Reid Mallory.

The Dairymen spread their five goals among as many players.

Rick Rosebush, Al Ray Carr, Boomboyer, Ralph Plane and Moe Hunter were the marksmen. Rosebush and Boomboyer each collected a pair of assists.

Terry Pope combined with Wayne Woods for the only Devlin goal.

Jack Nicklaus

Pushes Earnings Past $300,000

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Heavily-favored Jack Nicklaus defeated Tom Weiskopf 2 and 1 and won the $117,500 International All-Star golf tournament Thursday, pushing his unofficial earnings this year past $300,000.

Nicklaus, the leading money winner for an unprecedented seventh season, shot one over par for the 17 holes he needed to beat Weiskopf.

Weiskopf had trimmed Australian Bob Stanton 1-up while Nicklaus routed Jerry Heard 4 and 3 in Thursday morning's semi-finals. Weiskopf and Nicklaus had been seeded into the semi-finals.

Stanton edged Heard with a par on the 21st hole in a consolation match, collecting $12,500. Heard earned $10,000.

Nicklaus picked up $25,000 and Weiskopf $15,000 in the three-day match play tournament over the 7,000-yard, par-72 Muirfield Village Memorial course.

Weiskopf, No. 3 on the tour money list this year, struggled to three-over-par golf against Nicklaus, losing all four of the holes he bogeyed.

Nicklaus trailed only once. He hit his second shot into a creek on the second hole and took a double-bogey six to Weiskopf's par.

Nicklaus evened the match with a birdie-three on the next hole and another birdie at the fifth gave him a 1-up lead.

Wins in First Round For Irwin and Watson

VIRGINIA WATER, England (AP) — Defending champion Hale Irwin and British Open champion Tom Watson scored first-round victories Thursday in the Piccadilly world match play golf championship.

Irwin, fresh the United States routed Britain's Peter Oosterhuis 7 and 5 over 36 holes in the biggest individual victory in this head-to-head elimination tournament since 1969. Watson, also of the U.S., scored a two-up victory over Graham Marsh of Australia.

In the two other matches, Al Geiberger of the U.S. rallied from a five-stroke deficit to beat John Mahaffey of Houston with a sudden-death birdie on the 37th hole, and Jack Newton of Australia beat South African Bobby Cole one up.

The eight invited stars are competing for a first prize of $21,000.

Irwin burned up Westworth's 6,997-yard Burma Road course and was eight up after the morning round of 18 holes. He was credited officially with a nine-under-par 64 for the morning round—but that score included a conceded putt of 14 feet at the 12th.

The Watson-Marsh match swung the American's way at the 28th hole, where he dropped an 18-foot putt for a birdie two. Marsh hit into the trees and came out with a bogey four on the hole. They shared the next nine holes before Watson took a clinching birdie on the last one.

SCHOOLS GET DH

ELGIN, Ill. (AP) — High school baseball teams will be allowed to use designated hitters beginning next season. The National Federation of State High School Associations said Thursday its rules committee has approved a change permitting a designated hitter for any of the nine starting players. However, once the designated hitter is removed, the game he may not re-enter and there no longer is a designated hitter.

Billingham Selected for Game 2

Reds Already Upset by 'the Wall'

BOSTON (AP) — Cincinnati Reds get their first look at Fenway Park and its famous—or perhaps infamous—left-field wall today on the eve of the first game of baseball's 1975 World Series.

The best-known fence in baseball is 315 feet down the left field line and looms 37 feet high. It makes right-handed hitters positively droul and more than one left-handed pitcher has been swallowed up by it.

On Thursday, it even caused a controversy in the camp of the usually placid Reds.

"Sure I'm upset," snapped Norman, who won 12 games during the regular season and also captured the second game of the playoffs against Pittsburgh. "I think I'm one of the guys who got us here."

Anderson explained his choice of Billingham saying: "We want a right-hand pitcher in that ball park."

Norman didn't hide his anger at the decision. "I've been pitching against right-hand hitters all my life and I don't think that's a problem," he said.

The Reds, however, think Gullett, another left-hander, will provide plenty of problems for the Red Sox, the close-in fence notwithstanding.

"We haven't seen their wall and those guys haven't seen something like Don Gullett in a long time," warned Pete Rose, the Reds' peppery leadoff batter.

Gullett will be Cincinnati's starting pitcher in Saturday's opener. He'll oppose Luis Tiant, the man with a million motions, some of which the Reds think may be balk moves.

Anderson, who angry at a report that he had sent films of Tiant's moves to the National League offices. "That is a total lie," he said. But Anderson said he would seek a clarification of the balk rule in the pre-series meeting with the umpires.

"I want it thoroughly discussed and I want it decided what is a balk and what isn't," said Anderson.

In question is Tiant's habit of pitching from a stretch position that includes a series of semi-stops. Anderson said he wants "a legitimate stop."

Tiant anticipates no problem. "He can say what he wants," the veteran right-hander said. "I don't let it bother me."

"I'm not going to change, not after all these years. I've been in the major leagues 11 years and I've never had a balk called on me."

Meanwhile, Boston manager Darrell Johnson pulled a minor surprise, naming left-hander Bill Lee to start the second game against Anderson's surprise starter, Billingham.

Lee has not started since Sept. 19 but won 17 games during the regular season. He was not used in the playoffs against Oakland with Johnson starting Canadian native Reggie Cleveland and Rick Wise after Tiant.

"For one thing, Lee's left arm is fine again after a little soreness and basically he's a ground-ball pitcher," said Johnson. "He's also been a consistent winner in our ball park."

Johnson said Wise will start the third game of the series Tuesday night in Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium. Cleveland will move to the Boston bullpen for the first three games.

"Wise is a high-ball pitcher and should do better in their big ball park and on their artificial turf," said Johnson.

The manager must have been checking the past performance charts on that selection. Wise pitched a no-hitter against the Reds in Riverfront in 1971 and two years later carried another no-hitter into the ninth inning at Riverfront before surrendering Cincinnati's only hit in that game to Joe Morgan.

BRENNER CUT

WINNIPEG (CP) — Al Brenner, a former all-star defensive back, was cut by the Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Western Football Conference. Brenner, who holds the Canadian Football League record for interceptions in a single season with 15, saw action as a defensive half and safety after being obtained from Hamilton Tiger Cats in a pre-season trade.

THOMAS RELEASED

HONOLULU (AP) — Running back Duane Thomas, former Rookie of the Year in the National Football League, was released Thursday by The Hawaiians of the World Football League. Thomas saw limited duty in five games with the team, rushing for 38 yards on 34 carries before he suffered a hamstring pull in the Hawaiians game at Portland on Sept. 28. Thomas was cut earlier this year by Washington Redskins of the NFL.

Births

O'NEILL. — Clare and Linda, are pleased to announce the arrival of their son, Ryan Clare, born Friday, July 7th, 1978, weighing 7 lbs. 12 ozs. Proud brothers and nurses at Belleville General.

CHRISTOPHER. — Ray and Pat (nee Mackelden), 18 Victoria Crescent, are pleased to announce the birth of their son Kevin Ryan, Saturday, October 8th, '78, at Belleville General Hospital. Brother Ryan and Grandpa Ryan are thrilled. Grandma Mackelden and the nurses on maternity floor, too, we did not necessarily wish for a girl.

In Memoriam

LONGHURST — In loving memory of a dear son and brother David Longhurst, who passed away on July 11, 1968, aged 19 years.

We tried so hard to save you.
Our prayers were all in vain,
Our home would seem like Heaven,
If you came back again.
You left a lot of broken hearts.
They loved you so sincere.
That never has and never will,
Forget your David dear.
Sadly missed and remembered by Mom, Dad, Jackie and Graham.

BOGIE — In loving remembrance of a dear mother and grandmother, Martha Bogie, who died July 14, 1973. Our dear father and grandfather Jack Bogie, who passed away Oct. 16, 1972 and a sunshine season, memories fall,
Love's remembrance cuttests all.
Time has flown by since we lost you,
They are fifteen years of remembrance to you.
—Sadly missed by daughter Phyllis, son-in-law Ron and family.

DEVER — In loving memory of a dear father and poppy John Andrew "Andy" Dever who passed away October 19th, 1966.
Dad, we would give it we could say,
Words that would make you stay.
To hear your voice and see your smile,
To sit and talk for a while.
We were not there to say goodbye,
Dad, you died so far away.
We never had a chance to say goodbye,
To a dad we loved so well.
We miss the touch of your hand,
No eyes can see us weep.
Your chair is empty by the fire side,
Silently we miss you.
Sadly missed and always remembered by daughter Jean, son-in-law Cameron and grandchildren Randy, Rhonda, Donald and Ronald.

DEVER — In loving memory of a dear husband and Dad, Andy Dever, who passed away October 19th, 1966.
Forty long years of heaven fall,
Gently we gather and treasure them all.
Unseen, unheard, yet always near,
Still loved, still missed, yet always dear.
Sadly missed by wife Ivy and son Ronald, daughter-in-law Nancy and grandchildren Cindy and Ronald.

DEVER — In loving memory of my husband and Dad, Andy Dever, who passed away October 19th, 1966.
It is sad to think of the days gone by,
Instead of side by side.
But to pick flowers from a moment,
When the years of life divide.
Memories are golden memories,
Time can never take them away.
But you left me beautiful memories,
I will treasure them the years.
—Sadly missed by wife Vera.

Your Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

For Saturday, Oct. 11

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Today you're likely to be swayed by words of others. Analyze carefully the advice and its source before you follow it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) This is definitely not the day to attempt a do-it-yourself project. Save thumbs and frayed tempers will result.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't be too open-handed today and lend something not yours without first consulting the owner. It would be a breach of faith and friendship.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) There will be several tasks you don't enjoy doing staring you in the face today. The small ones you will do begrudgingly. The major ones you won't even attempt.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Resist the temptation to take financial risks. Leave your checkbook at home if you're heading for the racetrack or even the bingo parlor.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)) Your family is going (find you very difficult to please today. That's because you're going to tell them to do one thing and expect something else.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Even though you're going to find the perfect opening, don't repeat what was told to you in confidence. The person will learn you've spilled the beans.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you've earmarked money for the weekend's fun, stick to the budget. Dig into other funds and you'll have trouble paying it back later.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Button your lip if you feel like saying a few choice words to the boss today. He may not always be right, but he's always the boss.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Steer clear of political or philosophical debates today. Partners will get ruffled that will be hard to smooth back into place.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Friends may try to impose on you today. Be on guard if you're with a person who's not normally reticent about asking for favors anyway.

Postal Workers Vote This Weekend on Government Offer

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) and the government were vying for rank-and-file support during the weekend as union leaders sought authorization from their members for a strike.

Balloting among the 22,000 members of the union, which includes mail sorters and postal clerks, officially began Friday but most locals were planning votes for Sunday and Monday.

Chief negotiator Jean-Claude Parrott said results of the vote, which would give union negotiators the power to call a walkout any time they deemed suitable, are likely to be available Wednesday morning, at which time workers would be legally entitled to strike.

A walkout is unlikely to begin until after the two sides negotiate—however briefly.

As the union began polling members, the government sent out a summary of its position on a conciliation report prepared by Quebec Superior Court Judge Jean Moisan.

The summary says the proposals on technological change, length of contract, wage increases and a cost-of-living formula are acceptable to the post office, as is the principle of weekend and increased evening and night-shift premiums with amounts subject to negotiation.

Government officials are gambling that union members will find the conciliation proposals acceptable and will refuse union leaders the mandate they are seeking.

The ballot asks workers to vote yes or no on acceptance of an executive request for support in continuing talks on the basis of the union's initial demands. The mandate would give union leaders power to call a strike if the talks fail or if they do not take place.

Although Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey has said there is no room for negotiation on basic wages, now an average of $4.50 an hour, he has left open the possibility of talks on the shift and weekend premiums. Their acceptance would increase the pay package available to the postal workers.

The conciliation report proposes pay increases of 70 cents an hour retroactive to Jan. 1, 1975; 30 cents back to Jan. 1, 1975; 40 cents effective Jan. 1, 1976, and another 40 cents Jan. 1, 1976. It also recommends a 30-month contract and a cost-of-living clause effective Jan. 1, 1976.

The union's original demands are for an increase of $5.38 an hour in a one-year agreement. And it opposes the Moisan report's failure to come out against the use of casual, non-union labor.

Mr. Parrot released copies of a document Friday which he said proved the government was not willing to negotiate many items, including overtime, hours of work, vacation bonus, mileage allowance and long-service pay.

It consists of a July 8 internal memo between two post office negotiators listing items identified as negotiable or non-negotiable.

Bill Findlay, a national vice-president of the Letter Carriers' Union of Canada, said Friday that the two unions agreed last spring that, in the event of a strike, CUPW picket lines would be temporarily withdrawn to allow letter carriers in to work.

27 Per Cent Recommended

Hydro Rates Climb

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Energy Board (OEB) Friday recommended a 27-per-cent increase in Ontario Hydro's 1976 rates, less per cent more than Hydro asked for during hearings before the board last summer.

The increases, if implemented, will mean an increase of between $2.50 and $3.00 a month for the average family paying about $17 a month for a hydro bill.

D. J. Gordon, president of Ontario Hydro, said the next step is for Hydro to consider the OEB recommendation at a board meeting Oct. 21.

After that, Hydro will inform the government of what its requirements are and the next will be up to the province.

Earlier in the year Hydro had proposed a rate increase of almost 30 per cent but amended the request to 25 per cent after Ontario's July 7 mini-budget in which Treasurer Darcy McKeough said he was "appalled" by the Hydro proposal.

The three-member board, after hearing evidence through much of the summer, said that its recommendation of increase greater than that proposed by Hydro "is not intended to imply that the board is satisfied that Ontario Hydro is unable to effect further cost reductions and productivity improvements."

In the opinion of the board, Ontario Hydro not only must achieve all possible cost and productivity improvements, but it must also reduce future capital expenditures to an absolute minimum even if such measures result in a lower than traditional level of system reliability and security."

The OEB report issued Friday says the extra two percentage points in the increase will enable Hydro to avoid a $16-million revenue deficiency that would otherwise accrue in 1976 "without Hydro having to rely as heavily as it intended to on revenues from the sale of electricity to the United States."

Friday's report is the first of two arising out of last summer's hearings. The second part will be released as soon as it is ready, a board spokesman said.

Thanksgiving Is a Turnip

Timmy Schaly and Carolyn Boulma, five-year-old students of Belleville District Christian School, had a different taste of Thanksgiving fare Friday — turnip. It was part of a project organized by principal Henry Schaly — in period dress along with youngsters — to recall for students, including many of the Dutch descendants who initiated the festival also led plain, challenging lives in New World wilderness.

School Children Learn First Feast Was Frugal

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Thanksgiving came with turnips — no turkey or trimmings — for a group of Belleville — district youngsters Friday.

The spartan handout was probably closer to the first meals shared by the Puritan originators of a festival which now celebrates bounty.

In fact, that was the intent of the turnip handouts at the Belleville District Christian School.

It was part of a project organized by school principal Henry Schaly to give his 73 students some idea of the probable living environment faced by the Puritans when they first settled in their New World wilderness habitat.

Originally, plans had called for the students to be taken from the school — on Highway 62 just north of the city — and left to wander a Sidney Township wood in small groups.

Once isolated in the wood the groups were to open a prepared envelope asking them to mentally transfer themselves back to the times of the Puritan landing.

They were told to concentrate on their reactions and thoughts of survival in a remote, strange place.

"The idea was to try and get under the skin of what that early experience of the Puritan pilgrims must have been," explained Mr. Schaly.

Before setting out the students — many in period costume — were handed slices of turnips to eat. Turnip and other such hardy vegetables probably was featured in the Puritans' early diet, Mr. Schaly believed. It has a high yield and stores well.

The project however had to be modified.

Because of rain, the trip to the woods was cancelled. Instead the students were taken to areas closer to the school.

"The idea was to try and get close to what we want."

He said all furniture has been removed and the walls and ceilings boxed down by landlord Mark Kathis, who has been assisting the families.

Mr. Radon said results of the test are still awaited from Guelph and another test will be conducted, possibly as soon as Tuesday.

He said Mr. Kathis will redecorate the apartments before the families return and "after we have proof there's no residue."

Another family, the Vances of 23½ Isabel St., will not return to their apartment. They were upstairs tenants whose residence was infiltrated by fumes which came through the floor following the first floor spraying.

Seven children and a mother from the three families were treated and released from Belleville General Hospital last weekend for insecticide inhalation following the spraying. Mr. Radon said no symptoms of chlordane poisoning have been reported.

Barrier Gets Art

By AL ZIRAS
Staff Reporter

The long, bleak plywood barrier enclosing current work on a new roof for the Belleville Plaza will soon sprout multi-colored panels of art work by Belleville high school students, announced Henk Fryters, vice-president of the Belleville Plaza Merchants' Association.

The Decor Studios owner, said Friday he has been talking with Hastings County Board of Education officials to get the "free, fun, but decent," art contest underway.

Students in art classes in Belleville high schools, Loyalist College and older students at Sir James Whitney will be eligible for the contest.

Prizes, in the form of gift certificates to students, and cash to individual schools, will be awarded probably in late November, after the work is adjudicated, Mr. Fryters said.

He said he hasn't counted the number of panels, but said there are "quite a few", may be about 100.

Contestants can start anytime after registering at Mr. Fryters' decorating studio. The art materials are not supplied.

Two Belleville families whose apartments were accidentally sprayed with a high-concentrated residual insecticide might be able to return to their residences sometimes next week, Don Radon, pesticide control officer with the provincial ministry of the environment, said Friday.

The tenants are the Hill family on Harriet St. and the Djamfarif family of 23 Isabel St.

Their apartment were sprayed Oct. 3 with chlordane 24%, a 50 per cent concentration which is not supposed to be sold to the general public. Name of the vendor has been withheld.

The families have had to secure other accommodation while ministry chemists wash down the apartments to reach an acceptable level of chlordane in the air to permit occupancy.

Tests have so far reached the level to be unacceptable but Mr. Radon commented, "we're

Premiers Attend Meeting

OTTAWA (CP) — All 10 provincial premiers are expected to come to the Thanksgiving Day economic conference determined to impose tough spending austerity programs against rising inflation but divided over the value of voluntary wage and price restraints.

Statements by the premiers and senior officials in the federal capitals indicate Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau will gain general support Monday for any new anti-inflation package that features further tightening of federal spending.

The premiers appear willing to go along with a fresh appeal for voluntary restraint in wage and price demands, though some doubt that it will be effective.

Inflation Plan Set for Monday

OTTAWA (CP) — The government will make one final attempt to make voluntary pay and price restraints work, representatives of two major business groups were advised by Finance Minister Donald Macdonald Friday.

If voluntary restraints fail to win public acceptance, then wage and price controls will be imposed by law.

The Chamber of Commerce and the Canadian Manufacturers Association had private meetings with Mr. Macdonald Friday. The Canadian Labor Congress has been invited to talks before the government's economic plans are revealed next week.

The government confirmed Friday it will publish a policy paper at the opening of Parliament Tuesday to explain its package of economic measures.

Prime Minister Trudeau has booked time on three television networks, CBC, CTV and Global, for 9 p.m. EDT Monday, which would follow a meeting with provincial premiers, to publicly explain the government's plans.

Sam Hughes, executive director of the Chamber of Commerce, said the business leaders had been forbidden to reveal details of the economic measures.

Expected to be coupled with the new drive for voluntary restraints, is a commitment to cut federal spending and a publicity drive to convince business and labor to hold down their economic demands.

A secretariat already has been established under the direction of Deputy Finance Minister Thomas Shoyama to administer and promote the government proposals. Estimates are it will employ about 175.

Fire Mars Family Festivity

EAST LAKE — Family festivities were marred by tragedy for an East Lake couple Friday night when fire leveled their home as they attended a wedding reception for their daughter in Picton.

A spokesman for the Picton fire department said today cause of the blaze is undetermined. Losses have been estimated at $40,000 and the amount in insurance coverage has not been established.

Mr. and Mrs. John Sorenson of East Lake road, accompanied by their teen-age son Johnny were in Picton for the wedding of their daughter Elma and Constable Ray Best of the Picton detachment of the provincial police when the blaze broke out shortly before 8 p.m.

Several fire alarms were called in by passers-by who spotted smoke and flames coming from the one-storey brick schoolhouse converted to a home by the Sorenson family. The calls were answered by the Picton fire department which dispatched a pumper to the scene.

Three Arabian horses were rescued from a basement stable by the first persons arriving at the house and several dogs owned by the Sorenson family also were led to safety. Mrs. Sorenson operated the Dence Boarding Kennels, adjacent to her home.

Firefighters remained at the scene until 2 a.m. today building the flames that burned the house to the ground. Water to fight the fire was pumped from East Lake several times.

Mr. and Mrs. Sorenson have resided on East Lake road for about seven years. Mrs. Sorenson is well-known in the Quinte area for her work in dog obedience training.

Taylor Stresses Dialogue In Projects for Seniors

PICTON — James Taylor, minister of community and social services and MPP for Prince Edward-Lennox riding this week performed his first official duties during the opening of Glebe Centre for Elderly Persons in Ottawa.

Mr. Taylor emphasized that no government or community has a bottomless pit of funds.

"We need close links with other agencies and services. We need the kind of liaison that brings about better services, not just competition for the same audience," he remarked.

"Its not always bricks and mortar that is needed but more dialogue and co-operation", he said.

Mr. Taylor added that his ministry has doubled the number of elderly persons centres throughout Ontario in the last year and doubled the funds available to senior citizens' clubs for action age grants. Also, senior citizens have been placed directly into the field in ten cities across Ontario and senior volunteers have been doubled in small communities.

"These are all efforts to reach directly into communities so we can talk face to face and put priorities on those services for seniors that increase interaction and opportunities to know what resources exist", said Mr. Taylor.

He observed: "I'm not going to tell you about Glebe Centre and what an accomplishment I consider it. You all know much more about this place than I do."

"But I am going to say that in services to older people this government, as indeed this country and home, must basics. And since the vast majority of older people live on their own, whether we're talking about Ottawa or elsewhere, we're in business together to provide services and opportunities for these people".

Mr. Taylor added that no amount of government funding can compensate for the commitment of staff members and residents in a centre or home and the community.

Indian Summer

Indian Summer is nature's most dramatic hour, she wears her radiant ribbons of awards for distinguished service . . . she has produced . . . she has yielded . . . she has merited her winter of rest.

So it is in our lives . . . our finest hour is the last of life for which the first was made.

Through death we return to our maker and rewards unfathomable for a life well lived. It is to the loved ones left behind that death is a sorrow.

It is to the bereaved that our sympathetic understanding is sincerely expressed by directing a funeral priced within their means and complying with individual needs and personal requirements.

Annual Feed Examined

KENTVILLE, N.S. (CP) — Thirty-three Nova Scotia farms are participating in an experiment this year that so far has been an "outstanding success" as scientists search for alternative animal feeds, G. G. Smeltzer, a federal farms supervisor heading the project here, says.

"Considering the drought-like weather we've had, if soybeans will grow here this year they'll grow any year," he said.

In addition to its use as a protein-rich livestock and poultry feed, soybean has 101 different uses including the manufacture of the distributor cap in an automobile—it's versatile.

Without the needed processing plants, the discovery of the uses of soybeans as feed will have little immediate impact on feeder operations in the province but the potential "is definitely there now."

The urgency of finding alternative low-priced high-protein animal feed is underscored by a quick glance at the rapidly rising costs of conventional feed grains and the effect that has on the consumer who buys the finished cuts at the supermarket.

"Dairy farmers know how expensive feeds have gone up and they can grow part of this protein, this is for our aim," Mr. Smeltzer says.

Soybean is also becoming an important ingredient in the human diet.

It is good for both human and animal consumption and with the successes of the Nova Scotia field trials so far this year Mr. Smeltzer says Canada could open new trade avenues with the crop.

Hot Rodders Winning Race

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — The long arm of the law apparently has been amputated in Picton where hot rodders spend their tires and speed on town streets.

This spring Picton mayor Donald King called for a crackdown on the drivers who burn rubber but throughout this week in meetings of town council the sound of squealing tires could be heard on Main Street.

Former Picton mayor James Bird presented council with a petition Monday signed by 38 Bridge Street residents who want stepped-up police patrols to stop speeding in their neighborhood. The petition followed an accident which occurred recently in the area.

In discussion of the grand prix drivers of downtown Picton, council observed it is difficult for police to catch the speeding motorist. If the cruiser is parked on Main Street east near the fairgrounds the offenders don't bump on the gas pedal, until they pass the radar patrol point. Often they decide to move on to the other end of town for fun and games on four wheels.

In an effort to curb speeding town police are patrolling periodically in unmarked cars. The success of this program has not been significant if the number of accidents and continued incidents of tire squealing on Picton streets are criterion.

Equipped with but one cruiser the police department is at a distinct disadvantage in attempting to apprehend local hot rodders.

When mayor King first called for a crackdown on speeders he urged Picton residents to co-operate with police by reporting the licence number of drivers in violation of the speed limits.

In council this week the admitted that several motorists have speeded past his home far too quickly for him to catch plate numbers. Obviously, other citizens eager to assist the law experience a similar problem in getting the number of offending autos.

If town council is highly concerned by the midnight cowboys who squeal their tires on Picton streets a second police cruiser should be considered. A single cruiser does not permit police to answer calls and go out with radar equipment at the same time.

If the cost of a second police car gives council cold feet the expenditure should be weighed against other monies spent.

For two years an animal control officer was paid $2,000 per annum to rid the town of every Rover, Pal and Pooch unlawfully at large. This experiment was a dismal failure that ended with the dismissal of the dog catcher this summer. But no member of council seems over-concerned by this $4,000 extravagance.

The high fatality rate in car accidents in Picton and the Picton area coupled with a petition from Bridge Street residents should convince councillors that speeders must be slowed down.

It is poor logic to pay the salaries of nine police officers then restrict their efficiency by providing only one cruiser. The local constabulary needs wheels if it is to take the tire squealers off the streets.

Park Planning Sound Idea

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

The Bain Park redevelopment program should become the model for any future recreational and open space land use plans in Trenton.

The project, which will be completed by mid-November, is the most ambitious short-term total redevelopment program undertaken in Trenton to date.

Nothing but praise can be given for the work at Bain which was planned on the basis of an in-depth study of the park, topography and the effects any of the proposed changes would have on the neighborhood and its residents.

The average person has a tendency to get lost in ambitious redevelopment programs undertaken by government but this was not the case at Bain.

The park was designed to cater to the neighborhood and its residents, both present and future, and hopefully satisfy their needs.

A drawback to the project was the $70,000 price tag.

It would be foolish to think that this kind of money could be spent on all open space and parks in the municipality but it would be just as unwise not to use the Bain redevelopment project as a guide for future programs.

This type of in-depth planning and preparation for long term use can be and should be implemented by the recreation department and municipality in the future.

Deno Geltas, director of the department, has said it would be nice to be able to spend that kind of money on all projects but, being a realist, he understands this isn't possible and thinks it is conceivable to work within the recreation budget and still do a good job if there is careful planning.

A master development plan for the parks and open spaces in Trenton was recently completed and given to the parks commission to study before being passed on to council.

This plan should be used to aid in the continuation of a sensible redevelopment program not become buried under the weight of endless discussion.

It is a pleasant thought that a Trentonian can take his child out to Bain Park to play and yell and scream to worry about disturbing neighboring residents.

Parks for the people is where it's at.

Many Become Hooked On Indoor Gardening

By ROSS HAWTHORNE

I have a suggestion. Don't get involved in indoor light gardening unless you're prepared to get "hooked", unless you're prepared to give up some of your present pursuits in favor of growing under lights 12 months of the year.

Because as any indoor light gardener will tell you, even the slightest involvement in this creative art has a way of becoming you totally entangled so that a simple table top set-up soon becomes two, then three and then to a four-tier garden, then to several installations of four — and so on ad infinitum. And this week, as promised, we'll give you some of the reasons why.

The first is the least tangible and yet most obvious. Therapy. Few pursuits are more creative than the propagation of plant material from seed to maturity, as a garden or a home full of plants that had their beginnings as tiny seeds in the palm of your hand.

You'll know that feeling instantly, the first time you sow a seed flat, check it patiently day after day — and then Eureka — when one morning you find it flecked with minuscule spots of green.

Therapists involved with rehabilitation, the physically injured, the elderly or mentally disturbed now are including indoor light gardening as an integral part of their programs, and with acceptable results.

Call it therapy or call it escape, but on an evening when the sleet is rattling at the windows, the roads and hollow tube covered with slush, you really don't care. Or I should say, you're not even aware. Because you're not with it. Rather, you're in a world that is always springtime — tending, transplanting, nurturing, and totally involved.

Part of the reason for the boom of this rewarding hobby is the involvement of youth. Wherever lectures or classes in indoor light gardening are conducted, youth is there in abundance. And are among the most attentive and the most involved.

It may give you one instance of the therapeutic effect of indoor light gardening. that I'm sure has been repeated in various forms hundreds of times. A father of four was injured in a hydro accident to the state of paraplegia and confinement to a wheelchair for the rest of his life. And understandably, from that time on his family found life with him very difficult.

There were no financial worries but his mental attitude was one of frustrated uselessness. Then his wife, on the quiet, started to attend indoor light gardening classes. And took notes furiously. And proved them up. And left them and texts lying around the house.

One day her husband started reading — and expressed interest. He started with a table top garden and soon expanded it to three units of his basement, with two tiers of gardens with the top tier at a minimum of four feet from the floor.

First he started annuals and vegetables. And the next step was planting them outdoors in the spring. And then he started into foliage and flowering plants. And today he has a tidy business, but more importantly, he's involved. He's useful. He's contributing and he knows it.

And that's what we'll talk about next week. Indoor light gardening as a contributory hobby.

QUESTION?

MY HUSBAND AND I ARE GOING SOUTH FOR A HOLIDAY. MY HUSBAND HAS A HEART PROBLEM. WHAT SHOULD WE DO IF SOMETHING HAPPENS WHILE VACATIONING?

ANSWER!

If death should occur while you are out of the province or country the most inexpensive way is usually to contact your local (or family) funeral director, by Telephone — or Wire.
His years of experience and association with the various funeral organizations both in and out of the country enable him to work closely on your behalf with the funeral directors in whatever area you may be. By making the arrangements locally he is also able to keep your family and friends at home better informed. He is also in a better position to complete arrangements with your family clergy and local cemetery.

Heavy Going for P.M. But He's Safe as Long as Opposition Remains Split

By RICHARD JACKSON

Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA — For the first time in his going-on eight years of power, Prime Minister Trudeau is less than supreme as he meets Parliament again.

No longer the beautifully poised philosopher-king, his self-confidence has been shaken to the point where he publicly, at a press conference, confessed to having given less than leadership to the nation he has warned could "go down the drain economically."

Not even in his minority government years when he won the 1972 election by only five seats over the Conservatives and had to trim his political sails to the New Democratic winds, has the power-prone Prime Minister been on such an unsteady and uncertain course.

And it isn't just the fevered condition of the sick economy.

It is what has been happening to the "super group," that inner circle of power surrounding the Prime Minister.

Worried Liberals, upset by the self-doubts of their leader, are not really worried about the main chance — power.

For they find no comfort in the sure knowledge that if the government is in rough shape, the Conservatives, without a leader, and torn by discussion and the distraction of a fast-approaching leadership convention, are in rougher.

So the government is safe, for the time being, no matter how rocky it has become there's no credible parliamentary alternative.

But later — ah, that's different.

The current "troubles of Trudeau" will concerning help the new Conservative leader not only to consolidate his position in the party and in Parliament, but in the election campaign that now could come sooner than later.

So what has been happening in the inner circle of the Trudeau power elite that should cause such uncertainty in the Prime Minister and malaise in the party?

Nothing but bad news.

Worst was the resignation of former Finance Minister John Turner and all it implied for the condition of the cabinet and the state of the economy.

How much the other Trudeau misfortunes:

The sudden resignation of his old companion-in-arms, one of the "Three Wise Men," former Communications Minister Gerard Pelletier.

The difficulties with the law and the deteriorating health of the second of the "Three Wise Men," former Transport Minister Jean Marchand, now put out to the pasture with a Senate seat, without departmental responsibility.

The disenchantment of Donald Macdonald, now papered-over with that cynical Liberal phrase "who-knows-what-strings-and-commitments" as successor to Finance Minister for the departed John Turner.

The rumbles in the cabinet veterans Mitchell Sharp and Charles M. Drury have just about had the course.

The discarding into the Senate of the Prime Minister's former principal secretary and Number One administrative pro-consul amid continuing controversy over ethics, Jack Austin.

The early, surprise and unsettling retirement three of the most respected deputy ministers, Simon Reisman from Finance, James Grandy from industry, and Sydney Williams from Agriculture.

The language squeeze-out of Gordon Hunter as Master of the Mint, and the squeeze-in of an old buddy of Supply and Services Minister Jean-Pierre Goyer.

The strange death — in a fall from the roof of his three-storey home — of Jean Davey, old friend and former staff member of the Prime Minister and the chief architect of the government's long-delayed new transport policy.

The resignation of Pierre O'Neil, the Prime Minister's former press secretary, leaving the 28,000 security of the East Block for a teaching job in Senegal.

The continuing blasting of his lack of economic leadership, his government's "scandalous and outrageously inflationary" wage and salary scales, and the inertia of cabinet, by Beryl Plumptre, chairwoman of the Food Prices Review Board. Mrs. Plumptre, the Prime Minister's most personal critic-in-law, has achieved the impossible of becoming the pluge-bag of Canadian businesses, business leaders, working mill-taxpayers and just about everybody not feeding at the federal trough.

The Prime Minister's own belated sensitivity over criticism of his self-indulgent, life-style, pin-pointed by the $200,000 pool and the two $60,000 armored limousines.

It has been just one thing after another with perhaps more to come. And who's to do anything about it? Not the Conservatives, for sure. And even less, the newly resurgent NDP.

Lucky Pierre.

Hyperactivity Theory

Those candy bars that have been in the news locally, there's one good reason why they may with truth be regarded as "junk food."

That is, if we are to take seriously a warning by a medical researcher to the United States Congress.

Dr. Ben Feingold, a San Francisco allergist, says hyperactivity among children has reached "epidemic proportions" and he believes artificial food colors and flavors are contributing factors.

According to Dr. Feingold, the rise during the last ten years parallels the increase in soft drinks and synthetic flavor sales. And schools are resorting to more use of drugs to control the behavior of hyperactive children, turning many of them into zombies, he told the U.S. Senate health committee.

But there's a better way. Simply eliminate the synthetics, says Dr. Feingold, noting they are included only for cosmetic reasons. He says moreover he has proof of beneficial results. Eliminating the additives from the diets of hyperactive patients resulted in marked improvements within a few weeks and sometimes within days. But any infraction of the diet, such as taking a candy bar or a stick of gum, resulted in a recurrence of hyperactivity.

Thus, there is reason to believe dietary management can help hyperactive kids. But there is a cautionary word from Dr. Alexander Schmidt, commissioner of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration. He told the subcommittee that hyperactivity has a variety of symptoms and may have several causes, and drugs used for treating patients must be used carefully.

Meanwhile, a University of Pittsburgh study into Dr. Feingold's claims, with 15 hyperactive children participating, is under way. Next year, a further study by the University of Wisconsin, with 30 boys under scrutiny, is being undertaken.

All this appears to offer hope to those with youngsters afflicted by a perplexing problem. It is also further indication to society generally that the food we eat contains preparations which in many instances may only be regarded as suspect.

Right to Privacy

A reader questions the use of pseudonyms, or pen-names, with letters — whether in attack or defence or rebuttal.

He says it seems unfair that people should be able to attack one who consistently puts his name to letters "and at the same time hide behind a pseudonym."

In our view this is not necessarily so. While the writer's name is perhaps more desirable than a pseudonym, The Intelligencer offers a choice. At the same time the sender's name and address must be indicated for identification purposed, which is formally kept confidential by the newspaper.

Just as a writer may sign the letter with his own name if he wishes, there are those who, while wishing to make a point, are not that assertive. Perhaps they also lack the degree of egocentricity which goes with some temperaments and which has no fear of identification or of the consequences of letting it all hang out.

And there can be consequences, which reinforces the belief of some in anonymity. For one thing what might be termed the global village syndrome has broken down much of the individual privacy that once was part and parcel of democracy. For another, there is the steady growth of that sinister phenomenon — hate mail.

Some may thrive on that — it betokens reaction, however twisted — but others would just as soon continue living a quiet life and are fully entitled to do so.

Letters with a pseudonym are subject to the same criteria as those that are signed, as regards the law of libel, and the avoidance of offensive language or comment.

It is strange the reader should ask, in that a number of letters which he penned to The Intelligencer in the past, and before suddenly switching to his own name, made use of a pseudonym.

"Really, the way those hooks are allowed to operate! — $39.95 please ma'am . . ."

A Look at the New Ontario Cabinet Lineup

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

Some years ago I had a talk with Leslie Frost about one of his cabinet ministers. A man who was getting a fine government in trouble.

Frost recognized this and said that "You only have so many to choose from. Don't."

In assessing the new Davis cabinet, this comes to mind. He only had so many to choose from.

There are a few strong moves.

Outstanding is the switch of John Rhodes from transportation to housing.

Rhodes showed in transportation that he was a hard-core realist and if anyone can break the long jam in housing, he should be able to do so.

And Bill Newman may do a good job in agriculture.

He has a term under his belt in environment, where he stayed out of trouble in a very tough portfolio. He may be able to cool off the farm community which is very disturbed at the moment.

Dr. Harry Parrott of Oxford should be an asset.

Parrott is a dedicated public servant and should have a future beyond colleges and universities, his first portfolio.

But then we come to a stop.

Neither Jim Taylor of Prince-Edward Lennox or John Smith of Hamilton Mountain have been impressive. Correctional services, which Smith takes over, is not an onerous portfolio. But Taylor's community and social services can be a hot-spot, particularly with the NDP.

Margaret Scrivener has government services, another low-profile portfolio. But as one observer said, if it can be made to look silly, she could be the one to do it. She is an avid publicity hound.

The absolute newcomers, Roy McMurtry as attorney-general and Dr. Bette Stephenson as labor minister have big reputations.

But putting them into the cabinet right away is taking a risk.

This particularly applies to Stephenson who even though she was president of the Ontario Medical Association, appears to be a bit of a quick kid and in the labor portfolio will be under strong attack.

She won't be used to either cabinet discipline or the rough and tumble of the house.

Stephen Lewis' comment on the cabinet was:

"We will have to wait and see."

Right on.

Appreciating the need in Belleville of a suitable sports arena containing an artificial ice plant, members of the local city council took initial steps toward such a project during a meeting recently when a committee was appointed to investigate all angles of such a project. It was recommended that the proposed structure be built as a memorial for members of the armed services who died during the war.

Today in History

A new chapter was added to the history of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police 33 years ago today—in 1942—when the police schooner St. Roch arrived in Halifax after the first west-to-east crossing of the Northwest Passage. One of the eight-man crew died of a heart attack as schooner entered port. It had 30 miles from the Magnetic Pole. The St. Roch sailed from Vancouver in the summer of 1940.

1727—An earthquake in India killed 300,000 near Calcutta.

1911—Ontario's publicly-owned Hydroelectric Power Commission inaugurated its first power transmission.

1934—Canadian Finance Minister Rhodes announced the cutting of the bank interest rate to two per cent.

1946—The windows in England's historic Canterbury Cathedral were shattered by Nazi aerial bombs.

1957—The department of defence dropped the development in Canada of the Mark IV version of the CF-100 fighter plane.

Counters To Recession

The Quinte Scanner

Much of the talk concerning the economy over the last year has been in terms of the word "recovery".

It is a little early to be overly optimistic, but there are signs that recovery is becoming more than just a word. The economy in the area is starting to stir and people are regaining their confidence in the dollar.

The real backbone of our economy is the small businessman who creates jobs through his purchases and keeps money in circulation with his sales. These small operations are the first to suffer from a recession and many of them lack the necessary capital to weather a slow period.

Judging from recent activity in Deseronto, this area may soon see the return of the small entrepreneur. There is a bakery being built which will open this month, a coin laundry which has been sorely missed since it was ravaged by fire is promised for the near future. There is also a possibility of a new 5 cents to a $1 store opening on the mainstreet in the near future.

We wish all these businesses the best, they can only do us good.

Some Lost Principles

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

The present upheaval over opening up the stores on Sunday has forced me to write my first letter to the newspaper.

Many years ago Almighty God handed down the great prophet Moses to write out the Ten Commandments and bring them down to his people. In all the years since no one has compiled better.)

Our 20th century has tried to improve things, but apparently them all and look at the mess we are in.

Let us take a look at the commandments in order:

1. Is God our only God or is money?

2. What is our God — what do we worship? Pushing, money?

3. Is God's name kept sacred? Can you walk a block and not hear it used in profanity?

4. Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy — not only do we need time for contemplation of higher things but we need rest. In Sunday hockey practice producing a better breed or would a little religious instruction improve your youth? Even the Communists realized seven-day labor was a mistake.

5. Honor thy father and thy mother — quite outdated but our young wonder just what is missing as the metaphor looking kids on our streets will show you. Honor means to minister to.

6. Thou shalt not kill — read our papers and listen to our radio — that's minister to.

7. Thou shalt not commit adultery — has free sex improved your civilization?

8. Thou shalt not steal — ask any merchant what his annual losses are as that commandment is ignored.

9. Thou shalt not bear false witness — do we have to go to Washington or can we look much nearer home?

10. Thou shalt not covet — closely akin to the great commandment of 'love thy neighbor.' Be glad when he has what he needs and thankful for what you have.

JOY NICHOLS.

Making of a Will and Choice of an Executor Important Moves

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

If you were no longer here to use your possessions, whom would you choose to dispose of them for you?

Strangely enough, one out of every three Canadians would be willing to extend that responsibility to some-anonymous civil servant.

Thus, in effect, is the choice made by the one - third of the population that does not have a will. Where there is no will, the province inherits the assets.

The other two-thirds have taken the not very onerous trouble of preparing a will and have enabled themselves the natural right of passing on the material goods they have accumulated in the way they wish.

The first decision that should be made by anyone without a will is plain and simple: Make one—even the kind you buy at the stationery store is better than nothing, if you follow the instructions carefully.

It's safer, however, to consult a lawyer or notary. The fee will not be large—and it will certainly be far less than the legal costs involved in winding up an estate for which there is no will.

The second decision is the choice of an executor—the person who will be responsible for carrying out the wishes that the will expresses, and for making the right decision where the will gives no direction.

If possible, therefore, the executor ought to be a person who is familiar with and enjoys the confidence of the testator—the person making the will.

It helps, also, if the executor is a person with a reasonable degree of business sense and financial knowledge.

An executor who doesn't know the difference between stocks and bonds, for example, might not be a good candidate, since it might be necessary to make a choice between selling one security or another.

The majority of people probably name their spouse or other member of the immediate family as executor—although trusted friends or business associates are frequently named as well.

Other people prefer to select a trust company or other professional executor. While this might entail a substantial fee, it may well be warranted in the case of a large estate or a complicated will.

Let's look at it from the other side. If you are asked to serve as an executor, don't be deterred by fear of legal entanglements.

It's true that you will have a certain amount of extra work to do, such as arranging to have the deceased's last rites performed, and car registration and insurance attended to.

You will have to have access to the services of a lawyer who has handled the disposition of assets before, and can guide you through the necessary formalities of winding up an estate.

If you are an executor, try to ascertain—well in advance of need—such things as the location of the will, bankbooks, insurance policies, land deeds and the like; location of a safety-deposit box (if there is one) and its key; and the testator's burial wishes.

Many questions may be difficult to talk about and all too easy to put off.

But whether it's your own will, or a will in which you are named as executor, these are matters that should be brought out into the open, faced, and then put aside.

The alternative is almost endless heartache, trouble and expense.

Jesus - Non - violent Revolutionary

By
DR. GORDON C. SMYTH

The New Testament came into existence because Jesus had been born. Many volumes have since been written on forgiveness, but he sets it all forth in the Parable of the Prodigal Son. When he illustrates neighborliness, he takes a Samaritan, racially and ideologically outside the pale of his audience.

Jesus was revolutionary. It should not surprise us that totalitarian regimes ban from their classrooms the New Testament that he inspired, or that our own sick society makes it increasingly difficult for children to learn about him and his influence.

Jesus denounced the "world". However, he did not mean such innocent pleasures and natural joys as he shared at a wedding in Cana. He meant the superficial, selfish, cruel and intolerant life by which he was surrounded, as we are in our day.

St. Paul echoed his Master, when he addressed converts, "Do not be conformed to this world but be transformed by the renewal of your mind, that you may prove what is the will of God, what is good and acceptable and perfect." (Romans 12:2).

It is easy to conform. There is the backward pull of the animal element within us. As technology has its way with character, people are more inclined to spit like the cat, strike like the rattler and cohabitate like the mink. "Television camera has spoken," says Malcolm Muggeridge. "We are far more likely to perish of a surfeit of celloid than in consequence of any subversive conspiracy of nuclear explosion."

Social pressure certainly does its utmost to make us conformists. Prof. Calvin writes, "The Church is in grave danger of worshipping not the living God, but the pressures of current opinion and the sun-god for security. The fiasco of my denomination at the 30th anniversary broadcast from Ottawa, June 8, is a case in point.

However, the fact that listers to the United Church Observer ran 48 to one against it indicates that many people are looking for something deeper. They will find it at they themselves take the initiative. They will find it in the sort of "cells" that Christians formed during the decline of the Roman Empire; in the sort of Bible study program widespread in homes throughout the Soviet Union.

I most earnestly commend to you Dr. William Barclay's series of books on the New Testament. Why not start a "Book of the Quarter Club"? Begin with the Gospel of Mark, for only $3.95. Add a book to your library every three months. Mail your request and money order to: "The Book Room", 85 St. Clair Avenue East, Toronto, M4T 1M8."

Each book includes a modern translation, as well as comments for every day from a responsible scholar who makes what is read interesting, enlightening and relevant.

Our lives are what our thoughts make them. The future of this plant depends more on our minds than on outward circumstances. To quote a full effective person release a full, effective personality, we need moral regeneration. Jesus Christ is the great Liberator. He can transform us by reconditioning our minds.

Moon's Power Now Controversial

By GEORGE W. Cornell

NEW YORK (AP)—"When he gives his word, it goes. We trust him as God's representative. We don't have a feeling of a great dictator, but we have the feeling of a loving father."

That is how, the American overseer of the fast-growing, hotly controversial Unification Church of the Rev. Sung Myung Moon describes Moon's power over the movement, known within it as "the family."

"He is the individual through whom God speaks," says Neil Salonen, United States president of the group founded by the Korean industrialist. Many members consider him a new messiah.

Affirming that the group, now claiming 30,000 American members, is specifically authoritarian, Salonen says there is no room in it for challenging Moon's controlling decisions. Commenting on its widespread criticisms that the group dominates members and defects them from educations and careers, Salonen said members "very commonly" drop such pursuits because "they realize the significance of this work and are willing to sacrifice."

However, he said charges of "brain-washing" and mind-manipulation are "unfounded, a gross mistake. The highly structured group activities and long hours of communal members are "to uphold commitment and deepen commitment."

Salonen, 30, a smoothly articulate New Yorker, became chief U.S. officer of Moon's movement in 1972 at the start of its American expansion. He estimates the movement's income this year at $10 million, mostly through members selling nuts and flowers on the streets.

He said many traditional Christians "are uncomfortable with our view of Jesus' history." Moon teaches that Jesus was supposed to marry and start a new, perfect line of humanity, but the crucifixion prevented it, and a second messiah is due to fulfill the role.

Shoplifting Adds To Higher Prices

One local store disembles its display windows every night to foil smash-and-grab thieves who would break the plate glass window and steal the merchandise; another store runs chains with large locked metal hoops at the end through the sleeves of its leather and fur coats.

Shoplifting and theft are at such a common phenomenon that retail stores must protect themselves with measures that seem shocking. And,more to the point, measures that are expensive.

Last year, in Belleville, there were only 11 reported incidences of shoplifting - and five charges, but one small store alone reports an average loss of one item per day during the holiday season. .

What does that mean to you? Obviously merchants aren't going to take a loss because of crooks and shoplifters. What they do, naturally, is pass their loss on to you in the form of higher prices.

Strikes during part of the British Columbia salmon season will adversely affect the supply of canned salmon to Ontario but adequate amounts are expected to be available.

The Canned Salmon Association of British Columbia (100 - 2200 Granville Street, Vancouver, B.C.) says some species in some sizes may be in short supply, but stores won't run out completely.

Christmas is coming. Remember, you read it here first.

Every year I become agitated at retailers who try to promote Christmas gift buying before the frost is on the pumpkin, so to speak. This year, already, a plcth for Christmas money arrived on my desk through the mail. For once, though, it wasn't aggravating. The Unitarian Service Committee of Canada is asking people to submit the names and addresses of the persons on their gift list along with a donation of at least $2 per person.

The committee will send out to each person a card, with mother-and-child drawing by Montral artist Eva Prager, telling them that instead of a gift, you have asked the Committee to send in their asking people to submit the nourishing milk to hungry little ones overseas".

If you want to try gift giving this way—on shopping! — write the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada, 56 Sparks Street, Ottawa, Ontario K1P 5B1. Enclose the money and a sheet of paper with the names and addresses of your family and friends.

And that's the last word you'll hear from me about Christmas until Dec. 24.

Reported VD Cases Show 'Below Average' Increase

The proportion of the number of people who have contracted venereal disebse in Hastings and Prince Edward Counties from January to September this year is well below provincial and national levels, the counties board of health learned this week.

"We've been lucky, guess," said Dr. C.R. Lenk, medical officer of health, following the board meeting.

Fifty persons contracted gonorrhoea in the two counties with 47 projected by the end of the year for a rate of 8 per 100,000 population. Provincially, 10,125 cases have been reported so far, with 13,513 projected, for a rate of 189 per 100,000.

Nationally, there are 21,970 cases so far, and 43,627 projected, for a rate of 185 per 100,000.

Hastings County recorded the most with 36 males and 4 females over 18 years of age affected and two males under 18 years. Prince Edward County had four males and one female over 18 years and three females under.

Only three persons, all males over 18 years and all from Hastings County, have contracted syphilis this year. Four more projected cases bring the rate to 3.27 cases per 100,000. Provincially, there are 1,285 cases reported so far and 1,713 projected, for a rate of 21 per 100,000. Nationally, there are 2,640 syphilis cases and so far, 3,253 projected, for a rate of 14 per 100,000.

However, statistics show an increase in the number of venereal disease cases in the two counties over 1974.

The proportion was 33 per 100,000 for gonorrhea last year and 0.8 per 100,000 for syphilis.

Family Planning Education Available for School Use

A memorandum has been sent to all principals, physical education and guidance department heads under the Hastings County Board of Education advising them the new family planning program already in existence is also available to the schools.

The memorandum was included in the agenda of the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Board of Health meeting this week.

It was in reference to the Family Planning Centre (with offices at the health unit administrative office in Belleville) under the co-ordination of public health nurse Gale DePaul.

The memorandum states that the centre, through Mrs. DePaul, "is a source of valuable information for our educational system in the areas of counselling services related to family growth and development, sexual development problems, birth control, pregnancy, etc., pertinent audio-visual aids and public information and program planning and development."

It says Mrs. DePaul "is keenly interested in offering and providing supportive services to teachers in our system." The board official who sent the memorandum, Glenn A. Watson, says he would be pleased "to receive any ideas which you might be able to suggest regarding how this expertise and service could be used to the greatest educational advantage in our system in the future as we explore various possibilities."

Ann Landers

Son's Personality Change Is Driving Parents Crazy

Dear Ann Landers: We have a 17-year-old son whose entire personality changed about three years ago. He has been on drugs, totaled two cars, won't attend regular school, refuses to do work, comes in whenever he feels like it (drunk or stoned), has little contact with the other members of the family, doesn't care for girls ,stays he can't find the "right one"), has seen a psychiatrist two times, went to a mental health clinic, refuses to go back, says they are all crazy there.

The chief psychiatrist informed us they "couldn't handle the problem" but he never did tell us what the problem was. The conversation ended when the doctor said, "It is impossible to help someone who doesn't want to be helped."

We keep hoping our son will mature but he doesn't seem to be making any progress. He wears the oldest, dirtiest clothes he can find, goes barefoot most of the time, and walks on the hems of his Levis.

We are a middle-class, church-going family, have given him plenty of love and done our best. Now I ask you, is this a normal child? Is there anything on the face of the earth that we can do for him that we haven't thought of.—Distraught Parents

Dear Parents: By no stretch of the imagination can that child be considered normal. He does hostile, self-destructive, unmotivated and emotionally disturbed. If you have not had him evaluated by a neurologist I recommend it. The problem may be something more than behavioral.

Please don't sit around waiting for him to "grow up." It won't happen. Keep working with professionals and pray the boy will find a release from the prison of his warped mind.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm dating a young man who is 26, drives an expensive car and always has plenty of money to spend. Funny thing is he doesn't have a steady job, just works a few Saturdays in a men's shop which he feels like it.

I hate to be nosy because he's a neat date, but I'm worried about his cash flow, which seems endless. I' can't figure out where it comes from.—Money Talks

Dear Concerned: Money sure does talk but it doesn't tell where it comes from. I suggest you ask this bird some direct questions. If he answers don't add up, give Mr. Gotrocks a Methodist handshake and send him on his way.

Treasure Locators For Sale

ASSINIBOIA, Sask. (CP) — An increasing interest in treasure hunting has made it difficult to keep up with the demand for special treasure-finding machines, says Jack Salaba, 34, owner of a treasure shop in this community southwest of Moose Jaw.

Mr. Salaba, who has been in business in the hobby for two years, sells the machines in his shop at an average cost of $200 to $300, and rents them to those who can't afford to buy. Rentals by the hour or three machines are sold each week.

The devices work on the sonar principle and differentiate between metal and non-metal objects. On land, the machines will pick up a penny buried seven inches deep, while its sensitivity is increased 40 times in water.

Copper Bracelets Help Pain

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—A University of Akron biochemist has proven through shows copper bracelets, despite the scoffing within the medical profession, actually help ease the pain of arthritis and rheumatism.

Dr. Helmar Dollwet, 46, assistant biology professor, said his study is "just a beginning.

"I'm not making any claim to go out and prescribe copper bracelets," he said, adding that he hopes someone will conduct further research.

He says that the copper reacts with a chemical produced by the metabolism to produce an anesthetic, effective that can be absorbed by the body and circulated by blood.

For a test, Dollwet had each of 54 volunteers put their arms into air-tight sleeves, of which one of each pair was filled with ethylene, for five minutes. He said that when pricked with a pin, 88 per cent of the volunteers said they felt less pain on the arm exposed to the ethylene.

"People who wear copper bracelets have been laughed at and ridiculed," he said. "The whole upshot of the thing is that there is a scientific basis for those wearers of copper bracelets who say they get some relief from pain. I hope someone will pick up the research."

Avoid New Careers

OTTAWA (CP) — Many middle-class homemakers are avoiding new careers or going to school by using the excuse that boys ends need to be tied up, said Marnie Clarke of the Ontario Women's Bureau. Housewives can fill up their days with minor responsibilities like getting off registering for a course or preparing for a job, she said.

To Your Good Health

Intestinal Bypass — A Serious Step

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 26-years-old and have been overweight most of my life. All of my attempts at a diet have failed. I am now seriously considering an intestinal bypass operation as a last resort.

Please tell me the possible side effects I can expect if I decide to have this done.—T.W.

There are some questions that cannot be answered specifically in a health column. This is one of them. Diets do not work for everyone. That's not your problem.

If you are tremendously overweight, with no hope of losing, and if it is a matter of your general health, which that operation might be, then you should consider such an operation might be considered by your doctor. And it would be a last resort, as well as you put it. By last resort is meant that all other methods tried, calorie reduction diet pills, have been unsuccessful. Before such surgery psychologic and extensive physical examinations are made.

The post-operative period can be a troublesome one, and under the best of circumstances, because your body would have adjusted to an entirely new digestive ball game. Diarrhea and intestinal blockage occur.

I hope that you do not find yourself in operation candidate. You should consider one of several sound reducing diets that are reasonable (not dramatic) results over extended periods.

Under normal circumstances, your decision to undergo operation would be a surgeon's prerogative. I doubt that you would find one to agree to it unless conditions such as I describe above exist in your individual case.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: "I have white flecks in my nails. I have added a bladder infection for a long time and am still taking medicine. Some are the flecks? I have asked my doctor, but he doesn't give me an answer. I drink a lot of liquids, both fruit juices and water. This worries me.—Mrs. J.E.H.

Certain crystalline material, particularly uric acid and its complex, can appear in the urine. This often becomes more noticeable in urine left standing in a container.

It is one of the reasons for the doctor might well be phosphates. These are harmless. And as I mentioned, uric acid material is normally present in urine.

But the flecks might also be associated with your infection. Pus, with a bladder infection, will produce a clouded urine. Apparently you have not noticed anything unusual in the appearance of your urine. If you continue to worry to be concerned, you can request a urinalysis. A microscopic examination of urine sediment would reveal the exact nature of the flecks.

But if your physician sees no need for this, it would probably be unnecessary and an unwanted expense to you. If you continue to be concerned, have checked, your doctor will probably have no one made anyway.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: You have not mentioned use of gentian violet, which my doctor has recommended for monilial vaginal infection I've had. Do you recommend it?—Mrs. R. R.

It is one of the effective antifungal agents in certain vaginal infections. It, like others, is available without prescription, suppositories, and if it has helped you, good.

Failed Inspection

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — Dirty cars and dirty drivers were among reasons that 36 of 100 recently checked by police failed the inspection. Although the majority of checkers involved mechanical features, several failed because of dirty windows and dirty clothes worn by some to take baths.

Unusually Name

GEORGETOWN, P.E.I. (CP) — A bulk carrier which arrived in this port recently, had the unusual name of H1000. The ship was originally named Sea Cliff, but the name was painted over and replaced by H1000, which was the hull number the vessel had when being built at the Saint John shipyard.

Win at Bridge

Second hand high tears it

By Oswald and James Jacoby

North was a trifle weak for his Stayman two club response, but he had fallen in love with his sequence. He might well have passed at two diamonds, but North believed in bidding. Still, he was problem about going to game. He only held 16 high-card points, but his three honors appeared to be worth their weight in gold.

The 10 of diamonds wasn't really needed, but the other two were. He won the club queen lead with dummy's king and counted eight winners: Four diamonds; two clubs; and the major pill aces. When was the ninth one to come from? Hearts, of course! All he had to do would be to find East with one heart honor. So at trick two he led dummy's three of hearts.

East had one heart honor, but he knew what to do with it. He played it right away!

South put on his ace and decided, as anyone would, that East held the other heart honor. He couldn't afford to let East to so be shifted to diamonds. East won the ace and cleared the clubs for his partner. South spent ever to make his second heart trick.

The answer is that he should bid two spades. It can be hurt, but there also is a good chance that his side can make game and little chance of serious damage. A winning player can't wear both suspenders and a belt.

LEADERSHIP.

The future belongs to the youngster who manages a newspaper route.

There is something about a newspaper carrier that puts him or her ahead of other young people. Not just in the business enterprise the carrier operates (that's his newspaper route and you're a favorite customer), but in the schoolroom and on the playground. A young carrier just seems to be one of those specially motivated people, resourceful, self-reliant, industrious. An achiever. And the training the carrier gets on the route adds to those good natural qualities. At least two Canadian prime minsters began their route to Ottawa with just that, a newspaper route. John G. Diefenbaker carried newspapers as a boy in Saskatchewan. Lester B. Pearson, also a foreign policymaker and winner of the Nobel peace prize, carried Toronto newspapers. So you can understand the confident air with which your carrier walks. Especially on Newspaper Carrier Day. Celebrate. It's this Saturday.

Your newspaper carrier is on the route -- that leads to success.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — "This is my one secret," says entertainer Jerry Lewis, who steadfastly refuses to explain his long-time role as a fund-raiser for the fight against muscular dystrophy.

"Paul and I have been married 31 years, from before I even started on dystrophy, and I've never even told her," said the comedian as he fidgeted at his perspiring face and caught his breath between the acts of his night club show.

"She'd be the first, but even he doesn't know," he said. "And she doesn't ask."

With his 10th Labor Day Telethon Against Muscular Dystrophy, television viewers are no closer to knowing the motivation for Lewis' private campaign against the crippling disease.

"I'll tell you this much—and it's more than I usually say. If I told you, it really could easily backfire," he said. "And it would be my kids who would suffer. So it's my secret and I'm gonna keep it."

Lewis, national chairman for 25 years of the Muscular Dystrophy Association, has conducted Labor Day telethons since 1966 for the thousands of his "kids" stricken by muscular dystrophy, a group of related neuromuscular diseases.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Traffic citations against Elvis Presley were dismissed in city court here because authorities said they could not determine whether the singer was driving a car or a motorcycle.

Presley and two companions were stopped by police Wednesday while operating three wheeled "supercycles," and Presley was cited for failure to have his vehicle registered and failure to have his driver's license validated for motorcycle operation.

Assistant City Attorney Art Shea Jr. requested dismissal of the charges Friday, saying that until there's a ruling on whether the "supercycles" should be classified as cars or motorcycles, no charges could be pressed. He also said that since Presley only recently bought the two vehicles, he is probably within the five-day limit allowed for registration.

GARY, Ind. (AP) — Mayor Richard Hatcher wants a formal apology from the American Broadcasting Co. for what he has called a "vicious" comment made about this northwestern Indiana steel city on the network's comedy television series That's My Mama.

A line delivered by series star Clifton Davis on Wednesday night's show admonished another character to "be sure you're getting the world on a silver platter and not Gary, Ind., on a paper plate."

Both Hatcher and the Gary City Council said they were protesting the remark to the network.

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — CBS News correspondent Charles Kuralt says most television anchormen are "glib and highly paid" but "cannot edit and cannot write" the news.

Kuralt told the Radio and Television News Directors convention here Friday that they should stop choosing anchormen on the basis of looks and personality instead of journalistic skills.

"Society depends for its life on an informed citizenry," Kuralt said. "Most people get their information from television. Therefore, substance in an anchorman counts more than style."

Firemen Get First Radio Bid

Belleville Fire Department will receive first crack at obtaining some of the nine portable radios which will become surplus when the city police department receives its new radio system.

Belleville Police Commission decided Friday to give the department an opportunity to make the first offer after the firefighters decide which and how many of the portables they desire.

They will be disposed of are the current police base station and 16 mobile units. Chief Douglas Crosbie has been authorized to advise area police forces the surplus is available and to inquire if any other departments are interested.

The province will fund 75 per cent of the cost of the new radio system. Total city share including debenture interest will be $40,590 and will cost taxpayers $8,118 per year.

The new radio system, part of a province — wide updating program, will considerably improve city police communications and provide a common radio frequency with all Ontario Departments.

Municipal Board Rejects Hillcrest Sewer Plea

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The Ontario Municipal Board has found no basis for reviewing the controversial out of sewer installations in Hillcrest.

The decision has evoked angry reaction from the chief spokesman for Hillcrest homeowners.

Ken Brooks, president of Hillcrest Ratepayers Association — who received the OMB's decision in a letter Friday — accused the board of "sidestepping the whole issue" which has brewed protest in the northern city neighborhood.

Meantime, he says, he intends petitioning residents in the south end of Hillcrest where sanitary sewers are yet to be installed.

Mr. Brooks said he plans to present the petition to the next meeting of city council Oct. 21, requesting a freeze down of tax costs before installation contracts are let.

But by that time city hall may have some answers on whether the provincial government will view possible financial relief for Hillcrest homeowners already on sewing services — and paying the local improvement charges which sent tax bills soaring.

Mayor Ben Crake has been endeavoring to contact Housing Minister John Rhodes on the issue. He already has written the ministry and called the minister's office, he said.

If there is no reply by Tuesday the mayor said he will personally call Mr. Rhodes.

The ratepayers association also is waiting to hear from High O'Neil, Quinte MPP, who also has contacted the minister of the issue.

The latest OMB decision came in reply to a letter sent by the ratepayers. The association wrote after being told the OMB could not consider a review unless a claim could be made for denial of natural justice.

But the letter received Friday from OMB secretary K.C. Andrews, said no defect had been suggested by the ratepayers in the standard procedure under which a local improvement project is proclaimed.

Under such circumstances the OMB saw "no basis for granting a review" of its order sanctioning the sewer project.

"They the OMB) could care less about the people," retorted Mr. Brooks. "All they care about is documentation."

The ratepayers — stirred with the arrival of the first big tax bills for costly sewerage — have hingered without success for the provincial government help in paying.

Ratepayers say householders are smacked with the costs would mean in taxes until the bills arrived.

It is in the wake of a similar situation that Mr. Brooks says he is now taking up his petition.

The Hillcrest sewer project — planned in two phases — the second of which is planned to service the rest of the area between Bryce and College streets.

It is this area Mr. Brooks says he will now canvass.

What he wants is the cost to individuals spelled out before installation gets under way.

"As much as we want the sewer installed I can't see letting out the contract when people are going to pay through the nose," he said.

Local improvement charges on the area already serviced can slightly more than $17 a foot on property frontages — charges compounded by the size of many Hillcrest properties which had been frozen in development for years.

Mr. Brooks fears increased costs in the past two years could push such charges to $30-$35 a foot for the second installation phase.

He also voiced a longer-range fear: More local improvements, including sidewalks and roads will be needed in the neighborhood in future.

"Once the rest of the local improvements are in the taxes are going to be out of this world," he said. "People are going to have to move."

This he claimed, has produced a situation where "speculators are already back waiting to take over."

He attributed the situation to past city councils which failed to make local improvements after Hillcrest was annexed into the city in 1958. Installation of services would have cost much less years ago, Insisted, a development freeze was slapped on the neighborhood and only lifted this year.

The association now also begins work on another petition strategy of protest — if current moves for provincial government intervention fail. Forms are being distributed to a corps of street representatives who will gather statements in the next week from householders already paying tax bills.

Cement Mixer Overturned

A crew from H. J. McFarland Company worked for three hours Friday trying to upright an overturned 20-ton cement mixer. Belleville OPP were called to the scene of the accident, on Sidney St. north of Highway 401. Constable Fred Fry said the driver, 31-year-old Bryan Shiri Allen of RR 1, Plainfield, lost control of the vehicle when the cement load shifted on the slippery road as he made a right-hand turn onto the 3rd concession road Mr. Allen was taken to Belleville General Hospital where he was later released.

Postal Polling Here Sunday

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

Inside postal workers in Belleville and Brighton will vote Sunday to decide whether to give the Canadian Union of Postal Workers national executive the mandate to call a nation-wide strike, increasingly being expected late in the week.

The vote here by the 51 members, is part of a national referendum called this weekend by the union, which represents 22,000 mail sorters and postal clerks in Canada.

CUPW president Joseph Davidson has rejected as unacceptable wage proposals recommended by Judge Jean Molson, chairman of a conciliation board, aimed at a settlement.

The weekend referendum was called to gain union membership support for the CUPW executive demand to resume negotiations based on the majority report of its nominee on the conciliation board, Montreal lawyer Irving Gaul.

Locally, president Walter Yateman in Belleville said sentiment at least; on his shift, indicates postal workers are not satisfied with Judge Molson's report.

His overall reaction to the report is mixed — "no one knows what's going on".

Local union member will go to Kingston Monday to receive a complete copy of the report, which proposes a raise for workers at $1.70 an hour over a 30-month contract. Rank-and-file would come in four stages with a 70-cent retroactive increase to Jan. 1, of this year. A cost of living clause would come into affect Jan. 1, 1976, but the union says at about eight per cent, it is inadequate to meet inflation of more than 12 per cent.

The union has officially returned to its demand for a $2.56 a hour increase in a one-year contract. Postal workers now earn an average of $4.59 an hour.

In the event a strike develops, up to 100,000 pieces of mail a week will be held up in Belleville and not be distributed in mid-eastern Ontario between Cobourg and Napanee.

George Burchell, assistant local president, said if strike plans, besides a "cut and dry" blanket policy, have been made to handle a possible strike...

Education Beat

Parents Plan To Get Involved

BY RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

Hats off to the parents at Queen Victoria Public School this week who finally had the courage to abandon the old concept of home and school associations.

A small group of parents, headed by Art and Cherie Laidlie, have set up a new parent group called CHILD, which stands for Citizens Helping Individual Learning Development.

Unlike the home and school association (there will be no social events designed to raise money for team sweaters. There will be no whitewash by school officials over the serious problems that face many public school students. There will be no fees or special requirement other than being a parent of a child or children who attend this school in central Belleville.

Instead, the group plans to delve into some of the major problems facing students and teachers. They plan to do a broadsweep with many of the experts who have special insight into educational and social problems.

And probably most important CHILD wants to become involved in the actual education process of its children. It hopes to train more parent aides to help teachers with routine duties thus freeing instructors for more time with the students.

This process will have special significance in view of studies that show, rightly or wrongly, that many teachers develop different expectation levels for each student. Often this projected expectation colors the entire approach the teacher may take towards individual students.

The parent, who becomes a para-professional, can obviously provide a different set of expectations and thereby give more stimulus to some students.

If students see parents interested in the school and concerned about learning outcomes then the project may act as a catalyst between student and parent outside of school.

Interestingly enough, the most welcome reaction probably comes from the teachers and school administration who contrary to what many think, desperately want interested parents to become involved with the teaching of their children.

CHILD plans to investigate the particular problems created by single-parent families. A group spokesman recently said that one-third of Queen Victoria's student population comes from single-parent families. Some high schools can give even higher figures.

Hezzaldiss how one moralizes on the topic the problem still remains for teachers and school authorities. An honest and open approach to this matter can provide greater security for both student and parent.

Police on Lookout For Phoney Billings

Ontario Provincial Police warn that phoney invoices charging businessmen for non-existent advertising are again being circulated in Ontario.

In a news release issued this week, Insp. L.G. Bruner of the community services branch in Brampton and police forces remind "all individuals and firms to ensure that all accounts payable have been verified before payment is made."

"Recently, hospitals, colleges and other institutions have been the prime target for the false billings," he related.

"Typically, an invoice is received requesting payment for an advertisement in a newspaper," Insp. Bruner explain. "The invoice may be on the letterhead of an advertising agency and may be accompanied by a tear sheet from the paper."

He said a disclaimer in very fine print may often appear on the back of the invoice stating, "this is a solicitation and does not constitute a right to payment."

Insp. Bruner pointed out that a new variation of the fraud has been recently introduced in the province.

"Several hospitals placed legitimate help wanted advertisements in a Toronto newspaper," he outlined. "Some time later they received an invoice accompanied by a purported tear sheet from a fictitious newspaper. This advertisement had never been required and likely never appeared."

One such invoice was recently received by Trenton Memorial Hospital from a firm based in Anaheim, California. It involved over $300 and its discovery was one of the keys to uncovering the fraud scheme in Ontario last month.

However, neither the Belleville provincial police detachment nor Belleville Police Department have had to investigate such fraudulent prosecutions this year.

Insp. Bruner advised, "anyone who receives a phoney invoice is asked to call their local police department-or the anti-racket branch of the Ontario Provincial Police."

Lottery is Aid Work With City's Youth

More than 40 golfers turned out at the Stoco golf course Oct. 5 to compete in the Alex Adams Open Golf Tournament, organized by Tim Boisvert and Frank Freeman. After a roast beef smorgasbord, all competitors received prizes with the awards going to Carl Wood — low gross — and Jack Asselline, low net.

Three temporary executive members have been appointed to fill in for the balance of the year. They are Bill Salter, entertainment, Joe Larry Lynch, who has moved to Bancroft; Dick Burns, sports, for Jack Asselline and Cash Mahaffy, publicity, for Judy Moore.

The first fall meeting of Unit's Ladies Auxiliary was Etta Babisch honored with a new membership in the group.

A lottery in support of the unit's youth development work is being set up and tickets will be on sale soon.

Sports chairmen from all Ontario units will be in Belleville Nov. 1, Provincial sports chairman Hank Ford announced. Each of the 8 Ontario provincial units is expected to be represented by at least two delegates.

Youth development chairman Stan Melbourne will go to Barrie this month to discuss the ANAF Air Cadet program with representatives from labor units.

For the first time in many years, it was mutually announced by Hank Ford, Duke of Edinburgh Unit 291 is not the largest ANAF unit in the province. The Barrie unit, after massive membership drive, now has 976 members to Belleville's approximately 800.

Cruisers Pass Test

A September report on emissions control on Belleville police cruisers reveals no problem exists with emission levels allowed by the provincial government.

Exhaust emission cannot contain more than 0.7 per cent carbon dioxide and should proceed more than 300 parts of hydro carbon per one million parts of air.

On idle drive, only one cruiser exceeds close at 290 parts. The lowest is 75 parts. In fast idle, the highest is but 120 ppm and the lowest is 75 ppm.

For both idle drive and fast idle, only one car is on the line at 0.7 per cent carbon dioxide.

The monthly emission control checks began in January and not one cruiser has exceeded the allowable limits.

Bangor Earliest Bird For Home Grants

Hastings County's northern municipalities have received $29,000 from the provincial government to fund local home upgrading projects under the' Ontario Home Renewal Program.

The grant goes to Bangor-Wicklow-McClure township.

The community was one of only seven of the county's 27 member municipalities which recently favored joining an OHRP scheme centrally administered by county government.

Six other municipalities were against joining a county-wide scheme while the remaining 14 never answered a questionnire on the proposal.

As a result of the poor response county council last week accepted the suggestion of central administration for OHRP participation. Municipalities were left to decide if they wished to enter the program individually.

The Bangor — Wicklow — McClure grant — from the province's housing ministry — announced by Clarke Rollins, MPP Hastings — Peterborough.

Mr. Rollins said the municipality's need for development funds for its initiative in moving quickly to implement OHRP — "which ensures the continued usefulness of needed existing housing."

OHRP is oriented to low and moderate income families with a maximum annual income of $15,500.

Maximum loan available is $7,500. The municipality determines interest rates — which may range zero to eight per cent — and can also decide if parts of a loan need not be paid back.

Car Kills Heifer

TWEED — A Holstein heifer had to be destroyed by its owner Friday night after it wandered onto the Crookston Road and was struck by a car.

Douglas L. Gunning, R.R. 1, Tweed was east bound about a mile west of Tweed when the collision occurred, causing $300 damage to his 1969 model car.

Paul Farrell, the heifer's owner, destroyed it at the scene. The animal was valued at $300.

Madoc OPP constable Al Borger investigated.

Alarm Box

Belleville Firefighters responded to the following call for assistance during a 24-hour period which ended at 8 a.m. today.

Saturday, Oct. 11, 10.49 p.m. Garbage pail on fire at Quinte Secondary School.

Everybody's Talking Turkey This Weekend

Thanksgiving means something to most everyone — but meanings seem to differ as much as the ways of making turkey stuffing.

FRANK SUNDERLAND

As with most persons, Frank Sunderland of Belleville is looking forward to Thanksgiving "it is one of the most important holidays of the year." Turkey is still the tradition with his family.

"Everyone should recognize thanksgiving." It should be a holiday, for persons of every religion.

Mr. Sunderland, a grandfather, will be spending the day with his family.

VICKIE WHITEMAN

She enjoys the fall, says Vickie Whiteman. She likes walking in the forest among the dead leaves and especially likes eating her harvest. "Thanksgiving is a time for the family to get together." She will be helping her mother cook the family feast of turkey.

She's cooked turkey once before and says its easy. Although she doesn't write he said it will still be a day off.

BONNIE GIBSON

To Bonnie Gibson having a long weekend is important. The most important aspects of thanksgiving. She and her husband are putting an addition on their house "in Rossmore. The family is going to get together and help them put the roof on.

She said she used to enjoy thanksgiving more when she was younger but it is not so important now. She likes turkey but: "I hate pumpkin pie."

RICK TELFER

"I don't ever have time to think about it," said Rick Telfer of Waterdown. Turkey, he said: "It's nice animal. It's good to eat - but you can eat it all year round, not just at Thanksgiving."

Today's society, he said, has basically forgotten the meaning of the day. "They know how the American Thanksgiving started, but who knows how the Canadian Thanksgiving started?"

ALICE CARLEY

Thanksgiving doesn't "particularly mean much to Alice Carley of Picton. "Its just another day." She says she lives alone now so she doesn't cook a turkey but she does look forward to going out and visiting friends for dinner. She said a lot of people don't realize the meaning of the day and they have to have to be thankful for.

DIANNE BAUMHOUR

"Its just another weekend," says Dianne Baumhour of Belleville. "I don't have much to be thankful for." Mrs. Baumhour said she will probably be visiting her parents in Bancroft during the weekend but it isn't likely they will be having turkey for dinner. "No one has the time." She said although it is just another weekend she is grateful it is a long weekend.

To some It is truly a day to be thankful. After a short survey by The Intelligencer it appears most look forward to the day as it means a long weekend.

It's the last long weekend before the snow flies and for many it provides an opportunity to close up the family cottage, do year-end garden work or prepare the home for winter.

Despite the fact the turkey has risen in price by about 10 cents a pound from last year's price it is still makes up the traditional Thanksgiving feast and its one thing almost everyone looks forward to.

Turkey and pumpkin pie most people like it. Is what better day to have- a family feast than on a day off work.

Bobcats Stretch Streak with 5-4 Win

When the Markham Royals invaded Belleville Memorial Arena on Friday night it was obvious that the visitors were determined to win the game right from the start regardless of the tactics they needed to do it. Unfortunately for Markham the Bobcats had other plans as they slipped one by the Royals 5-4 in Metro Junior "B" hockey action.

The Royals who were unable to keep up to Belleville in the hockey department very soon after the game got under way resorted to "out and hide" tactics in attempts to intimidate Belleville. The Bobcats had a few of their own intimidation tactics and due to the looseness of the refereeing both teams were soon taking open pot shots at one another.

Coach Meehan Bonnar of the Cats, who or, more than one occasion was standing on the edge of the boards shouting his displeasure, explained that "I don't care how bad the refereeing is as long as it is consistant and that guy (Keith MacDonald) was not consistant.

During the course of the game three players were ejected. Paul Tilley was the first to leave for the Bobcats. In the second period, after being justled in front of the net, Tilley jabbed at a Markham defenceman with his stick.

Although the attempt appeared to do little damage, local fans were treated to an academy award performance by defenceman E. Honsofer. The act did catch the eye of the referee however who gave Tilley a five minute major and ejected him from the game. Tilley had lost a tooth as a result of a highstick from a defenceman, in the first period.

Rick Langstaff, Bobcat defenceman was also kicked out of the game along with Royal's Steve Tarr during a brawl that occurred in the mid stages of the final period.

Tilley will be gone for at least four games while Langstaff will lost for two.

The visitors broke into an early 3-0 lead by the five minute mark of the opening frame but two quick goals by Cats' leading scorer Tony Meagher put them right back into the thick of things. Meagher picked up two assists to go along with his pair of markers. He has a total of seven goals in three games.

"A win like that has got to go a long way," said Bonnar at the end of the entertaining 60 minutes.

"Everybody played just super. Nobody had a bad game and they really deserved that win," he added.

Bubba Thompson's goal, the only one of the third period proved to be the clincher for Belleville. Bruce Leedham and Bob Thompson rounded out the scoring for the locals with Markham's goal in the second coming while Belleville was playing a man short.

Bob Moore in goal kept the locals in the game many times over the course of the evening, facing a total of 39 shots while his counterpart at the other end of the ice was tested only 27 times.

Belleville's next encounter will be Thursday, when they travel to Kingston for the second match up of the season with the Township Voyageurs. Friday, Cats are at home to Whitby.

Tigers, Trojans Win

Trenton High School Junior Tigers ran their string of Bay of Quinte High School Football League wins to five straight, Friday, nipping Quinte Secondary School Saints 20-18 but Moira Secondary School Trojans remained in the running for a shot at first place by downing Bayside Secondary School Red Devils 22-6.

It was the fourth win in five starts for Trojans who get a chance to overhaul the Tigers when the teams hook up in Trenton, Friday.

At Quinte, Saints failed to add the cushyon on all three touchdowns and it cost them. Tigers' Mark Scutsato was successful on two of three conversion attempts. And that was the margin of victory.

Saints scored early, putting six points on the board in their first series of plays from the opening kickoff.

Speed merchant Ken Revoy got outside and outraced the defenders for the major.

Henry Peterson got that one back for the visitors. The fullback, lugging the ball for good yardage all the way through the match, rounded two of his teams touchdowns.

His second propelled Tigers into a 12-6 lead in the second quarter and Scutsato added the extra point. It was 13-6 at the half.

Saints took over in the third quarter. Running back Paul Benelopoulos and quarterback Rob Goodfellow crossed the goal line from close range for the home side, and it was 18-13.

Tigers' quarterback Brian Hanson scored the only major of the final quarter when again Scutsato's kick was true. From then on, Trenton managed to hold off determined bids by Saints to regain the lead.

Playing at home, Moira scored a touchdown in each of the second, third and fourth quarters after the teams battled through a scoreless first quarter.

Ray Gee counted two of the Trojans' markers and Dave Bennet had one. Bennett added a two point conversion and Robert Bowen also had a two-pointer.

Bayside's only score came on a 10-yard run by Bob Cott in the second quarter.

Belleville Bobcats' rookie Tony Meagher arrives on Markham Royals' goalie Dyson's doorstep, skates first, during Metro Junior B Hockey League action, Friday night at Memorial Arena. Meagher scored two goals and assisted on two others as Bobcats stretched their perfect record in pre-season and league games to nine, taking a 5-4 squeaker. Cats have two games next week. Thursday night the team is at Calaraqui Community Centre for a match with Kingston Voyageurs and Friday, Whitby Bruins will be the visitors on Memorial Arena ice.

HOCKEY TIPS

NHL IN FOR ITS TOUGHEST SEASON

There is no doubt in my mind the National Hockey League is in for its toughest season because the teams are more evenly balanced than ever before.

Last year's final pitted Philadelphia Flyers, an eight-year-old team, against Buffalo Sabres, a five-year-old team. An established team didn't get in the final and only one, Montreal Canadiens, reached the semi-finals.

So, the NHL is much tougher than in other years when you could walk into some rinks expecting to get the two points. It's no longer that way when you consider teams such as the Islanders, Pittsburgh, Atlanta and the others. Every game is a demanding one.

The keys to winning will be to work hard and to enter each game in the proper frame of mind. Last season, our biggest problem was we weren't preparing ourselves mentally.

We have a good hockey club but it doesn't matter what it reads on paper it's become a question of how a team goes into each game. The most important part of a game is mental preparation.

We didn't do that last year. Our road record was terrible and that's the main reason we finished so far behind Buffalo in our division.

There's been a lot of talk about coach Fred Shero employing a secret system with the Flyers. Well there really isn't any "secret" to his success. He's convinced the players they can win and they're a good team. You'll find wherever they have on the ice is giving 110 per cent.

That's what Bobby Orr and the Los Angeles Kings doing and that's what Al Arbour had the Islanders doing. They're successful.

I won the scoring championship last season but I'm still not satisfied with the year. My seasons and games aren't judged by the number of points I get because some of my better games haven't produced any points.

Generally, I found the year very disappointing because I believe we should have gone further than we did. But looking ahead, I hope we learned a big lesson.

I hope we start right in training camp because every team is going to be that much better. By thinking properly, I believe our overall game is going to improve. If you're working, then you're thinking.

SQUIRES GET VET

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Virginia Squires announced Friday the acquisition of Gerald Govan, one of the American Basketball Association's eight remaining charter players, from New York Nets for an undisclosed draft choice. The 6-foot-11 Govan, an eight-year veteran, has played 657 league games, more than anyone in ABA history.

SETS RECORD

LONDON (AFP)—Great Britain II, crewed almost entirely by British servicemen, set a record for ocean-going yachts Thursday when it passed the Cape of Good Hope 39 days after leaving London. The yacht, competing in a round-the-world clipper race, beat the old record of 41 days set in 1972.

HAWLEY TO RIDE

TORONTO (CP) — Jockey Dave Hawley of Brampton, Ont., leading rider in North America in 1973, will ride the five-year-old mare Dahlia in the $150,000-added Canadian International Championship race at Woodbine on Oct. 26. Dahlia won last year's Canadian International, at 1¼ miles on the turf, in record time. Dahlia also was first in the Laurel International in 1973.

APPOINTED AGENTS

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughriders announced Friday they have been appointed agents in the province for the Canadian Football Lottery and hope to use their earnings to keep the Western Football Conference team financially healthy. Rider president Al Sangster said the Riders lost $67,000 last year and are always depended on fund-raising, like the annual $100-a-plate dinner, to keep going. He said the club hopes to get from $150,000 to $200,000 annually by acting as distributor for the lottery.

DENIED PERMISSION

NEW YORK (AP) — Three trainer-drivers were denied on Friday a request that the New York racing and wagering board intervene in a dispute that had to ban from Roosevelt Raceway. The Board rejected the contention of lawyers for William Gilmour, Kenneth McNutt and Bernard Weiner that Roosevelt officials usurped the board's authority to discipline its licencees. The three were barred from the track because they declined to take a polygraph test to clear them of any wrongdoing in a Sept. 18 race.

Coaching Development Program at Loyalist

An Ontario coaching development program sponsored by the Ministry of Culture and Recreation that is already in use throughout the province and across Canada will make its debut in the Quinte area Tuesday night at Loyalist College.

The program that co-instructor Bob Stinson, athletic director for Loyalist College describes as "geared to improving the calibre of coaching especially in the minor leagues," has been in operation in the province for the past two years. The results have been good and a great deal of enthusiasm has been created, so much, that, every other province has similar programs currently in operation.

There are three levels of the coaching program which involve everything from theory to the practical application and isolation of specific sports for the technical aspects of coaching.

Stinson and Wally Uhryusk a physical education teacher at Quinte Secondary School in Belleville will be leading after the program which will run for a period of eight weeks with one two-hour session every Tuesday evening.

The pair along with women's physical education instrucor, Kathy Keener of Loyalist, were invited to Toronto in September to attend the instructors' course which now qualifies them to instruct in the program.

The first course will be the Level 1 theory program that will include the basic information on such topics as bio mechanics, sports medicine, growth development and sports physiology. Each night will be devoted to a particular study.

"We don't intend to try and create bio mechanics professors or anything like that, but merely to scrape the surface," explained Stinson.

He also noted that despite the name, the theory courses do not entail long drawn out lectures but a series of films, small group discussions and a short lecture depending upon the subject matter.

To complete the entire program and all three levels of both theory and technical aspects of the course the coaches must also combine a certain amount of time applying these principles.

Stinson hopes that coaches with experience will be out in good numbers. He feels that there is valuable information that can be traded among the coaches for the benefit of all concerned.

Indications that the clinics are here to stay can be seen in their applications in such centres as Oakville which plans to have every coaching coach and teacher there with at least a level 1 theory course under his belt by 1977.

Anyone wishing to pre-register for the course can do so by applying at the Belleville Recreation Centre or sign up at the Pioneer Building, Loyalist College, at 7 p.m.-Tuesday October 14.

The clinic is open to all persons interested in or already coaching sports.

Huskies Trimmed

LINDSAY (Special) — Frankford Huskies were treated rudely in their first Ontario Hockey Association Junior C League start, here, Friday night. The home team pinned an 8-3 loss on the visitors.

Huskies will attempt to hit the win column, Monday night, when they are in Cobourg.

The Frankford team, without ice in its arena, does not play at home until November 7.

Mrs. Vernon Westfall, formerly a public school teacher at Carrying Place, officiating at unveiling of plaque commemorating her husband's donation of property to the Carrying Place Recreation Association for park use. With her is Fred Yardy, association president.

Recreation Program Successful Venture

CARRYING PLACE — Organized softball sponsored by the Carrying Place Recreation Association ke pt 1 5 omuyo-Association kept 150 youngsters busy during the period schools were closed for summer holidays in the last four years.

Now the association has decided to offer outdoor recreation in adults living in the same Quinte area providigg local sources and provincial lottery officials (Wintario) make available the necessary funds to build regulation size tennis courts in the association's complex here.

Grownups would be encouraged to use the new facilities while a program of instruction would be offered to the youth as well, association president Fred Yardy pointed out.

Mr. Yardy also disclosed the association's growing success with its youth program is due to a dedicated membership and the generosity of Vernon Westfall, a former general storekeeper and postmaster for the hamlet and surrounding countryside.

The late Mr. Westfall donated approximately eight acres of property to the association to be utilized as a community park.

Recently the residents of Ameliasburg and Murray Townships (which communities the Association serves) were reminded of the donor's community spirited act as they gathered together for the official opening of the Vernon Westfall Memorial Park.

His widow, the former Elsie Fitchett, a public school teacher here for years, unveiled a plaque at the commemoration ceremony.

BRUINS MAKE FINAL CUTS
BOSTON (AP) — Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League made their final preseason cuts Tuesday, sending goalies Rosa Brooks and Ken Broderick and two other players to Rochester Americans of the American Hockey League. Sent to the Americans along with the goaltenders were centre Doug Gibson and defenceman Mike Milbury. The Bruins open their regular season Thursday night at Boston Garden against Montreal Canadiens.

JETS SIGN ASMUNDSON
WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Jets of the World Hockey Association Tuesday announced the signing of veteran utility player Duke Asmundson to a one-year contract. Asmundson is the final player on the Jets roster to sign a contract. A native of Vita, Man., the 6-foot-2, 200 pound defenceman-right winger is in his fourth season with the Jets. Last year, playing in 38 games, he scored four goals, picked up 15 assists and had 50 minutes in penalties.

Name May Change To Quinte Macs

The Belleville McDonalds' may not be the Belleville McDonalds' at all as they enter the 1976 Ontario Fastball League season. That doesn't mean they are switching the city of Belleville, where fan support was excellent over the 1975 campaign.

"We are thinking of playing some of our home games in the new park being constructed in Trenton" said co-owner of the Macs, Dale Duvall.

"It would probably be Wednesday nights," he added.

That would mean changing the team name, possibly to the Quinte McDonalds.

It would really just involve five or six home games, probably against close teams like Oshawa, Newmarket and Toronto. The use of the Trenton ball park would also mean a few more nights for some of the other Belleville leagues to use the Alemite.

Whatever does happen, it is still very much in the planning stage. The 1975 season is barely over, and most of the Macs' officials would just like to take time off to think about things.

One thing does seem certain the McDonalds will be back for another Ontario Fastball League season, and they will play the majority, if not all, their home games at the Alemite Park in Belleville.

Fighting Saints Are Spoilers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Visiting teams are enjoying some success so far in the World Hockey Association this season.

Minnesota Fighting Saints ruined the home debut of Edmonton Oilers in the young 1975-76 season with a 5-1 triumph before 6,460 fans Friday night. In Denver, Indianapolis Racers defeated the Spurs 7-1 with Randy Wyrozub scoring twice for the winners.

Phoenix Roadrunners stopped the streak with a 6-5 decision over San Diego Mariners.

In the opening game of the WHA schedule Thursday night, Winnipeg Jets took a 5-3 away-from-home victory over Quebec Nordiques.

Meanwhile in the National Hockey League, New York Rangers defeated Atlanta Flames 3-1 on a second-period goal by Jean Ratelle. It was the only NHL game played Friday night.

The crowd booed the Oilers through much of the second and third periods as Minnesota took a 3-0 lead in the first period and refused to let Edmonton get untracked the rest of the way.

Ted Hampson, Johnny McKenzie, Mike Antonovich and Fran Huck scored for the Fighting Saints of the Western Division.

Blair MacDonald scored for the Oilers, in the Canadian Division, to ruin a shutout bid by netminder John Garrett.

The crowd was below expectations in the 15,000-seat Edmonton Coliseum because the game was televised locally. Fans booted at the delays in play caused by numerous penetrical breaks during the game.

The game marked the WHA debut of two former teammates with Toronto Maple Leafs of the NHL. Dave Keon worked at centre for the winners between Mike Walton and McKenzie while Norm Ullman played centre and left wing for the Oilers.

The Racers, who won only four gameson the road last season, spoiled the first regular-season game in Denver's new arena before 5,016 fans.

Indianapolis scored six unanswered goals in the final two periods after Ron Buchanan of the Racers tied the score 1-1 at 9:24 of the first.

Robbie Ftorek had two goals and two assists to spark Phoenix to victory over the Mariners.

Gene Peacosh scored two goals for the Mariners before a crowd of 8,230.

In the NHL game, Rod Gilbert scored New York's first goal when he caught Atlanta goalie Phil Myre out of position at 12:32 in the first period and slapped in a shot from four feet in front of the net.

Ratelle took a pass from Steve Vickers and scored New York's other goal in the second period.

Bill Flett, formerly with Toronto Maple Leafs, scored the only goal for the Flames, at the 19-second mark of the first period.

Busy Weekend in CFL

Not Much Change in Sight

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Don't expect a drastic change in the Canadian Football League playoff picture this weekend.

Hamilton Tiger-Cats and British Columbia Lions, holding down last place in the Eastern and Western conferences respectively, will be in the same position after the holiday schedule. They might, however, have some company.

The Lions—fifth in the WFC with eight points to two behind Calgary Stampeders—visit Hamilton for an interlocking game Sunday afternoon against the Ticats, trailing the EFC with five points, two behind Toronto Argonauts.

On Monday, Montreal visits the Argonauts and the Alouettes will be seeking a win to get closer to first-place Ottawa Rough Riders. Ottawa leads the EFC with 3 points, four more than Montreal and it ahead of Toronto.

In the WFC, Edmonton Eskimos are first with 18 points, one ahead of Saskatchewan Roughriders and five in front of Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Win, lose or draw, both Hamilton and B.C. will still be in last place after Sunday's game.

A victory for the Ticats would put them even with the Argonauts. However, the Argos could move ahead with a win or a tie against the Alouettes the following day.

A win for the Lions would put B.C. in a fourth-place tie with the Stampeders. But again, the Stampeders play Monday as well, visiting the Eskimos.

In Hamilton on Sunday, it will be Garnet Henley Appreciation Day, an event that might inspire the Tiger-Cats, currently with a 2-8-1 record.

Ceremonies will take place just before the game and the 16-year veteran will be the recipient of several gifts from local firms and organizations.

The B.C.-Hamilton game will be seen on the full CTV network beginning at 3 p.m. EDT Sunday with the Montreal-Toronto contest starting at the same time Monday on the CBC network between Both games will be blacked out in the Toronto-Hamilton area.

GARNEY HENLEY

Expect A Good Show

MEXICO CITY (CP) — Five of the Canadians who collected 20 gold medals in 1971 will be on hand to defend their titles when competition in 22 sports begins Monday at the seventh Pan-American Games.

But team officials are optimistic that Canada will match or exceed the haul of 76 medals won in Cali, Colombia, four years ago.

Defending champions here include Abby Hoffman of Toronto in the 800 metres, swimmers Debbie Brill of Victoria, diver Elizabeth Carruthers of Edmonton, cyclist Lennard Gray of Toronto and equestrian Christiot Boylen of Calgary and Ottawa.

Mrs. Boylen, who as Christiot Hansen won the individual dressage in 1971, says she will be next thing to a sure bet to repeat.

The 250-strong Canadian team is entered in all but one event. Jack Pomfret, the general manager, said he expects Canadians will win a substantial number of medals in swimming, track and field, shooting and equestrian competition.

Here is a rundown of Canadian prospects and medal chances other than track and field and swimming and diving, based on talks with team officials:

Men's basketball: Definitely a medal threat and coach Jack Donohue is talking about a silver.

Women's basketball: Canada was relegated to consolation round among 13 countries in the world championships in Colombia, beaten by many of the teams here. But Lil Gaetz, Sylvia and Sylvia Sweeney can overcome inertia and Canada should have an outside chance for a medal.

Baseball: Canada was third in the intercontinental Cup and could finish as high as third, with the U.S. and Cuba fighting it out for gold and silver.

Cycling: Lovell has a good chance of defending his gold in the 1,000.

Equestrian: Canada should win a medal in every event.

Gymnastics: The Olympic squad has passed up the Pan-American Games because qualifyory exercises are different but the young team has some promising youngsters, a few of whom would replace Olympic team regulars. The team is likely to finish third over-all behind Cuba and Mexico.

Men's volleyball: Medal unlikely.

Women's volleyball: The team, fourth in Cali, is looking for a gold or silver but may be unhappy with a bronze and totally disappointed with fourth.

Yachting: Two or three medals likely, notably in Finn and Flying Dutchman classes.

Shooting: World trapshooting champions Joan Nattrass and John Primrose of Edmonton are favorites and the team should win medals.

Rowing: Coxless four from Burnaby, B.C., looks strongest. Canada probably decided not to enter the eights but changed its mind after seeing the competition here and made up a team from Burnaby and St. Catharines, Ont.

Wrestling: Medals likely in each division. Gordon Ottman of Thunder Bay, Ont., in 125½-pound class has been rated as high as No. 3 in world.

Boxing: Smith American champion Brian Gibson of Montreal could win gold in the light-heavyweight division if his injured ankle holds up. Other medal chances include 125-pound Jim Clayle, light-middle Michael Dale and middleweight Pietro Contarini, all of Montreal, and lightweight Chris Clarke of Halifax.

UPSETS AVOIDED

PHOENIX (AP) — Top-seeded Virginia Wade and No. 3 seed Nancy Gunter avoided near upsets Friday in the quarter-finals of the $50,000 Phoenix Thunderbirds women's professional tennis tournament. Miss Wade, of Britain, needed three sets to edge past Lisky Boshoff of South Africa 6-4, 4-6, 6-4. Mrs. Gunter, of Lake Livingston, Tex., rallied during the final set to defeat Valerie Ziegenfuss of Mission Viejo, Calif. 4-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Losing Proposition For Most WHA Teams

TORONTO (CP) — World Hockey Association teams have lost about $15-million during the league's first three years of operation, WHA chairman Ben Hatskin said Friday.

"Sport in general has a problem," Hatskin said in an interview. "It isn't confined solely to the World Hockey Association. Certain franchises in this league are able to survive if they take in $2.5 million on box offices returns, but those franchises are few and far between."

Hatskin said that WHA teams must have at least 9,000 fans at each game to avoid financial breaking even otherwise we're in trouble.

Only Edmonton Oilers, Toronto Toros, New England Whalers, Quebec Nordiques and Winnipeg Jets reached or come close to that figure last season but they all lost money.

Toronto Toros are reported to have lost $2.5 million in two years of operation in Toronto and one in Ottawa as the Nationals. The future doesn't look too bright either.

Average season ticket sales are off this year by 40 per cent and the team payroll runs about $1.7 million. And the team pays rent of $25,000 a game to Maple Leaf Gardens.

Calgary Cowboys could prove to be a future WHA disaster area. The team already has accumulated $5-million in debts as the Vancouver Blazers and is playing at the 7,000-seat Calgary Corral, a building too small for the operation.

Quebec, with a 10,500 seat arena, also is confined from growth. Nordiques have lost about $1 million on their operation.

The Jets, playing out of the 9,500-seat Arena, have lost $750,000 over the three years.

Edmonton Oilers have lost money on ticket subscribers, but general manager Bill Hunter is confident that when the season gets started, the figure will return to last year's total of $2,300.

BOTH WIN MATCHES

VIRGINIA WATER, England (CP) — Defending champion Hale Irwin and Al Geiberger, both of the United States, won their semi-final matches Friday in advance to tomorrow's 36-hole the Piccadilly World match play golf championship. They will battle for a $30,500 first prize. Irwin advanced with a 4-and-3 victory over Australia's Jack Newton and Geiberger defeated Tom Watson of the U.S. 2 and 1.

Wilson Blanks Bears

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dave Wilson, a former National Hockey League goaltender, led the revived Baltimore Clippers to a 3-0 victory over the Springfield Indians Friday in the opening game for both teams Friday night in the American Hockey League.

Wilson, picked up by New York Rangers on waivers from Toronto after he had a falling out with the Maple Leafs management late last season, was accorded to be the MVP early in the NHL exhibition season.

He blocked 21 shots to lead the Clippers to victory. In other games Friday night, New Haven Nighthawks blanked Springfield Indians 4-3 and Rochester Americans topped Nova Scotia Voyageurs 6-3.

The Clippers were disbanded last season when Detroit Stars of the World Hockey Association moved their franchise to Baltimore and were renamed Clipper Blades. When the Blades franchise folded, the Clippers reprieved the AHL.

Jerry Badiuk and Dennis Ginnivanni scored the Baltimore goals.

Defenceman Barry Salevarara scored at 2:37 of a five-minute sudden death overtime period to give the Nighthawks their victory over Springfield.

Only seven seconds on a penalty on Indians' forward, Jim Wiseman remained when Salevarara blasted the 45-foot swing shot fanon the right point past goalie Ron Taylor.

Springfield's Norm Dube and Jim Langfeld scored at five-minute sudden death overtime period to give the Nighthawks their victory over Springfield.

Only seven seconds on a penalty on Indians' forward, Jim Wiseman remained when Salevarara blasted the 45-foot swing shot fanon the right point past goalie Ron Taylor.

Springfield's Norm Dube and Jim Langfeld scored at five-minute sudden death overtime period to give the Nighthawks their victory over Springfield.

The Indians went ahead 3-1 on power-play tallies by Murray Kuntz and Wiseman in the second period. But Tom Coffey scored early in the third period and Brian McCutcheon pulled the visitors even with little less than four minutes remaining in regulation time.

Paul O'Neil scored three goals for Rochester and Jim Gibson added two. Guy Chouinard picked up two goals for Nova Scotia.

In games tonight, Nova Scotia takes on, the home and Hershey and Rochester is at Springfield. Friday, the Voyageurs play Baltimore.

Bristol Named Braves' Manager

ATLANTA (AP) — Dave Bristol, called a "tough and sometimes scrappy" individual by Atlanta Braves vice-president Eddie Robinson, was given the task Friday of lifting the struggling Braves out of the baseball doldrums.

Bristol, 42, a former Montreal Expos coach and major-league manager at Cincinnati and Milwaukee, signed a one-year contract to manage the Braves, who less than two weeks ago finished their worst season in 20 years with a dismal 64-97 record.

"I'm like Tom Landry (Dallas football coach), I'd like to have a 10-year contract," Bristol said during a news conference conducted by telephone from maybe after a year they won't like me or I might not like it here."

The Braves had conducted a month-long search for a manager to replace Connie Ryan, who served as interim manager when the team fired Clyde King on Aug. 30.

Bristol became manager of Cincinnati at midseason of 1966 and ran the club through the 1969 campaign. He then became manager of Milwaukee Brewers of the American League, where he served two full seasons and was fired.

He served the last two seasons as a coach with Montreal Expos, but was looking for another job when Gene Mauch was fired recently as manager of the team.

Robinson had said all along he was seeking a "tough" manager.

Bristol was asked if he were the fiery type. "I've been fired three times," he said.

The game at London featured two separate 10-minute fight periods during which the benches were cleared. Players from the Windsor team entered the stands to fight with fans after order had almost been restored by referee Tom Brown.

One London fan was held in the alleyway leading to the dressing room and pummelled by several Windsor players.

On the ice, Brad Marsh had two goals, one with a series of punches and the Windsor player receiving his face. The fight was the second on the same sequence of play and both players received game misconducts.

Injunction Rejected

TORONTO (CP) — An application was rejected Friday for an injunction to prevent John Tonelli from competing for Houston Aeros in the first two games of the World Hockey Association regular-season schedule.

The application, presented by Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, was turned down by Mr. Justice G. E. Grange of Ontario Supreme Court.

Tonelli joined the Aeros before his 18th birthday last March after the Marlboros refused to change his three-year contract to a one-year agreement.

The application was brought against the WHA, Tonelli and the Aeros. But it was served only to the head office of the Toronto, Miles O'Reilly, a lawyer representing the WHA, said Friday.

Houston opens its season tonight against New England Whalers in Hartford, Conn. The Aeros play here Tuesday night against Toronto Toros.

The WHA approved Tonelli's contract with the Aeros last August, reversing an earlier decision due to do so.

The Marlboros have asked the Aeros for a $100,000 settlement, including $75,000 for taking Tonelli from the junior club and $25,000 for each year left on his contract. The Marlboros have refused Houston's offer of $40,000 settlement for Tonelli.

Tonelli's agent, Jim Radcliff of Toronto, says the junior contract is void because the player was not 18 and was under duress when it was signed.

Protect your home and family with a SmokeGard

...the new level of security against the hazard of fire.

The low-cost ionization detector that's on guard twenty-four hours a day.

Until recently, fire 'protection' for the home came in the form of an insurance policy for most people because the majority of domestic fire detectors were expensive and required involved, complicated, wiring of several units.

Now there's SmokeGard... designed by experts in the fire protection business for residential use.

Just insert the batteries and you have a dependable twenty-four hour "watch-dog" guarding your home, your family against the hazard of fire and smoke.

So act today... and give your family and property the protection they deserve — with a SmokeGard.

Your Weekend Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

For Sunday, Oct. 12

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't panic the town with people who want to make a late night of it. Tomorrow's a work day. Maybe they can sleep late but you can't.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You'll be very easy to get along with early in the day. As the evening wears on you'll have a tendency to snap at others.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Procrastination is your big problem today. It will rob you of valuable time and you'll be inconvenience others to cover your sins of omission.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Others will make heavy demands on you today, socially and financially. If you try to keep up with every request you'll lose your cool and cash.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Once you make your mind, you're the type who sticks to his guns. Today, however, you're extremely indecisive and tend to be wishy-washy.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22) Don't assign yourself too many tasks today. Get out and enjoy the sun. Indulge in some relaxation and go to bed early.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You may try to impress people by being a free-wheeling big-spender. All you'll gain is a thinner wallet. No one will really take notice.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If there is something that bothers you today, don't take it out on the family. They don't deserve the mental anguish and it won't help you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You have little patience with people whose ideas are too fixed or stodgy. Others will quickly discover what a short fuse you have today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Protect your possessions very carefully today. There is a chance you could suffer the loss of something you prize very highly.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your mate may be a bit testy today. To keep harmony, steer clear of anything that even resembles a potential domyfoot.

PM Orders Wage, Price Controls

Jonas McConnell

OTTAWA (CP) — Limited price-and-wage controls were imposed effective Wednesday Monday night on a "selected number of powerful groups," Prime Minister Trudeau announced Monday night. He said they will be extended unless inflation is controlled and will last indefinitely in a "long, hard struggle."

In a national radio and television broadcast following discussions of more than three hours with the 10 provincial premiers, Mr. Trudeau set out guides for acceptable price and wage increases, backed by watchdog machinery and unspecified penalties for violators.

Generally, the guides limit wage increases to 10 per cent annually for wages and limit price increases justified cost increases—thus apparently freezing profits. The current inflation rate is about 10½ per cent.

The whole package is being presented today to a Parliament resuming the session ended for the summer recess July 30. Immediate passage will be pressed by the government.

There will be an anti-inflation review board to monitor the guides, perhaps by expanding the special food prices review board expiring Dec. 31, and by a "special administrator" to deal with the companies and employees that fall afoul of the specified guides.

Reaction was swift, some critical, to what Mr. Trudeau called a program of restraint, "the heaviest imposed upon Canadians since the Second World War." He said it will affect the 1,500 largest Canadian companies.

It will also hit doctors, lawyers, accountants, engineers and professional people. And, if the provinces pick up the message, it will carry through rents and other professional fees. It also will hit many more non-professionals—plain workers.

The 10 premiers and the labor movement are regarded as the keys to the success of this latest federal anti-inflation effort and President Joe Morris of the Canadian Labor Congress specified clearly that he was willing to negotiate but that he is not happy about the impact on workers, especially in lower-income categories.

Federality Robert Stanfield, retiring Progressive Conservative leader, called the program "pretty rough justice." But he asked that the program be received with an open mind and spoke as the man who in the 1974 federal election campaign had advocated a limited period of price and wage controls, and was rebuffed.

Ed Broadbent, leader of the New Democratic Party, voiced more scathing in calls, the guides unfair to low-income earners. He said the NDP won't support them.

Immediate impact was envisaged for two groups of workers—the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW), now voting on a contract calling for a lot more than the required 10 per cent. But late-night informants said there may be a special escape clause freeing them from the 10-per-cent requirement placed on new labor contracts.

Another category is the nurses, ordered back to There was no word how they might be affected.

The guides enforcer—the special administrator—is set out as having special powers, authority to order price and wage rollbacks. If disobeyed, then unspecified penalties could be imposed.

Details of the program are being laid out today in a 12,000-word policy paper to the Commons.

Said Mr. Trudeau:

"I am telling you tonight that this program must work, because if it does not, the government may be forced to impose mandatory, comprehensive, all-embracing price and income controls upon every man and woman in Canada."

The guides will be enforced against the 1,500 largest companies, including those employing 500 or more people:

—All construction companies employing more than 20 and their employees;

—Employees of the federal government's departments, agencies and Crown corporations;

—Professionals such as doctors, lawyers, accountants and engineers who earn fees.

The provincial premiers were asked at their Thanksgiving Day meeting to enforce the guides against employees of provincial and municipal government departments.

Portugal Warned Of Bankruptcy

LISBON (Reuter)—Portugal today faced the harsh consequences of 18 months of revolution with an implied warning from Premier Jose Pinheiro de Azevedo that the country is on the brink of chaos and bankruptcy.

In a nationwide broadcast Monday night, Pinheiro de Azevedo said that unrest in the armed forces threatens the government's survival, and he appealed for the people to respect discipline and authority.

The premier, already under fire from the left for making pacts with the Socialists and centrists, invited further discontent by announcing a strict austerity program to save Portugal's faltering economy.

He told the Portuguese they will have to produce more and consume less, and that increases in prices and indirect taxes will be necessary.

Pinheiro de Azevedo exposed one of the many aspects of national life hit by crisis since last year's military coup toppled a moribund right-wing regime when he said that in general students do not learn, teachers do not teach and that the examination system has deteriorated to the point where there are no guarantees that a doctor knows how to cure or that an engineer can build anything.

On the growing challenge to his government by the army and increasing leftist opposition in Lisbon, he said there can be no authority or government without the armed forces but promised not to let himself be swayed by the capital's revolutionary fervor.

Defending his team of Socialists, centrists, Communists and moderate officers from charges that it is a rightist government, the admiral said he has no intention of repressing liberties to deal with the current unrest.

Yardmen Funds

Authority Seeks Help For Wildlife Sanctuary

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

The Moira River Conservation Authority today sought the support of the Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund to create a 1,300-acre wildlife sanctuary.

The meeting was held behind closed doors though members of the authority said some statement might be available Wednesday.

Stu Meeks, Belleville alderman and chairman of the authority's fish and wildlife committee, said today the benefit fund will be asked to contribute $25,000 towards formation of the area.

The presentation of the brief, on behalf of the conservation authority, was made to the Yardmen at a meeting today at the conservation authority offices in Thurlow Township.

Mr. Meeks said the Nature Conservatory of Canada and the ministry of natural resources would be participating in the meeting. He said if the project succeeds, the provincial government will pick up 75 per cent of the tab.

The tract of land is located seven miles south of Kalaher and lies on both sides on High way 41.

Members of the authority executive refused to comment on park formation.

"It's a pretty big deal, covering 1,300 acres and including five lakes," said Mr. Meeks. "It's a good deal for the people of Ontario."

He said the idea has already come under six months of investigation.

Loyalist Takes Steps To Control Rowdyism

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

Loyalist College student council will no longer sell tickets in downtown Belleville for campus events — a measure aimed at reducing rowdyism at concerts at the college.

Council president Carl Ward said this weekend the council acted to take the move as one of two measures aimed at preventing the recurrence of rowdyism last week that prompted folk artist Jess Winchester to walk out of a council-sponsored concert.

Tickets for the three-artist event were on sale in several downtown outlets.

Mr. Ward said students will still be able to sign in non-student guests to council events.

The student council has also ratified a decision by the council to ask for re-activate a different security force. The blue and Gold Society, to police future non-licensed events.

Davis Will Co-operate

OTTAWA—Ontario Premier William Davis says he will co-operate with the price-and-income curbs program announced by Prime Minister Trudeau Monday night.

Mr. Davis said for the plan to work, the proposals "will require active co-operation not only from the provinces but the people of Canada as a whole."

Mackasey Urges Workers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Postmaster General Bryce Mackasey indicated today that 22,000 postal workers should try for an exemption from the new wage guides outlined Monday night by Prime Minister Trudeau. If the postal workers have any intelligence at all, they will get back to the bargaining table based on the report of the conciliation board chairman," Mr. Mackasey said in an interview on the CTV television program Canada A.M.

CUPW Continues Voting

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

While the country waited and wondered, officials of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) continued seeking a mandate from their membership to strike. The workers are not taking a strike vote, they are instead making their views on the possibility of a strike known and at the same time giving their negotiators a weapon to use when they meet Post office negotiators. The local votes are expected to be complete by Wednesday or Thursday night.

Kidnap Victim Alive

DUBLIN (Reuters) Dutch businessman Tode Herrema's kidnappers have indicated in a new message that he is still alive and named a new negotiator to replace Capuchin friar Rev. Donald O'Mahony, a civil servant's union said today. The Local Government and Public Services Union said in a statement that its deputy general secretary, Philip Flynn, has been named in the message as new mediator.

Recommends More Seats

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario legislature should increase the number of MPPs to about 180 from 125, the Ontario commission on the legislature recommended today. The three man commission, in its fifth and final report, said the increasing size of government should be matched by a bigger legislature.

Pound Loses Ground

LONDON (Reuters) — The British pound lost ground on foreign exchange markets today, depressed by Kuwait's reported move to have oil payments made wholly in United States dollars and no longer partly in the British currency.

Guidelines Catch 500,000 In Bargaining Disputes

TORONTO (CP) — The federal government's new wage guidelines will catch more than 500,000 workers in the midst of bargaining during the last quarter of the calendar year.

The last quarter is labor's heaviest bargaining period, with 256 labor-management agreements ending between now and Dec. 31.

Unions either in bargaining or approaching it include the railway group of about 100,000, the pulp and paper workers with more than 50,000, many of them now on strike in Ontario and Quebec; teachers, hospital workers, federal civil servants, municipal and provincial employees.

The 22,000-member Canadian Union of Postal Workers—the office workers at post offices—are completing a strike vote this week after their negotiators received wage offers from the federal government that would have added up to 38 per cent over two years.

Others who would be affected include 6,500 clothing workers in Quebec and 3,000 more in Ontario whose contracts expire this month.

Grain elevator employees in British Columbia, 10,000 teachers in Nova Scotia and 8,500 Hydro Electric Commission workers in Quebec are among those whose agreements expire by the end of the year.

The Canadian Union of Public Employees, which has been running for substantial increases with municipalities later this year, also will come under the proposed restraints.

Jobless Rate Drops Slightly Last Month

OTTAWA (CP) — The national unemployment rate declined slightly in September although there were increases in the rate in Quebec, British Columbia and Nova Scotia.

Statistics Canada reported today that 7.2 per cent of the labor force was unemployed in September, a drop of one-tenth of one per cent from August.

It was the seventh consecutive month the rate has been above seven per cent, producing the worst unemployment in 14 years. It is widely predicted the rate will drop before it gets better.

There was a slight increase in the number of persons seeking work in September, but the number of available jobs increased at a marginally greater rate. The figures are adjusted for seasonal variations. Economists consider adjusted figures a more accurate measure of economic performance.

On an actual basis, 598,000 persons were officially unemployed in September.

On a seasonally-adjusted basis, the jobless rate for those 24 and younger declined by two-tenths of one per cent to 12.5 per cent. There were similar drops in the rate for men 25 and older—a decrease to 5.4 per cent, and for women of the same age, a decline to 4.6 per cent.

The rate increased in three provinces. In Quebec it jumped by four-tenths of one per cent to 9.3 per cent and a similar increase in B.C. produced a rate of 9.6 per cent. Nova Scotia's rate was 8.1 per cent, up from 7.9 per cent in August.

The Manitoba rate remained steady at 3.5 per cent while the remaining provinces dropped. The largest decline occurred in Newfoundland, where the rate dropped by one per cent to 18.8 per cent. But Newfoundland retained the highest unemployment rate in the country.

Hasty P's Will Protest Loss Of Distinctive Red Berets

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

The Hastings and Prince Edward Regimental Association will protest federal government policy aimed at stripping the regiment of its distinctive red berets.

About 600 association members voted unanimously to take the action at their 31st re-union in Belleville Sunday.

The vote came in the face of Ottawa's desire to make the regiment wear green berets, in line with the new look of the green-clad armed forces.

Newly elected association president Howard Adamson of Belleville said the red berets are "a red beret — symbolizing blood lost in battle" — presented the regiment during the Second World War as a battle honor.

"We are attempting to have the regiment maintain some sort of distinctive mark," Mr. Adamson said.

Present uniform lacks shoulder titles and color badges on jacket lapels. Mr. Adamson said, he said, the new uniform doesn't represent the Hasty Pee regiment.

"We want an identifying thing," he said.

Another association spokesman said the motion was carried by members follows that of the regiment commanding officer Lt.-Col. J. D. Inrig.

Mr. Adamson spoke after he, along with Bob Emerson and Bob Armitage of Belleville, were elected to replace the association executive from Peterborough as president, vice-president and secretary-treasurer respectively.

The meeting came between reunion activities which included a memorial service, a parade in downtown Belleville, a dance, a banquet, and an open house at the city armories.

At the banquet at the Royal Canadian Legion on Pinnacle St., former company quartermaster sergeant, Basil Smith, briefly outlined a long post-war pilgrimage to cemeteries made by eight Hasty P's to Italy this summer. The visit to Italy, the main Second World War battleground of the regiment, was organized by the department of veteran affairs in Ottawa.

Mr. Smith said the 18 veterans on his bus visited glittering cemeteries in Sicily and southern Italy. Many of the cemeteries contained the graves of Hasty Pee dead.

Information Centre Trying Again for Provincial Funds

Quinte Information and Assistance Centre directors will meet with provincial government officials within a month in a renewed effort to win funding from Queen's Park.

Now operating with grants from Ottawa, the centre was refused assistance early in 1975 when it was judged as failing to meet the criteria of the Community Information Centre Program.

Centre chairman Vera Heimbach said this weekend the renewed attempt is being made in light of the inadequacy of a report upon which the original refusal was based and a suspected shift in emphasis in program criteria.

When the original provincial government report was prepared, said Mrs. Heimbach, "we didn't just naturally fit into every area, we couldn't."

The report seemed to take the attitude "that we were too hard-headed to change," she said.

Over the past months, the centre has attempted to change its high profile a report criticism, and "has made quite a few changes to come closer to their criteria."

In light of the suspected shift in program funding criteria, she said she feels the centre will have a better chance of getting funds.

Mrs. Heimbach said the Culture and Recreation ministry may have found that information centres alone are difficult to start "from scratch".

"I feel that they are finding it's a lot simpler to take a group already functioning and make an information centre one of its primary functions."

The centre, which acts partly as an information source, but mainly as a consumer help and education centre, would thus fit program criteria better, said the chairman.

November's meeting will be aimed at discussion of the old report, but mainly at laying ground rules for a possible January reassessment of the centre under the new program framework, she said.

Even under the old criteria, said Mrs. Heimbach, the centre couldn't divert funds specifically earmarked for consumer education into information centre operation. Current grants to the centre forbid the use of funds in other than consumer areas.

The chairman said a limited amount of money is available for use at the board of directors discretion.

Commenting on their latest attempt for funding still in the preliminary stages, Mrs. Heimbach said, "If the prospects are to get up an information service, before they fund us, we won't, because we can't, do it. It wouldn't be reasonable."

Stolen Car Recovered

Provincial Police Officer Tom Bergstorm is investigating a stolen car report that occurred 4 a.m. Sunday morning.

Police said Constable Bergstorm attempted to stop a vehicle travelling east on Highway 401 when the car took off at a high speed and landed in a ditch.

Police say four juveniles fled from the scene but one was apprehended. The other three are still at large.

The vehicle - a 1974 Chevrolet, was reported stolen from a car dealer in Cobourg earlier Saturday night.

Parked Car Hit

A three-vehicle car accident Saturday night in Frankford resulted in a charge of impaired driving to Edna Huffman, 50 of 31 Main St., Frankford.

Belleville Ontario Provincial Police said a westbound car on Mill St. struck a parked car which hit another parked car.

Damage to the 1964 Ford was estimated at $600, police said. The first car struck, a 1973 Plymouth, sustained extent of $400.

The driver was not injured.

Telephone Pole Hit

Damage was estimated at close to $700 when a car left Highway 2, one mile east of Point Anne Lane and hit a telephone early Monday afternoon.

A passenger in the car, Gerlaine Scruby, of Shannonville, was released after treatment at Belleville General Hospital.

Provincial police say they charged the driver of the car, Stan Scruby, 60, of Shannonville, with impaired driving and failure to keep to the parts of alcohol in his blood.

Electrical Storm Disrupts Power in Quinte Areas

An electrical storm lasting for almost two hours early Monday evening caused a blackout in West Park village and Glen Arden subdivision in Belleville, while hitting the entire eastside of Trenton.

The blackout in Belleville, as a result of a tree falling on an Ontario Hydro line, kept work crews busy for hours to remedy the situation. The tree hit a line on West Moira and Sidney Streets.

Neil Britton, manager of Belleville Public Utilities said about 150 customers were affected by the blackout but considering the severity of the storm, damage was minimal.

Some Belleville residents were without power for about two hours, he said.

Traffic lights in Trenton were out and repair was delayed for two hours because there was no road accessibility to a damaged insulator located near Dumfar Ltd. plant.

A Prince Edward County hydro crew worked until 9 a.m. today as a result of a number of individual calls for assistance in Picton.

Jack Ford of Picton at Ontario Hydro office, said there was no major line damage.

A few isolated cases in Prince Edward County were reported as well as Richmond and Murray Townships and Tyendinaga Reserve.

Fire Guts Residence

MADOC — No damage estimate is as yet available following a fire Monday which destroyed a partly renovated two-storey frame home here.

Owner of the home at 222 St. Lawrence St. W., Joseph Rooney, was in Toronto with his family at the time of blaze.

Fifteen volunteer fire fighters and two pumpers fought the fire. Firefighters said the home was already gutted by the time they arrived.

Cause of the blaze is still under investigation.

Damage Extensive

STIRLING — A 36-year-old Toronto woman is in Peterborough Civic Hospital with fractured ribs and a collapsed lung following single-vehicle accident near here about 8:30 p.m. Friday.

Damage is estimated at about $3,000 after Caroline Florence Sash lost control of the pickup truck she was driving along Concession 14 and struck a number of trees, said Madoc OPP.

Vehicle Hits Tree

TWEED — A Tweed youth has been charged with careless driving following a single-car accident about 1:30 a.m. Sunday on Concession 11 about two miles west of here.

Police said Bryan J. Courneyea, 18, and two passengers were driving along the road when their car hit a tree. There were no injuries.

Damage is estimated at about $700.

17-year-old Charged

STIRLING — A 17-year-old RR 1, Thomasburg youth has been charged with careless driving following a single-car accident near here about 11:45 p.m. Friday.

Damage is estimated at about $2,000 after Ronald Crossman apparently lost control of the vehicle he was driving along Concession Rd. 1, Rawdon Township and struck a tree, said Madoc OPP.

He was not injured, said police.

Ninety-six students were honored, 62 graduating with Secondary School diplomas and 34 with Honor Diplomas.

Valedictorian Theresa Bankey summed up her feelings, attitude, and special moments she had experienced during her five years at the school in one sentence, "It was a time I'll never forget."

Guest speaker was Sister Irene Wilson of Kingston who spoke about carrying and applying a Christian attitude from school into a new life.

Theresa Bankey, Nicholson Catholic College valedictorian, reminisced about the past five years at Nicholson Catholic College during graduation exercises Friday.

Local Postal Workers Back Call for Strike

Inside postal workers in Belleville and Brighton have voted by a "large majority" to give Canadian Union of Postal Workers negotiations the mandate to call a nationwide strike, says local president Walter Yateman.

"But Mr. Yateman wouldn't reveal today the numerical breakdown to the vote among the 31 inside workers in the two post offices."

Local postal workers voted Sunday as part of a Canada-wide referendum called by negotiators in Ottawa to ask for union member support of their rejection of conciliation board report by chairman Judge Jean Moisan.

The president was in Kingston Monday to review what he called a "rather disappointing" report by the conciliation board.

It was disappointing, said Mr. Yateman, "in the sense that the judge wants to leave so much to an independent expert". It's hard to be "independent", he said, when the experts are being paid by one side of the dispute over wages and benefits.

The conciliation board report offers inside workers a pay package amounting to a $1.70 increase over a 30-month contract. The post office supports the report, which has been rejected by CUPW and countered with the demand it made at the start of negotiations — a $2.35 an hour raise over one-year.

Cyclist Lands In Ditch

A Toronto man was admitted to Belleville General Hospital Saturday as the result of a motorcycle accident five miles west of Deseronto and on Highway 401.

Miloslav Savickel, 23, of Dovercourt Rd., Toronto was driving a 1973 Yamaha motorcycle westbound on Highway 401 when he lost control of the vehicle and went into a ditch, Ontario Provincial police say.

Mr. Savickel sustained injuries to his head, arms and legs. He is reported in satisfactory condition.

Police say the car is a write-off.

Impaired Charge Laid

Mary Johnston, 50, of Scarborough, Ont. was charged with impaired driving Saturday after Belleville Ontario Provincial Police investigated a complaint.

Her car was found in a ditch east of Belleville, police said.

There was no damage and the driver was not injured.

Nine Hurt in Three Car Pileup

TWEED — Nine persons were taken to hospital following a three-car collision six miles northeast of here about 5 p.m. Monday.

John Thomas Whalen, 45, of Niagara Falls, has been charged with following too close, said Madoc OPP. He and four passengers were taken to hospital and released after the accident on Highway 7 about one mile east of Highway 37. Damage to the Whalen vehicle is estimated at about $700.

Hunters Charged

Constable Fred Fry—of the Belleville Ontario Provincial Police Detachment said police were busy Sunday answering more than 15 complaints from harassed landowners about hunters trespassing and using their guns in dangerous ways.

In one incident Saturday four Toronto men were charged under the Game and Fish Act for having no licences.

The men were hunting and shooting in the Wallbridge-Loyalist area near the 5th concession behind an inhabited house where children were playing, police said.

Police say they were not charged for trespassing because of landlord absenteeism.

Walker's Sold, Owners Plan Major Changes

Belleville's Walker's department store now is undergoing major structural and merchandising changes.

The store, part of a province - wide chain purchased late last year by majority stockholders Marks and Spencer Company, operating under the St. Michael name will now carry more St. Michael's brand clothing.

Ray Young, manager of Belleville's four-floor store, said the store was not going out of business. "We are just changing our name. In time we will be selling only merchandise with the St. Michael's label," he said.

Mr. Young said the prices of this brand of clothing will also be lower since the clothes will eventually be Canadian produced to Marks and Spencers specifications.

St. Michael brand goods have been available in Canada, from Britain since 1972.

The Walker's store now is phasing out some departments — cards, gift wrapping paper, records, giftware, bedding and material and infant furniture. The top floor will eventually be closed and no plans have yet been made for its redesign, he said.

Mr. Young, manager since 1973, said there is no threat of employee layoffs. "Everyone here will have a job," he said.

Walker's has carried some St. Michael's clothing since 1972.

Youth Killed by OPP Officer

A spokesman for Ontario Provincial Police in Gananoque, said Saturday a 16-year-old youth was accidentally shot and killed by an OPP officer.

Salvatore Giovani, of 1503 Mary-Clare St., La Salle, Quebec, was shot while an unidentified OPP officer carried out an investigation of a car that was parked on the shoulder of Highway 401 east of Gananoque, police say.

The youth was travelling with a companion.

Police have not released the name of the constable involved.

The spokesman said an investigation, headed by Detective Inspector M. K. McMaster of the Criminal Investigations Branch is under way.

300 Attend Museum's First Activities Day

Turkey dinners and family get-togethers are just the only ways of celebrating Thanksgiving as the staff of Ameliasburg Museum demonstrated Sunday.

The Museum spent last week in preparation for the Activity Day - the first of an annual event, where people can browse outside and watch antique engines, cars, fire trucks and crackling utensils in motion.

And more than 200 people did just that. Displays of fall harvest, apple coring machines, and a machine drilling apples with a loud chug chugging sound drew the large crowd.

And the museum, in order to stress the original idea of Thanksgiving, handed out a variety of crunchy apples for the pleasure of young and old alike.

Pedestrian Attacked

A Belleville man was charged with robbery with violence by Belleville Police early Sunday morning after a man demanded money from 68-year-old Oswald Bell of Coleman St.

Charged is Ronald Gordon Duetta, 20, of 38 College St.

Police say Mr. Bell was walking on North Front St., when he was approached by a man who struck and kicked him and later fled when several people stopped at the scene.

Mr. Bell sustained bruises to his face and was treated and released from Belleville General Hospital.

Homes for Some Refugees in Canada But Others En Route Home to Vietnam

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

What has happened to the 130,000 Vietnamese refugees we were reading about on the front pages a few months ago as they fled their homeland and attempted a new life in the United States?

According to the head of President Ford's Interagency Task Force for Indochina Refugees, about 100,000 have been resettled from the camps hastily set up for them last spring.

But another 25,000 remain in those camps and about 6,000 have left for new homes in Canada, chiefly in French-speaking Quebec and in France.

And another handful—about 3,000—are on their way home in a troughship, the Vietnamese Communist authorities in Saigon will permit it to land at the port.

In the United States resettlement is based on availability of sponsors, with these resettling private and concerned American families who are mainly not of Vietnamese origin, and many church and social service groups.

The ones who want to go home mainly are those who unwillingly swept up in the last minute chaos of the fall of the old South Vietnamese Thieu regime and the general confusion of their many American bosses in business and the U.S. embassy in moving out everyone near the end.

Others are the old and very old who agreed to leave with their families, but for whom there can never be assimilation in North American society.

Interpreted in any official way other than the many press reports, must be the anglish, analgia and rootlessness cultural gaps which this exodus has created, and sometimes will not fade even though the new life with well-meaning, humanitarian sponsors and employers has begun.

The Vietnamese exodus bears strong reference to the Cubans one of a few years ago, although that larger exodus did not take place at one time, but over the period of almost 10 years.

What is important in the two similar exodusses is that they represent a section of a society basically alien to the American one, who were indoctrinated with American values of doing business and functioning profession and who were indoctrinated English as their second language.

This comparison should not be overdone, since among the many Americanized families of both Cuban and Vietnamese ethnic communities were members who had not been indoctrinated, like mothers, grandfathers or grandmothers, and who speak no English and never will.

But the basic "cultualization" had taken place earlier in their homelands, making this kind of exile homesickness or lonhar, anathema to the Marxist systems here but with little strong and determined opposition to the American way-of-life.

This kind of harsh reaction is still taking place where Cuban leaders of the revolution are concerned. Cuban Vice Prime Minister Dr. Carlos Rafael Rodriguez, one of Cuba's oldtime Communist party members and intellectuals, was asked in Ottawa a few day ago if executives of pre-Castro Cuba and the technocrats of Castro's regime could ever work together.

"As for the old Cuban executive, I don't think the devil can change himself into a saint, rather do I think these executives can understand socialism," he told your columnist in an interview.

"The new Communist leaders of South Vietnam have said 'yes' to the return of members of the old civil service, armed forces and business, but only if they are prepared to go through, and accept the Communist Chinese style, heavy personal indoctrination into the new order.

To Work by Boat

Imagine a commuter-boat service to Belleville up and down the Bay of Quinte. Or one by hovercraft.

Perhaps that is as far as it might get — into the realm of imagination, like the concept of a revival of the boat services of an earlier time to places such as Rochester and Oswego.

It could operate only in spring through summer and fall before the freeze-up, but then that is the fate of most tourist operations not geared to winter activity as well.

In any event no one seems to be taking any chances along these lines, and this is not the first time we have mentioned the idea.

Farther south the idea could be more viable. It's being tried in Boston, culminating 15 years of trying to bring commuter-boat service to the South Shore. It's a risk though, as Thomas Watterson points out in The Christian Science Monitor. He quotes officials as saying unless South Shore residents get in the habit of riding the winterized M/V Provincetown to and from work in Boston, the two-month experiment could mark the end as well as the beginning of commuter-boating.

Reactions were interesting. "It sure beats the expressway," said a salesman. "The only problem I would have is time," he added, commenting on the 8.20 a.m. arrival time at Boston's Long Wharf and the 5.30 p.m. departure time for Hingham.

It would be nice to envisage success: there would be the relaxing trip, a chance to strike up new acquaintances, and refreshments are available — coffee, orange juice, sweet rolls.

The boat's operator estimates he will need about 200 round-trip passengers a day to "break even" and keep the boat running. If successful, officials look to additional boats and a Rhode Island hovercraft firm has in mind a vehicle that could make the trip in about 20 minutes. That might make the salesman happy but it could take some of the fun out of the trip too.

Anyone for commuting to Belleville by boat from Trenton and Deseronto?

Right To Governs Is Emphasized

Kingston Whig-Standard

Britain has tried long, nobly and with great patience to bring a solution to the problems of Northern Ireland. How long will it take her to realize that she no longer has any business there, with or without "invitation? The people of Northern Ireland have demonstrated in a most obvious way that they are a people apart, just as the East Indians and the Canadians and the South Africans and the people of the United States have done.

The time has now come, surely, to admit that mistakes were given in the past and undertakings made that should never have been made and cannot be held binding on a latter generation. It is no longer feasible to govern Ulster from Whitehall. It should be governed by Irishmen from Belfast who have been democratically elected by the people of Northern Ireland. How they do it is their own affair.

Oh Well...What's A Little Bite ?

Our nomination for quote of the year goes to Ministry of Natural Resources spokesman Ken Loftus, commenting on high levels of dangerous chemicals found in coho salmon at the mouth of the Credit River.

"There's still nothing wrong with catching coho. It's the eating you have to be careful of..."

That's like saying the fall from a 50-storey building won't hurt you. It's the sudden stop when you reach the ground.

On Keeping Fit

It's a climate of extremes in this part of Ontario and in summertime at least it is responsible in large part for the "tired feeling" that afflicts so many people.

They are the folk who, while enjoying the Indian summer well enough, come really alive with the frigid temperatures of winter.

The medical columns we leave to the experts, yet a few laymen observations may be of interest.

Take the old bogey of colds — an all-weather problem, but especially so as the seasons change.

One fellow who last winter had what he considered one of his worst colds ever — cough and sniffles and ugh, when would it ever end? — has not had one since.

What's his secret? Well, he now has oranges on a regular basis, and the occasional vitamin pill. So far, no colds. No visits to the doctor.

The same individual gave up smoking some years ago, with similar benefit to his general health.

One observation about smoking of late which made a lot of sense, was that even if its worst consequences, such as cancer, are somehow avoided, it still has a debilitating effect.

Or as one medical observer noted in his column recently: "You would be surprised how many people develop more energy by stopping cigarett smoking."

There is probably nothing so depressing as chronic fatigue, which may be as much psychological in origin as anything else, although that again is something for the doctor and any tests he may prescribe, to determine.

Exercise of course is another factor, which without overdoing it, is vital to good health, to quate rest too, and proper diet. All in all, it is no more than adherence to common sense principles.

"But Mr. Allmand, you're out of touch with the times!"

MPPs Are Cut Down to Size in Legislature

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — The next few weeks will be shake-down time here.

There are more than 40 rookie members in the new house, and in the period between now and the opening of the session Oct. 28 they will be drilling in and feeling their way around their new home away from home.

And for a good many of them it will not only be a shake-down but a let-down.

One of life's great traumatic experiences is to go through an exciting election campaign, to win and be a very much anointed citizen in one's local community, generally for the moment at least, a pretty big shot, then with head high and a spirit of triumph to enter the forum in which you are to be so devastating and so masterly. And then go climb.

Overnight there is a transformation from a hero to a cog. One cog in a large machine.

Few except in the rare instance when new members of the government side may be taken into the cabinet (as Roy McMurtry and Dr. Bette Stephenson have been) or if in opposition become critics of a major ministry probably through specialized background, a new member here faces a very disillusioning experience.

He or she finds that the main job is to sit, and sit and sit. And then to spend long hours in the office answering mail and trying to sort out problems for constituents; mothers allowances, compensation board cases and what have you.

Coming down to earth can be quite horrible.

I wonder, for example, just how Mel Swart, who won Welland for the NDP, and is rated as one of the better newcomers, is making out.

A few days after he was elected Mr. Swart gave an interview to the Welland Tribune and you could practically taste his drive—and potential disillusionment.

He was going to get in touch with the chairman of the Labor Relations Board to get a "factfinder" appointed for an Abitibi strike; he was going to set up an appointment with the transportation minister to get a bridge repaired, as the official opposition, he said, his party now would be able to introduce legislation, bills and proposals and the Liberal party would have to decide whether they agreed with it; and, he said, he "will use reason, be forceful and persistent in getting things done for the riding."

Brave words. But Mr. Swart by now has probably found out that it is the minister of labor who intervenes in labor disputes and he may not find he will have been able to get to him. That his bridge is probably as far away as it ever was, that his party has always been able "to introduce legislation, bills and proposals," and that it is one thing to be forceful and persistent and another to get someone to listen and act.

Whither Education ?

Editor:
The Intelligencer:

A study of news reports show that much of our lives, especially those of the young generation has been influenced by poor quality programs and television programs produced for us by certain individuals at the box office or of the TV.

Moreover, young people see their parents live for pleasure, prestige and for making money. Sums of money are spent on them on education for a few years in the business world, but seldom anything to prepare them for the spiritual and for life in eternity. So they are reacting against the hypocrisy of their upbringing and while searching for a meaning to life, are often straying in the wrong direction.

Schools are of little help. The system will not allow them to be taught about God, but will educate them against God in spite of protestations by eminent scientists the textbooks are full of pseudo-scientific slams at the belief in a Living God.

Having lived in and attended school under Communism myself, I find their officially atheistic philosophy differing only slightly from our own materialistic humanism in classroom theory.

Ontario texts give only the atheistic account of creation.

In direct opposition to the theory of evolution is found an interesting bit of reading in the writings of a well known educator, Dr. P. Wilson, MD., professor of psychiatry at Duke University Medical Center, Durham N.C.

Here are some excerpts:

"As professor of psychiatry and Chief of electroencephalography for 25 years about a third of the time and practice a great deal. There are so many messed-up people in the world today that I can't help. Doing research in Christian experienced I was impressed with what Conversion achieves.

One day I was doing research for a book on anxiety that I had begun writing, and while reading W. James "Varieties of Re ligious Experiences", I realized that I had been 'saved'.

Life has meaning now. I have something to work for. To glorify God is the one great goal in my life."

Check Those Freezer-food Plans but Even Then It May Not Be Cheaper

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

With each new job in the price of food, more families decide that they will beat the system by getting a food freezer.

The plan is to buy food supplies in bulk, at a saving, and keep them frozen until they are needed.

Sometimes freezer-food plans lead to genuine savings—but not always.

"Freezer-food plans generally provide a saving only over a period of years if followed to the letter," says the Better Business Bureau (BB) of Canada.

"This means reducing impulse buying and constant trips to the market. It also means bulk purchases under contract."

Freezer-food plans require a good deal of trust on the part of the consumer, who is paying in advance for items that will be delivered at some future time.

It is important then, to deal with a reliable company.

The BBB suggests that prospective buyers try to find a dealer willing to show how much edible meat, bone and fat will be delivered. He should be prepared to guarantee satisfaction in writing—either by replacing the product or refunding the money paid.

It's up to the consumer to decide whether the family's individual circumstances warrant the purchase or lease of a freezer and, if so, what model.

Family meal requirements should be fairly stable if you are to be able to plan ahead and thus make the best use of a freezer-food plan.

If they are stable then the choice of the freezer itself deserves a good deal of thought.

Consider such basic points as whether the capacity corresponds to your needs, whether it is small enough to pass through your doorways, halls and stairways, and whether it will require special heavy-duty wiring.

Special attention must be given to the contract with the finance company, the BBB points out. Know the full amount of your financial obligation, length of the finance contract, and interest rates—and whether you will be charged extra for delivery, installation, wiring, "membership fee" and the like.

Distinguish between food payments and freezer payments so that you will know how much is being applied to the cost of the freezer each month.

Freezer-food plan advertising may trumpet "wholesale" prices. But, says the BBB, reliable dealers will not claim to offer wholesale prices, and savings can only be realized through using a reliable company . . .

"You are entering into a retail transaction and the seller's prices must reflect the cost of doing business at retail."

One major source of misunderstanding in freezer-food plans is the advertised price of meat which usually sounds much cheaper than meat bought at the butcher counter.

However, the price per pound is based on the purchase of a side, half or quarter of beef, and is therefore the same for the less desirable cuts as it is for the better cuts.

As an example, the BBB says that a consumer buying a 500-pound carcass would receive about 477 pounds (81 per cent) edible meat—of which 199 pounds (20 per cent) would be hamburger and stewing beef.

A prospective purchaser could get some idea of the cost of freezer-food-plan meat by asking for a current price list, adjusting for the unusable weight and comparing the result with current retail prices.

The cost would be substantial if the investment in a freezer is to be justified.

Oktoberfest So Popular Residents Turned Away

By RON HUSER

FRANKFORD — People were being turned away at the door, as the fourth annual Frankford Lions Club Oktoberfest Saturday, held at the Frankford Community Gardens.

With about 1,000 people in attendance, Lions Club president Harry Wickson said the event was a success. Mr. Wickson said the club had to turn away so many people, he plans to suggest the extension of the Oktoberfest to two days, instead of one night.

There were no problems throughout the evening, said Brian Coxwell, chairman of the Oktoberfest committee. "The response of the people has been tremendous, but we've had to turn back some people unfortunately."

People were lining up from 5.30 p.m. to get in when the doors opened at 7 p.m., said Mr. Coxwell.

There was continuous music from two bands, Martin Heyman and his Orchestra, and the Ambassadors, starting at 8 p.m.

Proceeds from the Oktoberfest will be going to help improve the conditions of the arena, with the installation of poli-board tempered glass around the ice surface, and renovations to the change rooms.

Roll Out the Barrel

About 1,000 people attended the Frankford Lions Club Oktoberfest at the Frankford Community Gardens, Saturday. Club owner, Max Johnston is being served by Catherine Smith who helped make the Oktoberfest run smoothly.

County Museum to Mark Christmas with Giant Display

By MARG HAYLOCK

PICTON — The 12 days of Christmas will be celebrated at the Prince Edward County Museum with a festive display of 2,000 gifts from the community.

Curator James Gooding said Monday that more than 2,000 gifts and loans were received by the museum in 1975 and all of them will be exhibited during the Christmas holidays. He noted that one donation including over 1,000 documents.

Mr. Gooding observed the County Museum now is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. each Tuesday through Saturday and during the winter months there will be several special Sunday programs including a tour of the Macaulay House.

The 17th annual juried exhibition of the East Central Ontario Art Association will open at the museum on Saturday, Nov. 1 at 8.30 p.m. and special Sunday opening will be held on Nov. 2 and 9 in conjunction with this display. The art work will remain at the museum until Nov. 14.

The curator said exhibits at the museum this winter will be basically the same as last summer's displays but a revitalization of second floor displays is planned. New show cases will be introduced and a textiles exhibit organized featuring new coverlets, blankets, woven material and a spinning wheel from the Rose House in North Marysburg.

Textile specialist and commercial weaver John Hazard of Ottawa will assist in restoration of the loom at the museu. Mr. Hazard is advisor and consultant to the National Museum.

The curator observed that the museum board expects to meet with restoration architect Peter Stokes in the next 10 days to develop a plan of operation for work at Macaulay House, the old church rectory adjacent to the museum.

Mr. Gooding added the museum is seeking donation of a barn to house craft exhibits and to serve as a centre for workshops.

"Something with solid timbers is needed and enough wood to sheet it," he said.

If I Had a Hammer

Curator of the Prince Edward County Museum, James Gooding finds it slow work to drive wooden pegs into a barn timber with this wooden mallet discovered during restoration of the old Church of St. Mary Magdalene. The timber and the tools are a popular display at the museum which remains open Tuesday through Saturday during the fall and winter months.

Ceramics: More and More People Expressing Themselves with Clay

TRENTON — Ceramics is one of the newest and fastest growing hobbies in Canada says Shirley Forward, owner and operator of Shirley's Ceramic Studio.

"You can really express yourself in ceramics," says Mrs. Forward.

Individualism can be brought out she says. "You can have ten people working from the same mold and have ten completely different finished items. It's how you want to do it."

Her studio not only supplies the materials needed, but Mrs. Forward has also started instructions in basic ceramics.

"The response has been good for the classes." Offering three classes for a period of six weeks, Mrs. Forward says she hopes to begin advanced courses for the graduates.

Mrs. Forward was an instructor in Summerside P.E.I. where her husband was stationed with the air force. She taught ceramics in Summerside for four years. When her husband was transferred to Trenton, Mrs. Ferward had 400 students taking instruction.

"Last year I taught in two schools in Belleville. Children in the area of 10 to 14 have a lot of talent which they seem to apply in a hobby like this," she says.

Ceramics is an expensive hobby but it can be used to get the investment out of it, she says. It can bring personal satisfaction when you see the final product.

Since the studio opened Oct. 2, there have been people come from as far away as Stirling, Belleville, and Frankford to buy supplies, she says. "Most of the outlets are in Toronto, and that's a long way to get supplies."

Mrs. Forward teaches her 26 students in the store Monday afternoon, Wednesday morning and Friday nights. The course is for six weeks with one, two hour session a week. SOPHIASBURG — A Toronto area man escaped serious injury on Monday when his car went out of control on a curve on a Sophiasburg township road causing an estimated $1,800 damage.

Police say Lawrence Fowler, 22, of 1276 York Mills Rd., Don Mills, was southbound on the township road, just north of the junction of county road 25 when he failed to negotiate a curve. The car entered the south ditch, sheared off 144 feet of fencing.

Damage to the car was estimated at $1,600 and property damage at $200.

Fowler was taken to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital where he was treated for cuts and bruises.

He was charged with failure to report an accident.

CONSERVE ENERGY

9 ways to conserve energy and save money in the big "hot water" areas of your home.

Apart from home heating, a family usually consumes the most energy in producing hot water. So it makes good sense to follow these energy-saving tips—whether your water heater is gas, oil or electric.

The Bathroom
• Showers usually take less hot water than baths. Since baths and showers account for about 40% of home hot water use, taking showers can offer considerable savings.
• When you turn off a hot water tap, make sure it doesn't drip. If it does, it probably needs a new washer.
• More frequent use of the sink plug can prevent a lot of unused hot water from going down the drain.

The Laundry Room
• Always match the amount of hot water you put in your washer to the size of the load.
• Whenever possible use cold water for rinsing.

The Hot Water Tank
• Long runs of hot water pipe should be well insulated—especially in unheated areas.
• Switch off your electric water heater when going on vacation.

The Kitchen
• Using too much detergent to wash dishes can waste hot water in extra rinsing.
• If you use a dishwasher, wait until you have a full load.

The Cascade water heater will give you a dependable supply of hot water, but it is up to you to use it wisely. If we each save a little, we'll all save a lot.

Indians Regard Manual Labor as Undignified

BOMBAY (CP) — "Many educated people in India regard manual work as undignified," lamented an editorial in the influential Bombay Times.

The Times went on to say that educated Indians would rather earn 200 rupees ($25) a month as a clerk than three times as much by becoming a mechanic.

Recently, Indian newspapers prominently featured a story from Trivandrum City in the southern state of Kerala saying that several university graduates have become bus and truck drivers.

For a college graduate to earn his living by driving a truck is startlingly unusual in a society which rates a desk job as of far more importance than a manual one.

Says 29-year-old P. K. Poulose, a science graduate of Madras University and now a truck driver in Kerala, "As a high school teacher I earned a maximum of $75 a month. Now, I make $200 to $250 a month, depending on the number of hours of driving I put in."

Poulose said he is not looked down upon for being a truck driver.

"Things are changing. Six or 10 years ago I would not have dreamt of exchanging a teaching job for truck driving. The social climate is slowly improving at any rate in Kerala. I do not know about other parts of India."

But in many parts of India manual work still is rated as inferior to mental work. In Uttar Pradesh, the nation's largest state university graduates want only jobs in banks, large companies or the government.

Hem Bahuguna, chief minister of Uttar Pradesh, is deeply worried by the reluctance of educated young men to take up manual jobs. He thinks that this attitude cannot be changed through appeals but only by making a spell of manual labor compulsory for all high school and college students.

Fear of 13 Now Fading

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — There was a time when builders skipped from the 12th to the 14th floor, pretending that one floor just wasn't there. The conventional wisdom was that people wouldn't stay on a 13th floor.

Now many are designating their 13th floors as such, apparently believing that triskaidekaphobia, the fear of the number 13, is fading.

In the two years that the Crown Centre Hotel here, which has a designated 13th floor, has been open there have been no complaints. The management recently conducted a survey of guests who stayed on the 13th floor and couldn't find one frightened by that number.

There were three questions asked of the guests: Do you consider yourself superstitious? Do you think the number 13 is unlucky? Did anything occur during your stay that you attribute to having a room on the 12th floor?

Eight guests admitted they were superstitious. Two gave "maybe" answers to the second question. Only two answered "yes" to the third.

"This is the first trip I've been on that my baggage ended up somewhere else," explained one guest who felt the number 13 had done him in. "My bag was 22 hours late in catching up with me. For no apparent reason it ended up in Moline, Ill."

"If you believe in Christ as your savior, you don't have to be superstitious," was the advice from a guest in Room 1221.

One of the 13th-floor residents gave a piece of strong evidence that the number is losing its bad reputation. He said that he was "extremely" superstitious but didn't think 13 was unlucky. "Ask me later," a guest with an interest in numbers wrote on his questionnaire. "We're on our way to Las Vegas."

Quinte Cuisine

Although authentic Irish stew can only be made by an Irishman standing knee-deep in shamrocks, the next best thing is using an Irishman's own recipe. David Saunders, a Dubliner who teaches economics and advertising at Loyalist College, shares his own methods for making this hearty dish. Mr. Saunders is a newcomer to Belleville.

Irish Lamb Stew

Assemble:
two lbs. stewing lamb, cut into 1½-inch cubes. Dredge in flour heavily seasoned with pepper and salt.
Peel and slice to a transparent thickness:
two onions
Cut into pieces:
three lbs. potatoes.

Now get yourself a big pot, and start with a layer of potatoes to cover the bottom. Follow this with a layer of meat and a few slices of onion. Repeat this twice, ending with the potatoes on top. As you go, season each layer with pepper and salt.

Add:
one bay leaf.
Pour over the layers:
three cups of boiling water and add:
A handful of freshly-chopped parsley.

Bring to a boil, and then cover closely and simmer for about two and a half hours, or until a judiciously applied fork tells you that the meat is done.

Every now and again:
Shake the pot to ensure that the whole thing doesn't fuse into a ghastly slab.

Serve piping hot, preferably with new potatoes and diced turnips.

Call The Bluff

MONTREAL (CP) — Families of women drinkers should be told that when they protect the drinker they are actually destroying her, says Lorraine Racicot, a worker at a rehabilitation centre at La Prairie, Que. She also said women often can be stopped from drinking by getting those near to her calling her bluff. "It's either the bottle or me."

BRENT

The winning smile shows Brent is one of his delightful, relaxed moments. In contrast this nine-year-old often looks serious and worried.

Brent has had some unsettling experiences which have left him with fears and uncertainties about the future. He is in special need of warm, easy parents who can give him lots of love and encouragement while they help him believe he finally has a family to belong to.

Brent is a good-looking boy with big brown eyes and dark hair. Scanty information about his background reveals that his mother was Indian and his father may have been white. Brent is in good health. His glasses are for short sightedness.

Though Brent has the ability to be an average student in grade four, he says he doesn't like school and until recently homework was just something to be ignored. That's changed since the introduction of a new rule in his foster home that homework must be done before he can go out to play.

Never a discipline problem, Brent is easy to get along with at school and at home. He is on excellent terms with his classmates. He enjoys Sunday School. Swimming and bike riding are his favorite activities.

Brent is good at working with his hands. He gets pleasure out of various crafts, picking up the techniques quickly.

Brent hopes his adopting family will be cat lovers. He has a much treasured kitten, given to him in the hope of helping him develop a sense of responsibility. It worked. Besides loving the kitten, Brent is meticulous and conscientious about caring for it.

Parents who can not only give Brent their love but who will enjoy sharing activities with him, will find a charming, loveable son.

To inquire about adopting Brent, please write to Today's Child, Ministry of Community and Social Services, Box 888, Station K, Toronto M4P 3H2. In your letter please tell like school and until recently something about your present family and your way of life.

Fashion Imports

TORONTO (CP) — Clothes by Valentino opened the annual Holt Renfrew European import fashion show at the Hyatt Regency Hotel. Valentino's elegant simplicity was evident in a casual suede jacket and an ultra large daytime wrap dress, and for evening, a black chiffon with shoe string straps with matching kerchief scarf.

Holt Renfrew believes in the European approach to dressing, featuring good partawear and functional accessories. Perfume is now considered an accessory and a new scent by Estee Lauder, called Private Collection, was shown for the first time in Canada.

Other designers in the collection included San Lorenzo with a white flannel jumpsuit; Dior's floor-length white mink cape and Saint Laurent with a chiffon hankerchief gown.

Trend to Simple Life Helps Antique Sales

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Recent trends toward simpler lifestyles and good return on investments have helped the booming antique business.

Antique sales have been growing for several years but London-area dealers report business has never been better.

Natanis Gillies, owner of The Storehouse here, said young people have become more interested in history in recent years.

"Perhaps it's the result of the hippie movement," she said, "people are interested in a simpler way of life."

"Young people appreciate handmade furniture entirely made of wood. They like to hear stories about particular pieces and the feeling of history surrounding antiques."

Mrs. Gillies said inflation has not affected her sales but antiques are harder for dealers to get and the prices they pay are higher.

Helen Butler of nearby Stratford, who deals only in English period pieces and Orientals, said people are buying antiques for their decorative effect.

"Modern houses have been pared and simplified," she said. "Antiques and especially Orientals can stir up interest within a home, especially from a decorative point of view."

Debbie Harrison of Memories Antiques Boutique in London, noted that many people buy antiques as an investment and know that most items may double in value over a two-year period.

As well, antique buyers find that old furniture is better constructed than modern pieces.

Ken Sweetman, an employee in a furniture stripping and refurbishing company in nearby Belmont, said many people are bringing new furniture to the store for repairs within a year of purchase.

Although some new furniture may be poorly built, some antiques are not comfortable.

Over-Scheduling Annoys Patients

Dear Miss Landers: As a physician, may I comment on my colleague who blew his stack when his patient deducted $1.50 from her bill because she had to wait well beyond her appointment time? How often does this happen? If it occurs rarely, or if the wait is a short one, she should overlook it.

If it happens frequently, you can bet he has no interest in the patient or her medical problems. He is deliberately over-scheduling to keep the bucks rolling in. My advice is for her to find another doctor, not merely to save needless waiting time, but more importantly to make certain she is getting proper attention. Unfortunately physicians who overschedule also tend to under-treat.

Except for emergencies, even the most successful specialists keep their appointments if they are conscientious. Every good physician will confirm this.—A Physician

Dear Physician: I checked with three good physicians and they agreed. Read on, for a new angle.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm writing about that flap between the physician and the patient who was kept waiting for 2½ hours.

I'm surprised no one called your attention to the fact that it is not the physician who overschedules the patients, it's his nurse or receptionist.

I went to a doctor who always ran two or three hours late. It drove me crazy. When I heard his nurse schedule three people for the same time, I got smart and changed doctors. That was 10 years ago and I've never had to wait for more than 10 or 15 minutes since.

A few times the nurse has come to the waiting room to tell us the doctor was called out on an emergency. She offered to reschedule those who didn't care to wait. This certainly beats sitting around for two hours wondering what in the world is going on.

I hope I have shed a little light on the subject.—Mrs. K.

Dear Mrs. K.: So do I. Thanks for lifting the shade.

Girls Must Be Taught To Follow New Careers

OTTAWA (CP) — High school courses should be set up to teach female students how to cope with women's expanding roles, says Barbara Shields of the Ontario labor ministry's women's bureau.

"It's a mistaken assumption that all that's necessary is to expose high school girls to new career opportunities and then they'll jump at them," she said Thursday.

"We've got to teach them, through group situations, to peel away that old stereotyped layer and take a new look at themselves and their possibilities."

Miss Shields said female high school students regard women lawyers and doctors as curious pig pieces.

"It's so frustrating and disappointing when girls don't seem to be able to relate to career women."

She said she would like to see women's clubs, parents, and schools organize programs where young women can meet over a period of time and discuss each others expectations of life.

"And if after the discussion girls still opt for the conventional lifestyle, then at least they're choosing after being exposed to all the possibilities."

South Pacific Inhabitants See Countries Differently

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP) — It might sound like a song by Judy Garland, but in fact the lands of Oz and Godzone lie in the South Pacific.

Oz is short for Aussie, which in turn is short for Australia. Godzone is a rather sciffical reference to the habit of New Zealand politicians who talk of God's Own Country.

To the outsider, Oz and Godzone have so much in common as to be almost indistinguishable. To the inhabitants of the South Pacific, they are entirely different.

True, they are both English-speaking countries, predominantly inhabited by people of white race, outposts of European civilization on the outskirts of Asia. Aussies and Kiwis tend to stand together against the rest of the world when in foreign parts.

But in their own corner of the world they compete rather vehemently. Kiwis (named after the national bird, a nocturnal, flightless creature, which few New Zealanders have, ever seen), tend to think of Australians as city slickers, brash go-getters, with a barbarous accent. Outsiders find difficulty in distinguishing between the Australian and New Zealand accent, but New Zealand use of the term Oz amounts to an emphasis on the New Zealand interpretation of the pronun-

Smoker Turns Collector

VANCOUVER (CP)—Capt. George Claphew became a military memorabilia collector because he wasn't allowed to smoke.

He was laid up in a British Army hospital in 1946 with a large supply of cigarettes.

"I couldn't smoke because of my condition but I had a huge amount of cigarettes that had been sent to me from home during the war," said the 80-year-old resident of White Rock, 25 miles south of here.

"One day a Scotsman who was about to be discharged from the hospital asked if he could have some cigarettes. I said, 'Fine, take as many as you want; I can't use them,' so he took two packs but apologized because he had no money to pay for them.

"I said it wasn't necessary but the next morning I found his cap badge by my bed. Well, the story quickly got around the hospital about this Canadian who traded cigarettes for cap badges and by the time I left I had 25 badges."

After that, Capt. Claphew began to seek out badges and now he has more than 1,000, many of which were in a separate display at the annual convention of the Military Collectors Club of Canada in Vancouver.

Items displayed ranged from a 1914 British Army training manual to the dirk of the first commanding officer of the Canadian Seaforth Highlanders, and a brass dressing bowl used by Florence Nightingale at Scutari in the Crimean War of 1854-56.

Ron Penhall, the convention chairman, and an avid gallantry medal collector, said the $400,000 worth of displays at the convention came from 450 private collectors throughout North America.

He said collectors invariably specialize in one type of article—rifles, helmets, badges, medals, posters and other articles from a particular era.

ciation Ostrylia.

Australians, when they think of New Zealand at all, picture country similar to 50 years behind the times, and Australian indifference to New Zealand further provokes indignation in New Zealand.

Australia is far more highly industrialized than New Zealand, which still depends largely on primary production for its export income. It has about four times the population of New Zealand, which has only recently passed the three-million mark, and is much more cosmopolitan in its racial composition by virtue of heavy immigration of European peoples since the Second World War.

New Zealand, on the other hand, has a much larger infusion of brown-skinned Polynesian peoples. The native Maori race now numbers more than 250,000 and is increasing faster than the white population, and rapid immigration from the islands of the South Pacific is making the country the centre for development of race consciousness among the Polynesian peoples. Auckland, the largest city in New Zealand, is now is the largest Polynesian city, in the sense that it has more people of Polynesian race than any town in Samoa, Tonga, the Cook Islands or Hawaii.

Although both Australia and New Zealand are at present ruled by Labor governments, relations at the official level are by no means cordial.

Suggestions have often been made in the past for integration of the two countries, with New Zealand becoming a new state of Australia. But New Zealand politicians have repeatedly rejected the idea, declaring that there are 1,200 reasons against it—meaning the 1,200 miles across the Tasman Sea between Sydney and Auckland, the largest cities in the respective countries.

New Zealand resentment at the heavily adverse trade balance between the two countries has lately intensified. New Zealand buys about three times as much from Australia as it exports in the reverse direction.

The New Zealand deputy prime minister, Robert Tizard, recently declared after a trade tour abroad, that New Zealand would have to look elsewhere for basic imports. He suggested that an aggressive drive for alternatives would look first at Peru and the Philippines.

Trade relations between the two countries are governed by NAFTA—the New Zealand-Australia Free Trade Agreement, which establishes partial free trade over a wide range of commodities.

But New Zealand complains that Australia raises obstacles whenever New Zealand boosts imports in such lines as carpets and household appliances.

Australia retorts that New Zealand buys from it because its goods are more readily available and cheaper than from other sources and that any switch in buying would be to the New Zealand's disadvantage.

A high-level ministerial conference has lately reviewed the future of NAFTA and ministers from both countries have deprecated suggestions that the agreement might be scrapped.

The fact remains that relations between the two countries are somewhat testy. Until now citizens of both countries have been able to travel from one to another without passports. Australia recently sought approval for some sort of identity document. It claimed that criminal elements were misusing freedom of travel, and that migrants from other countries were able to gain illegal entry by transferring from one country to another.

New Zealand has spurned the idea and held out for continued freedom of movement without documents.

The lands of Oz and Godzone are not in fact some sort of cloud cuckoo-land but countries subject to the rivalries and frustrations of other parts of the world. But in spite of their differences they get along together better, perhaps, than most other neighbors in this imperfect world.

Old Chinese Learn English

VANCOUVER (CP) — "Good after . . . noon."

The words sing-song around the 16 elderly Chinese who sit with heads bowed towards notebooks in a dimly-lit back room in downtown Chinatown.

Some have been in Canada for 15 years before having their first English class.

If you don't know English, how do you complete a form for a senior citizen's bus pass? Or unemployment insurance? Or apply for housing? Or sign a rent contract?

The storefront drop-in centre has two bilingual Chinese women to assist clients, mostly Chinese residents baffled by officialdom.

"Perhaps for the first time they are told what forms are needed and how to fill them in," says Maggie Ip of the society that provides the teaching service.

"It's no exaggeration to say many elderly Chinese have remained in Chinatown for years because it is the only world around here they know."

The service is lightly called the Chinese Connection, and it was started in August, 1974, by a volunteer community organization, the United Chinese Community Enrichment Services Society.

Police at Vancouver Able to Communicate

VANCOUVER (CP) — A new communications system, already paid for by taxpayers, will be in operation by Oct. 1 and will give city police the equivalent of the best systems now operating in North America.

Staff Inspector Ken Cocke said the new system will introduce a 911 telephone number for all emergencies—police, fire and ambulance—and should give the caller a response within three seconds.

And, provided manpower can keep up with public demand, computer assistance and use of 10 new radio frequencies, police units will be dispatched to the scene in a fraction of the time previously required to answer a call.

A computer terminal, linked with the Canadian Police Information Centre of Ottawa, has been in operation at police area headquarters for more than two years.

Staff Inspector Cocke said a bottleneck developed through heavy use of the CPIC radio channel could, in the future, be done away with by installing terminals in police cruisers as in Oakland, Calif., and Kansas City.

He said this advance still is "down the road" and would require co-ordination with federal authorities for the development of compatible systems with other police departments.

However, Inspector Cocke said he can see the day when a police car can punch out the licence number of a vehicle he is following and have all the known information about the car and its owner appear almost instantaneously on his terminal screen.

Sixty mobile terminals that would be required by the city would cost about $2,000 or $3,500 each.

Superintendent Tom Herdman, in charge of the patrol division, said he is aware of fears about police control of a computer-operated central index but he could not foresee any need to gather or store more information than police legitimately have a right to know.

Unfortunately for taxpayers, alternatives to a faster, expensive computer operation may be either to pay for more police or accept a cut in service.

Newfoundland Claims Canada's Schweitzer

ST. ANTHONY, Nfld. (CP) — When Wilfred Grenfell first sailed along the rugged coast of northern Newfoundland and Labrador in 1892, many of the people he met had never seen a doctor before. Today, thousands of Newfoundlanders depend for medical services on the mission he began.

Perhaps because of Newfoundland's late entry into Confederation, the story of "Canada's Albert Schweitzer" is not well known in the other provinces.

Grenfell originally came to Labrador as a representative of a British organization, the Royal National Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen. He used a small sailing ship to travel from one fishing village to another, treating the sick, holding religious services and rushing the dangers he encountered.

His boat was carried, driven out to sea, many times nearly swamped, blown on the rocks and reported lost, but he continued to answer calls for help regardless of the weather.

"He clambers cheerfully on the bowsprit and keeps both eyes open," recorded one observer of the time. "As the Lord wills," he says, 'whether for wreck or service, I am about His business.' "

In winter he travelled on dog sled, covering up to 1,800 miles in a season.

Grenfell developed a strong affection for the Labrador landscape and people, which is evident in his many books and stories about his work.

"The harvesting of a field of grain is good to look on," he wrote on one occasion. "But I can think of no more stirring sight in all the world, no sight more quickly to melt a man's heart, more deeply to move him to love man and bless God, than the sight of the Labrador fleet beating home loaded—bed done, dangers past; the home port at the end of a run with a fair wind."

To publicize the almost impossibly difficult living conditions in the northern Newfoundland, Grenfell conducted lecture tours in the United States, Canada and Britain. As a result, supporting associations were formed in these countries. Scores of young people volunteered to work for the mission without pay.

Sir Donald Smith, then president of Canadian Pacific Railway, donated a specially-fitted hospital steamer.

By 1900 several hospitals had been built, Grenfell began to enter new fields of activity. He established an orphanage, a school and a chain of co-operative stores.

Many of Grenfell's enterprises did not succeed, but he became known as a great humanitarian, and in 1927 was knighted by King George V. He died in 1935.

Today his work is carried on by the International Grenfell Association, a non-profit organization, with headquarters at St. Anthony on the northern tip of Newfoundland. It is composed of five supporting associations, and operates a network of four hospitals and 13 nursing stations, as well as several aircraft.

"We want to help you save."

"So, we're introducing our new Red, White and Blue plan with lower Red and White fares."
Effective October 26

Here's what we've done. We've kept the famous Red, White and Blue system which offers savings when you travel at off-peak periods.

We've eliminated incentives for some people (youth and family plans), so we could lower all Red and White fares for everyone! Blue fares are basically unchanged. The 65-Plus fare discount still applies, as do attractive rates for groups.

We've changed the basis of peak and off-peak travel within the territory between Quebec City and Windsor/Sarnia from day of the week to hour of the day. Now you save by the clock instead of the calendar.

We've left the basic system unchanged for Transcontinental, Maritimes and other long-distance trains.

To explain the plan in detail, we've designed a new "travel savings calendar." It shows you how to travel when trains are less crowded, and save.

Pick up the new Red, White and Blue folder from your Travel Agent or CN Passenger Sales Office. And plan to save with CN.

Canadian Telescope Sits Atop Volcano

OTTAWA (CP) — When Science Minister Drury visits Hawaii this month he plans to tour a little piece of Canada that's perched atop a volcano each Hawaii telescope.

Rising 14,000 feet above sea level on the main island of Hawaii, the now-extinct Mauna Kea volcano offers astronomers a telescope site free from smog and air turbulence.

However, it will be 1978 before astronomers can use the telescope to begin unlocking some of the mysteries of the universe.

Three years alone will be spent grinding its $800,000 14-inch mirror at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory in Victoria. It is high-precision work that requires accuracy within a small fraction of the wavelength of light—one-millionth of an inch.

"This project will give Canadian astronomers the use of a telescope four times stronger than any existing Canadian telescope," said Dr. Jack Locke, head of the National Research Council's Herzberg Institute of Astrophysics.

In an interview, Dr. Locke said that the telescope, with its 144-inch mirror, is definitely one of the world's larger telescopes although bigger ones exist in Russia and the United States.

The telescope's high altitude will allow astronomers the benefit of a clean, thin atmosphere, but paradoxically this advantage poses a problem—altitude sickness.

Astronomers unaccustomed to the thin air often suffer headaches, dizziness, nausea and extreme sleepiness. Bottles of oxygen at the site will alleviate some of the symptoms but NRC officials feel the inconvenience well worth the effort.

Because the low humidity at the summit dries nose and throat passages, making sleep difficult, NRC has built a mid-elevation building at the 9,000-foot level of the volcano for study, eating and sleeping.

Most of the sky will be visible to the astronomers with the new telescope which is expected to provide 2,800 hours of viewing a year.

Napanee Comets Slip Past Terriers

NAPANEE — The Napanee Comets opened their home Ontario Hockey Association Senior A schedule in thrilling fashion on Sunday afternoon with a slim 4-3 win over the visiting Orillia Terriers.

Charlie Convery and Jim Sunstrum exploded to score the winning goal for the Comets with only 13 seconds remaining in regulation time. Sunstrum made the play dragging the puck in behind the Orillia Terriers' net and then feeding a perfect pass to Convery who was waiting in the slot to count the winner for Napanee.

For the Comets it was their second game of the season and it was a measure of revenge over the Orillia squad who had slipped one by the Comets on Friday in the season opener by a 2-1 score in Orillia.

It was a see-saw battle right from the start and for most of the game the local team could not buy a goal from netminder Ted Lennsen of Orillia. Lennsen looked extremely sharp over the course of the game and he had that little bit of "goalie's luck" which came in the form of goal posts and bouncing pucks.

"We missed all the good chances and on three of the goals we did score they bounced on us," commented happy Napanee coach Walter Gerow. Brian Coughlin's tying goal came in the third period at the 17 minute mark as the Orillia goalie misplayed a weak shot that went off his skate and into the net.

Orillia scored the only goal in the first skating, hard hitting first period that was very much an indication of things to come in the remainder of the contest. The Comets sporting several new faces in the line up looked very sharp on their passing plays and showed good form in moving the puck out of their own end.

Steve Rene playing his second game in a Napanee uniform looked in fine form. Rene although not tested as much as his counterpart at the other end of the ice was very effective on the close in attempts and especially in the middle ice of the third period.

Napanee continued to carry the play to the Terriers in the second period outscoring the visitors 2-1. Al Garrison opened the scoring for Napanee with his quick wrist shot that beat the Terrier goalie to his glove side.

John Hartwick scored the only other Comet goal in the second period, that one resulting off a stick of an Orillia defenceman in front of the goal.

Convery picked up two assists for the local team on his goal with Hartwick also picking up a helper on Garrison's mark.

The game although very hard hitting at times was relatively clean as referee Don Goodridge handed out only four minors.

Danny Lates, Colin Gordon and Dave McCullagh counted for the Terriers.

Napanee received bad news after Friday's game in Orillia as Mike Flanigan of the Comets will be missing for a few weeks with a broken wrist.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, TUESDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1975

Napanee Comets Pete Fleming (left) and Gary Hart (right) watch anxiously for any sign of a rebound that Orillia Terrier goalie, Ten Lansen might give up in Sunday's Ontario Senior "A" contest between the Comets and Terriers in Napanee. It was the second game of the season for both clubs as the home team scored a 4-3 win picking up the winning goal with only 13 seconds remaining in the game.

Gas House Hockey

Bob's Sports Sharp

Bob's Sports, comprised of the 1974-75 Gas House Hockey League champions, won their second game in as many starts Monday night and have yet to have a goal scored against them Belleville Yardmen were their most recent victims as they came out on the empty end of a 2-0 score.

In other GHHL action, Rollins Lumber hockey Constitution Carpets their second straight setback 6-2 and Bel-Con Engineering upset Bayview Orchards 2-1.

Vern Whalen, Mr. Sinsy throughout last year's campaign, recorded the shutout. He was also between the posts for the initial shutout.

Dave Middleton and Charlie Bowbatchum provided him with all the firepower he needed. The victory gives Bob's a share of first place with undefeated Chuckwagon.

Warren Moriarty led the Bollins attack with two goals and an assist. Mike Jones, Vic McLean, Sandy Carrick, Dale Tummon and Ron McTaggart each scored once. McTaggart also collected a pair of assists.

Constellation got a goal each from Ron Mitchell and Bill Yull.

Bollins is now in second place in the 11 team loop with a win and a tie.

Bayview Orchards, made up of last year's second place finishers, suffered their setback at the hands of first year entry Bel-Con.

Joe Miller, a rookie in the Gas House League, was the key to the Engineers win as he stood firm on the goal line.

Rob Foster, Paul McLellan and Richard Reid were the marksmen for the winners. George Jacklin did all the scoring for Bayview.

3 Tourneys Planned

The Belleville Minor Hockey Association, in conjunction with other groups in this city will host three tournaments over the 1975-76 hockey season.

The tournoys will not only give Belleville players a chance to compete against tough opposition, they will also prove just how popular these tournaments have become.

Running this year's tourneys is Don Gayer, who has done so for the past few years. Gayer hopes that fan support will be strong for all three events since, as he put it, "the best hockey anyone is likely to see in town will be played at these tournaments."

First on the list is the Belleville Lions Club Midget Tournament, to be held November 21-22. The tourney could be a big one for the Midgets since only top clubs will be invited. It should be a prelude to the Wrigleys' Tournament, the most important midget tournament in North America.

Among the teams competing will be Verdun, Quebec, one of the finest midget hockey teams in Canada. Barrie will be attending. The team represented Canada in Russia last year as winners of the Wrigley Tournament. Also attending the Lions Tournament will be Burlington, Oshawa, Kingston, Cornwall and Ottawa and others. To add to that, Belleville is expected to have one of its better midget teams this year.

The next tournament will be Peewee Tournament, April 2, 3 and 4. This event has become one of the more famous in Ontario.

Already two teams from the United States and one from Quebec have requested acceptance to the tourney.

The peewee tournament has become an invitational, with over 36 entries last year.

Murphy Leads Team

Eighteen-year-old Terry Murphy of Belleville picked up a first place medal on the weekend to lead his Ontario Weightlifting club to a 97-57 total points win over the Quebec Weightlifting team in Woodstock.

Murphy lifted five of his six attempts with three tries for each weight and managed to beat out his nearest competitor by six pounds in the 148-pound division. Murphy lifted a total of 440 pounds in his best lift. He snatched 192 pounds and clean and jerked 248 pounds.

A third team supposed to take part in the annual event from Michigan did not show for the Belcats competition.

Each team was made up of nine lifters with points awarded for the top three finishers. Murphy outlifted three other competitors to score the first place win.

Huskies Drop Second

COBOURG (Special) — Frankford Huskies, after a relatively successful exhibition schedule, had a rather dismal opening weekend in regular season action. The Huskies lost their first game Friday, but to add to their troubles dropped a 9-4 decision to the home town, Cougars Monday night in Southern Ontario Junior C play.

Frankford opened the scoring in each of the three periods, but that was as far as getting off on the right foot went.

Ken Just put the Huskies ahead 1-0 in the first frame on a pass play with Paul Boland and Sandy Waterson. However, by the end of the opening 20 minutes the visitors were behind 3-1. Ron MacDonald, Gary Oliver and Randy Fife were the Cougar markmen.

In the second, Brian MacKinnon joined Frankford to within a goal of the home squad, but that too was short lived. Rick Matheson and Rob Arbuckle drew assists.

Mike Ryan, Ian Williams, Bill Whiteleaf and Fife gave Cobourg a 7-2 lead at the end of the second period.

Frankford opened the scoring again in the third when Matheson tallied from Boland and Dale MacKintosh.

Oliver and Whiteleaf each scored their second goals of the evening to put the Cougars in front 9-3 and Dale Mackintosh rounded out the game's scoring late in the third period. Arbuckle and Matheson earned the helpers.

The Huskies take to the ice again Sunday at 7 p.m. in Port Perry.

Young Legs Do It For the Lancers

Loyalist College was the site of the Annual Loyalist Old Boys Game featuring the stars of yesterday against the current team on Saturday as the Lancers continue to prepare for the upcoming season. Despite a late second half rally the Old Boys fell victim to younger legs, losing by an 81-73 margin.

Featured for the Old Boys in Saturday's game were Bill Kyle, Gary Lynch and John Smith to mention just a few. Kyle 1-1 the attack for the losers bringing a total of 17 points. Rich Webster, Smith and Ted MacDonald each counted six points in the loss while Bob Hicks, displaying good form counted eight points to round off their major scoring.

Dave Cumber, looking extremely sharp for the Lancers led their scoring with 25 point performance in the game. Most of Cumber's points came in the second half of play.

The Lancers this season are playing with only two returnees from last year's club and from appearances Cumber, one of the two, is emerging as a strong leader for the club.

Newcomers Mike Lynch and Chris Kennedy also looked good, picking up 11 and 12 points respectively.

Loyalist has several exhibition games left in which to sharpen up. The Lancers will play a pair of games beginning Friday with a game against the Niagara College and then another one on Saturday when Mohawk College will host Loyalist.

Hellenic Takes Cup On Extra-time Goal

Quinte Hellenic pulled out a 5-1 win in extra time to capture the Bob Dunbar Charity Cup, sequenting past a determined Trenton team in a nance team, Sunday, at Sir James Whitney School.

Citizens appeared to have the Cup Final wrapped up when they carried a 1-0 lead into the final minute of regulation play. But with only 20 seconds left, Hellenic's Dave Langman equalized.

Trenton's Jim McDonald had opened the scoring in the game with 20 minutes played. He connected again in the second half. Dave Langman had called back.

Dave Langman put the teams on even terms. Nelsen Adjedej fired the winner in the overtime.

The losers went the distance with only 16 men.

Sandy Dunbar, Hellenic centre half, was a standout for the winners.

Goalies Sodenberg and McDonald were the pick of the Trenton team.

Showdown Even at 1-1

Series Moves to Cinci And Reds Optimistic

CINCINNATI (AP) — The track will be fast and clear for tonight's third World Series baseball game and Cincinnati's thoroughbreds intend to run Boston Red Sox right out of Riverfront Stadium.

"Everything's different now," said Joe Morgan. "Playing at home is going to make all the difference in the world for us."

At no time in recent World Series history has the home field advantage or weather conditions meant as much as in this one.

The Red Sox, although they lost the second game 3-2 on Sunday after winning Friday's opening game 6-0, had a distinct advantage in their own Fenway Park. Now, they have an obvious disadvantage at Riverfront.

"The ball park had a lot to do with our performance," said Morgan, pointing to a meagre total of three runs and a .188 team batting average in the two games.

The Reds, accustomed to their springy artificial turf at home, were slowed in a crawl by Fenway's much slower natural grass, and Boston heavy rains that bothered their famed running game.

Also, there was the psychological disadvantage of a "wall" called "The Green Monster," the close left field wall that just always ate our minds. Now that we're at Riverfront Stadium, it's going to make a big difference the way our hitters attack the ball. You'll see different hitting.

The American League champion Red Sox, despite Morgan's warning, feel they'll be ready, willing and able to play in the home park of the National League kings.

On Sunday, the Reds used their running experience and pat fine relief pitching to come from behind with a clutch ninth inning rally for their 3-2 win.

It was Dave Concepcion's two-out single in the ninth that drove home Johnny Bench with the tying run and Concepcion's theft of second base—the first steal of the series for the speedy Reds—that set up the winning run on Ken Griffey's double.

And it was flawless relief pitching by Pedro Borbon. Will McEnaney and Rawly Eastwick that kept the Reds close enough to stage their last-gasp comeback.

The Reds were trailing 2-1 going into the ninth with Boston's Bill Lee working on a four-hitter and 35,205 fans roaring their approval in frigid Fenway Park.

But Bench opened the ninth with a double to right and manager Darrell Johnson lifted Lee bringing Dick Drago out of the Red Sox bullpen.

Tony Perez, swinging away, grounded to shortstop and Bench moved to third. Now it was George Foster's turn and Drago won that showdown forcing Foster to fly to Carl Yastrzemski in short left field. Bench had to hold and there were two out.

Concepcion tapped a bouncer up the middle. Second baseman Denny Doyle made a desperate lunge glove-hand to flag the play as Bench scored the tying run.

Griffey labled a double up the left centre field alley and Concepcion scored the fr.' winning run. Eastwick, the fourth Cincinnati pitcher for "Lee Boston of 1-2 in the bottom of the ninth.

Crafty Luis Tiant baffled Cincinnati's sluggers in Boston's shutout win Saturday with a variety of speeds and motions and started the winning six-run rally with his first hit in three years.

Tiant, who will celebrate his 34th birthday next month was locked in a tense, scoreless pitchers duel with young left-hander Don Gullett until the seventh inning.

The veteran right-hander who finished with a five-hitter kicked off the seventh for Boston and surprised the sellout crowd of 35,205 with a single to left field.

Tiant was called for a balk in the fourth inning reviving the controversy over his unorthodox pickoff move. After a furious argument he tried no more pickoffs but then he really didn't have to allowing only six base-runners after the dispute. The Boston bullpen, which Dick Evans bunted. Gullett hesitated on the second and then tried to get Tiant at second base. Both men were safe.

Denny Doyle followed with a single to left and Tiant advanced one base at a time made it to third.

With the bases loaded Carl Yastrzemski came to the plates. The acknowledged leader of the Red Sox had made a circus catch to stop a Reds' rally in the top of the inning and this time Yaz contributed with the game winning hit to right field to score Tiant with the first Boston run.

KEN GRIFFEY

Ken Got A Tip

BOSTON (AP) — Ken Griffey listened to a tip from two of America's Leagues and couldn't believe his eyes when Boston reliever Dick Drago delivered a two-out pitch.

"All I remember is seeing that ball travelling up, getting bigger as it came," said Griffey, "I was guessing fast ball and I got it."

The Cincinnati Reds' left outfielder hit the pitch for a ninth-inning double to provide the Reds with the winning run in a 3-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox that tied the World Series 1-1.

"Mery Rettenmund and Terry Crowley told me Drago was mostly a fastball pitcher," said Griffey. "It was the biggest hit of my life."

Moments earlier, shortstop Dave Concepcion, who appeared destined to be the goat because of a crucial error, sacrificed up the middle to score Johnny Bench, who started the last-ditch rally with a leadoff double.

"I wasn't even thinking about the error," said Concepcion. "But I didn't want to be the last out again.

"Yesterday, Tiant got me for the last out. Today, I said no way. As soon as I saw it go over the mound I knew Johnny would score."

Concepcion then stole second to set up the game-winning blow by Griffey.

Manager Sparky Anderson said he gave the club a little pep talk early in the game when the Reds appeared tense.

Snow Knight Winner

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Snow Knight won his fourth consecutive race Saturday for E. P. Taylor of Toronto, and with a little help from the stewards.

The even-money favorite was declared winner of the $11,000 Man o' War Stakes at New York's Belmont Park after stewards allowed a foul claim against One on the Aisle, which finished first by 1½ lengths.

Snow Knight's jockey, Jorge Velasquez, claimed One on the Aisle, ridden by Daryl Monteya, with interfering in the stretch run. Photos showed that One on the Aisle bumped Snow Knight repeatedly and stewards placed Snow Knight first and One on the Aisle second. One length farther back was Drollery, who beat Bobby Mercer by a neck.

Snow Knight, carrying 126 pounds in the 1½-mile weight-for-age race, paid $4, $2.60 and $2.20. One on the Aisle, a 7-to-1 shot carrying 121 pounds, ran the distance in 2:28 1-5. He paid $4.60 and $3.40. Drollery, a 13-to-1 outsider, paid $4.60.

Bobby Mercer was followed by Shady Character, Antipode, London Company and Aurtelia.

Velasquez said Snow Knight did not handle the turf course well until he came to the head of the stretch.

"He started to move for me then, and I was going to go by One on the Aisle but he came out on me. I also was hit with Montoya's whip several times," he said.

Venezia said that at the head of the stretch "One on the Aisle forced me to check and my horse hesitated."

Snow Knight, a four-year-old English import who won the Epsom Derby last year, now has won five of seven starts in the United States this year. For his career, he has won eight of 20 starts and $424,207.

At Bowie, Md., Festive Mood upset favored Royal Glint to take the $58,900 Explorer Handicap at Bowie Race Course.

Festive Mood, owned by Sally M. Gilmer of Drumore, Pa., and ridden by veteran jockey Herb Hinojosa, cleared relentlessly through the stretch to beat Royal Glint in a photo decision over the mile-and-a-furlong distance. The victory was worth $368,285.

Theismann TD Pass A Shocker to Cards

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Joe Theismann knew all along what he was going to do with the ball Monday night. The only thing was, he didn't do it.

Washington's third-string quarterback and ball-holder on field-goal attempts shocked St. Louis with a 26-yard scoring pass to John Pergine on a fake play and rookie Mike Thomas belted his way for 100 yards and two touchdowns to lead the Redskins to a 27-17 National Football League victory over the Cardinals in Washington.

"They came with a real hard rush and I knew I could get around them and run" said Theismann, former star with Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League. "That's what I was going to do. Then I saw John all alone, and I certainly wasn't going to pass up that opportunity."

The surprise score came after Terry Metcalf had stunned Washington by running 93 yards with the second-half kickoff to tie the score 10-10.

Billy Kilmer passed 13 yards to Roy Jefferson while Thomas and Larry Brown alternated on rushes to move the ball to the St. Louis 30 before the drive appeared to stall, bringing on place-kicker Mike Moseley—and Theismann.

Theismann took the snap, frozen to his feet, rolled to his right and found Pergine all alone on the Cardinals' 20-yard line. Pergine ran down the right sideline for the touchdown that made it 17-10.

Coach George Allen said his Redskins went for the first down—and what turned out to be a touchdown—because "I didn't think three points would be enough in that situation, with the game tied."

"The Cards are an explosive team and can score from anywhere."

In fact, they did just that, tying the game for the last time on Jim Hart's 43-yard touchdown pass to Mel Gray, who raced down the left sideline and caught the ball at the Washington five, a few strides ahead of cornerback Mike Bass.

But Washington came back to drive the Redskins for goal about four minutes into the last quarter. Thomas, the last-opponent to bettered running back Larry Brown, plowed in from one yard out, a burst set up by Kilmer's passes of 19 yards to Charley Taylor and 16, 11 and nine yards to Jefferson.

Moseley's second field goal set the game, a 30-yarder with 5:25 to play, clinched the victory, raised Washington's record to 2-1 and dropped the Cards to 2-2.

In NFL games Sunday, results were: Buffalo Bills 38 Detroit 0; Kansas City Chiefs 24 Oakland Raiders 0; Minnesota Vikings 29 New York Jets 21; Cincinnati Bengals 27 New England Patriots 0; Houston Oilers 40 Cleveland Browns 0; Detroit Lions 27 Chicago Bears 7; Dallas Cowboys 13 New York Giants 7; Pittsburgh Steelers 20 Denver Broncos 9; New Orleans Saints 20 Green Bay Packers 19; Miami Dolphins 24 Philadelphia Eagles 16; Los Angeles Rams 13 San Diego Chargers 10; and Atlanta Falcons 17 San Francisco 49ers 3.

DAVE CONCEPCION

Drago Sums It Up

BOSTON (AP) — "Sometimes you do, sometimes you don't, that's the life of a relief pitcher."

That was relieved Dick Drago's initial comment as the losing pitcher Sunday after the Cincinnati Reds rallied in the ninth inning for two runs and a 3-2 decision over Boston Red Sox that evened baseball's World Series at one game each.

"I made good pitches," Drago said. "I did the job I wanted to do, only things didn't work out for me."

Summoned from the bullpen after Johnny Bench led off the Cincinnati ninth with an opposite-field double to right against starter Bill Lee Drago retired the first two batters he faced without any difficulty. However Bench took third with one out on Tony Perez' grounder.

"Then came what most people in the Boston clubhouse thought was the key to the Reds' victory.

On a 1-1 pitch, Dave Concepcion hit a slow, twisting grounder back through the middle. Second baseman Denny Doyle ran the ball down behind the bag but didn't have a play as Bench scored and Concepcion reached on the infield single.

Concepcion then stole second and scored the winning run when Ken Griffey lined a 1-2 pitch into left-centre for a double.

Rangers Move to Top

LONDON (Reuter) — Queen's Park Rangers returned to the top of Division 1 of soccer's English League with a 5-0 victory Saturday over the usually defence-minded Everton.

The Rangers lead on goal average over Manchester United and West Ham. All three teams have 17 points.

In the Scottish Premier Division, Glasgow Celtic regained first place with a 2-1 victory over Aberdeen. Celtic holds a one-point lead over rival Glasgow Rangers, who lost to Ayr 2-1.

Manchester United beat Leeds United 2-1 and West Ham defeated Newcastle United 3-1 to keep pace with Queen's Park.

Everton struggled after conceding a first-minute goal to Don Givens and were well on their way to defeat when Don Masson made it 2-0 before the half.

Gerry Francis added two goals in the second half and Dave Thomas the other to complete the rout.

Irish international Sammy McIlroy scored twice to give Manchester United all they needed in their win over Leeds. English striker Allan Clarke scored the only Leeds goal.

Police mounted a special operation to control the 40,000 self-styled crowd at Leeds, but they failed to prevent fights between rival gangs of supporters after the game and 40 persons were arrested.

West Ham went ahead after only two minutes at home to Newcastle when 19-year-old Alan Curbishley played in his third senior match, netted his first goal.

Pat Howard tied the game a minute before halftime, but Alan Taylor made the winner in the second half.

Arsenal and Wolverhampton Wanderers, neither a strong threat so far in the league, scored convincing victories Saturday.

Arsenal hammered Coventry 5-0 for its first win in seven matches. Alex Croply and Brian Kidd scored twice each for Arsenal.

John Richards and Ken Hibbitt each scored two goals to lead Wolverhampton past Sheffield United.

Liverpool kept within two points of the leading trio with a 1-1 win victory at home over Birmingham. John Toschack scored all the Liverpool goals—his second three-goal performance in 12 days.

Tottenham Hotspur tied 1-1 with Aston Villa after defender Terry Naylor of Hotspur was sent off for a foul. Andy Gray for Villa placed his kick into the hit for the equalizer with eight minutes left in the game.

Sunderland held on to its lead in Division II with a 2-1 win over Bristo. In other Division II results. Oxford beat Notts County (A) Bristol City moved into second place with a 4-0 win over Charlton Athletic Nottingham Forest drew 0-0 with Fulham.

Glasgow Rangers never recovered after conceding two goals in 60 seconds to Ayr. Celtic was down to 10 men after only 12 minutes in its game against Aberdeen when Paul Wilson was ordered off or retaliating after a foul by Eddie Thomson.

But Celtic captain Kenny Dalglish scored in the 15th minute and Dixie Deans made it 2-0 a minute before the half. Jock Scott scored for Aberdeen in the 20th minute.

Goalies Shaking Heads; Habs Are on a Spree

MONTREAL — With the completion of the first week of National Hockey League regular-season play Montreal Canadiens must have their opponents netminders shaking their heads with wonder.

In three outings last week the Canadiens struck for 32 goals pounding Los Angeles Kings 9-0 Boston Bruins 9-4 and St. Louis Blues 7-3. That output represented the most goals by a team in its first three games since the NHL's first season, 1917-18 — when the old Toronto Arenas scored 37 times in their first three contests.

Statistics released today by the league show five members of the Canadiens in the top 10 scoring list led by Guy Lafleur with five goals and five assists for 10 points.

Bobby Clarke of Philadelphia Flyers is tied with Montreal captain Yvan Cournoyer for second spot—each with eight points. Clarke has three goals and five assists Cournoyer has a goal and seven assists.

Rookie Bryan Trottier of New York Islanders is tied for fourth with Peter Mahovlich both with four goals and three assists.

A large portion of Montreal's early-season success can be attributed to their devastating power play which has scored 10 times on 30 man-advantage situations for an effectiveness of 50 per cent.

A notable feat was turned in by California Seals who won two of three road games last week. Last season the Seals won only four road games and their second victory came late in the season, on March 26 their 30th road game.

League play resumes tonight with three games. In Uniondale, N.Y. the Islanders play host to Montreal while in Vancouver the Canucks open their home Capitals. St. Louis Blues also begin their home season as they meet Kansas City Scouts.

Saints Blank Cowboys 2-0

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS
Minnesota Fighting Saints Sunday night spoiled the return of pro hockey to Calgary after an absence of 12 years.

The Fighting Saints got goals from Mike Walton and Fran Huck and stellar netminding from John Cummins to defeat Calgary Cowboys 2-0 before a crowd of 4,320 in the 5,500-seat Stampede Corral which last housed a professional team in the Western Hockey League in 1963.

It was the second win for Minnesota against Alberta opposition in three days. Edmonton Oilers, beaten 4-1 in their opener by Minnesota Friday night, rebounded for a 6-5 victory over. Indianapolis Racers Sunday night.

In the only other Sunday game, Bobby Hull led Winnipeg Jets to a 4-0 triumph over Phoenix Roadrunners. The Golden Jet scored his 18th goal of the season as Joe Daley turned in his first shutout.

The Roadrunners' loss was their first but left them tied with undefeated Minnesota for top spot in the Western Division. Winnipeg was alone in first place in the Canadian Division and Cincinnati Stingers, winners of their first WHA game, shared top spot with Indianapolis in the Eastern Division.

Quebec defeated Toronto Toros 7-3, Houston Aeros downed New England 5-0 and Phoenix tripped San Diego Mariners 4-2 in Saturday's games.

Veteran Eddie Joyal and winger Rusty Patenaude sparked Edmonton's victory over Indianapolis with two goals each. Bruce MacGregor and Danny Spring shared the others.

Indianapolis was helped by a pair of former Oilers, Ron Buchanan with two goals and Bob Fitchner with one. Others were scored by Brian Costes and Reg Thomas.

The game was marked by six major penalties and a total of three fights, all won by the rugged Racers.

Ulf Nilsson opened scoring for the Jets, who struggled through a scoreless first period before connecting twice in each of the remaining periods. The other Winnipeg goal was scored by Larry Hornung.

League play continues Tuesday when Indianapolis visits Calgary and Edmonton journeys to Quebec for a Canadian Division contest. Houston visits Toronto in the other game.

Nova Scotia Evens Record

By THE CANADIAN PRESS
On the strength of early goals by Don House and Gord McTavish, Boston Bruins squeezed out a 3-3 draw Saturday night against Nova Scotia and post its first American Hockey League regular season victory.

The win moved the Voyageurs into a first place tie in the northern division league standings with Rochester and Springfield, all three teams splitting identical 1-1 weekends. Hershey holds down the southern division cellar.

In the other scheduled AHL game Saturday night, right winger Denis Dupere scored on a penalty shot with less than four minutes left in the third period to give Springfield Indians a 3-2 win over Rochester Americans.

Voyageur goal Dale Ellenbaas made 39 saves in record the shutout which marked the second successive night the home town Bears were blanked. They dropped a 2-0 decision Friday to Baltimore Clippers in their league opener.

Pierre Mondou put the game on ice for Nova Scotia when he scored at 14:38 of the third period.

In Springfield, Kemp was awarded the penalty shot after Rochester forward Barry Merrill threw his stick at the puck as Kemp sped in on a breakaway. The Indians were shorthanded at the time.

Rochester outplayed the Indians in the first two periods, taking a 2-1 lead on goals by Paul O'Neil and Gordie Clark.

But Springfield goalie Bob Sauve kept the Indians alive with 2 saves in the first two periods.

Doug Horbul put Springfield on the scoreboard midway through the second period with a powerplay goal. Reg Bechtold tied it 2-2 just 55 seconds into the third period.

League play resumes Tuesday with Nova Scotia–at Baltimore.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch
Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.
A renowned research institute has found a healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.
One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported shows "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.
And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished

Not Spectacular But Als, Eskimos Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Alouettes and Edmonton Eskimos returned to normal Monday, although neither team was spectacular against weaker opponents in Canadian Football League games.

The Alouettes took a 24-13 win over Toronto Argonauts in a dull Eastern Conference game which Johnny Rodgers kept interesting with an all-round performance.

The Eskimos got a dismal effort from their injury-riddled offense but their defensive team turned in an outstanding game in a 21-13 Western Conference triumph over Calgary Stampeders.

In games Sunday, Saskatchewan Roughriders beat Winnipeg Blue Bombers 20-14 and Hamilton Tiger-Cats topped British Columbia Lions 14-8.

The Eskimos and Alouettes returned to the winning trail after they both lost at home in their last appearances Oct. 5.

With three weeks remaining in the league CFL schedule, each team has played 12 games except Saskatchewan which finished its 14th Sunday.

Ottawa Rough Riders, who certainly the Lions on Monday night, lead the EFC with a 9-4 record for 18 points. The Alouettes are second with 16, nine ahead of the Argonauts and the Ticats who will likely decide the third and last playoff spot in the East with a home-and-home series in the last two weeks of the schedule.

In the WFC, the Eskimos have 20 points—one more than the Roughriders—on a 10-2 record. Winnipeg is third with 13 points, three more than Calgary and five ahead of B.C.

Before 27,822 fans in Toronto Monday, Rodgers scored the first touchdown and kicked another called back after a brilliant punt return of 28 yards. It was wiped out by a Montreal clipping penalty.

JOHNNY RODGERS

Rodgers carried the ball six times for 28 yards, caught three passes for 35 yards and ran back six punts for 90 yards.

Quarterback Jimmy Jones scored Montreal's other touchdown on a 17-yard run while Don Sweet kicked three field goals, two converts and a single. Doyle Orange got Toronto's lone touchdown and Zenon Andruszyshyn boated two field goals and a convert.

The Argos lost defensive tackle Jim Sullivan in the third quarter when he suffered a compound fracture to the upper part of his right thumb and defensive back Lee Clayton who suffered an ankle injury.

Rodgers' aborted touchdown run-back at the second quarter broke a CFL record for yardage on punt returns in a season. He was credited with 18 yards on the run before the clipping infraction, giving him a season total of 789, topping the old mark set by Collins Hagler of Saskatchewan in 1968.

In Edmonton before 26,347 fans, Saskatchewan's defence controlled Calgary until quarterback Tom Wilkinson managed to generate enough points for the win.

Wilkinson broke open the game with a 43-yard touchdown pass to George McEwen in the fourth quarter, giving the Eskimos a 20-11 margin at 6:28.

Roy Bell scored Edmonton's other touchdown with Dave Cutler adding two field goals, two converts and a single. Willie Burden, the CFL's leading rusher but held to 34 yards on 15 carries, got Calgary's only touchdown. Cyril McFall kicked a field goal, a convert and a single and Gerald Kunyk added a single.

At Hamilton on Sunday, Terry Evanshen scored his 73rd career touchdown reception to lead the Ticats to victory.

Ian Sunter completed Hamilton scoring with two field goals, a convert and single. Terry Bailey scored the Lions' only touchdown.

In Winnipeg, quarterback Ron Lancaster threw two touchdown passes in a performance highlighted by a career passing record. On the 18th anniversary play of the game, he completed a "two-yard pass to Steve Mazurak.

It gave Lancaster a total of 40,264 yards passing in his 16-year career in the CFL, bettering the previous high of 40,259 yards held by Johnny Unitas of the NFL.

George Reed, who gained 130 yards rushing on 34 carries, also set a record. Going into the game, he needed 43 yards to reach a milestone of nine miles rushing. He surpassed the mark on his 10th carry.

Tom Campana and Al Ford each scored a touchdown for Saskatchewan. Quarterback Clyde Brock scored two touchdowns for Winnipeg.

Pan-American Games

Canada Shows Well

MEXICO CITY (CP) — A couple of girls with aching backs contributed to a strong Canadian showing on the opening day of competition at the Pan-American Games Monday but the gold medals went elsewhere.

Jane Haist of Montreal troubled all summer with a slipped disc fought off the pain to win a third-place bronze medal in the women's discus.

And Patti Loverock of Vancouver the fastest runner in the semi-finals of the women's 100 metres left the stadium immediately after her race for treatment of a continuing back problem before today's final.

The United States captured four of the nine gold medals awarded during the day but found the pickings been apart from the shooting competition in which Americans won three of the four events. The five remaining golds were shared by Brazil and Mexico with two apiece and Cuba with one.

Canada's four-medal harvest consisted of a second-place silver in the free-pistol team event an individual free-pistol bronze won by Dr. Jules Sebrian of Omemee Ont. bronze won by Chris Pretkwatenki of Toronto in the light heavyweight judo division and Miss Haist's third place finish in the women's discus.

In the unofficial point standings based on a 10-5-4-3-2-1 count for the first six placings in final events Canada was in fifth place behind the U.S., Cuba, Mexico and Brazil.

While Miss Haist had not been expected to defeat Carmen Romero the Cuban defending champion she was disappointed with her performance. Her best heave of 174 feet 3½ inches was more than 20 feet shy of Miss Romero's Games-record toss of 1974.

"I came here to win the gold" said the husky Montreal-her who did just that at the 1974 Commonwealth Games in Christchurch N.Z.

She said she suffered her injury last spring and has been bothered by it all summer.

"But I had been throwing real well in workouts here. I'm sure I could have thrown 10 metres more on a good day."

Lucette Moreau of Vaudreuil Que. finished fourth behind Miss Haist.

Miss Loverock also a veteran international competitor was happier about her effort in the 100-metre semi-final in which she edged Silvia Chivas of Cuba a bronze medalist at the 1972 Olympics in Munich. Both girls were given identical times of 11.36 seconds.

Marjorie Bailey of Vancouver won the other semi-final beat in 11.45.

Miss Loverock said she had eased off in her training since her arrival in Mexico City.

"I find it helps a lot to train once a day instead of the twice-a-day routine I normally follow."

Two other Canadians qualified for track finals today but their times offered little hope of medal performances. Hugh Fraser of Ottawa was the slowest of the eight finalists in the men's 110 metres in which Harry Nash of Toronto failed to survive the semi-finals.

And Dave Jarvis of Grimsby Ont. ranked sixth among the eight qualifiers for the final of the 400-metre hurdles.

Rick Cutell of Vancouver finished seventh in the long jump with a leap of 22 feet 1¼ inches compared with 26-10¼ by winner Joao Oliveira of Brazil. Barry Boyd of Edmonton also qualified for the final but was ninth among the top eight.

There was no Canadian representative in the 10,000 metres in which Luis Hernandez and Rodolfo Gomez of Mexico delighted the crowd with a 1-2 finish.

It was a disappointing day for the powerful U.S. trac kand field team, which took second and third place in the long jump but failed to win a medal in the other two finals.

But the American sharpshooters made up for the deficiency with a near-perfect performance.

They struck gold in the free pistol and air rifle team competitions, veteran Herschel Anderson won the individual pistol event and it took a world-record performance by Olegario Vazquez Rana of Mexico to deprive them of a fourth gold in the individual air rifle category.

Sobrian, a Commonwealth Games gold medallist last year, won his third individual Pan-American bronze in eight years with a score of 544 of a possible 600. Anderson's winning score was 559 and Melvin Akin, the second-place American, scored 552.

It took a shoot-off to decide the silver in the team competition, in which Canada and Mexico had identical scores of 2,123.

The Mexicans lost that one, but made up for it by beating Canada out of a bronze in the team rifle event on a recount. The original order of finish had the Canadians in second place but an official recheck of the cards reversed the standings.

Arne Sorensen of Calgary, whose 278 score was good for a fifth-place tie, was the top Canadian in the individual rifle event.

Preobrabiwski, the first member of the youthful Canadian judo team to see action, won his bronze as a lightsemi-finalist in the light-heavyweight division which was won by Ricardo de Oliveira Campos of Brazil with Irwin Cohen of the U.S. taking the silver.

Canada was not represented in the heavyweight class, in which Alies Osage of the U.S. defeated Jose Ibanes of Cuba in the final.

The Canadians had a good day in team sports.

In women's basketball, Canada crushed the Dominican Republic 115-30 in a game marked by frequent fouls on both sides. The women's volleyball team came from behind to edge Brazil 3-2 and women's soccer eleven had a scoreless draw with Jamaica.

Births

CRAWFORD — Norm and Darlene (nee Vesterfelt), R.R. 2, Belleville, are delighted to announce the birth of their twin daughters, Jennifer Ann and Jennifer Lynn, on Thursday, Oct. 16, 1975, at Belleville General Hospital. Weight 8 lbs., 12½ ozs. A baby sister for Jennifer Lynn. Special thank you to Dr. W. Seward and staff OB5.

In Memoriam

CORNELL and KEECH — In loving remembrance of a dear sister and mother, Mrs. Katie Keech, who passed away at Belleville General Hospital on October 16, 1972, Mrs. Katie Keech, Oct. 14, 1973.
God knew that they were suffering,
That the hills were hard to climb,
So He gently laid a shadow
Over the beautiful hills of Gold
Away in the beautiful hills of Gold,
By the valley of red to fall.
Some time, some day, we know not when,
We will meet our loved ones there
—Lovingly remembered by Pearl Bird and Muriel Alexander.

CULHANE, TIM — In loving memory of a dear brother who passed away Oct. 14, 1973.
Thinking of the thoughtful things
That you have said and done,
Of the love you gave so freely
And the joy you gave to many,
—Loved and missed by his brother Michael and sister-in-law Mary Ann.

CULHANE, TIM — In memory of a dear brother and uncle who passed away on Oct. 14, 1972.
No space of time, no issue of years,
Can dim the treasured past.
Memories are treasures we bear,
Affection holds them fast.
—Remembered and loved by his brother Michael, sister-in-law Carl and Kim.

CULHANE, TIM — In memory of a beloved brother and uncle who left us so suddenly on Oct. 14, 1973.
May you always walk in sunshine,
May your path be free from care,
And God's richest blessings follow
Wherever you may go.
No one will ever know
As we loved, as we miss you
In our memories you are near,
Loved, remembered, longed for all the year.
Resting many a silent tear.
To us you were someone special,
Someone so good and true,
You did more than anyone
Yet did nought for yourself of you.
God gave you love, loved ones He lent you.
—So sadly missed every day by his sister Rose, brother-in-law Harold and children.

CULHANE, Timothy — In loving memory of a dear brother, Tim, who passed away Oct. 14, 1973.
Sweet memories that linger
Never let us part
Love remembered every day,
No longer in our life is heard
But in our hearts, he's always there,
—Sorrowfully remembered by Gregory and sister-in-law Jane.

CULHANE, Tim — In loving memory of our dear brother Tim, who passed away Oct. 14, 1972.
Always smiling, happy, content,
Never a care or worry he spent,
A cheerful smile, a heart of gold,
The dearest brother the world could hold.
Happy memories and hearts will linger
Those who thought the world of you.
—Sadly missed, forgotten by Colleen, Stephen and John.

CULHANE, Tim — In loving memory of our dear brother, Tim, taken from us so suddenly, Oct. 14, 1972.
The son we loved,
Is not at sight,
But never out of mind,
Sad memories fill the hearts,
Of those he left behind.
We used to watch and wait for him,
To worry if he was late,
And now to peace he waits for us.
Sadly missed by Mom
—Ladly loved and never forgotten Mom and Dad.

CULHANE, Tim — In memory of our dear brother, who passed away two years ago, Oct. 14, 1973.
Not till the loom is silent, and the shuttles cease to fly,
Shall God unroll the canvas, and exclaim the work is done.
The dark threads are as needful in the weaver's skillful hands,
As the threads of gold and silver in the pattern He has planned.
—Lovingly remembered together by sister Trina, brother-in-law Maurice.

BOYCE — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Harry Boyce, who passed away October 16, 1965.
The world may change from year to year,
And friends from day to day,
But memories we have of you, dear,
From memory pass away.
—Remembered by his wife and family.

SHE — In loving memory of a dear son and brother, Roger Gerald She, who passed away Oct. 14, 1971 as the result of an accident.
Though your smile is gone forever,
Though your face we miss so much,
Still we have so many memories,
Of the one we loved so much.
—Lovingly remembered by Dad, Mom, Ron, Kathy, Michael and Angela.

The Psychiatrist-Astrologer

What's the image you get when you think of an astrologer?

A slightly eccentric lady in a big, floppy hat who sits at a desk covered with weird symbols? A septuagenarian with a beard wearing a conical cap and a black robe embroidered with crescent moons? Or a hippie with beads poring over charts of the stars?

Harry F. Darling is as far removed from any of these zany stereotypes as the waking world is from dreamland. He is a scientifically trained professional, a psychiatrist, who comes from a family of physicians (both of his parents and an uncle were doctors). And Dr. Darling is also a practising astrologer.

He sees no contradiction between the two.

"I bring the same scientific logic to the study of astrology that I bring to medicine" he says, "and in both I get results that help people."

Dr. Darling — who has served as director of the Lowell (Mass.) Mental Health Clinics and from 1967-70 was principal psychiatrist at Bridgewater State Hospital — lives near Boston. He got interested in astrology when his daughter, who had enrolled in an astrology course for fun, got sick one night and couldn't go to class and he went in her place.

"I was less prejudiced against astrology — the idea that the positions of the heavenly bodies correlate with human nature and affairs — than many scientists would be," Dr. Darling told me in an interview. "Maybe this was because, by nature, I'm radically open-minded. I'm willing to look at anything to see if it works."

Well, he looked at astrology and found that it does work. It works so well, in fact, for sizing up people's personalities and characters that Harry Darling has written an entire textbook (in collaboration with Ruth Oliver) titled Astro-Psychiatry.

What one is an ancient "superstition" like astrology to an up-to-date scientific probe of the mind?

"For one thing," said Dr. Darling, "an examination of a person's horoscope — that is, a chart showing the positions of the planets and the sun and moon at the precise moment of his birth — can reveal suicidal tendencies, homosexuality, potential criminal violence, even murder. All without any other psychological test being given."

Of course Dr. Darling does use standard techniques as well as astrology but the latter has depthed (but-even the most probing orthodox test lacks.

"Emotional illness, or at least the susceptibility to it, definitely shows up in the horoscope," he said. "Astrology demonstrates quite clearly that a person, is what he is born to be, though environment can modify that to some extent."

Dr. Darling contends that a careful examination of the birth-charts (or horoscopes) of such violent men as Charles Manson, accused Kennedy assassin Lee Harvey Oswald, or Dean Corll, cited in the Houston mass murders, could have tipped off the authorities to the potential tragedy.

"Adolf Hitler's chart shows a man who was emotionally crippled because one whole area of his personality — his sexuality — was frozen," says Dr. Darling. "His chart also clearly shows the messianic delusions, the megalomania and the bloodlust that later exploded on the world. Astrologers said long before Second World War that Hitler was a psychopath and potential madman.

"Strangely enough, the chart of Albert Schweitzer, the great saintly missionary doctor, shows that he had severe emotional problems too. But he resolved his in ways that were creative whereas Hitler's were unleashed in destruction on the world and ultimately even himself."

Dr. Darling says that Marilyn Monroe's horoscope almost "fated" her to self-destruction.

"Certainly, if she had been my patient," he said, "I would have taken suicidal threats or gestures very seriously because her birthchart shows the definite potential for killing herself."

By giving forewarning of what an individual is likely to do, says Dr. Darling, astrology can often avert tragedy.

One of the most difficult conditions to detect in psychiatry is hidden homosexuality. But Harry Darling says that the horoscope mirrors it, although it takes a very competent astrologer to pick it out.

"Sexual trend and violence generally show up quite clearly in the birthchart," he says, pointing out that by examining two horoscopes he was able to quickly determine which one belonged to a homicidal maniac with a sexual perversion and which to a prison chaplain.

"The horoscope," said the psychiatrist-astrologer, "is a picture of a frozen moment of time and it does contain information about the loves, hates, virtues, vices, strengths and weaknesses of the person born at that moment of time.

"And, even more important, the horoscope is also dynamic, it changes as the person grows, lives and develops, and future events in the individual's life often are figured with startling accuracy."

Dr. Harry Darling continues to help people by using ink blots and horoscopes together. As he sees it, they belong together.

Your Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

For Wednesday, Oct. 15

Aries (March 21-April 19) Despite your desire to keep to yourself today, you will become overly involved with people. Things won't work out the way you hoped they would.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You have far too many activities today. Too many people are concerned in them. You'll please some, but others will be disappointed.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Today you'll leave a host of details go till the last minute. Some important things will be neglected. Hopefully, you'll learn a lesson.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'll try to be like a chameleon today and adapt to the whims of the crowd you're with. Things won't turn out all that well for you.

LEO (July 23-Aug.22) If you start something today stick with it, or business and personal affairs will get so complicated you'll be chasing your own tail.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're far too indecisive today. If you don make up your mind, you'll not only bug those you're with, but even yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Slow down a bit today. Nothing you have to do is that urgent that you have to put a strain on your nerves or disturb your peace of mind.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Mind your Ps and Qs socially today. There are people you could turn off if you persist in acting like a bull in the china shop.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your patience with the family leaves a great deal to be desired today. Minor infractions could easily be blown out of proportion.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Steer clear of anything involving a high degree of mental skill today. Your powers of concentration are not up to your usual standards.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) This is a day when your financial blessings are a mixed bag. You could show a tidy profit, but it is highly unlikely you'll be prudent enough to do so.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You are a good starter today, but a lousy finisher. Don't put so many irons in the fire you can't pull them out without getting singed.

Many of the hands from the Return of Sherlock Holmes — Bridge Detective are old timers by now. This is one of the fresh hands.

That doesn't stop them from being interesting. In today's hand Sherlock Holmes sits East and Scurry, his foil, is South. We hold no brief for Scurry's bidding except that it got him to a spot where unusual defense by Holmes was necessary for the defeat of the contract.

West started out with three rounds of clubs. Almost, anyone would ruff that third club automatically. Then irrespective of what East returned, South would get to dummy twice with diamonds to finesse twice against East's king-10-nine. The defense would wind up with three tricks they had started with and no more.

Holmes didn't ruff. Instead he made the apparently insane play of discarding a diamond.

South was in. He led a diamond to dummy, finessed once in trumps, used the 6-0 break, but could do no better than lead a second diamond. Holmes ruffed this, got out with a spade and waited happily for his second trump trick.

Ask the Jacobys

A reader from Sarasota wants us to discuss the "Short Club".

This bid, invented by Oswald Jacoby in 1933, was described then as a great general utility man. It is not that. It may be used well with just three clubs to an honor with a balanced hand that is too weak for a one notrump opening. Partner is supposed to bid one spade as if opener had at least four clubs. We will discuss this in our next week's columns.

Mossy Old Maine Sets New Styles

BRUNSWICK, Me. (AP) — Strange things are happening Down East.

Mossy old Maine, that rock-bound bastion of conservatism, has become a laboratory for innovative trends in alternate life-styles.

A new company which designs wind-powered electric generators has taken over a vacant machine shop in Brunswick.

Farther up the coast, in Rockland, a vacant building used by a Rockefeller heiress produces a unique composting alternative to the flush toilet. It is called a clivus multrum.

And throughout the state, from the rugged coast to the fringes of the North Woods, hundreds of new homesteaders are working long abandoned farmland, using the techniques of organic gardening in hope of creating a subsistence yield from the reluctant soil.

Gradually over the last decade the state has become a magnet for bright, sophisticated city dwellers fleeing places like New York and Boston in quest of simpler, more natural ways.

The influx has resulted in a dramatic turnaround in Maine's population trends, says Louis A. Pitch, professor of rural sociology at University of Maine.

After six decades of a steady loss of people, the last three years have shown a net gain, Pitch said.

"It's people seeking the rustic idyll, the lack of hurly-burly," he said. "They want to be related to the land, the soil and the environment. And they want a place where they feel safe."

Oddly enough, Maine's basic conservatism is part of the lure. It's reflected in a personal frugality, a throwback to the old Yankee aphorism, "Waste not, want not."

LIKE PARIS OF '20S

"Maine is to the '70s what Paris was to the '20s; this is where the expatriates are," says John N. Cole, editor of Maine Times, an independent statewide weekly which serves as a clearing house for new ideas in energy, housing and homesteading.

Cole has been quick to recognize the hallmarks of the new life-styles: self-sufficiency, independence, thrift, healthmindedness, recycling, harmony with nature, all the old New England virtues rediscovered.

If Cole is the philosopher of Maine's alternate way of life, the folk heroes are Helen and Scott Nearing.

Nearing, vigorous and healthy at 92, is a living relic of the back-to-the-land that's what it is—to the extent organic farming at Harborside is a must for would-be homesteaders seeking inspiration and a final push.

Nearing says no fewer than about 5,500 people a year parade through his place.

They say they like to see the garden and the greenhouse, and they often ask if we know of any land available at a moderate price.

Many of the visitors are from middle-and upper-class families, and grew up in an age of affluence.

"They've had everything, and yet they're profoundly dissatisfied with life," says Nearing.

Buggy Drivers Serve Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Antique buggies driven with horses by brave drivers are whisking romantic-minded couples around this city. A ride costs $15 an hour, or $5 for 20 minutes.

Lorraine Miskell, it is the youngest carriage driver and also the only one who never has had an accident.

"I was scared at first," she said. "But no more. It's a great job."

She had been taking a course in horsemanship when she saw the driver's job advertised.

Driving the carriage has its hazards, she said.

While directing her horse, Joker through the streets, Lorraine said she watches carefully. Narrow wheels easily get caught in streetcar tracks; horses can panic at the sound of a truck backfiring and she can't take a lunch-break.

"I've lost five pounds," she said. "You just can't bitch your way through a day like this."

"One driver tried that. The horse broke loose, took off and smashed the carriage into a steel lamp post. He was fired on the spot."

The drivers arrive at the Horse Palace at about 9:00 a.m. to prepare for the 13-hour day ahead. They groom their horses, feed them, clean the carriages and get them hitched up.

They take the same horse each day, but rotate the carriages so some are better than others. Almost all are restored antiques, hand-crafted and worth $1,200 each. On a good day, each driver earns from $70 to $80.

Lumber Industry Hits Hard Times

HINTON, Alta. (CP) — Despite high prices for newsprint and a Canadian housing shortage the lumber industry has hit upon hard times, says Ivan Sutherland, a 40-year veteran of the business.

A one-time school teacher, Mr. Sutherland is resident manager and vice-president of North Western Pulp and Power Ltd., a subsidiary of St. Regis Paper Co.

The North Western plant in this northwestern Alberta town is down to about 70 per cent of capacity and has laid off 110 workers, leaving 835. As well, there was a 10-day shutdown last May because of poor market conditions and a two-week vacation shutdown this summer.

The pulp and paper and lumber markets are involved in a worldwide recession, the economic slowdown in the United States and the high cost of labor and sophisticated machinery, Mr. Sutherland said in an interview.

So far, North Western has continued to operate its sawmill, breaking even on 2x4s and railway ties. Workers in the main plant have kept busy processing the large inventory of felled trees on hand.

Mr. Sutherland said the current slowdown can be a good time to expand so as to be ready when the market once again is strong. North Western is seeking government approval of a $200-million expansion program but wants to know what time-frame the province has in mind before it commits itself to a specific plan of development.

North Western is also awaiting a government decision on a pilot program to clean its air emissions of sulphur compounds that give Hinton, on the Edmonton-Jasper Highway, a rotten-egg smell.

When the mill went into production in 1957 it had modern pollution-control equipment. But the standards demanded by government have steadily increased and making an old mill meet tougher standards is far more difficult than building equipment into a new mill, he said.

Since 1967 the mill has had secondary treatment of its effluent water it uses before pumping it back into the Athabasca River.

It was the proximity of the river that brought the mill to Hinton. Also, it is near the main highway to the east and the CNR mainline. The company covers 2,000 square miles with its logging activities.

Under government supervision, the timber is harvested in staggered areas and the area reforested.

Trees, said woodlands manager Jim Clark, are a little like spinach. They have to be harvested before they flower and stop growing. In this way room is made for new growth in the forest and the trees don't get old enough to become susceptible to disease.

North Western is sharing the cost, with the province, of reforesting old areas which were cleared before the days of government control.

There's more heavy going ahead for North Western. Mr. Sutherland said, with labor contracts expiring next March. The Hinton mill has never had a strike of any consequence and doesn't expect one next year but "we're not going to give them the farm," he said.

Afraid Of Risk

CAPETOWN, South Africa (CP) — A new censorship system in South Africa may stifle Afrikaans literature for a generation, said Afrikaans novelist professor Andre Brink. He said that Afrikaans' manuscripts are beginning to pile up because publishers are afraid to take the financial risk of publishing and then having them banned.

Polled Farmers

CHICAGO, Ill. (AP) — Farmers in Illinois and Indiana show lukewarm enthusiasm for bringing back federal farm support prices, a poll by Prairie Farmer magazine stated. In Illinois, 41 per cent, compared with 29 per cent in Indiana of farmers polled, said the federal program is needed but only at a level that does not encourage overproduction.

Twins Studied

STOCKHOLM (Reuter) — Heart infarct is almost certainly an inheritable disease, results of a Swedish study of 11,000 pairs of twins indicated. Professor Lennart Lundman said preventive measures should be aimed at children of heart infarct victims and at learning to detect signs, which reveal incipient heart infarct in children.

Australian Absentees Are Costly

SYDNEY (Reuter) — It's as prevalent here as the common cold, which is often used as its excuse. It's described as a national problem of staggering proportions.

Popularly known as "the sickie," sudden absence from work is costing Australia a lot of money.

While strikes and industrial troubles, and their effect on the economy, receive constant attention from all sections of the community, the ubiquitous sickie is virtually ignored.

But it is costing the Australian economy $1.8 billion a year, according to what the department of labor says is a conservative estimate.

By comparison the $128.3 million in lost wages from strikes and industrial unrest in 1974—the worst-ever year—pales into insignificance.

A recent report of the Victoria State Employers' Federation said that absenteeism "is without doubt a national problem of staggering proportions."

It said that on any given work day, 48 out of 1,000 employees will be off the job.

A rough calculation on these figures means a staggering 60 million lost working days a year. The number of working days lost last year from industrial disputes was only 4.5 million.

A department of labor survey showed that the larger the company, the worse its attendance record. Even more alarming it suggested a lack of avaregess by many firms of the magnitude of the absenteeism problem.

The survey showed that absenteeism is higher among blue-collar workers than white-collar and higher in manufacturing than in non-manufacturing fields.

The worst months of the year for attendance were the winter months. The lowest absence rates were in late summer, mid-autumn and late spring.

Shining On

Soldiers and female relatives residing at the U.S. Army base at Aschaffenburg, West Germany, form a team of spit-and-polish shoe shiners at the camp's recreation base where they pooled their strength to shine 1,630 pairs of boots this weekend. Their feat, completed in 11 hours, 28 minutes and 7 seconds, broke the world record set in 1973 by a team of four Boy Scouts. Denmark Admits It Has Problems

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Something has gone wrong in a country where they start offering an optional extra year of high school in the fall so as not to drown the labor market.

Something is amiss in a place where someone can write a book called, Does It Pay to Earn More Money?

No one suggests that a nation has gone rotten that provides everyone with good schools, virtually free medical care, dignified old age and the right to complain.

But Denmark acknowledges it is in trouble.

The country has been Western Europe's leader in unemployment for the past year with up to 12 per cent of the blue-collar work force jobless. Emigration ran to 40,000 in 1974 — the proportionate equivalent to 1.6 million people leaving the United States—and now is up 25 per cent, the highest rate in a century.

And since 1971, when they reached 44 per cent, taxes here have represented a greater part of the gross national product than anywhere else in the industrialized world.

Beyond the statistical horror show, the problem is that Denmark's troubles outpace recession and involve the functioning and growth of its super-welfare state.

Many Danes now believe that the country's recovery depends not only on the standard economic stimulants, but a deep decision on whether people want to continue in the direction the welfare state has brought them.

This direction has also which 18 per cent of the population gets some kind of money from the state.

That could mean 25 per cent of a subsidized housepainting bill, or two-thirds back from the cost of sending a child to a private kindergarten. You can get paid for moving from a private house to an apartment. You can get a tax break for moving from an apartment to a private house.

This direction has also meant that the number of employees in the state sector runs to about 700,000, the same number employed by heavy industry.

On the local level, it requires a town like Gladsaxe, outside Copenhagen, with a population of 60,000, to have 2,000 municipal employees, 200 of them working in the tax division.

It means, too, that taxes to support the infrastructure are murderous, the kind that make a new Chevrolet cost $22,000 or a small Renault $7,000.

Russian, American Receive Nobel

STOCKHOLM (AP) — The 1975 Nobel Prize for economics was awarded jointly today to Prof. Leonid Kantorovich of the Soviet Union and Prof. Tjalling Koopmans of the United States.

The $145,000-prize Trom Sweden's Central Bank was awarded for their contributions "to the theory of the optimum allocation of resources."

Dutch-born Prof. Koopmans 65 works at Yale University.

Prof. Kantorovich 63 is associated with the Matematik Institute in Novosibirsk.

It was the second of the 1975 Nobel awards. The Peace Prize was awarded last Thursday to another Soviet citizen, Andrei Sakharov, the nuclear physicist and leader of the fight for civil rights in the Soviet Union.

Other Nobel awards for sciences will be announced later this week, but the date for the literary award has not been set.

Because of the peace award to Sakharov, the award to the Russian economist notes a dilemma for the Soviet government. Sakharov was honored for his militant opposition to official Soviet policy, and spokesmen for the Soviet regime have condemned the award, just as they did when the 1970 Nobel Prize for literature was awarded to Alexander Solzhenitsyn.

By contrast, the Kremlin has welcomed previous non-controversial Nobel awards to Soviet scientists, but they have never before coincided with one that constituted an implied condemnation of the Soviet government.

Publishing Funds Scarce in England

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — For a three Londoners trying to make a living in book publishing, manuscripts are plentiful but financial backing is scarce.

MacLean Jamieson, his wife Jill, and Michael Niederman said their publishing house, Joshua Appleygarth, which is named after the first settler in London Township, is dedicated to publishing books and a magazine that will appeal to everyone.

"Who wants to put something out only academics will read?" asked Mrs. Jamieson.

However, publishing in Canada, despite the material's universal appeal, is considered a risky venture and financial institutions have been unwilling to provide assistance.

When Mr. Jamieson went looking for financing to begin Applegarth last January, he found that the banks "just laughed and said the government has money for such operations."

But the Applegarth group opposed grants for artistic endeavors and set up the business with their own funds.

"It seems to me you should publish books because people want to read them," Mr. Jamieson said, not because grant money is available.

"In order to get a grant to write, you have to be backed by a publisher . . . This means we're committed in advance. It takes away the freedom to publish and makes us a Queen's printer," he added.

Operating out of a converted stable, the firm gets three or four book-length manuscripts a week, but Mr. Jamieson said much of it is poetry.

Balance is an important consideration, Mr. Jamieson noted, adding he tries for a blend of new and established writers and to strike a balance among the different forms of literature.

Education Board Buys $1 Million Policy Against Errors

BY RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

Can the Hastings County Board of Education make a $1 million mistake? Not likely, but trustees Monday night decided to take no chances.

The board acquired a $1 million error and omissions insurance policy from the Frank Cowan Company Ltd., of Princeton, Ont., for an annual premium of $2,500.

By taking this step the board has joined the growing ranks of other Ontario school boards who feel they need financial protection against the critical public.

The practice is commonplace in the United States and much of the leg work in Canada has been done by American boards of education which in the past have been satiated by legal action due to errors or omissions.

John Kennedy a representative from the insurance company, appeared before trustees in a last effort to convince the board it needed this new type of insurance. The board has been toying with the idea for over six months now.

Mr. Kennedy explained that more and more boards of education and other public bodies are being sued for wrong decisions, wrongful acts, dismissals and suspensions. He said the premiums are high in the United States.

"It makes a well-rounded policy," said Mr. Kennedy, who added in recent years Ontario boards of education are under constant criticism form the public. He said some board decisions in Ontario have resulted in expensive law-suits.

Belleville trustee Robert Ord, also a local lawyer, saw the main benefits of the insurance to help off-set legal costs which according to Mr. Kennedy run high in most legal actions.

However, Mr. Ord said it was unlikely that many of the items covered by the policy would result in legal action. Mr. Kennedy referred to several boards which now have outstanding law-suits against them.

Some of the errors mentioned in the policy including libel, arrest, detention, libel, slander or defamation of character. Others included invasion of privacy, wrongful eviction or wrongful entry.

Mr. Kennedy said the policy does not cover any action taken by an employee against the board. "Injury sustained by any person who is an employee of the Insured at the time of the offence causing injury is exempted from the policy," he added.

The new premium of $2,500 is a year, which increased total insurance expenditure to about $57,000 a year.

Stanfield Supports Controls

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield promised Tuesday to support the government's new anti-inflation program.

"Quite simply, common sense and the welfare of the country demand that we do so," he said after the program was outlined in a policy paper tabled in Parliament by Finance Minister Donald Macdonald and followed by a special Commons debate.

Mr. Stanfield said "the general interests" outlined by the government are acceptable to his party "but we do not at this time go beyond that."

Legislation to put the program into effect will be tabled in the Commons Thursday. It will propose establishment of an a s i t-inflation tribunal with power to hold down prices and limit wage increases.

Price boosts, if the program is implemented as planned, would be limited to production cost increases until the end of 1978.

Juneau Defeat Hurts Trudeau

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau faces the embarrassing task today of shopping for a new communications minister with the unexpected byelection defeat Tuesday of Pierre Juneau.

Mr. Trudeau bypassed a number of Liberal MPs only last month when he plucked Mr. Juneau from the chairmanship of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission (CRTC) and named him to the cabinet.

The next step—getting Mr. Juneau elected to Parliament—seemed an easy one since former communications minister Gerard Pelletier was giving up the safe Liberal stronghold of Hochelaga to become Canada's ambassador to France. Instead Progressive Conservative Jacques Lavoie won the seat handily.

Soviet, French Talks End

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Political discussions between President Valery Giscard d'Estaing and Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev were postponed at the last minute today, raising speculation that Tuesday's discussions ran into problems.

The second round of talks was postponed until Friday, presumably at the Kremlin's request.

Other theories were that Brezhnev's illness caused the postponement, or that Tuesday's talks on detente and Franco-Soviet political co-operation went so well that there was little else to say.

The theory that the talks may have gone badly was supported only by suggestions that the two leaders differ on ways of amplying agreements on European detente reached at the Helsinki summit in July.

Final Vote Tonight
Postal Strike Now Certain

OTTAWA (CP) — Leaders of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) should know tonight whether the union's 22 — and members have granted them authority to call a strike against the postal office.

Union members in the large Montreal and Toronto locals, which represent almost half of inside postal workers, were scheduled to vote today and a CUPW spokesman in Ottawa predicted Tuesday that they would give strong support to the union executive.

Trenton mail sorters and workers also have asked union inside workers in Belleville and Brighton and voted Tuesday to accept a conciliation report that would given them a $1.70 an hour pay increase over a 26-month contract.

Trenton local president J.C. Pickell said the majority of the 12-man local voted to accept a conciliation report.

But inside workers, numbering 34 between the two post offices, voted against the report in giving union leaders a strike mandate Sunday.

Executives of the union, which represents mail sorters and workers who man postal wickets, have asked for the power to call a strike if negotiations fail.

The union's Ottawa spokesman said "the union has always been willing to go back to the bargaining table, but the post office doesn't seem to want to."

Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey said in the Commons Tuesday that the postal workers are exempt from new federal wage control and the post office is willing to negotiate with the union on the basis of a conciliation report recommending a wage increase amounting to 14 per cent in one year.

However, he said he is not prepared to negotiate on the union's demand for a 31 per cent increase in one year.

Mr. Mackasey said the 14-per cent increase proposed in a conciliation report by Judge Jean-Moisan of the Quebec Superior Court would give inside postal workers parity with letter carriers, who signed a contract earlier this year.

New federal wage guidelines will limit annual wage increases to million workers. Finance Minister Donald Macdonald said earlier Tuesday that special consideration will be given to employees who seek to replace an "expired contract signed prior to 10 per cent for an estimated 4.5 1974. The postal workers are included in that category.

Therefore, Mr. Mackasey said the government still is prepared to negotiate on the basis of the Moisan report, which recommended total pay raises of $1.70 an hour in four stages dating back to Jan. 1, 1973. The workers now earn an average $4.90 an hour.

But if the national executive continues adamantly to suggest that negotiations take place on the post office give 90 days notice of planned changes so consultations can be made. Unsettled disputes could be referred to binding arbitration.

The union's right to negotiate automation has been a major item in the dispute throughout negotiations which began last

Jean-Claude Parrot, chief negotiator for the CUPW, has said if there are no talks after leaders receive strike authorization, a walkout can be called immediately. A union spokesman said Tuesday that early results from across the country show "we are getting a heavy 'yes' vote."

The only local so far to withhold strike approval from the leadership is Halifax where 67 per cent of the members rejected the union request. Tuesday night, while in Vancouver workers gave 79-per-cent approval of a strike.

CUPW president Joe Davidson has rejected the Moisan report "as no good for us."

"The only good thing is the technological change proposal," he said after the report was released a week ago.

Judge Moisan proposed that the post office give 90 days notice of planned changes so consultations can be made. Unsettled disputes could be referred to binding arbitration.

The union's right to negotiate automation has been a major item in the dispute throughout negotiations which began last

Tricky Thieves Rob Local Bank

BY COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

City police are continuing their search today for a well-dressed men who stole $400 from the Bellevile Plaza branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, Tuesday.

Police said two men approached a teller in the bank to discuss the purchase of foreign currency.

During some confusion when the teller's back was turned, one man reached across the counter and took 78-bundle of $20 bills.

The theft went apparently unnoticed until after the men had left the bank.

Police say both men were well-dressed and spoke with French accents.

Chief Douglas Crosbie said the thieves used an "old technique we call the Jam — talking to confuse people.

"While they were discussing the purchase of foreign currency, apparently one man slipped the bills into his sleeve," said the chief.

Police escorted the bank teller around the plaza following the 11:40 a.m. incident in an attempt to identify the couple.

Chief Crosbie said the incident strongly resembles an occurrence in Peterborough Sept. 30.

A provincial alert has been put out on the two men.

CUPE Calls Meeting

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE) has called for an emergency meeting of union leaders to discuss wage and price controls announced Monday by Prime Minister Trudeau. Stan Little, CUPE national president, said in a press release Tuesday that a conference of his union leaders "could tell Prime Minister Trudeau they won't be fooled by his pre-Halloween trickery."

Libya Holds Oil Workers

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 520 foreign employees of the Occidental Petroleum Corp. in Libya will not be permitted by the country's government to leave until they are replaced by other workers, the U.S. state department reported Tuesday.

Department spokesman Robert Funseth said Libya denied it is holding the foreigners hostage but told the United States it would not let the workers leave until they were replaced "to prevent the collapse of oil field operations."

The workers include 230 Americans.

Libya and Occidental have been locked in a lengthy dispute over the company's oil concessions in the Mediterranean country. The government has stopped shipments from Occidental's facilities because of the disagreement.

Occidental notified the state department Oct. 2 that Libya is preventing the 520 foreign employees from leaving the country.

Funseth said the U.S. embassy in Libya reported that only one American asked to leave and was granted permission.

Occidental said in its complaint to the state department that it wanted to relocate its employees "so they may not be held as hostages."

Occidental filed a $1-billion damage suit against Libya with the International Court of Arbitration in The Hague.

Syria Claims Israel Massing Troop Power

DAMASCUS (AP) — Syria said today that Israel is massing troops along the Golan Heights ceasefire line in preparation for "large-scale aggression."

A military spokesman said the Israelis are also trying to increase tension along the front by encouraging the Syrian government of being extremist and hardline.

"The enemy leaders' recent declarations show very revealing in this respect, especially since these declarations have been accompanied by massive concentrations of Israeli armed forces on the Golan front between Syria and Israel.

Israeli officials have spoken in recent days of a deteriorating situation along the Golan Heights and expressed doubt that President Hafez Assad of Syria is ready to negotiate for the minor troop withdrawal Israel is willing to make in the area.

The Syrians, however, have given no indication whether they are going to agree to an extension of the mandate for the United Nations peacekeeping forces in the buffer zone separating the two armies. The mandate expires Nov. 30.

19 Killed in Beirut Fighting

BEIRUT (CP) — New fighting between Christians and Moslems broke out in in this Lebanese capital early Monday.

Security officials said at least 19 persons were killed and 28 wounded, but the count was incomplete.

Left-wing Palestinian guerrillas fighting on the side of Lebanese Moslem leftists fired anti-aircraft guns into two Christian neighborhoods near the Tel Zaatar refugee camp.

Mortar and machine-gun duels raged in other northern and eastern suburbs of the Lebanese capital.

Christian and Moslem militiamen accused each other of violating the ceasefire.

Most banks and shops closed again after a one-day resumption of business.

The government designated most approaches to the city unsafe because large numbers of armed militiamen from the numerous private factional armies were on the move.

The ultra-conservative Order of Maronite (Christian) priests sent a memo to President Suleiman Franjieh saying there can be no Christian-Moslem dialogue of reconciliation until the government regains control in areas occupied by Palestinian guerrillas.

"Lebanon is quickly heading for complete collapse, and unity is becoming impossible," the government said. "The country is under virtual occupation because large parts of Lebanon are outside the sovereignty of the government. All these parts are under the complete control of Palestinian organizations and their allies."

Asbestos Strike End Appears Near

THETFORD MINES, Que. (CP) — A major breakthrough in a seven-week strike by 2,000 asbestos workers in this region has been made with an agreement in principle over monetary terms of a new contract, a union spokesman said Tuesday.

Real Daoust, strike director for the Confederation of National Trade Unions (CNTU), said union negotiators and representatives from the four asbestos companies concerned hammered out monetary clauses Monday night at a bargaining session chaired by special mediator Roger Pilote.

Under the agreement, the union conceded to company proposals for a $1.30-hourly raise over a two-year contract. The workers, who earn $3.72 an hour, were seeking hourly raises of between $2.70 and $2.87 over two years.

In addition, the agreement calls for a $1.50-hourly cost-of-living compensation for the years 1972 to 1974 and a further five-per-cent raise on base salary Feb. 1, 1975.

The union put into amount the cost-of-living indexation and other compensations, which hourly will earn $6.50 an hour by the time the proposed contract expires Oct. 15, 1977.

The four companies involved in the negotiations are Lake Asbestos of Quebec Ltd., Asbestos Corp., Bell Asbestos and Mines Ltd. and Bell Asbestos Mines Ltd.

The CNTU represents 2,500 of the workers while the remaining 1,000 are members of the United Steelworkers of America.

Residents Petition Board To Re-examine Bus Route

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

BLOOMFIELD — A Wellington area mother, president of Prince Edward school trustees with a petition Tuesday carrying the signatures of 156 taxpayers who support her appeal to have a school bus pick up her children at their door.

Mrs. Ronald Conley told board members she was making "a plea" for permission for a bus to drive down the crossroad where her family lives and pick up her two six-year-old children who attend Wellington Consolidated School.

In September, Ronald Conley addressed trustees and told them it was unsafe for his two small children to walk down the crossroad to their bus stop. He observed that workers arriving at the mushroom plant near Wellington use the crossroad and there is no shoulder on the route.

Trustees pointed out that there was no recommended turning spot for the bus if it were driven down the crossroad to the Conley home.

In her presentation Tuesday night Mrs. Conley said she had spoken with several trustees and was told it is against the law for the bus to turn around in the crossroad.

"We looked into it and there is nothing against it," she said.

She added that the board based this rule on a recommendation from Constable Donald Watt of the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police.

Mrs. Conley observed that the po Mrs. Conley observed t the police officer told her it is not recommended that buses turn on any road.

Chairman of the board of education, Douglas Caley told Mrs. Conley trustees voted against allowing the bus to pick up her children in the crossroad during a joint meeting of the finance and maintenance committees. Chairman of the transportation committee John Huskisson also was present.

Mrs. Conley said there is a suitable turn spot for the bus a short distance from her home and asked trustees to re-consider their decision in view of the information she had provided and the petition she presented.

Board Debates Road Ownership

BLOOMFIELD — Prince Edward school trustees have voted to notify Picton town council that Elm Street adjacent to Prince Edward Collegiate Institute needs repair.

The decision followed a discussion on ownership of the street and the question of maintenance.

Business administrator E.A. Shortt said a small section of the street runs to PECI and "it is a moot point" whether the town or the board owns it.

He told trustees that board solicitor Richard Byers had advised it could be argued either way.

Cheque for Jaws

Don Matthews, president of Local 1839 of the United Auto Workers at Northern Electric Co. Ltd. in Belleville, presents $1,000 cheque to Quinte Rescue Squad president Bruce Gelsthorpe recently. The union voted to donate the money towards the purchase of the jaws of life, a tool which can quickly extricate victims trapped in wrecked vehicles. The squad now has about $3,000 towards the $6,500 purchase price.

Testing Bridge Troubles

Ministry of transportation and communications technician Steve Skelton Tuesday hooks measuring device into equipment on the Dundas St. bridge that will test the weight the old swing bridge can bear. Tests will tell Trenton council whether the bridge is too old and unsafe to be repaired and needs costly replacements. Testing will continue today, Thursday and part of Friday.

Producers Voting On Egg Question

PICTON — Five Prince Edward County egg producers are eligible to vote this week in a province-wide marketing poll held through local county agriculture offices to determine support for the Ontario Egg Producers Marketing Board.

Farmer agriculture minister William Stewart ordered the poll to learn the extent of support among Ontario egg producers for the marketing board and its policies.

The poll opened Tuesday at the agriculture and food offices near Picton and voting will continue through October 17.

Prince Edward agriculture representative Larry Matheson said Tuesday the ballots will be forwarded to the Farm Products Marketing Board then to the Chief Electoral Office for counting.

Earlier this month three Prince Edward egg producers, Kurt Kaiser of Kaiser Lake Farms in Prince Edward and Lennox and Addington counties, MacKenzie Brown of Picton and Roy Wight of Glenora criticized the wording of the ballot during a local federation of agriculture meeting. All three agreed the wording was "ambiguous and misleading."

Taxi Fare Hike Postponed

TRENTON — Council postponed a decision on granting the town's two taxi companies permission to raise fares 30 per cent, Tuesday.

If approved, the price of a one-mile ride would increase from the current $1.00 to $1.30. The $6 charge for waiting time would jump 25 per cent to $8 and a new 25-cent fee for handling packages would be imposed.

Council reserved opinion on the fare hike until it could examine material to be assembled by town clerk Aubrey Sharp and postponed the discussion until next meeting.

Graham's Taxi, owned by Harold Graham and Dour's Taxi, owned by Doug Ridley, asked for the increase in fares to cover the rising cost of repairs and gasoline, in a letter presented to council.

"When the last fare increase was granted, in February 1974, the price of gasoline was 49.9 cents per gallon and now I am paying 69.7 cents per gallon," said Doug Ridley, speaking after the meeting.

Currently, it costs 60 cents for the first one-fifth mile and 10 cents for every additional fifth of a mile. Under the proposed increase it would cost 80 cents for the first sixth of a mile and 10 cents for every additional sixth of a mile.

Federal Taxi Aid Urged

TRENTON — If local taxi company owner Doug Ridley gets his way the federal government may one day own a piece of Trenton's taxi fleets.

Mr. Ridley approached town council, Tuesday, and asked them to seek government funding to help offset rising costs that were pushing up the price of taxi fares.

In the absence of public transportation system, which would be subsidized by the government, council should seek funding to help the owners keep down the cost of fares," he said following the regular town council meeting.

Bridge Checked Again

TRENTON — The Dundas Street bridge will be closed today, Thursday and part of Friday as a ministry of transport team conducts tests to determine a safe weight load for the problem-plagued structure.

The announcement was made at town council meeting Tuesday as the group was informed that testing equipment was being placed and the study would be conducted over the next two days.

The tests had been requested by the council to determine if it would be feasible to repair the swing-bridge which has broken down several times recently, or to build a new bridge on the site.

Replacement costs for the bridge are more than double the $1,025,000 needed to repair the structure.

Currently the bridge is only rated at six-tons. This has been reduced from a previous 15-ton per vehicle rating, said town officials.

From the Bureaucracy to Early Retirement and the Lobbyist Game

By RICHARD JACKSON
Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA — There's an old industry here that's taking on new life.

It's the fast-growing, increasingly profitable and ever-controversial enterprise of lobbying.

The greater the government grows, the larger looms the lobby.

It's a shadow industry — that's what makes it controversial — busy in the background as an intelligence service sifting information about government plans and policies, and active as a political force influencing government programs.

There is one branch of it that makes no pretense of doing anything but representing the particular interests of business, industrial, trade, professional and labor organizations.

The Canada's directory lists nearly 200 of these, from the Academy of Medicine to the Union of National Defence Employees.

Then there is another branch that isn't quite so open about its activities.

These people, scorning the vulgar label of lobbyists, prefer to have themselves known as consultants.

Most of them modestly insist that not only do they make an effort to shape government policy, but that they lack real influence.

But they don't lack "insider information" — having themselves been on the inside of government — and so can afford to outline themselves publicly as to dispensing "advice" to those seeking guidance through the federal corridors of power.

Controversial though most lobbyists and consultants customarily concede they are, there is nothing absolutely illegal about their activities.

The consultants are the more interesting of the two species.

And oddly, the government itself, perhaps inadvertently, or just possibly influenced by some senior bureaucrats, has been helping to set them up in business.

The leg-up from working for the government to working on the government comes through early public service retirement.

It doesn't make sense — at least not business sense — and it could happen only in government, but for the senior bureaucrat it's been made more attractive to retire earlier than later.

Job anomaly in executive public service pensions surfaced earlier this year when two of the topmost bureaucrats, former Finance Minister Simon Reisman and former Industry Trade and Commerce Deputy James Grandy — and a few other bureaucratic biggies retired well before the customary age of 65.

In doing so, they drew a richer pension entitlement than they would have received had they stayed on to normal retirement age.

So there's a premium for premature retirement.

In reality a double premium — one from the government in the bigger pension — and the other in time.

For to retire early is to have more working years ahead, and with an "insider's knowledge" of the workings of government a greater attraction as a consultant to those who want to know what's happening before it happens.

So the new office towers that overshadow Parliament Hill have names on the doors of former men of federal power who in the recent past occupied the senior bureaucratic office suites.

There are as many as two dozen of them, former deputy ministers, ex-cronies of former bosses, retired Crown Department brass, and even the one-time cabinet minister or two.

It's the only way to go, early with a fat pension retirement pension, and be a consultant with all the contacts for what is likely to be coming down the government pipe with who knows what reasons.

So there's a rumble now that into the conflict of federal guidelines there lately will be inserted a clause prohibiting boss bureaucrats from jumping up shop before a year or two or three after well-heeled retirement.

Contradictions of 'Pot'

Prime Minister Trudeau once countered a B.C. hippie couple's query about legalization of marijuana by suggesting they might try "turning on" with nature — the beauty of the outdoors where they had just encountered each other.

Over the years there has been evidence enough of disorientation and dysfunctioning stemming from the smoking of pot, grass, hash et al — marijuana by any other name. And the evidence has come as much from r formed users themselves as from scientific study. Of course there are the counter cultists who say they have suffered no ill effects from the stuff. Even Jack Fod. son of the U.S. president is quoted as saying he smokes it and finds it no more intoxicating than beer or wine. So . . . each to his own polson.

Now there's a U.S. Army report out which says that gaining weight may be the only significant effect of occasional use. It acknowledges that heavy pot smoking brought about some dose-related decline in performance, but with the curious rider that this was "probably not biologically significant." The study found no reduction of the male hormone testosterone. Yet such reduction has been reported in a seperate study recently.

Thus, contradictions remain. Consider also that the less mature o: stable the user, the more likely smoking pot ran have unpleasant consequences, in relation to impairment and anti-social behavior.

But even if the pot smoker manages to survive the worst of any potential harm, he is still not off the hook, for in addition to weight gain the report notes a decline in lung capacity which, still with an eye to the user's main chance, says "may be more closely related to the process of smoking per se than to the . . . actions of marijuana."

It's like those ads extolling the virtue of a cigaret's taste, coupled at the same time with government warnings that smoking is dangerous to health. In other words, smoke if you wish. but there may still be a reckoning.

Nature's 'High'

The mountain fastnesses of Europe still retain much of the hardship and satisfaction of peasant life.

And whether it's a harvest gathering in the harvest, with his wife and family sharing the day's toil, or a resident of some nearby community, or a couple with children trekking in the shadow of great peaks, or one of countless tourists, all share the wonder of a matchless environment.

None who saw James Forshee's "European Alps" film at the opening of the Kiwanis club's travel and adventure series — and attendance has noticeably increased — can have failed to appreciate that amid such a classic region there is possibly the best of all worlds. Something from which our own more materialistically-oriented society might draw some useful lessons and inspiration.

Spelling Reform Bombs

The Chicago Tribune regretfully admits failure to reform the English language. For many years it has been spelling phantom as fantom and hockey as horky among its long list of unorthodox words.

The attempt was obviously to spell words the way they sounded thereby simplifying the difficult task of mastering the English Language. It seems as though school board reaction took the wind out of the Tribune's crusade.

However, it is indeed ironic that early newspapers and printing shops played a large role in the development of English spelling.

Theory has it that early British printers were often skilled mechanics but lacked formal education. Therefore, they often made spelling errors in setting manuscripts and, since there were no copyright laws, bootleg editions with the same misspellings would appear in other printing shops.

Immediately, the uneducated mass would quickly assume the incorrect spelling and the process would be repeated many times.

So it is little wonder newspapers feel a responsibility towards English spelling — an "eplog" to a long-standing complaint.

New Airport Costly Venture

Montreal Gazette

At last it's open. The largest and one of the most convenient airports in the world. Montreal's Mirabel is now a reality.

It took almost two years longer than planned to build and cost almost twice as much as the $215 million estimated in 1969. The airlines don't like it and the passengers are almost sure to hate it with a passion but it is now a reality which has to be reckoned with, and, despite its faults and its scandals, it may contain the seeds of a rebirth of this city's flagging transport industry.

Aside from handling the 3-600,000 or so passengers a year who have been predicted for the balance of this decade, Mirabel will be the only airport in this part of the world where cargo aircraft can take off and land around the clock. This gives Montreal a distinct advantage over other North American cities where a curfew must be observed.

It will also tie in with Montreal's planned international trade centre, which is to be built a $215 million congress hall, showplace and hotel complex in the downtown area. Without an efficient transport system, showing your goods to the world is an exercise in futility. Hopefully, Mirabel will provide that transport system.

But the fact remains that for the passenger at least, Mirabel will be a giant pain in the neck. He is paying more than $1 billion for the airport and all its support services and yet will have to spend three hours more travelling because of its remoteness. If he is the only passenger who comes from Montreal, he will have to pay the highest transfer costs in the world to get to and from the new airport.

Hero's Tragic Undoing

Ottawa Journal

Our sympathy is with Oliver Sipple, who deflected the assassin's gun aimed at President Ford, in suing certain newspapers for $15 million as an invasion of privacy and scorn for many people. Some newspapers in their search for details to publicize about him reported that he was "seen in and the gay bars of San Francisco, among men who raped by his conduct are members of his family, who had not known he was a homosexual; they have since "abandoned" him," says Mr. Sipple.

Ottawa newspapers, including The Journal, were severely criticized for publishing the names of those charged in the recent case of the "homosexual vice ring." One can understand this criticism, yet disagree with it. These men had been charged with a criminal offence and it would be a curious and unlikely moral standard if certain criminal charges should not be mentioned in the media yet others given publicity. Who is to be favored and protected? Who not? Why not?

But Mr. Sipple was not charged with a crime. On the contrary, he risked his neck, as many more, more people who might otherwise be victims of such scabrous journalism, that would be a public service.

NEW ECONOMIC MEASURES

Wages Up 124 Per Cent in Decade

Brockville Recorder and Times

Canadians are more income-conscious than ever before. To find out how wage earners - white-collar from laborers and office clerks to industrial tycoons - have been coping with the cost of living, the Financial Post, a leading business publication, recently conducted a large-scale cross-Canada survey.

Some of the Post's findings merely confirm what was common knowledge, such as the fact that non-unionized workers have been losing ground to union members, and that while pay levels have risen substantially in the last decade, employees don't really much better off. The average weekly wage today is $204 compared to $91 in 1965 — a 124 percent increase - but inflation has wiped out three-fourths of that gain. Real wages have increased only 31 percent in the last 10 years.

On the bottom of the financial totem pole, the Post survey found, are some of the Roman Catholic priests - especially priests in small, out-of-the-way parishes. Despite the fact that established stars make very good money, the average were for actors was an almost unbelievably low $2,000 a year. Most actors — even those who consider acting their fulltime career - can't find employment on anything like a steady basis. The p ieists' average was $2,400 a year, but they also get free lodging.

The Post compiled a table of average, or in some cases "typical," salaries for 1975. It should be remembered that in some occupations the pay levels vary considerably from one part of the country to another. The list is too long to include all categories here but a sampling includes: Corporate chief executives $200,000; the prime minister $72,375; plastic surgeons $65,000; family doctors $53,000; pediatrics $42,000; senior lawyers $35,000; MPs $31,600 ($10,600 of it tax free); university professors $22,000; newspaper reporters $18,500; firefighters $15,900; garbage collectors $10,500; factory laborers $7,400; stenographers $6,800.

Care of Clothes and the Dry-Cleaning Business

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

One of the most troublesome areas of consumer irritation is dry cleaning.

Unless you are lucky enough to have found a reliable cleaner, you may regard the typical operator as a slap-happy member of your best clothes.

But if you are a dry cleaner, you may well think that most of your customers are irresponsible, expecting miracles and not knowing how to buy or look after their garments.

There is, in a nutshell, a wide variation among dry cleaners — just as there is among the fabrics that are entrusted to them.

What makes one dry cleaner better than another?

In the first place, the good one doesn't lose garments. The chances of loss are diminished in the case where the cleaning is done on the premises, rather than being sent to a central plant or a wholesaler.

A good dry cleaner returns a garment carefully packaged to avoid wrinkles. He may retine it to give the fabric proper "body," and stuff it with tissue paper so that it will retain its shape.

Even the best dry cleaner, however, cannot prevent all damage to clothes.

Don't blame him if cheap plastic or base buttons are broken during pressing, for instance—although good cleaners will minimize such breakage through careful pressing.

Nor should the cleaner be blamed if so-called "washable" fibres shrink or lose their shape when dry cleaned.

A garment of conventional fabric that has been improperly pre-shrunk by the manufacturer may look worse after dry cleaning. If the fabric of the sewn-in lining has not been pre-shrunk, the garment is likely to come back puckered around the seams.

Suede garments present one of the biggest problems for the cleaner's skill, and are perhaps best entrusted to suede specialists.

Manufacturers of cheaper suede garments tend to use a good deal of oil and artificial coloring to enhance the appearance of the suede—and that oil and coloring are likely to drain out if the dry cleaning is done by an unskilled, inexperienced worker.

Imitation suede and leather garments, which are covered with a synthetic material, should not be dry cleaned because the plasticizer in the vinyl will be dissolved, leaving the fabric stiff. The achesive could peel allowing the imitation suede or leather to separate from the basic fabric.

Such garments are best treated by wet cleaning, a process that uses mild soap or weak detergents. ("Dry cleaning" is an inaccurate term, since garments are dipped in a waterless liquid).

Consumers could avoid potential trouble by following the laundering instructions that are required, under a recently passed law, to be printed on garment labels.

Emergency spot cleaning in the home can be harmful to the garment. The cleaner's stains caused by materials containing oil—like mayonnaise and the like—must not be treated with water.

On the other hand, cold water is usually effective on blood stains. If it isn't, send the garment to the dry cleaner.

The receipt is essential in establishing the value of the garment if you should ever have to make a claim against a dry cleaner for damage to the clothes.

The Properties of Candy

Editor:
The Intelligencer:

Regarding the article by Ron Carson, "Candy is Dandy"—he was quoting the first half of an old quip popular among young blades 50 yrs. ago, "Candy is Dandy, but liquor is quicker". The reference was to the aphrodisiac qualities of both.

The aphrodisiac quality of candy has never been taken seriously. But the health hazards of sugar have been proved to be very serious. The recent report by "Nutrition Canada" shows that 50 per cent or more of Canada's adult population are overweight. Obesity contributes to heart disease, diabetes and hypertension. Company statistics link overweight with early death.

Eating habits learned in childhood are hard to break. The food industry has spent far too much higher than that for breakfast, lunch, dinner. "Good Pharmaceutical Documentation" reporting on "Acceptable Additions" lists sugar as an addition along with alcohol and tobacco, all three being health hazards. All Dental Colleges warn about useless sugar consumption.

The ever-use of dandy candy may well contribute to the overuse of quicker liquor. Most, if not all, alcoholics are hypoglycemic (faulty sugar metabolism). Dr. Roger Williams, a leading world authority on alcoholism, in his book "Nutrition Against Disease," page 173, writes in italics "I will positively state that no one who follows good nutritional practices will ever become an alcoholic." Dr. Gordon Bell of Toronto Domestic Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center refuses to accept any patients unless they eat a proper high protein breakfast daily.

An article in the Toronto Globe, Sept. 19, 1975, states that School Boards in Washington, Bloomington Ind., and Dallas at already have banned in related sugar-loaded foods served in schools.

Congratulations to Hastings County Board of Education on their integrity in refusing to permit children to push candy bars after they are warned by Health and Nutrition classes that candy is junk food.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Gold was discovered near Whitehorse, Yukon, 1898 (24 years ago today—in 1851. A gold discovery— spread, wages and prices of goods soared. More than £1 million in gold was taken that year and £17 million the following year. The population jumped to 90,000 in 1850 from 36,000 10 years earlier in Victoria and New South Wales.

1754 — Anthony Henday sighted the Rocky Mountains near Red Deer, Alta.

1783—Wills were issued for the election of the first representative assembly in New Brunswick.

1854—The Great Exhibition ended in London.

1946—Hermann Goering committed suicide.

1950—Provincial demands for an increase in revenue sharing were rejected by federal government.

Saddled with Inflation

Horse and pony owners in Prince Edward County this year probably will pay about $1 a bale for hay unless they grow their own. In addition, the cost of equipment has climbed significantly in the past two years. Bruce Wallace of Master Feeds in Picton says sales are brisk, however, and this saddle is the last one left on the rack.

Prices Rise, But Equestrians Ride On

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — When the phrase "eating like a horse" was initially coined it merely indicated a healthy appetite but inflation has given this old phrase a new meaning.

Prince Edward County equestrians this fall are discovering the cost of feeding and bedding their horses is an unhealthy blow to the pocket-book.

This year in the county hay is selling from $1.00 to $1.50 a bale while straw is priced from 65 cents to $1. Prices vary slight, depending on whether the horse owner buys his feed in the field and draws it to his barn himself or if the farmer delivers.

Prince Edward County agriculture representative Larry Matheson says the price of hay has jumped because of increased production costs and a hay shortage in the east.

He notes that the cost of seed, twine and fertilizer is up and these values are reflected in the price of hay.

Mr. Matheson observes that the 1975 hay crop was bigger than that of the year before but many farmers store surplus hay instead of selling it. The extra feed is intended to tide them over should there be a poor crop next year.

He says some Prince Edward farmers shipped hay east this year as there was a shortage there. This reduced hay available for sale locally.

Mr. Matheson added the price of straw has raised this year because the supply is not as large as usual. He said world wheat prices are up and this factor would affect local prices too.

Straw is not considered a cash crop says the agricultural representative and many farmers are planting high moisture corn instead of oats and barley.

The cost of baler twine is up "four or five times" and it is much more costly to bale straw now than it was two years ago.

Mr. Matheson says hundreds of bales of hay and straw grown in Prince Edward County are drawn to the mushroom plant near Wellington. Farmers find it convenient to sell to the plant as they can draw the bales there directly from the fields.

The agricultural representative says that $1.00 a bale is a common price for hay this year but some buyers who are seeking large quantities may pay a lower price.

Owners of saddle and harness horses not only are paying more for feed this year but also higher prices for equipment.

A clerk with Master Feeds in Picton, Bruce Wallace says saddles that formerly sold for about $150 now are priced at $300. Tack has increased in cost by about 40 per cent in the last two years.

Customers do not seem to object to the higher prices however.

Mr. Wallace says initially some horse owners were concerned but they continued to buy needed equipment and sales are brisk. In fact the feed store has sold all saddles in stock except one.

"Money doesn't mean a thing if they want it," says Glen Flood of the Rib Tack Shop in Carrying Place.

Mr. Flood says more people now are buying horses than ever before and the cost of equipment is not a concern.

Patrons Appreciate Sunday Hours Says Store Operator

Reaction by shoppers to new Sunday hours of Murray's Food Market on Front St. has been good and owner Murray Atkinson plans to stay open "till they (legislators) close me".

In so doing it joins a growing list of supermarkets that are open Sundays, a situation that is sparking increasing controversy in Belleville and across the province.

Mr. Atkinson said recently his customers, especially young working couples, have said Sunday hours give them an opportunity to shop together.

They appreciate that opportunity, as well as the benefit of lower prices and a wider variety of goods, he said.

Response has been so good, he said, he is seriously considering closing either Monday or Tuesday and staying open Sundays.

Mr. Atkinson said that as an independent supermarket, he must compete with the chain food stores, and unless forced to close by either city or provincial government action, he will remain open.

The downtown's only food store opened Sunday for the first time four weeks ago and recently extended its hours by four hours from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Quinte Area Residents To Get French Station

From the Ottawa Bureau of The Intelligencer

OTTAWA — The CBC has been given licences for FM radio re-broadcast stations at Belleville and Kingston to re-broadcast its French language AM network, the Canadian Radio-Television Commission (CRTC) has announced.

A spokesman for the federal regulatory agency said Friday the two stations will be on the FM band because there is no space left on the AM spectrum.

Belleville's French language radio station will be 95.5 on the FM band. It will have an effective radiated power of 25,000 watts.

Both stations will re-broadcast the programs of CJBC Toronto.

Answering Services More Than Message Centres

By SUSAN McCONNELL
Staff Reporter

Telephone Answering Service (TAS) Quinte Ltd. is not just another phone company. It's a combination radio system, information pool, alarm and lane signal system. In short, TAS is in the communications business.

And manager-owner Ralph Morton who sees his 18-year-old business as a service to the community has recently been joined in the communications business by newcomers Deryk McGrath and June Fray — operators of the Seaway Answering Service established in Belleville Oct. 1.

Mr. McGrath has employed five full-time operators in a rapidly expanding business with line mileage outside of Belleville, a paging system, and radio and alarm system.

Sixteen operators, four working on the five available switchboard positions, answer an estimated 1,100 incoming calls a day at Quinte TAS. Six of these calls are handled twice — once to receive the message and once to inform the customer, at an estimated 30 seconds per call the operators will spend 18 hours a day delivering messages. That's a lot of talking, but as Mr. Morton sees it, that's the name of the business.

After TAS opened on Bridge St., Belleville Mr. Morton, a long-time resident of Belleville and past employee of Bell Canada, as is Mr. McGrath, opened the Trenton TAS service four years after.

TAS in Belleville serves 325 customers, the bulk mainly businesses. The busiest people in town, says Mr. Morton, are the general practitioners who may receive more than 300 calls a month.

The average customer has about 112 messages.

But not only is the phone service and two-way radio system booming, many people, says Mr. Morton, are discovering the convenience of pocket-pagers. The existing pager, which issues a tone sound every few seconds until shut off to remind the customer to get to a phone, will be replaced by the deluxe version — a pager operating on a system similar to a radio where voice messages will be transmitted.

Answering the phone in the plush office does have its serious side. Operators are trained to learn about each business and customer TAS serves and how to deal with various emergencies.

TAS is hooked up to Ontario Hydro and some fire stations, just to name a few, and operators supervise coded alarms. Emergency alarms are currently being set up at the Seaway headquarters on 210 Church St.

"Anything of an emergency nature during after-hours in this city we handle," says Mr. Morton. "It's a 24-hour operation."

"One emergency call can result in the operator making three or four calls contacting the proper people to deal with it."

"The girls have to use their common sense," he says. "They need to be able to decide just what an emergency is and how to deal with people."

TAS has an impressing track record. They've managed to interrupt "quite a few burglaries", says Mr. Morton, and have helped out community service organizations that can't really afford their services. But says Mr. Morton, it's all part of dealing with the public. "We're not just a business," he said, "We are a community service."

Daily Routine

A TAS operator readies a message for one of the hundreds of customers. Operators, not allowed to release their names, are trained to handle all emergency calls.

Information Centre Often Cuts Red Tape

If you've a complaint about a product or service, problems with your landlord or employer or run into a stumbling block collecting benefits, you've probably been in touch with the Quinte Information and Assistance Centre, an organization operating under sponsorship of United Community Services.

First organized under the name Citizen's Bureau in 1972, the centre operated under a Local Initiative's Program (LIP), and nine staff members produced the book Dollars and Sense.

The centre was later sponsored by the Quinte District Labor Council and relocated to Trenton from January, 1973, until July, 1974, handling some 3,800 cases.

Back in Belleville the agency operates under its current name with funding from the ministry of consumer and corporate affairs, a secretary of state grant and donations.

Vera Heimbach, president of the centre's board of directors, said although the centre provides information on the telephone, their real function is assisting individuals.

An average of 300 cases per month are handled by the two full-time members of the staff at their headquarters on 227A Coleman St.

"People run into a dead end through their own efforts and come to us for assistance," Mrs. Heimbach said.

The agency plans to sponsor consumer seminars, presenting a program on credit next year, and is currently involved in assisting the Hastings Board of Education Community Involvement program and the Contact program, with Quinte Secondary School.

Canvass Under Way

ATHOL — A door-to-door canvass has started among Athol township residents to raise funds for Mr. and Mrs. John Sorenson of East Lake whose home burned to the ground last Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Sorenson accompanied by their teen-age son Johnny had driven to Picton to attend a wedding reception for their daughter Elna, when the fire broke out.

The blaze, of undetermined cause, gutted their one-storey brick home, a former rural schoolhouse. Damage was estimated at about $40,000.

Road Gets Facelift

Clarke Rollins MPP, for Hastings-Peterborough, has been advised by the minister of transportation and communications that tenders are to be called next week for the contract covering hot mix paving and maintenance stockpile on Highway 62 from the north limits of Madoc northerly to the south limits of Bannockburn, a distance of approximately 9.6 miles.

Payment Approved

MARMORA — An interim payment of $6,000 towards the repairs to the Marmora Arena has been and Lake Township Council.

Finance chairman Ted Boster suggested that the payment be made at this time in order to help Marmora Village keep interest down on the money they have to borrow in order to finish the job. Government grant monies are not payable until the project is completed.

Good German Dishes for Your Own Oktoberfest

Since the Oktoberfest tradition moved from Germany to Ontario a few years ago, the hearty foods of this autumn festival have become more popular, and more easily obtained in local stores.

Hot sauerkraut, nippy mustard on thick sausages, marinated herring, all washed down with frothy beer — this is the kind of eating you can enjoy even if you can't get to Kitchener or Munich.

For your own festive evening of gemutlichkeit (warm feeling) this October, try some of these German recipes. Lay in a good supply of German wursts and sausages, cheeses such as Tilsiter and Limburger, and have yourself a great time.

Prosit!

Mr. and Mrs. Randy Williams

Williams — Jeffs

Darlene Jean Jeffs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jeffs, and Randy Franklin Carson Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carson Williams of RR 1, Demorestville, were married August 29 in Tabernacle United Church, Bev. Leslie Dean officiated at the service.

Given in marriage by her father and mother, the bride wore a gown of sheer over sharkskin with a high mandarin neckline, and a front and back bodice of guipure lace. The long sleeves, empire waist and attached train and skirt hem had the same lace trim. The floor-length two-tier lace-edged veil was caught by bandolee of flowers and seed pearls. She carried red roses and baby's breath.

Marlene Jeffs, twin sister of the bride, was her maid of honor in a pink swiss dotted gown with puffed sleeves, trimmed with white lace around the low scooped neck. She carried a nosegay of pink and blue baby mums and baby's breath.

Brenda-Jean Long, cousin of the bride, and Maureen O'Hara were bridesmaids in blue gowns identical to the maid of honor's, and also carried nosegays of similar flowers.

Paula Forsyth, the groom's niece, was flower girl in an outfit similar to the maid of honor; and carried a basket of pink and blue mums.

Kevin Lalonde, nephew of the bride, acted as ring bearer.

Donald Bellis was the groom's best man. His ushers were David Bellis and Rupert Young.

A buffet and dinner dance was held at the Club Cedars after the wedding.

The newly-married couple travelled east on their honeymoon before settling at 255 North Yeoman Street.

Hints for Press Secretaries: How to Report Club News

People and Events, the column devoted to news of women's clubs in the Quinte area, depends on news submitted by secretaries and press officers.

In order to help you prepare reports, the following suggestions and guidelines have been established. Some are a matter of requirements for daily newspaper style; others are a matter of convenience, news value and public interest.

* * *

Always print the organization's name, your name, address and telephone number at the top of the report submitted for publication.

Please type (double-space) if you can. If you can't please print names so that they can be easily read.

* * *

Please use good-sized paper, not scraps or backs of envelopes. Each page should be numbered if you use more than one.

* * *

News of a meeting or club event should be submitted within three days of it having taken place.

* * *

Advance notice of events is only used in People and Events if the occasion is open to the public. Since advising where the next meeting of your group will be held is of interest to a very limited number of people, there is no point in including it in the report.

There is a distinction between secretaries' minutes of a meeting and news for general consumption. The regular events that take place during a business meeting, for example, do not make interesting reading for those outside that particular organization, those who attended the meeting of course, do not need to be reminded who read the various reports or correspondence.

Unless there is some item of special interest — a large donation given or received, for example — this part of a meeting is not required in your newspaper report.

* * *

Your report of a meeting should include complete information about the central event or events that took place. For example, guest speakers; program of music; slides or films; fashion show; special demonstration or display; or group participation in some project.

Emphasis on events of this nature makes for interesting reading and gives the public a better idea of what activities take place within your organization.

The name of all those involved in the program, and in charge of the meeting, should be included.

* * *

All names must include a complete first and last name. Two initials are acceptable, but one initial is not sufficient, and names given this way are not used.

Please refer to women by their own name rather than their husband's, if they are married. This is current practice in daily newspapers when women's names are used in connection with women's groups.

A woman is referred to as "Mrs.", "Miss" or "Ms." on the second reference only. For example, she is called Doris Brown the first time she is mentioned, and Mrs. Brown (or Miss Brown) the second time. The same rule applies to use of men's names.

* * *

Election of officers should be reported in the following fashion: Doris Brown, president; Lola Jones, vice-president (position follows name). Under usual circumstances, only the top officers are listed.

* * *

Please phone or write the Women's Department well in advance of any major event your group has planned for which you would like publicity beforehand in the People and Events column.

* * *

If you have further questions about preparing your news reports, call Sharon Barhart or Isabel Huggan at The Intelligencer, Extension 35, 962-9971.

Drugs Taken During Pregnancy May Cause Fetus Brain Damage

MELBOURNE (CP) — An Australian psychologist says that pregnant women taking any form of drug may endanger the brain development of their children.

Dr. Ian Coyle of the Swinburne College of Technology reported this to more than 450 Australian and overseas psychologists at the annual conference of the Australian Psychology Society.

Dr. Coyle said it has been assumed that drugs are safe to use during pregnancy if the child is born anatomically normal—that is, if it looks normal. But no attention has been paid to subtle effects on brain development which are not externally obvious.

He said there is evidence that drugs—ranging from Aspirin to minor and major tranquillizers—may affect the new-born baby's psychological development.

"None of these drugs, which are available to pregnant women, has been adequately tested in this respect," he said. "Obviously you can't use humans in this sort of research. You run into problems like most women not remembering which drugs they took while pregnant.

"I have, therefore, been using rats in my experiments. I have injected pregnant rats with an anti-depressant drug during pregnancy and studied the behavior of the offspring."

Dr. Coyle said the environment the new-born rats were born into was of vital importance to the effect of the drug on their behavior.

Some of the rats were born and reared in a cage with no stimulating surroundings. Others were reared in "enriched" environments — they had wheels to play with, toys to chase and generally a more "realistic" environment.

The basic finding was that the rats in the enriched situation were affected. Their behavior indicated they were mentally retarded. The rats in the "deprived" environment showed no effect.

Why Can Stars Bring Their Own Meals to Restaurants?

Dear Ann Landers: I was in a restaurant owner who didn't know what to do about those clubs who bought Chinese food at a carryout joint down the street, brought the cartons into his place, took a booth, and helped themselves to the salt and pepper, napkins and silverware. They spoiled the tablecloth, used the washroom, said goodbye and left no tip. The mess—including the floor—took 15 minutes to clean up.

Of course these people are trash but how different are they, really, from the celebrities who bring their so-called "health food" to the most exclusive bistros in Hollywood? I've seen these Big Names take plastic sacks out of their tote bags, eat the carrots, lettuce, green peppers and radishes, order a glass of skim milk and get treated like queens.

The waiters knock themselves out for these people because they are well known. Why does the management overlook such nonsense? It irritates me no end. Please comment.—President of Beverly Hills

Dear Beverly: The answer is found in your letter. "Because they are well known."

The patrons who frequent these bistros are willing to pay top dollar so they can go home and say they saw Gloria Swanson or Carol Channing.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 19-year-old girl who has been trying to deal with a problem for two years, but I'm getting nowhere. Will you please get it all together for me?

There were even kids in our family. My oldest brother, Jeff, died in 1973, on his 21st birthday. Now there are six kids left—four boys and two girls.

Whenever I meet someone new they ask about my brothers and sisters. I don't know whether to say I have four brothers or five. I hate to leave Jeff out. Even though he is dead he is still very much a part of my life.

Next the question of his age—should I say 21, the age Jeff was when he died, or should I say 22? Please help me, Ann. I still get crying spells when I think of what a great guy he was.—Grieving Sister

Dear Grieving: Say, "There were seven kids in our family—five boys and two girls—until two years ago, when my brother Jeff died. He was 21. So now there are only six of us and we miss Jeff every day of our lives."

After you've said it once or twice it will be easier. But do memorize the speech and get it out somehow because unless you tackle it now it will be a problem forever.

Sex Therapy: a Job For Family Doctors?

TORONTO (CP) — Family doctors should play a greater role in sex therapy, a professor of psychiatry and an assistant professor of obstetrics and gynecology told the Ontario chapter of the College of Family Physicians of Canada on Monday.

Dr. Domeena C. Renshaw of Loyola University's Stritch school of medicine in Maywood, Ill., and Dr. John A. Lapenot of McMaster University, Hamilton, said family doctors are more competent than anyone else in the community to help individuals with sex problems.

Dr. Renshaw said doctors should recognize individuals who are having problems with sex when patients complain of symptoms which do not fit an expected physical condition.

A woman may be giving the family doctor a clear message when she complains to him about painful intercourse, Dr. Lamont said.

If there is no evidence of organic disease, he added, the patient may really be saying "I don't want to have intercourse" because the physiological pain is related to the psychological.

Similarly, a man may complain of "a little pain in the groin" or any excuse except to say, "Doctor, I'm having trouble having erections." Dr Renshaw said.

She said children also claim to have many strange symptoms that do not fit the books when dealing with their own sexuality. For example, a child may invent a physical ailment when what he is really asking is whether masturbation is right or wrong.

Kept Out of School, Her Children Thrived

TORONTO (CP) — Three daughters of author Patricia Joudry became school dropouts at the kindergarten level.

"Mummy, I can't go back," Melanie, then 5, said after three days in school. "It's the first time in my life I've been bored."

Miss Joudry and her husband, John Scott, allowed Melanie and her sisters Stephanie and Felicity to learn at home.

"If left alone, nothing will stop a child from learning," Miss Joudry said in an interview here. "I believe that the love of learning comes next to the urge for survival."

She wrote a book, . . . And the Children Played, which deals with the problems the family had at Shorhill in England's Cotswolds where the children spent 10 years learning at home.

The author said in the book that the average school takes the attitude that a child does not want to learn, shoves lessons down the child's throat and wonder the child does not want to learn.

Her children learn what they are interested in at home, she said. What they are not interested in, they are not ready for and will learn later.

Felicity, now 13 is learning at the family's new farm home in southern Quebec, but Melanie now 19, decided to try school when her mother moved to Montreal.

"I wanted the experience of being with people to see how I could relate to them and study at the same time," Melanie said.

She passed necessary tests to enrol in Dawson College, a co-educational college in Montreal, and has received her secondary school credits.

'New Options'—a Farm To Aid Troubled Teens

HARDWOOD LANDS (CP) — When you're 17 years old and in trouble with drugs or the law or just yourself there aren't many places you can go for help.

However, at New Options Farm eight boys and girls between the ages of 14 and 18 years of age have found a place that cares.

The 170-acre farm has been in operation since 1972 under the management of New Options, which runs an alternative school and two group homes in Halifax.

John Shah, the man behind New Options, says the basic aim of the farm and the two homes (known as Camelot and Chalons) is to provide the kids with an "alternative family."

"For most of the participants the normal family environment just hasn't worked, but they share with everyone else the need for the warmth and consistency a family provides," John said. "A lot of group homes use a professional client relationship but at New Options we don't think that's helpful."

"The kids here come with a variety of problems.

"Many have been involved with drugs and found themselves with personal problems. Most are referred to the farm by welfare departments, children's aid, church officials, or the courts.

They stay as long as it takes them to get what they need. It might take a month or even a year but they stay until they've had the help they needed.

Except for farm chores there are no formal programs or group therapy sessions on the farm.

"The interchange between people living in a family situation is the only thing the farm really offers and it seems to be the only thing that really works and matters."

Some of the participants go to school, some are at home most of the day, and one of them is serving out a probation term and taking a trade course. He got here after trial on an armed robbery charge.

"Rather than being an island," Mr. Shah said, "we have hooks into the community and that's pretty important."

Doctor Delays Practice To Combat Delinquency

BOMBAY (CP) — Raichand Kothari graduated from a Bombay medical college last year. But it will be another two years before he starts work as a doctor.

Kothari, 25, plans to spend the next two years waging a campaign against student delinquency in his home city of Rajkot, some 400 miles from here.

Students in Rajkot have formed an organization to combat the growing menace of drug addiction, alcoholism and other evils affecting the city's youth. When Kothari read reports of the harm done by drugs to several students in the high school in which he studied years ago, he decided to do his bit.

The Rajkot student group plans to enlist the services of at least a dozen doctors and an equal number of trained welfare workers who will be able to talk to the drug and alcohol addicts.

"Our aim is to prevent drug and alcohol addiction through persuasion," said Nirmal Ruia, a member of the group, who now is in Bombay to raise funds and meet members of the medical profession.

Ruia was obviously referring to reports in the Indian press that several colleges have decided to refuse admission to students addicted to drugs or alcohol.

Bombay Times recently reported that the government of Assam state in northeast India has asked colleges not to admit students with "anti-social tendencies."

Among the "anti-social tendencies" listed are addiction to drugs or alcohol and gambling.

Colleges in the south Indian state of Andhra are cracking down even on cigarette smoking. One college in Hyderabad, the state capital, has put up a notice which says: "Students are not allowed to smoke inside the college or in the hostels. Serious notice will be taken if any student defies this order."

But members of the Rajkot reform group think threats will not work, at any rate beyond a short period.

However, many parents support the use of drastic methods to reduce drug addiction on the campus.

"I don't want my son to start taking drugs. And the only way to protect him is for the college to throw out drug addicts and peddlers," said Mukesh Lalla, a leading Bombay businessman and the father of six sons.

PEI Trip a Success

Grade 10 students of Quinte Secondary School unanimously agreed with geography teacher Hugh Miniely, that their recent excursion to the east coast of Canada was a success. Above, Jane Ross (left), Phil Flagler, Judy Cross, Curtis Trahan, and Mr. Miniely, show one of their souvenirs—a lobster trap from Halifax.

Quebec City Wins Hearts Of High School Students

Hugh Miniely, geography teacher at Quinte Secondary School, said a recent 10-day excursion for students to the east coast of Canada was an unqualified success. Mr. Miniely, his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Gary Graul chaperoned.

The students toured points of historical interest along the St. Lawrence Seaway, stopping in Montreal, Quebec City, New Brunswick, Halifax, and Prince Edward Island.

Although there was an itinerary of research and projects along the way, the students made time for meeting and talking with natives in Montreal, seeing the town.

They unanimously declared the high point of the trip was Quebec City.

"It's like going back to the 18th century — a quaint place," said Curtis Trahan, a Grade 10 student.

Poor Response Disappoints Sidney Recreation Director

Get them while they're young and you've got them for life.

Or at least the tendency will be for people, once they've outgrown children and teenage recreation programs, to continue with their participation in community-run activities.

Sidney Township recreation director Wendy Neale says she not only sees solid social value in such a hoped-for trend, but also sees it as a necessity.

When the children of today grow into adulthood, they may be facing a 25-hour work week, with more leisure time on their hands than workers today, she says.

To use that additional time constructively, a start must be made today to set a pattern of behavior in children. But, she says, people now don't see the social value in participating in recreation programs.

She expressed concern over the lack of involvement by Batawa children in three fall programs the recreation department had planned in the village of 600 people. The programs were cancelled for lack of interest.

Mrs. Neale could only speculate why not enough interest was shown.

Perhaps parents aren't getting children involved, or children have other activities to participate in, or the programs offered — art, ballet, and judo — did not catch anyone's interest, she said.

"It's either a transportation or time problem or not the right program", she said, speculating about scheduling programs right after school and providing a late-running bus.

She said she doesn't see the answer to providing Batawa with programs by telling people to go to Trenton: "People shouldn't have to have a car and the money (extra) to participate."

"I believe in putting programs into the community."

A survey of Batawa students will be made later this year to discover what programs they would like.

Quinte Easy Rollers Aid Disabled

The Quinte Easy Rollers now a United Way agency, caters to a special group of people in the Quinte area.

The members are wheelchair patients, and people with physical handicaps. People, who won't take their handicap lying down, in the words of president and organizer Bruce Bean.

Mr. Bean, a wheelchair person for the last 26 years himself, started the club two years ago to fill a need for a social and recreational outlet under grants from the Local Initiates Program.

Mr. Bean, who also helped to organize the large Toronto group call the Toronto Coasters, said the club is a way to "prove to yourself the wheelchair isn't the end of it."

"It gives us something to look forward to," he said. He also credits the group with giving many a new perspective on life.

Operating on a small budget of $1,500 for transportation and art and crafts supplies, the group meets monthly after the summer break.

Cabinet to Discuss Economic Restraints

TORONTO (CP) — A cabinet committee headed by Ontario Treasurer Davey McKeough will begin discussing problems immediately of implementing Ottawa's program of selective wage and price controls, Premier William Davis said Tuesday.

He told a news conference he hopes to have the committee report soon and that Ontario supports the general concept of the guidelines.

Mr. Davis said the eight-member committee also will include James Auld, management board chairman, Attorney-General Roy McMurtry and the ministers of labor, health, education, energy and housing.

The controls, announced Monday by Prime Minister Trudeau, limit wage and salary increases to 10 per cent during the next year. Controls will affect all federal employees and agencies as well as firms with more than 500 workers.

Mr. Davis said Ontario will go ahead with its plan to introduce a rent-control program.

He said the program may be different from the original proposal, announced during the provincial election campaign, calling for rent review boards, but will keep rent increases in the area of 10 per cent as recommended by the federal guidelines.

The federal government also imposed a 10-per-cent ceiling on other incomes such as fees charged by professional groups.

Mr. Davis said the limit will apply to Ontario doctors who last week tought a fee increase of between 25 and 50 per cent.

Recount Confirms NDP Downsview Win

TORONTO (CP) — The results of a judicial recount in Toronto Downsview riding Tuesday confirmed the NDP's position as Ontario's official opposition.

The NDP won 38 seats in the Sept. 18 general provincial election, two more than the Liberals.

Liberal Michael Spensieri requested the recount after he was defeated by New Democrat Odoardo Di Santis by 77 votes.

Had it changed the order of finish, the parties would have been tied at 37 seats each.

But the recount—conducted under the supervision of County Court Judge H. M. O'Connell—narrowed the winning margin by nine votes.

"I think we had an obligation to see this thing through and now we've done it," Mr. Spensieri said Tuesday.

Commission Wants Ontario Seats Increased to 180 from 125

TORONTO (CP) — A growing government should be matched by a greater number of MPPs, the Ontario commission on the legislature said Tuesday. It recommended that the number of MPPs be increased to about 180 from the current 125.

The commission, chaired by Dalton Camp, former president of the Progressive Conservative party of Canada, was presenting its fifth and final report.

Also on the three-man commission were Douglas Fisher, writer and broadcaster and former NDP federal candidate, and Farquhar Oliver, former Ontario Liberal leader.

The commission also recommended that proceedings of the legislature be broadcast and televised and found that facilities in the legislature building were "old-fashioned" and "shabby" in some cases.

It also recommended that MPPs receive a pay increase. Members now earn $22,500 in salary and expenses.

Mr. Fisher told a news conference after the report was released that the commission believes the government should consider increasing the size of the legislature immediately because the business of governing continues to expand.

He said bureaucracy in all Canadian governments now numbers about 1.2 million people compared with 108 provincial and federal politicians. Of these 108 members, only 25 sit in opposition and another 22 are cabinet ministers.

Mr. Camp said that although the commission recommends a salary increase for MPPs, it relies on Premier William Davis promised to freeze salaries for two years during the N.A. 18 election campaign.

The report also recommended that television and radio reporters be allowed the right to broadcast proceedings in the legislature and legislature committees. In the past, television cameras and tape recorders have only been allowed in the legislature chamber for speech from the throne.

The commission report said the capital investment in television equipment would be about 12 million and about $600,000 a year in operating expenses.

Mr. Camp said televising the legislature would help create a better understanding of how government works.

The report said radio and television reporters should be granted the same rights as print reporters.

The commission departed from its earlier reluctance to recommend constituency offices. In the final report, saying such offices are important in satisfying the needs of constituents.

The commission report also recommended that a standing committee of MPPs, the Speaker and members of the legislature press gallery be established to ensure consultation and continuity in the relationship of both legislators and the news media.

There are about 30 active and associate members in the gallery and it had asked the commission to continue to provide office space in the main building and access to proceedings in the chamber.

Cabinet Members Hit by Restraints

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal cabinet members and other MPs will be hit by the $2,400-a-year ceiling on wage increases announced in the government's pay and price control program, Finance Minister Donald Macdonald said Tuesday.

Following the same rules that apply to Mr. Trudeau, they would have been entitled to raises of $3,722 each, or $1,322 over the $2,400 ceiling.

Ordinary MPs, including Senators, not get a total of $34,600 and would have been entitled to increases of $5,422 so the possible maximum saving on each of these is only $22.

Cabinet ministers and Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield now get a total of $52,600 each—$34,600 MP's salary and expenses, $30,000 ministerial salary and $2,000 car allowance.

Following the same rules that apply to Mr. Trudeau, they would have been entitled to raises of $3,722 each, or $1,322 over the $2,400 ceiling.

Jobless Decrease Ignored

OTTAWA (CP) — The national unemployment rate declined slightly in September but the information was largely ignored Tuesday as politicians focused on the government's new anti-inflation program.

Statistics Canada reported 7.2 per cent of the labor force was unemployed in September, a drop of one-tenth of one percentage point from August.

It was the seventh consecutive month the rate has exceeded seven per cent—maintaining the worst level of unemployment in 14 years—and it is widely predicted to get worse before it gets better.

Although the national rate declined, there were increases in jobless rates in Quebec, British Columbia and Nova Scotia.

Despite the slight decline in the unemployment rate, Statistics Canada said the drop is not statistically important.

On an actual basis, 786,000 persons were officially unemployed in September.

On a seasonally adjusted basis, the jobless rate for those 24 and younger declined to 12.5 per cent from 12.7 per cent. There were similar drops in the rate for men 25 and older, which decreased to 3.4 from 3.6 per cent, and women of the same age, which declined to 4.6 from 4.8 per cent.

The rate increased in three provinces. In Quebec the rate increased, to 9.3 from 8.9 per cent and the B.C. rate rose to 9.6 from 9.3 per cent. The Nova Scotia rate was 8.1 per cent, up from 7.9 per cent.

The Manitoba rate remained steady at 3.5 per cent while in the remaining provinces rates dropped. The largest decline occurred in Newfoundland, which dropped to 18.9 from 21 per cent, but remains the highest in the country.

Saskatchewan continued to have the lowest unemployment rate at 3.9 per cent, down from 2.7 in August.

Stanfield Feels Vindicated

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield told the Commons Tuesday he feels vindicated by the government's new economic restraint program because it goes even further than the strong measures he proposed during the 1974 federal election campaign.

He called on Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau to give up the "silly game" of pretending that the program was voluntary and call it what it really is, "a program of general, large-scale, national prices and incomes controls."

Mr. Stanfield said the price and pay restraints announced by Mr. Trudeau on national television Monday and explained in detail in a white paper tabled in the Commons Tuesday was, in effect, a "medium-term" system of compulsory controls over the economy for the next three years.

CP News Roundup

Urges Canada To Attend Meeting

OTTAWA (CP) — U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger said Tuesday it is vital Canada be included in a major economic summit conference being held in France next month.

So far Canada has not been invited to the six-nation meeting largely because of objections by France, knowledgeable sources say.

Mr. Kissinger made his remarks after arriving here for a 24-hour official visit.

In a brief airport address, the secretary said Canada no longer occupies the position of a junior country in world affairs, adding that its participation in summits such as that being held in France is crucial.

The leaders of France, the U.S., West Germany, Britain, Italy and Japan will take part in the meeting, billed as one of the most important ever held on economic issues.

Mr. Kissinger was met on his arrival late Tuesday by External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen, J. H. Warren, Canadian ambassador to Washington and William Porter, U.S. ambassador to Canada.

Later, the secretary and his wife, Nancy, were guests at a dinner given by Mr. MacEachen and attended by more than 90 leading Canadians.

Today, Mr. Kissinger is to lunch with Prime Minister Trudeau and meet other leading ministers before visiting the Commons and the U.S. Embassy. He also has scheduled a news conference before returning to Washington to attend the official opening of a Canadian opera production in honor of the U.S. bicentennial.

Seeks Members

OTTAWA (CP) — John Robarts, former Ontario premier, has been asked to join Jean-Luc Pepin, former federal trade minister, and Beryl Plumptre, chairman of the food prices review board, on a new anti-inflation board, a government informant said Tuesday.

However, in Toronto Mr. Robarts said: "I've heard nothing from anyone except the media. Until such time as I have it would be pure speculation on my part."

Income Rises

OTTAWA (CP) — Statistics Canada figures released Tuesday showed the average income before taxes of families and individuals outpaces inflation during 1974.

The average family income rose to $14,485 from $12,716 in 1973—a jump of 14 per cent. The cost of living as measured by the consumer price index rose 11 per cent during the year, reducing the family gain to three per cent.

Tremor Reported

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Residents of this southern New Brunswick city reported a brief earth tremor early Wednesday morning.

A city police spokesman said their switchboard was "lit up like a Christmas tree" with calls from people reporting the tremor. It "shook everywhere," he said.

One report said the tremor occurred at about 12:30 a.m. and lasted for about two seconds.

No damage or injuries were reported.

Cossitt Charges

OTTAWA (CP) Progressive Conservative MP Sam Cossitt told the House of Commons Tuesday telephone operators are listening in on calls made over government-leased lines and are doing so at the request of the federal communications department.

Will Support

VANCOUVER (CP) — The president of Chrysler Canada Ltd. said Tuesday that his company will support the concept of wage and price guidelines announced Monday by Prime Minister Trudeau.

C. O. Hurly, here for a new car showing, said that "any kind of logic the inflation controls can run up against is good."

"It is a timely move," he said.

Broadbent Attacks Pepin

OTTAWA (CP) NDP Leader Ed Broadbent said Tuesday the appointment of former Liberal cabinet minister Jean-Luc Pepin to head the new anti-inflation board is "the icing on the cake in with the chicken."

In a speech during a special Commons debate on the government's white paper on inflation, Mr. Broadbent said Mr. Pepin, who represented the Quebec riding of Drummond until defeated in the 1972 election, is "precisely the kind of man who should not be given the job."

The NDP leader attacked the government's proposals, calling its price control mechanism a "sham and its price guides "frightening . . . to the average worker in Canada."

Fireplace Production Becomes Major Industry in Canada

TORONTO (CP) — The once lowly fireplace has become a year overnight, says Sam McCullough, ec. general manager of Schirk Metalbestos, one of the largest fireplace manufacturers in Canada.

"The fireplace market in Canada is less than a decade old," he said in an interview. "Yet in this short span of time, it has grown from a meagre beginning to become a major industry on the Canadian building and renovation scene."

Schirk, which has plants in the Ontario centre of Brockville, Oshawa and Toronto, has forecast sales next year of $11 million compared with $5 million four years ago.

Mr. McCullough said the energy crisis has been a boon for his firm because people began buying fireplaces as an alternative heating unit against fuel shortages. It meant that a fireplace is no longer a luxury, but a necessary functional heating unit.

Mr. McCullough's own firm has helped make fireplaces more popular with its new, prefabricated fireplace unit which that use a steel rather than a masonry-built chimney. He said steel chimneys are more efficient, more easily installed and less costly.

Schirk's share of the fireplace market has grown 500 per cent in the last three years in competition with three Canadian and five United States manufacturers.

Schirk-made and designed fireplaces also are sold in Europe and Australia.

The company moved into Australia only this year and did $80,000 worth of business in a joint venture with Morgan Heating And Cooling Ltd. of Melbourne.

"They (Morgan) feel that within five years, we can build up a $3-million market in Australia," Mr. McCullough said.

Under the deal with Morgan, the company will make a profit on parts it ships to Australia and "we'll get six per cent in royalties on everything they make under license from us."

Schirk will provide its foreign markets with parts as it has the precision tooling to do the job more efficiently and at less cost.

Schirk is part of Wallace Murray Canada Ltd., an affiliate of Wallace Murray Corp. of New York, with world-wide sales of $230 million.

Eight of Wallace Murray's plants are in Canada, five in Ontario.

The parent U.S. firm also owns and operates the Simonds cutting tool plants at Arvida and Granby in Quebec, and the Schweizer plant in Stratford, Ont.

Schirk also manufactures the famous Franklin heater, designed by U.S. inventor Benjamin Franklin.

Recently, Mr. McCullough's firm donated an original 1790 Franklin stove to Toronto's Old Fort York. The authentic stove, discovered in Magog, Que., cost the company $1,000, at least. It now does the original price.

For Schirk, it was a natural. The company name dates back several generations when the original firm in Schirk, Man., used to make insulated chimneys and took them in barges down the Red River.

Court Reserves Rent Decision

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada reserved decision Tuesday on a case which is testing a simpler, cheaper way for Ontario tenants to challenge their landlords in court.

No date was set by Chief Justice Bora Laskin for a ruling on an appeal by Pajelle Investments Ltd. owner of a Toronto apartment building, against a lower court decision granting a tenant a rent rebate of $120.

The case is the first to go to the Supreme Court under legislation which lawyers for the tenant, Mrs. Lillian Herbold, say gives tenants broader scope for safeguarding their rights.

Alvin Rosenberg, counsel for Pajelle Investments, told the Supreme Court that Judge F. J. MacRae of York County court in Toronto was wrong in granting the rent rebate as there has been no discussion of the issue at all during the hearing.

Mr. Rosenberg said Mrs. Herbold really had been seeking to terminate her lease because the air conditioning, sauna bath and swimming pool were not functioning.

However, Judge MacRae had granted Mrs. Herbold a rent rebate of $20 a month for six months on her $195 a month apartment at a West Lodge Avenue building in Toronto.

Brian Buchanan, Mrs. Herbold's lawyer, said a section of the Ontario Landlord and Tenant Act opens the way to tenants to challenge their landlords in court with a minumum of cost and delay.

The section permits tenants to make a summary application to a county court judge when they want their leases broken or restitution made after a landlord has failed to keep their premises in a good state of repair.

Demeter's Defence Unbelievable: Lawyer

TORONTO (CP) — A lawyer for the Ontario attorney-general's department has described as "unbelievable" the defence theory in the murder appeal hearing of Peter Demeter that his wife was killed by escaped convict Lastis Eper.

David Watt made the statement as the Crown made submissions at hearings before the Ontario Court of Appeal, where Demeter is seeking a new trial following his conviction last December on the charge of arranged the murder of his wife.

Demeter, a wealthy 42-year-old home-builder, was convicted of hiring someone to kill his wife, Christine, 33, at their 1,100,000 home in nearby Mississauga.

Mrs. 34, was killed by Metropolitan Toronto police in a shootout Aug. 29, 1973. Mrs. Demeter was bludgeoned to death the month before in the home she had recently been while her husband was shopping with friends.

The defence theory raised at Demeter's 11-week trial at London, Ont., was that Mrs. Demeter may have been involved in a plot with Eper to kill her husband and that the plot backfired and Eper killed her.

Mr. Watt said Tuesday that the Eper theory was believable only if the trial jury had accepted the testimony of Joe Dimardo, a former fighter serving a term for arson and possession of counterfeit money and stolen jewelry.

There was, Mr. Watt argued, "absolutely no evidence apart from the testimony of Dimardo that Eper was at the scene of the crime."

Ottawa Struggles For Implementation Of New Restraints

OTTAWA (CP) — The government Tuesday grappled with the problem of fitting into operation its three-year plan to break the back of inflation with selected wage and price controls ever less than half the week force.

Even before the machinery was in place, some major union and leaders had served notice they will defy the penalty-backed guides outlined by Prime Minister Trudeau Monday night in a national radio and television broadcast and expanded Tuesday in Parliament.

The powerful United Auto Workers union issued a release calling the plan a "millionaire's solution" because it zeroes in on wages but does nothing to ease policies rates. The United Steelworkers of America also said its members will oppose the guides because they make labor a scapegoat.

Many groups are exempted from the guides presented to Parliament by Finance Minister Donald Macdonald, but the government hopes inflation can be controlled if the guides are accepted voluntarily.

Basically, the guides call for wage increases to be held to 10 per cent during the next 12 months and for prices to increase by no more than amount needed to recover higher costs.

But it became clear Tuesday that exactly how the plan will be applied depends largely upon how it is administered by a monitoring anti-inflation review board, backed by a special administrator empowered to order rollbacks of wage and price rises.

Stiff, but still unspecified, penalties including fines and jail terms can be ordered by the special administrator.

But by Tuesday, no administrator had been appointed. Former trade minister Jean-Luc Pepin will be board chairman with Beryl Plumptre, former food prices review board chairman, as one vice-chairman. Another vice-chairman still has to be selected.

Legislation empowering the special administrator to impose penalties, if a company or employees will not voluntarily comply with board orders, and to roll back excessive increases will be introduced in the Commons Thursday.

The guides left several exemptions open for those who have fallen behind, for those who have moved too far ahead and for those whose contracts have expired.

One of those clauses will allow the now-negotiating Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) to escape the guides that were retroactively effective Monday midnight.

Glass Fibres May Carry Messages

LONDON (CP) — The British Post Office, which runs Britain's telecommunications system, is studying the use of hair-thin glass fibres instead of wire to carry telephone communications.

The system, still at the research stage, was demonstrated here at a conference on communications by optical fibres.

Telephone calls were carried on a beam of light along glass fibres. Tests by the post office have shown that up to 2,000 calls can be carried on such a tiny strand and experts believe this can be increased to 200,000. Post Office research teams are working with industry, say officials, to replace copper wire in many parts of the telecommunications network, hoping advantage of optical fibres is that signals may be transmitted over much greater distances without the need for intermediate signal booster stations.

Two systems are being evaluated. One can send 120 telephone calls at once over single fibre sections without intermediate amplification. For longer distances, sections can be linked.

The other system involves signals being sent along a half-mile fibre designed to handle nearly 2,000 calls. This has been installed in the normal cable ducts of a London building.

After 10 years' research on the use of light instead of electrical energy for long-distance communications, Standard Telephones and Cables (STC) of Britain also reported last week plans to introduce an extra production plant next year to step up output of prototype fibre-optic cables.

STC says the idea of communications by light was first mooted in its own laboratories at Harlow, near London. Its fibre-optic system can carry more than 10,000 simultaneous telephone calls.

STC says the big increase in communication capacity that fibre-optics promises will further the development of the "electronic office" of videophones, and allow the public to direct direct access to computer-based information services, home tuition and program libraries.

"The possibilities," said a company spokesman, "are enormous."

Provinces Asked to Impose Rent Controls

OTTAWA (CP) — All 10 provinces have been asked to implement rent controls on existing housing as one facet of the federal anti-inflation program.

The controls would not apply to new rental accommodation for at least five years to give owners a big enough growth incentive to increase the supply of apartments, garden homes and row housing.

Rent controls already exist in British Columbia, Manitoba. Premier Ed Schreyer said landlords in his province will be allowed to raise rents only to meet costs.

Housing ministers from all provinces discussed the subject with Urban Affairs Minister Barney Danson at a conference last month.

It will take most provinces some time to legislate controls, if they do, and it wasn't clear Tuesday whether such controls would be retroactive to Oct. 14.

Mr. Danson said he expects to announce a new housing program in about a month. Meanwhile, he told Flora MacDonald (PC—Kingston and the Islands) in the Commons that existing housing programs will continue to ensure they have maximum impact.

He said the top priority will be rental housing for those of low and moderate income.

Pills Recalled

OTTAWA (CP) — Mordican birth control pills are being recalled by their manufacturer, Ortho Pharmaceutical (Canada) Ltd., because they lower their estrogen content slightly, the federal health protection branch said Tuesday.

New Twist Discovered About American Birth

ACRE, Israel (Reuter) — A 40-year-old Florida treasure hunter here has a new twist to the old dispute over who discovered America.

It wasn't Christopher Columbus, the Vikings or the ancient Egyptians, he says. It was the Phoenicians.

And to prove his theory, marine archeologist Robert F. Marx is scouring the Mediterranean sea-bed near this old Crusader capital for Phoenician wrecks which he can copy and sail to America.

If his search gives him enough knowledge of Phoenician techniques, he says he will build a full-size copy and make the hazardous voyage to America next summer.

Divers from Haifa University's centre for maritime studies, a partner in the project, began combing coastal waters near the Lebanese border for traces of bronze ships.

"So far we have only pictorial evidence on coins and such like of what Phoenician ships looked like," Marx told reporters.

Earlier remains of Phoenician ships were all found on rocky bottoms and the timbers had perished. In this region, Marx hopes that some may have sunk in soft sand which covered and preserved the wood.

Marx, who made his reputation researching and locating 15th-and 16th-century Spanish treasure ships, started his search for Phoenician wrecks off the Lebanese coast near Tyre.

"But we had trouble, partly because of the many Palestine guerrillas in the area. They called us American capitalists and so on and eventually it was impossible to work."

Marx discounts the theories of Norwegian explorer Thor Heyerdahl of Kon Tiki fame, who five years ago built a papyrus raft near the Great Pyramid in Egypt and then sailed it from North Africa to Central America to prove the ancient Egyptians could have made the voyage.

It is generally known that the Phoenician traders reached England, buying tin from Cornish mines, and also sailed around Africa.

Marx believes they also reached American shores centuries before the Norsemen or Christopher Columbus.

If a Phoenician-type vessel can be reconstructed, Marx plans to sail it at R. is to America, without modern trimmings.

In parallel underwater excavations here, an old Greek ship has been found and university archeologists are trying to reconstruct the plan of the ancient harbor. The city is believed to be one of the oldest in the Middle East.

Brackish Water Study Is Made

SOLOMONS, Md. (AP) — Twice a day for 12 weeks this summer, Gary Toothe, 20, trudged through waist-high water to make his readings at high and low tides, in rain or under the blistering sun.

The husky young man pushed an inflated inner tube bearing a fishing tackle box containing a ruler, thermometer and plastic bottles.

His objective was a series of sticks extending in a straight line from a pine and oak forest, across a gentle slope, through cattails and reed grass, and across the narrow inlet to the opposite shore.

He dipped at each stick, recorded the water temperature and depth, and dipped a sample into a numbered plastic bottle. He also took readings on shore.

A botany student at University of Georgia, Toothe was one of 22 young people doing research this summer in the waters crowded with marine life around the Centre for Environmental and Estuarine Studies.

Mayor Ben Corke Says Centennial is Mayor's Responsibility

Centennial 'Window on City' Stresses Mayor

By CLIFF KENYON
Staff Reporter

"Professional assistance is needed in the preparation and implementation of the 1978 centennial celebrations in Belleville, says Mayor Ben Corke.

He told members of the Belleville Kiwanis Club Tuesday advertising prior to and during centennial year, "is a window of Belleville for many months".

"Frequently advertising is not very effective due to lack of professionalism," said Mayor Corke.

He said the city is not starting too early in preparations and the program of events is "uniquely the responsibility of the mayor.

In 1978 the mayor will be involved daily in celebrations and will need assistance. Responsibility for success of the year, he said, cannot be delegated to other city officials.

The mayor, he said, should put his own "stamp" of approval and participation on programs.

"There are so many things the city can do in 1978 it is only reasonable to start thinking about it now."

He told club members although he does not know who will be mayor in 1978 he plans to hand over a well organized plan of preparations to whoever holds the position.

Mayor Corke said he has been studying how Kingston celebrated their tercentenary in 1973.

Many of the city's professionals donated their services in that city, he said.

"We need professional advice," said Mayor Corke, but the city does not necessarily have to pay for it.

He suggested that a number of the programs implemented in Kingston in 1973 be adopted in Belleville for 1978.

In that city, he said, about 30,000 showed up for a summer thanksgiving day which was the "highlight" of the year.

"A Belleville day, he said, is already planned at the Canadian National Exhibition during the year and perhaps at Ontario Place.

A contest is being held to find a city logo and a centennial theme must be picked, he said.

"We might at long last get around to having an official city crest."

Ellis Says He Expects Swift Passage Of Liberal Wage and Price Controls

OTTAWA — How long could the government's program of price-and-income curbs last?

That was one major point being pondered by Ottawa politicians Tuesday after presentation of a White Paper on the control proposals, says Jack Ellis, MP Hastings.

It is among details "bothering a lot of people" while introduction of control legislation is awaited by Parliament, said Mr. Ellis.

He expected the legislation to be pretty bulletproof" he felt the legislation should "get reasonably swift passage."

But he also criticized the Trudeau government for policy turnaround from the last election campaign.

"It seems totally dishonest to have spent an entire election convincing everybody otherwise — and then be allowed to come back and blatantly hitting this thing in," said Mr. Ellis.

Crosswalk Issue Again Put Before City Council

By HARRY NULHALL
Staff Reporter

City council will be asked to fund Belleville's first legal crosswalks.

The latest bid to resolve the issue — which has sparked sporadic council debates in recent years — was made Tuesday by council's traffic committee.

The committee is sending council a resolution asking for crosswalks at two intersections on downtown Pinnacle St. — Campbell and Market streets.

The proposal for the Pinnacle crosswalks was returned to the committee for further discussion by council last week — along with documentation on the issue dating back to 1970 when police first compiled a comprehensive study on pedestrian safety crossings.

To date, use of both sites by pedestrians has often been a matter of courtesy by drivers.

Neither location totally meets required official standards warranting crosswalks. There are enough people using both spots, but the locations also are considered sufficient-ly close to adjacent traffic lights.

Nonetheless the issue has persisted.

Ald. Jack Ireland, committee chairman, noted he has been "getting quite a bit of flak about this whole situation" involving crosswalks.

But Ald. George Zegouras said he fully supported the crossovers. In fact, he believed there could be future requests from other parts of the city for similar measures ensuring pedestrian safety.

He made the resolution requesting city council to consider including installation of the Pinnacle St. crossings in its 1976 budget.

Ald. Zegouras' recommendation was seconded by Mayor Ben Corke.

Ald. Ireland also reminded the committee that two-way traffic would some day return to Pinnacle — after consultation of street reconstruction programs involving northsouth traffic.

Joe Angelo, city engineer, told the committee the installation equipment designating the crosswalks could always be moved for use elsewhere.

Before the committee reached its decision it also heard about proposals for safety from Raymond Davidson, Pine St. resident, who has appeared at a successive council meetings.

United Way Drive Gets Slow Start

The United Way campaign has slowed down compared to last year's drive.

Bob Burns campaign chairman, said Tuesday only 7.7 per cent of the $146,000 goal has yet been realized, compared to an approximate 8 per cent by the same time last year.

Mr. Burns blamed the lower figure on late starting and inflation.

"I'm not too concerned," he said, "it's a little more difficult this year, people are being a little more close with their money."

Mr. Burns said he expects the situation will quickly improve next week as the employee campaign in industries, headed by Milton Dufferty, starts.

This week banks, real estate companies and public services are being canvassed, he said.

"It's a little early to start making comparisons" said Mr. Burns. "I'm quite optimistic about outcome of the drive."

Labor Council Attacks Controls

Quinte District Labor Council president Doug Sword says organized labor is the target of Prime Minister Trudeau's price and wage curb solution to double figure inflation.

In a telephone interview Tuesday, Mr. Sword said he is sceptical the government will be able to effectively monitor profit margins and ultimately price increases.

"It would take an incredible bureaucracy or a police state," said Mr. Sword.

"The policy is more of a wage restraint against unions than anything else," he said. "Labor generally agrees with restraint providing there is equity allowing the poor to catch up and keeping prices stable while wages are being frozen."

Mr. Sword criticized Prime Minister Trudeau for not carrying out his mandate which he was granted in the last federal election.

"If the people wanted price and wage controls they would have elected Robert Stanfield," he said.

On this issue "the prime minister has done a flip flop that would do him credit in his swimming pool." said Mr. Sword.

He said it is unlikely, however, that the Quinte District Labor Council will make any editorial comment on the government package.

There is an Ontario Federation of Labor Convention in Toronto Nov. 3.

"That's likely where there will be a lot of loud talk . . . particularly from the poor or unions," said Mr. Sword.

Local labor members will attend the meeting but it is not known if there will be a local brief on the inflation package.

College Degree Carries Weight Says Graduate

It's a myth that you can't go a long way without a university diploma.

Roger Reid of Belleville and a graduate of Loyalist College has logged thousands of miles on his college certificate working as a land surveyor.

"I designed a couple of subjects in Grade 13 and I didn't even apply to any university because I had no intention of going that way," he said.

Loyalist College was his alternative. An alternative he says he's now glad he took.

"A few years ago, people would assert at a community college education," he said. "But, not any more because the colleges are doing a terrific job.

Following completion of surveying courses here, Mr. Reid took a position with a Toronto firm and has since toured Canada and various parts of the world.

This week he returned from a stint on Baffin Island and leaves at the end of the month for his second tour of work in Nigeria.

At the community college level, you get to do a lot of practical work — unlike university training where everything is learned from a book and little field experience, he said.

"Loyalist gave me an introduction to everything . . . but there's still a hell of a pile you don't know and you have to keep reading and learning while you're on the job," said Mr. Reid.

The trend now is changing and community college education is attaining elevated recognition, he said.

"The colleges are doing a better job and people don't look down on college education any more," he said.

Surveying Success

Roger Reid, a graduate of Loyalist College, is touring the world on a surveying certificate he earned in school here. Reid proved so smart at a community college education but not anymore he says.

Stirling Firm Get New Sidney Firehall Contract

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

Riverside Construction spokesman Jack Bush told Sidney council Tuesday his company plans to start building the township's new $51,215 fire hall as soon as necessary legal work is completed.

His comments came after the council awarded the Stirling company the contract to build the concrete and steel building over six other local contractors.

"I'm prepared to go at it right away to beat the bad weather," he said, in urging council to speed legal procedures to enable an early start.

Bids from local contractors ranged from Riverside's low $51,215 to a high of $79,940 from a Carrying Place company.

Sidney councillors expressed some surprise Tuesday at both the number of bids received and the wide range in prices for construction of the township's third fire hall, to be built at Albens Rd.

Reeve Gord Wilman said the variation in prices was considerable and the actual cost of the building was "higher than I expected it to come in."

Original estimates for the building were set at $49,000 but after several changes, were increased to between $45-$50,000.

The tendered price came in over what the township had set aside in this year's budget, but, according to the reeve, no undue problems should arise.

He expected construction to continue into 1976 thus allowing costs to be spread over two years. About $48,000 had been set aside for capital expenditures in 1975.

"It won't be paid for this year, but that's all right," said Reeve Wilman. "We won't be committing another council."

The present council, always hesitant over giving a succeeding council a debt in the first year of a two-year term.

The new fire hall will be built, with Nov. 1 set as a tentative starting date, south of Highway 2 at Albens Rd., opposite Bayside Secondary School. The school will supply water to the fire hall — a two way alternative will a reservoir floor.

A fire truck — a 500-gallon pumper — is waiting in the wings to occupy the new structure. Fifteen firemen, some now in training at Loyalist College, will staff the new building.

Firefighters from the hall will cover all township homes south of Highway 401 while stations in Batawa and on Loyalist — Wallbridge Rd. and the fourth station will handle everything to the north.

Driver Injured

MADOC — A 44-year-old Ottawa man is in Belleville General Hospital for observation following a one-car accident on Highway 7 just west of the junction with Highway 62 south of the village Tuesday.

Ontario Provincial Police at Madoc said Michael Romanuk was treated at the Madoc Medical Centre prior to his transfer to hospital by ambulance.

Police said Romanuk's 1974 model foreign car was westbound when it went out of control, inferred the north ditch and hit a wire fence.

Constable Walter Sawkins estimated $1,000 to the car in the 3:05 p.m. mishap.

Getting It On Paper

Representatives of Hillcrest Ratepayers' Association now are collecting statements from neighbors on controversial tax hikes since sanitary sewers were installed. The move is to produce affidavits to back any protest to Ontario's ombudsman. On Centre Street, Bill Wiles, left, explains details to householder Bob Burrell.

School Buses Causing Some Traffic Delays

Safety regulations protecting youngsters disembarking from school buses can pose traffic holdups in a busy urban area, City hall was reminded Monday.

In downtown Belleville, the situation is caused by recreation use of Memorial Arena for skating by school students, the city's traffic committee was told.

As such, however, school buses are "particularly bad for us," and "several" buses now are involved, wrote Brian Casey, Hastings-Prince Edward County Separate School Board transportation officer.

This means when students are leaving a bus traffic must halt.

On Market St., outside the arena, school buses "will stop all traffic unless some provision is made," Mr. Casey reminded the committee.

Windows Smashed

City police are investigating an incident of vandalism reported at about 10 p.m. Tuesday when three windows were broken at a residence at 29 St. Charles St.

Chief Douglas Crosbie said it is believed someone threw rocks from the Canadian National Railway tracks. Damage is estimated at $15.

Police are also seeking someone who broke into Pete's Lunch at 266 East Dundas St. and stole between $50-$60 in cash sometime late Tuesday or early today.

Chief Crosbie said entry was gained by opening an outside door and removing the window from an inside door.

Area Seniors Winners In Walk-a-thon Project

A group of Centennial Secondary School students is working in raise money providing a new twist to walking and skating marathons.

The school's Interact group (the student arm of the Rotary Club) this weekend will begin working for area senior citizens.

Students will not be paid for the work by the elderly — rather they will collect pledges based on the number of hours they work.

"Rather than doing something aimless to raise money, the students will do chores for senior citizens and at the same time raise money for worthy projects," said Bob Burns, Rotary chairman of Interact.

The 25 club members this week began canvassing the city to raise pledges.

The Belleville Volunteer Bureau has provided the students with a supply of elderly people who need jobs done around the house. The student will have a certificate signed by the "employer" stating the total hours worked.

The work-a-thon is being conducted this year by just members of the Interact club but plans are already underway to involve all the clubs in the school for next year, said Mr. Burns.

Students will work during the next three weeks completing hours rather than miles to gauge their total of pledges. The work period begins Saturday.

Boat Ramp Closed

The launching ramp for small boats next door to the Wharf St. Debating Club will be closed Thursday and Friday this week.

Belleville's harbor improvement committee Tuesday said concrete pouring would take place Thursday and that the ramp would have to be barricaded until the concrete is properly set.

NDP Getting Early Start on Election

The New Democratic Party in Quinte riding will again be first in the local political arena with a candidate for the next provincial election.

The NDP will choose their standard-bearer some time late next month.

The move, however, should not be interpreted as giving the party expects another provincial election, in the near future, a Quinte NDP spokesman indicated.

The local NDP strategy is aimed at achieving early political organization for a future campaign.

The Sept. 18 provincial election elevated the NDP to official opposition in the minority-government legislature. An early nomination gives the party a political spokesman who can respond on the constituency level to issues as they arise.

Richard Williams, Quinte NDP president who announced the conventions plans, said although "the life expectancy of the present legislature is uncertain, we hope that the next election will be some time off.

"We feel much can be done to help the people of Ontario, and the NDP Quinte is to be a responsible opposition in the legislature."

However, the early nomination would give the party "a person who can react to the daily issues before the legislature — and explain to persons in the riding our stand on these issues."

Before the last election, the NDP was the first political party in Quinte to choose a campaigner — in mid-March.

This gave the candidate, Carson McLauchlan, a Canadian National Railway office worker a five-month period before the election was called.

The NDP convention announcement said several candidates are expected to seek the nomination.

Mr. McLauchlan said Tuesday night he'll be on the list.

"I definitely will let my name stand," he said.

Seven Hurt In Mishap

THOMASBURG — Seven people all occupants of one car, were treated and released from Belleville General Hospital for minor injuries sufferd in a two-car collision on Highway 37 late Monday at this hamlet located seven miles south of Tweed.

Ontario Provincial Police at Madoc said the car was driven by Richard A. Barrett, race timekeeper of Ottawa. He and his six passengers were also treated at the scene by the R.S. Berry.

Police said a 1973-model pickup truck driven by Peter Groskope, 27, of Downsview was westbound on the Vanderwater Park Rd. and attempted a left hand turn onto the highway when it was in collision with Barrett's 1970-model northbound car.

Neither Mr. Groskope nor his two passengers were injured. Constable Al Borger estimated $2,000 damage to the Barrett car and $1,500 damage to the Groskope vehicle.

Schools Get Dental Program

Over 90 per cent of elementary school students in northern Hastings County are participating in a new fluoride mouthrinsing program started by the dental services department of the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties health unit in late September.

Dr. Dennis A. Warrick, director of dental services, said recently some other schools in the remainder of the unit will start the program soon but it was first begun in the northern portion for a special reason.

He said only 39 per cent of students in the northern portion are free from tooth decay compared to 50 per cent in the rest of the county.

Decision Made

Morden - Guthrie Ltd. consultant John Guthrie (left) advises Sidney Township councillors, among them Reg. McCurty, on a decision to accept the $51,215 tender price from Riverside Construction for the township's third fire hall. Company spokesman Jack Bush, seated in background, was present to hear council deliberations.

Cincinnati Takes 2-1 Series Lead

Red Sox Certain They Were Robbed in 10th

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds unlimbered their bats Tuesday night and turned a controversial play at home to their advantage for a 6-5, 10-inning victory over Boston Red Sox and a 2-1 lead in baseball's World Series.

"We won tonight because we're lucky . . . because the good Lord takes care of us," said Cincinnati manager Sparky Anderson.

Anderson could think of no other way to describe the Reds' dramatic win in a pulsating game that had everything, including the much-talked-about play of the 1975 World Series so far.

This was the situation:

With the game tied 5-5 and a runner at first in the 10th inning, Anderson ordered pinch-hitter Ed Armbrister to lay down a sacrifice bunt. Armbrister did as expected, but something unexpected followed.

The ball hopped a few feet in front of home plate and Boston catcher Carlton Fisk charged to field it. He had difficulty getting to it, however, because Armbrister was in his way.

When Fisk picked up the ball, he threw toward second base in an attempt to get the lead runner. But the throw went into centre field and the Reds suddenly had runners on second and third base because of the error.

The play brought a protest from the Boston bench, particularly from Fisk and manager Darrell Johnson. They felt that the batter had interfered with Fisk's play and therefore should have been called out by home plate umpire Larry Barnett.

The play became all the more crucial, because the Reds loaded the bases and went on to win the contest on Joe Morgan's single.

The series continues tonight when the Reds send left-hander Fred Norman against Boston right-handed ace Luis Tiant at 8:30 p.m. EDT.

A seething Fisk had nothing pleasant to say about Barnett after the bitter defeat at Riverfront Stadium.

"He blew it two ways," the Boston catcher said of Barnett. "The first time was when he didn't call interference on the play.

"The second time was when he didn't call the man out because I probably tagged him after I got the ball.

"You might as well throw across body block on the catcher. knock him down and go to first. It's a damn shame to have a call like that in such a game.

"I think it was a double play ball except for the interference. Instead, I get hit, throw the ball into centre field and they wind up with runners on second and third with none out."

Johnson was equally incensed.

"I don't need to read the rule out of the rule book," he said. "We all know the rule and Armbrister did interfere with Fisk. The man is entitled to run the bases, but the runner can not come into contact with the fielder before he has the opportunity to field it.

Barnett, of course, had his own interpretation of the rules.

"I ruled that it was simply a collision," Barnett said. "It is interference only when the batter intentionally gets in the way of the fielder. I signaled that the ball was fair and in play."

As was expected, Armbrister swore he did nothing intentional to block Fisk's way.

If it wasn't for what Sparky Anderson called his "stupid" mistake, the whole business wouldn't have happened.

The Reds had a 5-3 lead going into the ninth inning with reliever Will McEnaney seemingly in control of things. But left-handed bullpen ace struck out Fred Lynn for the first out and the crowd of 53,392 at Riverfront Stadium settled back for what looked like a comfortable Cincinnati victory.

CARLTON FISK

Umpire Blew It — Fisk

CINCINNATI (AP) — Carlton Fisk of Boston Red Sox angrily said plate umpire Larry Barnett "blew it two ways" for a controversial call Tuesday night which set up the winning run for Cincinnati Reds in the 10th inning of their World Series game.

"The first time was when he didn't call interference on the play. The second was when he didn't call the man out after I got the ball and tagged him."

Fisk seethed inwardly at first, refusing to talk to reporters. Then he sounded off as did just about everyone else in the Boston clubhouse.

"I think it was a double play ball except for the interference. Instead, I get hit, throw the ball into centre field and they wind up with runners on second and third and none out."

Fisk said that Barnett told him there was no interference on the play,"but he wouldn't give me any explanation."

"Maybe my eyeballs are screwed in backwards, but it looked to obvious to me," Boston manager Darrell Johnson said quietly in the clubhouse office while his players talked angrily outside.

"Fisk was jostled and bumped," Johnson added. "A man has to have a chance to field a ball.

"He can't be touched by a runner until he has the chance."

Johnson said he had seen similar plays during his 25 years in baseball, but the umpires always called interference.

"But I've never seen any such play in a game anywhere near as big as this one.

Not Proud of Our Play — Bench

CINCINNATI (AP) — "Somebody's looking over our shoulders," said Cincinnati catcher Johnny Bench. "I'm not proud of the way we played."

The Reds had just turned a controversial bunt play and a game-ending base hit by Joe Morgan into a 6-5 10-inning victory over Boston Red Sox for a 2-1 lead in the World Series on Tuesday night.

"We're 2-1," snarled Morgan. "Let them say what they want.

"The rules say we're ahead 3-1."

The controversy marred a 10th-inning rally by the Reds after they squandered a 5-1 lead to the ever-attacking Red Sox.

Reserve outfielder Ed Armbrister had stepped in to pinch hit after Cesar Geronimo opened the 10th with a single. He nubbed a bunt out in front of the plate that Red Sox catcher Carlton Fisk attempted pounce on. The two collided.

Boston manager Darrell Johnson charged that Armbrister had interfered with Fisk.

Fisk bumped Armbrister in front of the plate, retrieved the bunt and tossed the ball into centre field, allowing Geronimo to take third.

Morgan then delivered the clinching base hit over drawn-in centre fielder Fred Lynn.

"One ballclub always seems to bounce back," said Morgan, whose hit was his first of the night.

Reliever Rawly Eastwick, who gave up a ninth-inning two-run homer to Dwight Evans that tied the game, took the controversial victory in stride.

"I'll take the win and won't let that bad stuff bother me," he said.

OPERATION SUCCESSFUL

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Goalie Bernie Parent of Philadelphia Flyers may be playing again within a month after two pieces of bone were successfully removed from his neck, doctors said Tuesday. Parent underwent the two-hour operation following nearly a week spent in traction. Dr. John Wolf, the National Hockey League club's orthopedic specialist, called the operation "successful," but did not elaborate or promise that Parent will not suffer from more neck pains. A Flyers spokesman announced later that Parent would be able to skate in two or three weeks and would play again in four weeks.

Just Publicity Stunt

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Mohammad Ali says his much publicized marital strife last month in Manila was actually a publicity stunt to boost ticket sales for his title bout with Joe Frazier.

"I arranged it all," Ali said Tuesday as his wife Belinda grinned beside him. "Tickets weren't going so good."

After published reports that Ali was escorting a former model around and introducing her as his wife, Mrs. Ali flew to Manila. The pair exchanged heated words and Mrs. Ali flew home hours later.

"I couldn't have paid for all that publicity," said Ali. "And my wife had to go home anyway."

One of those taking it seriously was Archbishop Philip M. Hannan who read of Ali's marital problems and ordered Catholic students not to participate in Muhammad Appreciation Day which brought Ali to New Orleans.

The heavyweight boxing champion said the archbishop's criticism of his love life was sort of like a dog baying at the moon—the moon doesn't bark back.

Gas House Hockey

Chuckwagon Nips Bayview

Chuckwagon, kept their undefeated record alive and moved back in to sole possession of first place in the Gas House Hockey League Monday night when they nipped Bayview Orchards 3-1.

In earlier GHHL contests, Kelly's Eaze took a 3-1 loss at the hands of Jim's Pizzeria and Proctor and Gamble fell prey to Bi-Temp Heating 6-1.

Joe Scanlon and Bayview's Ken Genereaux engaged in a goalie's duel but it was Scanlon who finished on top. Teammates Fred Slickle and Wayne Brown provided him with all the fire power he needed to secure the victory; his and his club's third of the year.

Hugh Holmes replied for Bayview.

Dominic Lentini and Bill Lynch were the key marksmen with two goals each for Bi-Temp, but Ken Jessup was top point-getter with three assists. Gary McNamara and Larry Woodley got the other markers.

Dave Woods was the only Proctor and Gamble scorer.

Jim's Pizzeria moved into a two-way tie for third place with their 3-1 victory. The pizza crew is right alongside Rollin's Lumber with three points.

Micahel King, Chuck Powell and Robert Spencer tallied one goal apiece for Jim's. Spencer also drew a couple of assists. Warren Rushlow got the other goal for Kelly's.

City Basketball League Planned

It looks as though Belleville may have its own men's basketball league for the first time ever. Formerly local ball players have had to participate in a travelling league which took teams to Peterborough, Cobourg and Trenton.

"I've been shown enough interest that I think it warrants an organizational meeting," said Bruce Faulds, Athletics Director at Centennial Secondary School and pioneer of the project.

Already two bodies have approached Faulds wishing to enter full squads in the new league.

The organizational meeting of which Faulds spoke will take place Monday night, 8 p.m. at Centennial. This particular meeting will also be an open practice for anyone interested in participating in the league. Interested individuals or full teams wishing to enter the loop are asked to attend.

If further information is necessary, contact Bruce Faulds through the day by phoning 962-9233. (Available only at that number on Thursday and Friday.)

The Picton crew held an eight point margin at the half, but fell behind by seven in the third quarter. They came on with 19 points in the final quarter, but couldn't stave off the Albert attack.

Napanee Doesn't Know When to Surrender

MADOC (Special) — Loser of its first four games in Bay of Quinte High School Football League play, the Napanee and District Secondary School Jolliers team is making a determined bid to conclude that mark. 20-14, Madoc.

Lorne Vereboh's Napanee quad made it two wins in a row here, Tuesday, coming from behind to pull out a 22-20 win over Centre Hastings Secondary School Centurians.

The win drew Napanee even with Centurions in the standings. Each team has a 2-4 record.

Centurions appeared to have their third victory of the season in the bag. With six minutes to play, the home side held a 20-6 lead. But the visitors had other ideas.

Quarterback Greg Mills teamed up with receiver Dan Stinson on a sideline pass to get things rolling for Napanee. Stinson went 60 yards for the major and Mills added a two-point conversion. That lead made it 20-14, Madoc.

Mills scored on a keeper play to put the teams on even terms. Then the quarterback hit his favorite target, Stinson, for the two-point conversion and the win.

Napanee opened the scoring in the game on the patented Mills to Stinson combination. But Centurions got a pair of majors by halfback Kelly Welsh on the board and one by running mate Wayne Williamson plus Jamie Mantle's two points on a conversion to take what seemed to be a comfortable lead.

Then came the Napanee explosion.

Joe DiCrece, league convener, has announced changes in the senior schedule.

The senior regular season will be completed this week with Moira at Centre Hastings today; Quinte at Bayside, Thursday and Trenton at Centennial, Friday.

Canada's Judo Team Good for Two Gold and Bronze at Games

MEXICO CITY (CP) — Canada's unheralded four-man judo team is making waves at the Pan-American Games.

Three of the four saw action in the first two days of competition and captured two of the three gold medals in the Canadian bag to date, as well as an additional bronze.

Lightweight Wayne Erdman of Kitchener, Ont., and middleweight Rainer Fischer of neighboring Waterloo won their divisions Tuesday, both beating out Brazilian opponents. Chris Freebaszenski of Toronto won his bronze Monday as a losing semi-finalist in the light heavyweight division.

Bruce Pirnie, a gigantic shot-putter from Winnipeg, was the third Canadian gold medallist Tuesday, with trans-male Bishop Dolegiewicz of Laval, Que., taking the silver in an event previously monopolized by United States athletes since the Games began in 1951.

The other Canadian medals of the day came in the women's 100 metres as Patti Loverock and Marjorie Bailey chased home Pamela Iiles of the U.S. in a photo finish.

Cuba and the U.S. were the big winners of the day, the Cubans taking one gold medal, six of them in two weightlifting divisions—and the Americans accounting for seven more.

Brazil, with two gold medals Monday, matched Canada's total of three with a victory by Altor Pizzol in the individual skeet competition in which Canada's top shooter, Don Sand erlin, was 18th.

But the Canadian surge was reflected in the unofficial point standings, based on a 10-5-4-3-2-1 count for the first six places, in which Canada moved into third place behind the Americans and Cubans.

Canadian success at judo is becoming a Pan-Am Games tradition. At Winnipeg in 1967, the last time the event was on the Games program, a five-man contingent from Canada took two gold medals, two silver and a bronze.

The current team can equal or exceed that mark Friday when Brad Farrow of Delta, B.C., competes in the feather-weight class and Freebaszenski, who weighs 205 pounds, tries his luck in the unlimited division which Doug Rogers of Vancouver won at Winnipeg.

Erdman, 23, described his final lightweight bout against Roberto Machado of Brazil as "nip and tuck all the way."

"He scored two knockdowns. I still feel a bit under the weather."

"He was bigger than I was," the Canadian said. "I think he must have added 10 pounds after the weigh-in and fell as if I weighed 15 pounds less."

Fischer, who had trained two years in Japan, pinned Carlos Motta of Brazil in nine minutes, 22 seconds of his final bout.

In an earlier bout against Steve Output of the U.S., the two judokas had bumped heads and the Canadian was still feeling the effects of the collision.

Fischer, who had trained two years in Japan, pinned Carlos Motta of Brazil in nine minutes, 22 seconds of his final bout.

"He was bigger than I was," the Canadian said. "I think he must have added 10 pounds after the weigh-in and fell as if I weighed 15 pounds less."

Both Erdman and Fischer head for Vienna next week to compete in the world championships.

Pirnie, a 6-7, 300-pound physical education teacher, said most of the shot-putters threw well. He had been in third place until his final throw of 63 feet three inches moved him ahead of Dolegiewicz and Terry Albritton of the U.S.

All three agreed that Jesse Stuart of the U.S., who failed out of the competition, could have beaten them on a good day.

Both Dolegiewicz and Albritton had thrown of 65.11 but the Canadian took the silver medal because of a better second-best throw. In fact, Albritton did not have a fated second throw, having passed or fouled on all but his first.

After Hoffman of Toronto, bidding for an unprecedented third Pan-Am victory in the 800 metres, was an easy winner in her semi-final heat and Joan Chesnut of Waterloo was also a heat-winner.

Diane Jones of Saskatoon, who begins her bout for a medal in the pentathlon today was sixth in the long jump, won by Ana Alexander of Cuba, and Hugh Fraser of Ottawa was sixth behind another Cuban, Silvio Leonard, in the men's 100 metres.

Peter Stride of Guelph, Ont., was fourth in the 3,000-metres steeplechase, won by Michael Manley of the U.S. Graham Hutchison of Calgary dropped out of the race with a sprained ankle after about 2,000 metres.

Dave Jarvis of Grimsby, Ont., was seventh in the final of the 400-metre hurdles in which James King and Ralph Mann of the U.S. finished 1-2.

Ken Elmer of Vancouver qualified for the final of the men's 800 metres with a third-place finish in his heat but Bill Smart of Vancouver was eliminated when he finished seventh and last in his heat.

In equestrian competition, the Canadian team got through the dressage phase of the three-day event in third place with a total of 142.91 penalty points to 115.35 for the first place U.S. team and 128.51 for second-place Mexico.

Jim Henry of Toronto was fifth in individual competition. Jim Day of Hornby, Ont., was eighth, Elizabeth Ashton of Orangeville, Ont., 10th and Peter Howard of Woodbridge, Ont., 12th.

The Canadian marksmen were unable to add to the silver and bronze medals they won Monday. They were fourth in which the U.S. shooters took the gold. The top individual performance was a fifth-place finish by Tom Gosen of Woodstock, Ont., in the pistol event, won by David Ross of the U.S.

Martin Lang of the U.S. won the men's individual foil, first event on the fencing program, as Canada was unable to place a fencer in the final round.

The favored Cuban baseball team needed three runs in the ninth inning to subdue the Canadians 4-3 in their first appearance of the tournament and both Canadian basketball teams triumphed, the men crushing the Virgin Islands 109-55 while the women scored their second straight victory, 68-58, over Costa Rica.

The men's volleyball team had an easy straight-set victory over El Salvador.

Islanders Have Answer For Canadien Shooters

By GLENN COLE
The Canadian Press

One of the teams which pestered Montreal Canadiens during the 1976-77 National Hockey League season was New York Islanders, a club which joined the league in 1972.

"This is one of the teams that wrecked us last year," noted Montreal coach Scotty Bowman prior to the Canadiens-Islanders game Tuesday night. "We didn't beat them last year and that cost us in the end."

The Canadiens managed two ties in four games with the Islanders last year and Tuesday night, the young New York club handed Montreal its first loss of the 1978-79 season after three non-aided wins, defeating the Canadiens 5-3.

In other play, St. Louis Blues downed Kansas City Scouts 4-1 and Vancouver Canucks took a 7-4 decision from Washington Capitals.

In Uniondale, N.Y., the Islanders streaked to a 3-0 first period lead, only to have Montreal tie it with three consecutive goals in the third period.

But Jean Potvin scored the game-winner at 17:21 of the third making it the third period to break a 3-3 deadlock and Potvin rise later added an empty-net goal.

Denis Potvin, Billy Harris and Bob Nystrom were the other New York marksmen before 15,172 fans.

Jacques Lemaire, Guy Lafleur and Serge Savard scored for Montreal.

In St. Louis, Garry Unger scored two goals in the opening period for Blues, a four-goal burst in the first period, which carried the Blues past Kansas City.

Bob Hess, Bob MacMillan and Chuck Lefley were the other St. Louis scorers. Guy Charron scored for the Scouts.

Unger, who scored three of two of their first three games, handed the Capitals their fourth loss in as many outings.

Paulin Bordeleau and Dennis Ververgaert led the Canucks attack with two goals each in their 15,276 fans.

Andre Boudrias, Chris Oddleifson and Ab DeMarco were the other Vancouver marksmen with Stan Gilbertson and Jack Egers replying for Washington.

Meanwhile in other NHL developments, Pittsburgh Penguins, who play the Maple Leafs tonight in Toronto, announced they had sent rookie goaltender Gord Laxton to Hershey Bears of the American Hockey League and had reinstated suspended defenseman Steve Durbano.

Fincups Defeat Kingston

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Fincups moved into a first-place tie in the Emms Division, defeating Kingston Canadians 6-3 in the only Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A game Tuesday.

Hamilton is tied with Toronto Marlboros and London Knights. The Canadians and Sudbury Wolves are deadlocked in first place in the Leyden Division.

The Fincups scored three unanswered goals in the first period and added their final three before Ken Linseman scored Kingston's first goal at 18:27 of the second period.

Brad Rhiness scored Kingston's second with 38 seconds left in the game.

16-year Career Comes to End

Chuck Ealey An Argonaut

Garney Henley, who already has made it Canadian football's Hall of Fame in the view of most football fans with only the formalities of awaiting the three-year eligibility period before being inducted, rounds out his 16th year as a pro—all in a Hamilton Tiger-Cat uniform—when the Ticats entertain Toronto in the last regular season game for both teams Nov. 1.

Next year he moves into Queen's University at Kingston, Ont., as head football coach at the Golden Gaels.

With the Ticats, the 36-year-old product of Huron College has played six full seasons on offence, 10 on defence and in all 16 has been used both ways.

As it is, Henley will leave with records for career interceptions (39 with three games to go this year) and career interception return yardage (498). He is the 14th most productive receiver in CFL records in both yardage gained and TD catches.

And as a specialist, Garney returned punts 2,918 yards, fourth on the all-time list.

The future considerations for Ealey will be decided at the end of the season. They will come either from the Toronto roster or from the CFL's draft of college players.

Ealey, 35, said he thought Toronto or the city place he would want to go in the CFL.

"If I had been some other team, I would have done some serious thinking about my future," he said.

Ealey said he felt the Bombers' decision to trade him was an unwise one. He said a team battling for a playoff position needs experienced veteran quarterbacks.

The Bombers, in the third and last playoff position in the Western Conference, have a 6-4-1 record for 13 points, three more than Calgary Stampeders. The Bombers share the third and last playoff berth with Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the Eastern Conference, both with 3-4-1 records.

Rookie Goalie Sharp for Toros

By THE CANADIAN PRESS
Rookie goaltender Mario Viet of Toronto had a total of 14 minutes of professional experience prior to Tuesday night's World Hockey Association game against Houston Aeros.

However, it might have been difficult to convince the Aeros of that fact after the defending champions dropped a 4-3 decision to Toronto Toros as Viet stopped 32 shots, including 14 in the first period.

In other games, the line of Marc Tardif, Real Cloutier and Christian Bordeleau collected five goals and nine assists as Quebec Nordiques defeated Houston Oilers 8-5 and rookie Derek Hass scored twice to lead Calgary Cowboys to a 5-3 win over Indianapolis Racers.

Viet, a five-foot seven-inch, 138-pound newcomer who was the most valuable player in the Quebec Major Junior League last season with Cornwall Royals, replaced Jim Shaw who has a back injury.

The 20-year-old Viet, who beat out veteran Lee Bickford for the job with the Toros, said:

"I was just a little nervous about starting in the afternoon. But I slept it in an hour."

Two goals by former Czech national Vaclav Nedomansky helped the Toros win their first game of the young season before 11,986 fans in Toronto.

Andre Hinse opened the Houston scoring at 7:38 of the opening period, deflecting a shot from the point. Hinse, Richard Pardo, Nedomansky's Czech national team-mate, evened the score with 37 seconds left in the period.

Toronto turned the dull contest around in the second period with Tom Simpson scoring at 4:46 and Nedomansky finishing a three-way combination at 8:31 of the period. Viet stood off the Aeros to give Toronto a 4-1 lead going into the final 20 minutes.

Rejean Houle, Cloutier and Tardif each scored two goals to lead the Nordiques past the Oilers.

Michel Parizeau and Christian Bordeleau scored the other two goals for Quebec before 7,856 home town fans.

Peter Morris scored twice for the Oilers with single goals apiece by Murray Kennedy, Norm Ullman and Danny Spring.

DODGE

For 1976, a proven set of values.

These days, it pays to know what you're buying. And Dodge for 1976 brings you a proven set of values. Values in the form of engineering features that have proven themselves over the years.

So when you get behind the wheel of your Dodge, you know you're getting a car that's tried, tested and true.

Dodge engineering: these days it makes an even bigger difference.

Engineering is what makes a car solid and reliable. And engineering has always been a big Dodge plus. Features like the Electronic Ignition System, Torsion bar suspension and Unibody construction are still a part of every Dodge built in North America. That doesn't mean that we've overlooked style. After all we want you to be proud of your new Dodge. But isn't it nice to know that we're just as interested in how well it works? Proof of that is in some of the new features we're introducing in 1976.

New sound deadening packages for more peace and quiet.

We figure there's nothing quite as nice in a car as the sound of silence. So a quiet package is available on every Dodge shown here. And it's as close as we can come to giving you nothing for your money . . . no rumble, no rattles, no roar of the road. Nothing but peace and quiet.

New braking systems for more peace of mind.

Without getting into a lot of technical talk, we'd just like you to know that for 1976 we've improved the braking system on all our new Dodges. It's just our way of making a good thing even better.

Improved economy with overdrive.

For 1976 Dodge Dart is available with a new optional overdrive transmission. When you're cruising on the highway, just put the car into overdrive. It reduces engine speed by 27% while maintaining highway speed, so it understandably gives you better fuel economy. It's available with either the CID Slant Six engine or the 318 CID V8.

Protection of your environment is important. But so is conservation of your fuel resources. So at Dodge, we're working to build full-size cars that will help save both. That's one reason we are introducing very shortly the new contemporized "Lean Burn" 400 and 440 CID V8's. They make better use of the fuel, and at the same time help reduce exhaust emissions.

All backed by the famous Chrysler warranty.

We believe in the cars we build. That's why we back them with our one year, unlimited mileage warranty. So when you buy your new Dodge, the first year is on us, (taxis and police cars excepted).

For the first 12 months or unlimited mileage, any Chrysler Canada Ltd. dealer will fix, without charge for parts or labour, any part of any 1976 passenger car (except taxi and police cars) we supply which proves defective in normal use (except for tires, and they're covered by the people who make them).

Wardair Pilots Support Strike

TORONTO (CP) — The flight crews of Wardair, as represented by Air Crew Association Canada, have voiced support for the Canadian Air Line Pilots' Association (CALPA) in the CALPA's 24-hour strike Oct. 18 to protest use of bilingualism in airport control. However, the Wardair crews will not go on strike.

Wardair is a non-scheduled airline which operates charters and holiday flights.

On the issue of using French and English in airport approaches, the air crew association said:

"It is apparent that this is now a political issue with complete disregard for the technical safety implications.

"Due to the unique nature of Wardair's charter operations the executive of our association finds that the cessation of flying operations Oct. 18 would impose a severe hardship on the travelling public we serve.

"Unlike scheduled flight operations, Wardair would be unable to offer passage on subsequent flights.

"Therefore, the executive of our association will not instruct the flight crews of Wardair to cease flight operation Oct. 18.

"Rather we have instructed the captains to make announcements to passengers prior to all Wardair flights, drawing this flight safety matter to their attention and indicating our support for the actions of our fellow flight crews in the Canadian Air Line Pilots' Association.

"Captains will invite our passengers to further acquaint themselves with the issue so that they can take any action they may wish to follow as individuals."

Things Went Bump

LONGLEAT England (CP) — Things went bump in the night when mind-artist Uri Geller visited the Marquis of Bath's home recently. When Mr. Geller walked into the library two books fell off the shelf and two portraits crashed to the floor. But the marquis was no another upset when before an invited audience Mr. Geller snapped a £48 ($100) spoon and bent a solid silver sword.

Humber Offers Sex Education

TORONTO (CP) — Humber College of Applied Arts and Technology is offering a course in sex education that will show parents how to teach the subject to their children.

Gregory McQueen, senior programmer for the college's health sciences division, said in an interview Monday the course is aimed at helping parents and teachers who feel uncomfortable about discussing sex with children.

He said the increase of venereal disease and unplanned pregnancies may be partly blamed on the lack of comprehensive sex education in Ontario schools.

"Parents are responsible for the total growth of their children and that includes sex," Mr. McQueen said. "The schools are supposed to help them, but they haven't done much."

Landers Files for Divorce

CHICAGO (AP) — Syndicated personal advice columnist Ann Landers, 57, filed for divorce Tuesday from Jules Lederer, her husband of 36 years.

Miss Landers, whose real name is Esther Lederer, cited "extreme and repeated acts of mental cruelty" and said she separated from her husband May 10.

Miss Landers and her husband were married in 1939 in Sioux City, Iowa. They had one child, Margo Paulette Purth.

Her suit charged that Lederer's conduct caused her "embarrassment, humiliation and anguish and has affected plaintiff's physical and mental well-being."

Belleville OPP Aware Of Loyalist Problem

Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville will not close their eyes to any misbehavior at Loyalist College during student functions, says Sgt. Vic Clive.

Sgt. Clive was asked to comment following a September incident at a college student council-sponsored Keg and Barrel Night during which a fist-fight broke out and a traffic accident occurred, both in the parking lot.

His words gained greater emphasis after a recent council-sponsored folk night during which there was illegal consumption of alcohol, drug usage and roughnecks.

"If they draw attention to themselves, we'd have to draw attention to them," Sgt. Clive commented. "If we're called, someone will be arrested."

However, he noted that policemen cannot go on a licensed premises unless requested to do so. "We're not going in there to act as bouncers as we did years ago," he said.

Makasey Defends Juneau Defeat

OTTAWA (CP) — Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey attributed the defeat of Communications Minister Pierre Juneau Tuesday night to constituency issues, not a reflection on the Liberal party.

"That would be my guess," he told reporters after learning that Mr. Juneau had been beaten in a byelection in Montreal Hochelaga.

"I feel very sorry. I really do," Mr. Mackasey said outside the Commons. "He was quite an asset in the short time he was in the cabinet."

Mr. Mackasey noted that the Liberals won another byelection handily Tuesday in northern New Brunswick and he said polls show the party in good shape nationally.

Mr. Mackasey said the outcome appeared to be "a local thing. . . . It wasn't for a lack of talent or personality or qualifications."

Mr. Juneau was appointed to the cabinet in August. He resigned as chairman of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission to take the portfolio left vacant by the resignation of Gerard Pelletier.

Mr. Juneau said at the outset of his campaign he would resign if he lost the byelection.

Progressive Conservative House Leader Gerald Baldwin said the victory of Mr. Lavoie is a rejection "not only of Mr. Juneau, but of Mr. Trudeau, his policies and his government."

"The victory shows the Conservatives need no magical solutions or Messiahs to succeed in Quebec but hard work and good people," he said.

A victory in a traditionally Liberal riding such as Hochelaga is of considerable significance, Mr. Baldwin said.

"There appeared to be concern about the loss among Liberal MPs. Marcel Prud'homme (Montreal St. Denis) was heard remarking to a colleague, "I think it's a disaster for the party."

Heath Macquarrie (PC—Hillsborough) said the Conservative victory over Mr. Juneau is "the best political news we've had since 1957"—the year John Diefenbaker was elected prime minister.

Car Sales Climb

DETROIT (AP) — United States auto makers kicked off the 1976 model year as car sales for the first 10 days in October climbed to their highest levels in nearly two years.

Domestic deliveries in the Oct. 1-10 period, the traditional start of the new model year, were up 13 per cent from last year, the four major auto companies—General Motors, Ford, Chrysler and American Motors—reported Tuesday.

The industry sold 242,642 cars in the nine selling days, compared with 216,110 in the same number of days last Oct. 1-10. The daily selling rate of 27,071 was the highest for the first 10 days of a month since November, 1972, when the energy crisis staggered sales.

The early October performance was only the second time this year that the selling tempo in a period topped the same year-earlier span, providing the strongest evidence yet that the industry has shrugged off its worst slump in four decades.

Auto executives credited the industry's showing to strong initial sales of the higher-priced 1976 cars, the first positive consumer response to new models in three years.

The debut of the industrys 1974 models was soured in the fall of 1973 by the Mideast oil embargo and early 1975-model sales fell flat due to the recession and record price increases averaging $450 a car.

About half the sales in the period were 1976 models, which average $150 to $250 more than comparable 1975 models. Although the industry traditionally begins its new model year on Oct. 1, the companies have scattered their formal introductions of new cars this fall from mid-September for AMC to mid-October for Chrysler Corp.

GM said its sales were up 17 per cent in the period, partly because of strong initial sales of the new mini Chevette, the industry's smallest U.S.-built car. GM said the Chevette is off to the fastest start of any new car ever introduced by Chevrolet, with sales in the first 10 days of the month hitting 6,100.

Ford sales were up 16 per cent and AMC's were up 25 per cent. AMC sales were depressed last year when its plants were shut in a strike by the United Auto Workers union.

Chrysler was the only company to report a decline, with sales off 14 per cent from last year. Industry analysts attributed the drop to Chrysler's late introduction of 1976 models. As a result, Chrysler's market share in the period fell to 9.7 per cent, compared with a traditional 15 per cent.

Producers Asked to Support

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — Walter Miller, vice-president of the National Farmers' Union, urged egg producers Tuesday to support the egg marketing board in a provincial government survey.

The Ontario farm products marketing board of the department of agriculture is polling the 1,200 registered egg producers on whether they favour the present system of egg marketing and quota distribution.

In Memoriam

CORNELL and KEECH — In loving memory of a dear sister and aunt Hattie Keech, who died on Friday, October 17th, 1972. Mrs. Katie Keech, Ont.

Time has flown since we left you,
Your loved ones miss you more and more.
Life's hills were hard to climb,
So the angels came to guide you,
And whispered, "Peace to thine."
Away in the beautiful hills of God,
By the valley of real to fair,
Where loved ones go when we know we know,
We will meet our loved ones there.
—Lovingly remembered for Pearl Bird and Mabel Alexander.

KEECH — In loving memory of a dear grandmother who died October 15, 1964 and grandfather who died — October 14, 1972.

—Always remembered by her grandchildren and great grandchildren.

POUND — In loving memory of a dear husband and father Harry Pound who passed away Oct. 13th, 1966.

When evening shadows are falling,
And I sit in quiet alone,
I think of the days I am longing,
To be only dreaming and dreaming.
Friends may think I have forgotten,
Years at times have dim my sorrow,
But they little know the heartache,
Which I hide from the world.
—Lovingly remembered by
Bessie and son Ross and grandchildren.

POUND — In loving memory of a dear brother-in-law Harry H. Pound who passed away so suddenly on October 15, 1966.

Sudden was the one a sad farewell,
Perhaps it's best we never
We just could have not said goodbye,
Hurry, to see we kissed in death.
—Sadly missed and always remembered by your loving sister-in-law Frances Pound and Mabel Harris.

GREEN — In loving memory of a dear mother Martha Green who passed away Oct. 15th, 1964.

Sweet memories are precious,
To bring you to our mind,
For the days we do not think of you,
Are very hard to find.
If all the tears we have shed for you,
We'd fill a river, and more,
We see the face of mother dear,
Come smiling through the door.
—Always remembered by her son Lloyd and wife Marion.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — John Denver says he really does thank God he's a country boy.

"I grew up listening to Hank Williams," Denver said from Perth, Australia, after being voted the country music industry's Entertainer of the Year and also winning his award for the best song of 1975, Back Home Again.

Denver, touring in Australia, was the only person to win two awards at the Country Music Association's ninth annual presentation Monday night at the Grand Ole Opry House. Altogether, he had been nominated for five of the association's 10 awards. His other nominations were for best single of the year, best album and best male vocalist.

The best single award went to Freddy Fender for Before the Next Teardrop Falls and the album award went to Ronnie Milsap for A Legend in My Time.

Waylon Jennings was named the best male vocalist, with the best female vocalist award going to Dolly Parton. Veteran Grand Ole Opry star Minnie Pearl was inducted as the newest member of the Country Music all of Fame.

"I really think of myself as a country entertainer," Denver, who lives in Aspen, Colo., said in a telephone interview following the ceremonies. "I think I'm a really good example of the evolvement that's going on in country music."

Denver, in his mid 30s, was the biggest selling popular artist in the United States last year. His last two albums have sold more than three million copies each.

It was in 1971 that Denver had his first million selling record with Take Me Home Country Roads. Prior to that he was best known for writing Leaving on a Jet Plane, a song that Peter, Paul and Mary made famous in 1969.

MONTREAL (CP) — The jury at the Seventh Canadian Student Film Festival has decided that the Norman McLaren Award, the festival's grand prize, will not be awarded this year because none of the 43 entries deserved it.

The award carries a $1,000 cash prize, which the jury recommended be made available next year should a suitable winner be found.

First prizes were awarded in only two of the four categories at the festival at Concordia University, which ended last weekend.

Rob Wallace of Conestoga College, Kitchener, Ont., won first prize and $600 in the documentary category for his film, Thursday Auction, which depicts the Kitchener stockyards.

Six students from Sheridan College of Applied Arts and Technology in Oakville, Ont., shared first prize and $500 for Da, Da Da, a two-minute animated fantasy.

Second-prize winners in the scenario category were Her Decision by Glen Salzman of York University, Toronto, and Temporarily Confused by Ken Hass of Conestoga College.

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — Symphonies need to develop larger audience support today because society has changed, a seminar on the problems of symphony management was told.

"There are fewer of the wealthy patrons and no more of the exclusive elitist clubs," Boris Brott, conductor of the Hamilton Philharmonic, told participants from Canada and the United States.

Mr. Brott said symphonies need larger audience support "not just for their financial support but to justify the continuing support of government."

"Physics largely defines the financial problem of the symphony," he said. "The acoustics of a building cannot be satisfactorily maintained once the size of the building is larger than what is necessary to accommodate 3,000 people.

"But 3,000 ticket sales do not cover the cost of a concert."

A m e r ican representatives said funding has also become a major issue in the U.S.

"Our National Endowment for the Arts does a wonderful job, but doesn't compare with the federal and provincial support Canadian governments offer the arts," said Audrey Michaels, a seminar resource person from New York.

Mr. Brott also said amateur and youth orchestras, which are the "spawning ground" for professional symphony, must not be overlooked.

"In Ontario we have 22 orchestras, only four of which are professional," he said.

Airline Employees Get Wage Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — More than 1,200 Air Canada employees were granted a 15.5-per-cent wage increase for one year only three days before the federal government's new prices and incomes guides were announced.

Ray Guerin, an Air Canada public relations official, said in a telephone interview from Montreal that non-union clerical employees—secretaries, steno-graphers, clerks—were told Oct. 10 they would get the raise. The increase is retroactive to Sept. 22.

Mr. Guerin said the increase was part of Air Canada's normal annual salary review and was granted by airline management.

Airline executives will be due for a salary adjustment Dec. 1, but this will be subject to the government's 10-per-cent ceiling on salary increases, he said.

Your Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

For Thursday, Oct 16

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Others won't show you the same consideration you have shown them. Don't expect to receive a favor just because you've done a good turn.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're not nearly as alert as you should be in handling your business affairs. Someone makes more wide-awake is going to get the drop on you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A well-meaning but poorly advised friend is going to get you off on the wrong foot today. Listen to what others say, but use your good judgment.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You tend to brush things under the rug today. These bits of ominous will later come back to haunt you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Overlooking and excusing the faults in one you love will seem charity to you today. However, you'll only weave a tangled web that you'll have to unravel later.

VIRGO Aug. 23-Sept. 22) This is not a good day to make financial requests from members of your family. You'll only embarrass them, as well as yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're prone to divulge personal matters to the wrong set of ears today. Be very selective in the persons you discuss intimacies with.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you have occasion to contract someone to do work for you today, be extra cautious in your choice. Overpaying is likely if you pick the wrong party.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're apt to be too much a gambler for your own good today. Don't bank on Lady Luck to save your bacon if you take silly risks.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan 19) Some confidential information about the family is going to leak out today. You'd better find the source and plug it up quickly.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) The fact that you could let a friend down today is disturbing. If you try to rationalize later with flimsy excuses, you'll only make matters worse.

PICES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you want to buy something today, keep your top price in mind and stick to it. Otherwise, you'll let your desire exceed your means.

Sherlock Holmes bid was his full values and a little extra with today's hand, based on the king of hearts. East studied carefully, overtook West's king and led back her singleton club. This brilliant play now forced Holmes to adopt extraordinary measures. He cashed his king of clubs, then took his queen with dummy's ace and carefully discarded the jack of hearts. Britain's Gambling Squad Takes Cheating Courses

LONDON (CP) — Forty inspectors of Britain's Gaming Board, the official body which controls gambling activities through regulation and licensing, recently undertook courses in cheating.

They did it at London's Magic Circle, one of the world's largest and most distinguished societies of amateur and professional magicians, conjurers and illusionists. It shares secrets with few, but it did help the board's inspectors.

They saw how to deal from the bottom of the pack, the centre, the second or third card, how to mimic a shuffle the order of the cards, and other improper things before going their way, much instructed.

They are among the lucky ones. The Magic Circle is a private club, but it is generous with its offices. Three times a month for eight months of the year it entertains the public—30 at a time—at opening-evenings for a friendly lecture and a demonstration and a chance to meet the men who make a living sawing ladies in halves. But it cannot match the demand: There is a 3½-year waiting list.

Not all of the men of the Magic Circle are magicians in the classic sense of Houdini and the astonishing Professor Hoffman (actually an Englishman called Angelo Lewis) whose memories are preserved on aging posters on the walls of the circle's clubrooms in the centre of London. Of its 1,400 members barely half a dozen make it full-time from this craft.

One of the circle's busiest full-time magicians is the internationally known David Berglas who found himself one of a panel of experts set up by the London magazine New Scientist to inquire into the much-publicized spoon-bending feats of the Israeli Uri Geller.

It has been argued that Geller's achievements represent an aspect of paranormal—a very supernatural—phenomena. Berglas does not think so. He thinks they are magician's tricks, like his own, but ironically he has an uphill task persuading people of this. It is the logic of Berglas' chosen profession that he cannot reveal how he, Berglas, also bends spoons.

"That is just it," says Berglas. "My job is to show you something scientists say cannot be done."

The Magic Circle, says Francis White, seventh president in its 75 years, is a society of honest deceivers. Here they archive their deceit is not to be revealed. It is a secret kept by the statesmen and parliamentarians, students and laborers, entertainers and clerks who make up the membership spread through 40 countries—a membership which has included enthusiastic amateurs such as J. B. Priestley, Rudyard Kipling, Lord Mountbatten and Orson Welles. But no women.

There have been rumors about that. One young woman, fired by the tenets of women's liberation and fortified by forthcoming legislation outlawing discrimination on grounds of sex in Britain, burned her bra outside the Magic Circle headquarters and stuffed the ashes through the letterbox. The circle remained impassive. It bars women from membership (but not from open nights) in and possibly ominous belief that they cannot keep a secret. And secrets are what the circle is about.

But although the circle club night is positively crammed with men whose lips are sealed and whose cards are close to their chests, it still is possible to disentangle degrees and strains of deceit. For the circle is more than a club with a 195-seat auditorium and a circular meeting area dramatically decorated with zodiacal insignia. It also is an evocation of magical history and an academy of illusion.

It incorporates a small but beautiful museum of the technology of the trade: Victorian conjuring wands, cards, trick pistols, objects ranging from the cups and bowls which probably originated in Egypt 4th which were known to the Romans as acacapalari to the plate-spun which Chung Ling Soo used to spit the bullet which he caught with his teeth.

But perhaps the richest treasure of the Magic Circle lies in its 10,000-volume library of magic and allied arts. Its librarians—among them a man who has worked in magical archives for 30 years and a third-year medical student who has been conjuring since he was five—care for shelves which bear bound volumes of conjurers' magazines dating from the 18th century.

This enormous collection still is growing, though the librarians say there now is little printed that is new—the new books are but a few slant.

Spanish Church Needed

EDMONTON (CP) — Most of the Spanish-speaking immigrants here are "lost," says Rev. Thomas Juarez, who dreams of establishing a church here for Chilean, Argentine and Spanish immigrants.

Without a Spanish-speaking church, the immigrants lack the focal point that traditionally draws an ethnic group together, he said.

Father Juarez, principal-director of St. Mary's School here, said most of the Chilean, Argentine and Spanish immigrants don't even know how many of their Spanish-speaking brothers live in the city.

"It feels so good to hear someone speak your language when you're new in a foreign country," he said. "I know if they see something written in Spanish telling about a Spanish mass, it'll just give their hearts a lift."

Father Juarez, a native of Oakland, Calif., who recently spent seven years in Lima, Peru, said he doesn't want another "national" church established in the city.

"But it has been the desire of many people for quite some time to get something organized, so let the Spanish-speaking community know there is someone caring for them," he said.

Cheap Booze, High Cuisine Draws Many to French Isle

ST. PIERRE (CP) — The whale appeared out of the fog and the French ferry Saint-Georges, on the way to St. Pierre — Miquelon, slowed as the engine-room telegraph rang stop and the helmsman spun the wheel hard astarboard.

The mammal—it looked like a humpback whale about 40 feet long—passed close by the port quarter, reached with delight by vacationers returning from a visit to the French islands of St. Pierre-Miquelon off Newfoundland's south coast.

Sighting of the whale, common in these waters, was a nice way to finish a holiday that bites unexpectedly deep into the pocketbook.

Apart from liquor and tobacco, the shops in this territorial capital of 5,500 offer bargains that can be considered bargains. French perfume can be bought as cheaply in St. John's, Nfld., or Montreal as in St. Pierre and hotel prices equal or exceed those of Canadian cities.

But there are places where the food lives up to the reputation of French cuisine, and ordinary good manners brings out all the hospitality of most St. Pierre residents.

Rising prices, caused by a combination of inflation and the franc's relationship to the Canadian dollar, may already have caused a levelling off in the number of visitors which had been growing annually until 1974.

During the Jan. 1-Aug. 28 period in 1974 the territory had 19,789 visitors. Between the same dates of 1975 the total was 19,652.

The promise of cheap, duty-free goods, their shipment to St. Pierre subsidized by the French government, has been a major draw since ordinary tourists started visiting the territory in significant numbers in the late 1950s.

A prime commodity is liquor. Family fortunes were started in St. Pierre by merchants who sold to American gangsters during prohibition in the United States. An occasional smuggler still is caught attempting to land Christmas supplies in Newfoundland.

This year saw some of the highest prices ever for alcohol on St. Pierre: A 40-ounce bottle of 151-proof rum, a strength unobtainable in Canada, cost $6 in August when the rate of exchange was four francs to the Canadian dollar.

Last year, when the rate was five francs to the dollar, the same bottle cost $5.75. In 1971 it was $5.25.

Single rooms at the Ile de France hotel, including three meals a day, cost $22 per person daily. Four years ago the cost was about $17.

One of the smaller of the 40 hotels and pensions—boarding houses—in St. Pierre was offering a room without meals at $6 daily.

There are few rooms with baths. In most hotels the bath and toilet are down the hall.

Hotels and restaurants serve meals only at meal times. Visitors complain animally about the lack of places to stop for a snack or cup of coffee.

Experienced visitors make up for the absence of snack spots by buying long loaves of crusty French bread directly from the bakery, cold cuts from the local butcher and wine for a waterfront picnic.

For those with an eye for the world of seafaring, the waterfront provides an international flavor. Japanese ships load frozen squid, Polish trawlers land fish for processing and eventual sale in the U.S. and lone yachtsmen purchase supplies for Atlantic crossings.

One solo sailor was leaving in late August for England and Norway in a 28-foot ferrocement craft rigged with a Chinese junk-style sail. The rig, odd-looking to landsmen used to seeing the more conventional sailboat types, is becoming more popular with ocean voyagers who are discovering its versatility.

The sailor told a curious passer-by that he had sailed from Holland, Mich., and was leaving within a few minutes for Europe.

The boat's name was One Hand Clapping.

Arts and Science Class Attracts 80 Old Timers

TORONTO (CP) — James Burchell, like the rest of his freshman class at University of Toronto this year, will buy books, study and write exams.

But there's one big difference between him and his classmates. Mr. Burchell is 72.

He is one of almost 80 persons aged 65 and older who have registered to start arts and science courses at the university under a new program.

The students take only one or two credit courses at a time, do not have to pay tuition and do not have to meet the usual administration requirements.

Mr. Burchell says he may be a problem student for teachers because he will be ready to question them at every turn.

"As you get older, you become more skeptical about what people tell you," he says. "You start to question the accepted creed."

Chamber Protests Sunday Hours

By CLIFF KENYON
Staff Reporter

Belleville Chamber of Commerce directors decided Wednesday to write a letter to the Ontario ministry of industry and tourism voicing opposition to Sunday opening of chain stores.

"Historically this is the one day in the week for activities other than commerce and for it to be otherwise would disrupt families and the social environment," president George Thompson said in a statement following the directors meeting.

"There are only a certain number of dollars available in the trading area. Opening stores on one more day would only add to the cost which would increase prices."

He said the Belleville chamber will support the Ontario Chamber's stand that uniform store hour legislation would prevent Sunday opening except for essential services.

Director Dick Lumbers said there is no need for the stores to be open Sunday: "It's ridiculous."

Manager Don Sutton said the Canadian and Ontario chambers have approached the government concerning legislation to deal with the Sunday opening but nothing can be done until the next session.

Before the last provincial election, said George Zegouras, director and city alderman, all three parties had a stand favoring uniform store hours.

"I don't care if they close them all up," said Mr. Zegouras. "The government will have to make a decision and the Chamber should take a stand," he said.

"The city couldn't pass a by law that would hold water."

Cecil Brown, chamber board of director member said: "There is no possible consumer benefit. They have to increase costs by doing so."

Director Ewan Pogart said if chain stores are allowed to open Sunday, everyone will open on that day.

He said it costs a major chain store about $30 to employ a cashier on a Sunday and about $20 for a butcher.

Mr. Pogart said labor is not developing a tendency of looking on Saturdays and Sundays as the same as any other day.

If a worker has a choice he wants Saturday and Sunday off work."

Search for Thieves Moves to Brockville

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

BROCKVILLE — The search for two men who stole $700 from the Belleville Plaza branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce Tuesday morning has expanded into eastern Ontario following a similar robbery at a bank here later Tuesday.

Brockville police say two, well-dressed male persons entered a local bank at about 2:30 p.m. requesting Canadian money be exchanged for American.

During some following confusion, police say, one man reached over the counter unnoticed and took a sum of money from the teller's drawer.

The men escaped. Police are withholding the name of the bank and the amount of money taken.

Police say the robbery method is the same as occurred in Belleville Tuesday, in Kingston last week and in Peterborough Sept. 20.

In Belleville Tuesday at 11:40 a.m. two men approached a teller to discuss purchase of foreign currency and while the teller's back was turned, one lifted a bundle of $20 bills.

Strike Inevitable Now
Postal Union Sticks To 71 Per Cent Hike

OTTAWA (CP) — A postal strike appeared inevitable as leaders of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) announced plans today to stick with their original demand for a 71-per-cent pay increase in a one-year contract.

Backed by apparently overwhelming support from the 22,000 CUPW members for a postal strike if negotiations fail, chief union negotiator Jean-Claude Parrot said he will attempt to return to the bargaining table "to get on with some real negotiations this time."

But if those negotiations fail, "there is no doubt we will have to use our right to strike."

Mr. Parrot's comments came after most CUPW locals voted heavily in support of the union executive's request for authority to call a walkout, if negotiators fail to make progress on the CUPW's initial demands.

"There have been no real negotiations up to now because the employers did not have any mandate," Mr. Parrot said.

He was referring to a July 8 internal memo between two post office negotiators with a list of items which are interpreted as negotiable or non-negotiable.

Finance Minister Donald Macdonald said Wednesday that the anti-inflation review board must approve any post office contract settlement exceeding new federal wage guidelines.

The government's selective wage controls imposed earlier this week limit annual increases to a basic 10 per cent in the first year of a contract for more than four million workers, although the anti-inflation board is empowered to make exceptions in some cases.

Jim Sundall, president of CUPW's 350-member London, Ont., local said that only 220 of the local's members voted Tuesday and, of those, 54 per cent were in favor of a strike mandate.

There was "considerable confusion and shock" over the new wage guidelines, he said.

Members of the large Montreal and Quebec locals voted heavily in favor of giving CUPW leaders the right to call a walkout. Final Montreal vote results, tallied Wednesday night, showed 2,828 in favor of a strike mandate and 419 against. The Quebec workers voted 581 in favor and 195 against.

The Halifax local, however, voted 47 per cent against the request for a strike mandate and Mr. Mackasey interpreted that as a sign that they favored the Moncton conciliation report.

Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey said Tuesday the CUPW, which represents mail sorters and postal clerks, would qualify for an exemption from the wage ceiling because the guides make exceptions for "increases necessary to maintain long-established historical relationships between wages in closely-related groups and other special cases of equity."

But Mr. Macdonald said in the Commons Wednesday that it is up to the board, rather than the government, to decide which groups are exempt.

Despite that, Mr. Mackasey said in an interview he will stand by earlier statements that the post office is willing to negotiate on the basis of a conciliation report which recommends an increase of $1.70 an hour in four raises over a 20-month period. CUPW workers now earn an average of $4.19 an hour.

Recommendation in the conciliation report, prepared by Judge Jean Moisan of the Quebec Superior Court and rejected last week by CUPW leaders, would give inside postal workers parity with letter carriers, who signed a contract last spring. The CUPW demanded a flat increase of $2.36 an hour in a one-year contract.

Mr. Mackasey said that while the final decision rests with the board, it must take into consideration the exceptions provided for by the government. In addition to the parity provision, the board is empowered to give special consideration to employees who seek to replace an expired contract signed prior to 1974. The postal workers are included in that category.

The postmaster-general said he will go before the board if necessary to plead for an exception in the case of the CUPW. "Morally, I wouldn't be able to do anything but recommend it."

Meanwhile, some members of the CUPW still were voting today on a proposal by the union executive for authority to call a strike if negotiations fail.

If Strike Threatens Chamber Considers Own Mail Service

By CLIFF KENYON
Staff Reporter

In the event of a postal strike Belleville Chamber of Commerce will make its own delivery service, but it's for members only.

In a meeting Wednesday the board of directors decided that if legal approval they will join in a Canada-wide agreement with other chambers to deliver mail between their offices. The Belleville chamber h's a about 225 member businesses.

The idea for the service was initiated by the Winnipeg Chamber of Commerce. In Ontario, members of construction associations will also be included in the service.

Chamber manager Don Sutton also said the Quinte Construction Association is receiving the same service in the event of a mail tie up.

The construction association, which is administrated for the chamber, has about 60 members, said Mr. Sutton.

"Most of the major chambers in the province have agreed to participate," said Mr. Sutton.

From Belleville, he said, overnight delivery would be available as far as Montreal and Windsor.

In the event of a postal strike members would leave mail at the chamber office for delivery. Members would be telephoned to pick up any mail for them arriving at the chamber office. Delivery costs would depend upon distance.

Mr. Sutton said if there is a mail strike he hopes the service will help the chamber add some new members: "We gained several members through installation of the telex."

Moores Cuts Spending

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Premier Frank Moores said in a radio and television broadcast Wednesday his government would cut current and capital account expenditures.

Mr. Moores said the Newfoundland government had decided to cut spending in support of the anti-inflation policy announced Monday night by Prime Minister Trudeau.

Measures include:

—No new highway construction in the current fiscal year unless tenders have already been awarded. The fiscal year ends March 31, 1976.

—No new construction or alterations of projects in this fiscal year unless tenders have already been awarded.

Restraint Penalties Spelled Out Today

OTTAWA (CP) — The costs of defying the government's selected wage and price controls—a key factor in deciding whether labor rebels against them—will be spelled out in legislation today.

Finance Minister Donald Macdonald is introducing the legal machinery to make the anti-inflation program work as labor leaders are growing increasingly restive over the incomes policy.

The biggest units in the country, the 210,000-member Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE), has called an emergency meeting to discuss the program. Members may be asked to sign a resolution opposed the plan.

And the 15 major unions that make up the executive council of the Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) are meeting Oct. 24 to discuss the plan.

"You could call this a summit meeting," an official in one of the affiliated unions said.

The CLC has so far not rejected the controls plan imposed at midnight Monday night. But CLC president Joe Morris has stated it is not satisfied it is an effective way to beat inflation and has said the CLC wants to negotiate.

Cyprus Crisis
Congress Challenges Kissinger Refusal

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger may be inviting a showdown with the House of Representatives intelligence committee by refusing to give the committee a subpoenaed memorandum that alleges mishandling of the Cyprus crisis by the United States.

Kissinger said at a news conference in Ottawa on Wednesday that he has offered to give the committee "a summary of notes" on the Cyprus crisis handling.

But he said: "We will not submit documents, even without names."

Chairman Otis Pike (Dem., N.Y.) already had indicated doubts Kissinger would make comply with the subpoena, saying the committee will take the Kissingers response when Congress resumes on Tuesday from a week-long Columbus Day recess.

Oil Firms Seek Exemption

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Consumer Minister Dennis Timbrell said Wednesday the federal government will be asked to exempt major oil companies from prosecution under the Combines Investigation Act as part of the Ontario government inquiry into petroleum product prices.

Mr. Timbrell, in Sault Ste. Marie for a meeting of the Ontario cabinet, said in an interview that companies claim they cannot divulge their pricing mechanisms because the federal government would "pounce on them like a ton of bricks."

He said he has asked Sidney Handleman, Ontario consumer and commercial relations minister, to formally approach Andre Ouellet, federal consumer and corporate affairs minister, asking that he use his discretionary power and not prosecute the companies.

Mr. Timbrell said the companies believe disclosure would be tantamount to price fixing.

Health Minister Frank Miller said he is tired of people complaining about health hazards facing Indians in northwestern Ontario but the complainers continue killing themselves by what he calls diseases of choice—not enough exercise and smoking too much.

Will Dismiss Pilots

MONTREAL (CP) — Nordair will dismiss any of its pilots who take part in Saturday's scheduled walkout by the Canadian Airline Pilots Association (CALPA), an airline official said Wednesday. Jack Hughes, Nordair vice-president, said the airline warned CALPA in a letter Tuesday that any of its pilots who refuse to operate scheduled flights during the 24-hour walkout will be dismissed immediately.

Nobel Prizes Awarded

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Two United States scientists and an Italian were jointly awarded the 1975 Nobel Prize in Physiology or Medicine today for their discoveries concerning "the inter-action between tumor viruses and the genetic material of the cell." David Baltimore of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Howard Martin Temin of the University of Wisconsin and Renato Dulbecco who works at the Imperial Cancer Fund Laboratory in London, England, shared the $143,000 prize.

Macdonald Wants Help

OTTAWA (CP) — If the price of that keen kite you've had your eye on soars before it leaves the store, the finance minister wants to hear about it. Finance Minister Donald Macdonald invited consumers Wednesday to assist the government with its new anti-inflation program by reporting suspicious price increases on goods and services. Special phone numbers have been set aside for complaints or questions about the program at revenue department taxation offices in 28 major cities. Long distance calls can be made free of charge by dialing the operator and asking for Zenith 4000.

May Bring Costs in Line

OTTAWA (CP) — Acting Prime Minister Mitchell Sharp said Wednesday the government may amend legislation designed to limit medical care cost increases to bring it in line with its new economic program. A bill introduced into the Commons July 8 would have limited increases in the federal share of medical care costs to 15 per cent in the fiscal year 1976-77. The federal government pays 50 per cent of the costs while the provinces pay the remainder.

COLUMBUS DIDN'T TURN BACK
Discovering places and things can be pretty disconcerting. When Columbus arrived on this continent nearly 500 years ago his crew was sick, disheartened and ready to turn back. Even the medicines they carried were primitive and not sufficient to help with their problems.
Another more modern group of explorers are those who toil in research laboratories, looking for and testing new drugs. Fortunately, these pioneers did not turn back either and today many once feared diseases have been cured. Hopefully, in the not to distant future more new disease fighting medicines will be appearing in our pharmacy laboratory.

Budget Overrun Splits Council

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Prince Edward County council's road committee again has failed to balance its budget but its recommendations to organize a special committee to review administrative procedure Wednesday was rejected by councillors.

A deficit of approximately five per cent was reported last year in the $800,000 budget prepared annually by county engineer Donald Clark.

Road committee members, in their regular report to council, recommended a committee including Picton deputy-reeve Richard Byers, Ameliasburg deputy-reeve Gordon Babbitt and accountant Victor Allan should step in.

"To me this is a non-confidence vote. This is like the bureaucracy you see in the provincial and federal governments," asserted North Marysburg deputy-reeve Ken Hicks referring to the recommendation.

He added that if the special committee were organized it would appear faith had been lost in the road committee.

Wellington reeve Robert Boyce supported deputy-reeve Hicks' stand.

He added that the road budget was set last spring" when inflation was increasing weekly."

Reeve Boyce said that a five per cent deficit in an $800,000 budget leaves "damned little room for criticism." He observed there has been a great deal of criticism, much of it unfounded.

He observed that several reeves obtained work for their townships that was not part of the roads program for 1975 and he noted the road committee should have stopped those jobs.

"I think we overspent $65,000 to $70,000 two years ago," said Hallowell reeve Keith MacDonald.

He added that the road budget has been "over" for about five years.

In a heated debate of the budget problem and how to correct it councillor agreed that the existing system needs improvements.

"Surface treating is where we ran over. There should be a system for day to day control," remarked warden Clifford Walker.

Picton reeve Larry Richardson moved that the recommendation for an investigating committee be deleted from the road report. Council agreed and the committee report was adopted without the road committee's original recommendation.

Walk-a-thon Date Set

TWEED — The annual walk-for-hockey to raise funds for the Tweed Minor Hockey Association is scheduled to take place on Sunday.

The 10-mile hike around Stoco Lake finishing in Tweed, will be sponsored by area business men and individuals as more than 200 people will test their endurance.

There are 250 boys registered for the hockey season.

In conjunction with the fund-raising a skate exchange will be held Friday from 7 p.m. until 9 at Tweed Junior Public School.

Organizer Stan Walker will collect pledges the week following the walk-for-hockey.

Marine Rescue Improved

Four Voyager helicopters have been added to the search and rescue team at CFB Trenton and squadron officials say this will dramatically increase the group's effectiveness in performing marine rescues. The added mobility of the helicopter allows for the immediate evacuation of crash victims whereas previously medical assistance was parachuted in. The helicopters will complement the Coast Guard which is responsible for responding to marine distress alerts.

Province Begins Study For Waste Recovery Plant

PICTON — Representatives of the ministry of the environment met with Prince Edward County council Wednesday to discuss the possibility of establishment of a resource recovery plant in the Quinte area.

Richard Warner, an economic analyst with the program development section of the Resource Recovery Branch told councillors a six-month study was started in Prince Edward County about a week ago.

He said the goal of the work is to establish a system of resource recovery plants across Ontario to recover all value wastes produced. In 15 years it is hoped there will be enough plants to serve 90 per cent of the province's population. The plants would eliminate the use of land fill.

Mr. Warner added that the energy and material value involved in solid waste would be recovered.

He explained that at a resource recovery plant there would be a magnetic separation of items such as metal cans and their re-sale to markets. Other wastes possibly could be marketed as fibre fuel.

Mr. Warner said there are no resource recovery plants now operational in Ontario but an experimental pilot is underway in North York and will be opened next summer.

"We are here for a system feasibility study to see if it is reasonable to establish one, two or three plants in the corridor from Trenton to east of Kingston" Mr. Warner told council.

He said there would be a need for adaptability in the system of collection and disposal of solid wastes now used in the county.

Mr. Warner emphasized that public input is an important part of the study and it is planned to establish close links with senior levels of government.

Two councillors and an alternate from Prince Edward County council were asked to participate in an advisory group. Similar representation will be requested from councils in Hastings, Frontenac and Lennox and Addington counties and from Belleville, Kingston, Trenton, Napanee, Picton and Gananoque councils.

County High School Wants Drama Festival

BLOOMFIELD — Prince Edward Collegiate Institute is seeking the division competitions in the Ontario Collegiate Drama Festival in March, 1976, and the Prince Edward Board of Education this week agreed to use of the school for the weekend program.

Richard Karp, a teacher at PECI addressed trustees to explain the background of the festival and to outline festival organization.

He observed that the drama festival is sponsored by Simpson-Sears Ltd. and is also known as the Simpson-Sears Drama Festival. For competition purposes the province is divided into four divisions with approximately 23 districts. Each district has from 15 to 40 schools competing to attend the division festivals.

Mr. Karp said one entry from each district attends the division competition and the four finalists compete in the final evening which is usually held in Toronto.

He added that PECI now is included in the South Kawartha District with 22 other schools. For the last seven years the district festival has been held in Cobourg but PECI is eager to get the 1976 festival.

Addition of Helicopters Speeds Rescue Operations

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Boaters in Ontario and Quebec will enjoy themselves more in the future, knowing the addition of helicopters to CFB Trenton's search and rescue (SAR) team Monday has greatly increased the squadron's efficiency during marine rescue operations.

Officials at the base have been trying to secure the service of a helicopter for rescue operations but note was made available by the defence department until four Voyagur models were phased out of service, for the larger Chinook model in Ottawa.

The helicopter will replace four Dellavilland Twin Otter aircraft which have been transferred to Edmonton where they will assume SAR duties.

"The Voyager will greatly increase the effectiveness of marine rescue operations because of the flight versatility and their ability to land right in the water," said Lt. — Col. K.O. Simonson, commander of the 424 SAR squadron.

Recently, the Canadian Coast Guard, which responds to most marine distress alerts has had to answer an increased number of calls and the additions of the helicopters will complement their rescue operations, he said.

"The helicopters can fly in rougher weather many times when smaller light aircraft can not, and hover above crash sites and provide immediate evacuation," said Lt. — Col. Simonson.

Formerly, medical specialists were parachuted into the distress sites to provide treatment but with the helicopters it will be possible to remove the injured more quickly or lower rescue specialists by hoist.

The 424 Squadron is responsible for rescue operations for 819,000 square miles including all of Ontario, a portion of Quebec and part of the Northwest Territories.

The helicopters will have a range of almost 500 miles, a cruising speed of about 135 miles per hour and will be able to remain airborn for 3½ hours.

The Voyager is a jet-propelled, two rotor aircraft and has been specially equipped with a hoist and other emergency apparatus to do SAR work.

Stanfield's Late Charge as He Raps Government for Playing the 'Blame Game'

By RICHARD JACKSON
Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA — It is not just too bad — it is a tragedy — that now when it's far too late to do him, Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition, and the country much good, Conservative Leader Stanfield is talking tough.

All through these last eight years — he was party leader before Pierre Trudeau made it with the Liberals — he has been such a moderate.

He has not only been willing to see both sides of the argument, he has often been able to take the government's view.

So Lucky Pierre and Liberals right or wrong, good old "Reasonable Robert" was ready to ride along.

He was so co-operative, you will remember, even after beating the Liberals, fair and square, in Parliament on a budget tax measure, he couldn't bring himself to pick up the winning marbles.

He could have taken power — just like that — but instead, he agreed to let former Prime Minister Lester Pearson hang on — a little longer.

It was long enough for the power-is-our-right-divine Liberals to decide that Pearson — worn-out Pearson — had themselves the bright,, or flashy, trendy, then-charismatic Pierre Elliott Trudeau.

So Robert Stanfield soft-shoed himself around issues and sweet-talked party hard-line dissidents to string along for three being elections.

Now with little more than three months to go he not only lets fly at the Prime Minister's deterioration of leadership, but gets right to the heart of Trudeau's frightening failure to cope with what he has called "down the economic drain" problems.

In a recent speech he charged that the floundering administration was "escaping responsibility" by playing the "blame game."

He charges the government with attempting — and with some success — to set one section of the community against the other.

"They single out a group in our society for blame.

"They did it with business and industry a couple of years ago. More recently they have been doing it with labor."

And now, to listen to the Prime Minister, the taxpayers are to blame.

They want too much.

They "rising expectations," as the Prime Minister sees it, are more than a patient and all-wise government can bear.

So they've got to cut back if we are all to save our skins.

Maybe he will even call for sacrifices from the pensioners.

So blame is the name of the government game, says Robert Stanfield.

Point the finger at somebody else, figures the government, so it won't be pointed at them.

"They know from experience," he observes, "that the blame game works in their favor and they are counting on you to play it with them another time around, just as they counted on labor to play it with them against business when that game was going."

When people began catching on, the government switched players, and set business — and everyone else who wanted to play — against labor.

Now the game plan is to lay the blame on the guy down the street.

He hasn't got a $200,000 pool or a brace of armored limos, a $72,000 salary and a staff of hundreds, but, scolds the Prime Minister, he wants too much and he's putting the economic screws to you.

That way, says Robert Stanfield, the government dodging the finger, gets everyone else in on the great game of blame.

Because the government is by far the biggest enterprise in all the land, "the blame game has become the biggest action in the country today."

Because it by far has been the government, representing itself in a preposterous pretence of impartiality, the referee on the sidelines."

The success of the blame game as an escape from reality and responsibility has been catching says Robert Stanfield, with all segments of the economy now caught in the game playing by the government.

The crisis of confidence, he says, cries out for leadership to "stop blaming and start analyzing and thinking — to quit faking it and begin fixing it."

Ottawa's Medicine

The Government has acted on inflation. The controls to be implemented have a semblance of "voluntary restraint," but in effect are for real. It's a matter of cooperation — or else.

But it has taken all these years for Ottawa to do something. Back in 1968 Prime Minister Trudeau and the then Finance Minister, Mitchell Sharp, were counselling the public — with a hint of threat as well — to ease up on their spending.

The threats of course never materialized, in the sense, that is, of anything being done of the character we are seeing today.

Instead, the spending has continued, the Government itself being one of the biggest culprits. And Canadians, with their unions as agents, have been demanding — and getting — more and more in the realm of higher wages.

A long time ago — in the days of the Diefenbaker government — the then Governor of the Bank of Canada, James Coyne, noted that Canadians "are living grandly beyond their means." Nothing has changed since — only the government. And now, that government has taken action, and not a moment too soon.

Uncertainties remain as to the implications of these fiscal controls, and how they will be implemented. But the general meaning is clear. It says in effect: "Cool it," as to spending and wage claims, or suffer the consequences.

"And feel free to call me whenever you've licked inflation, unemployment and . . ."

Place Names

Some Canadian place names have been sent to try us. And some folks — even in newspapers — fall into the geographical traps.

Like the Ottawa newspaper which ran a caption about a young woman rescued from her third-floor apartment window in "St. John's, N.B." before fire swept the four-storey building.

The locale of course should have read Saint John, N.B., and not St. John's which is the capital of Newfoundland.

It's a common enough error, as is the other version of Saint John — St. John. As for the rescued woman, Mrs. Jean Buchanan, she cannot be too worried one way or another — her hair was singed and evidently she was rescued in the nick of time. Just being and well after such an experience surely would be her main concern.

Curbing Speeders

The supply of two unmarked cars by a Picton garage to local police — and at no charge — in an effort to curb speeders is a public-spirited act.

It is not enough that the public generally should look to their own security and inform police of any suspicious circumstances. This can be of help of course, but this action in Picton goes further than that, by bolstering police protection with citizen co-operation.

The accident toll, in which speeding plays a large part, shows no sign of abating. If anything, it is on the upswing and Prince Edward County's traffic safety has been disturbed of late by an unusually high number of accidents and fatalities.

Safe driving more and more is a determining art. But rather than stand by and watch the carnage increase, the Picton initiative is aimed at fighting the problem — and saving lives. In the last resort though, the solution rests with the drivers — if anyone can get the message across to them.

Deseronto Days Past

Camp Mohawk was a First World War air base at Deseronto and we recall some pictures of the rows of tents there and of planes in flight.

The pictures appeared about a year ago in Deseronto's lively tabloid, The Quinte Scanner, along with such interesting facts as one of the flying instructors being Vernon Castle of dance fame.

The Scanner has come up with some further pictures of the 1914-18 era and showing this time members of the Signalling School at Camp Petawawa in the summer of 1916.

One of the signallers was Don Gall, former liquor store manager in Deseronto, and he is quoted as saying that the summer of '16 was "much hotter" than the one just past.

Whew . . . ! Especially with the soldiers all decked out in their uniforms — but lobking hale and hearty nonetheless.

The HMMP patrol vessel, St. Roch, reached Vancouver after an 86-day voyage from Halifax through the Northwest passage, 31 years ago today—in 1944. The St. Roch became the only vessel to have made the northern crossing of the continent in both directions. In 1940, she had left Vancouver June 23 and spent two winters locked in Arctic ice.

Mackenzie River Indians Claim Nationhood

Kitchener — Waterloo Record

The native people of the Mackenzie River drainage basin (an area roughly 1,000 miles by 500 miles) made headlines for one day, nearly three months ago, when they proclaimed the existence of the Dene nation. Leaders of the Indian Brotherhood of the Northwest Territories and the Metis Association were weary of the slow progress of their claims to land rights. They live where it is proposed to build pipelines for the exportation of Arctic natural gas and oil.

Dene is the term used by Athapascan-speaking tribes to describe themselves. It is pronounced as a two-syllable word.—The explorer David Thompson, trying nearly two centuries ago to set it down in his journal the way he heard it spoken, wrote it Dainne.

It is easy to sympathize with the Indian leaders in their sense of frustration. They rely on the doctrine of aboriginal rights that was established for Canada by a royal proclamation of 1763. The doctrine is that the native people have rights to the land until a land—surrender treaty has been made by the natives with the Crown. All of southern Ontario, for example,is covered by a series of land—surrender treaties made with various Indian tribes during the 18th and early 19th centuries.

The tribes of the Mackenzie Valley are still waiting for a treaty that would transfer land rights from themselves to the white people. From their point of view the land is still theirs until such a treaty is made. They are stretching their case a little, but not a great deal, when they proclaim as they did July 18 that they are a separate nation, and imply that every white man within their territory is a trespasser.

After a delay of more than seven weeks, Indian Affairs Minister Judd Buchanan has rejected the idea of a separate Dene government within the Northwest Territories. He has equated the idea with Quebec separatism, saying that, "The concept of two nations is no more acceptable in the N.W.T. than in Quebec."

Regrettable as it may seem to idealistic supporters of the Indians, Mr. Buchanan's answer is the only one possible. In legal theory the Dene peoples can argue that the land they occupy is still their own. In practice they have been under the protection and government of the Crown, in the right of Canada, since the territories were ceded by the Hudson's Bay Co. 105 years ago.

Romantic as it may be to think that the native people of the Territories could suddenly assert their independence they once had, and start to operate as a sovereign nation, it is not conceivable that it could happen. The best they can hope from their proclamation is that it will be a useful public—relations exercise, calling attention to the fact that their land rights have been ignored.

Because the government is by far the biggest enterprise in all the land, "the blame game has become the biggest action in the country today."

Because it by far has been the government, representing itself in a preposterous pretence of impartiality, the referee on the sidelines.

The success of the blame game as an escape from reality and responsibility has been catching says Robert Stanfield, with all segments of the economy now caught in the game playing by the government.

The crisis of confidence, he says, cries out for leadership to "stop blaming and start analyzing and thinking — to quit faking it and begin fixing it."

Sprinkler Protection

Montreal Star

A fire alarm and automatic sprinkler protection system in every new home built in Canada is a worthy objective which everyone will applaud in the abstract and few will do anything about. Even the president of the Canadian Association of Fire Chiefs, William MacDonald, probably realizes he is campaigning for what is now an improbable specification in the National Building Code, even if in years to come it may be considered a routine matter.

What the fire chiefs should be unrelentingly insistent upon, in the meantime, is the tightening of local building codes right across the country for mandatory inclusion of smoke and fire alarms and sprinklers in every structure to which the public has access. Nearly everywhere buildings are shooting up so high that fire departments cannot cope with emergencies in them. The buildings themselves may be fireproof in construction, but their contents are not. And too many developers cut corners on the voluntary inclusion of protective devices which should be stipulated by law.

All new federal buildings adhere rigidly to specifications of the national code. But the national code is applicable only in those jurisdictions which choose to apply it - and few municipalities do. The fire chiefs could ease many of their problems by working at the municipal level where each is fully aware of problems areas.

Sunday Opening

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I read with much interest the comments on chain food stores opening on Sundays. I can't understand why so many people are against such.

Some people say it's the Lord's Day, yet that's what it is every day.

Some people say it's a day for the family to be together, yet that's what it is. It happens to the parent who has to work Sunday, with a day off throughout the week. Doctors, police, nurses and firemen etc.

Some people feel the employees of the store should have a day off from work. True again, but who works seven days a week?

Some people feel the large chain stores make enough money, profit; who can determine this. As for one expense the rent has to be paid every days a week, the landlord doesn't reduce the rent because the store isn't open on Sunday.

I feel if the large chain food stores are to be closed on Sunday, then so should the corner stores, because they sell more than bread and milk, and the drug stores should be closed because they sell more than prescription drugs.

Do the complaining people ever stop to realize it wasn't for the support of the people shopping at any store it would not stay open anything.

As for the church boycotting these supermarkets, this is senseless as who ever heard tell of anyone boycotting the church because they have their doors open, what's good for one is good for the other.

So now I say we should leave it up to the shopper, if they don't shop then the doors will soon close.

Soviet-aligned Algeria and Cuba Have Ups and Downs Economically

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Algeria in North Africa like Cuba in the Caribbean, is a Third World socialist nation which once totally rejected the capitalistic world in the struggle for independence but now leans heavily on it as a customer and for source of supply.

Where Cuba has sugar, Algeria as a member-nation of OPEC (Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries) has oil and natural gas. And both countries badly need and are buying large amounts of equipment and technology from capitalist countries.

The two nations which had no reason whatsoever to be in contact before their social revolutions, are now ideologically very close. Fidel Castro visited Algiers in 1974 for the Non-Aligned International Conference of that year. And Algerian President Houari Boumedienne has been a stellar guest of Castro in Havana.

Both nations are in the Soviet blog, but Cuba more than Algeria economically, as a distant member of KOMECON the Eastern European Common Market dominated by Moscow.

But both countries fly Soviet MiG jet fighters in their air force and patrol their coastal waters with Russian-built miles-carrying fast torpedo boats.

And where Israel is concerned the Cubans support Algeria in her campaign as an Arab nation against Israel, ideological alliance being the only reason, since there isn't any other conceivable one why Cuba would be anti-Israeli.

However Algeria's economy for the present is not doing as well as the Cuban which is still basking in the glow of last year's bumper return from record-high world sugar prices.

The Algerians too were glowing in 1974 when their oil was selling for $14 a barrel. But this price dropped to $11.75. This year it is down again. Algerian imports of machinery and equipment are seriously disrupting her balance of payments.

Algeria also knows her oil will run out, something like Venezuela, within perhaps 20 years. The country's previously record foreign sales contracts for natural gas has slumped since the price is not competitive in Europe.

But on the other hand, U.S. gas interests are building multi-million dollar gas liquefaction facilities in Algeria to assure delivery of the contracted supply of Algerian gas to one of the private enterprise giants of the American natural gas industry, El Paso Natural Gas Co.

This is where politics and economics part ways. In the Algerian scheme of things, since her bitter hatred of Israel is based in part on the fact that country is viewed in Algiers as the Middle East military and strategic base for the United States. But where lucrative American gas contracts are concerned, no one pays much atention to conflicting political systems.

However domestically the Algerian statist economic system has produced record high unemployment, certainly above 25 per cent and Algerian state farms are woefully unproductive.

There are of course, the ancient, profitable and efficiently-managed farms of the long-gone "colons," settlers of French origin who were expelled after independence in the early 1960s.

Unlike Cuba which must rely on sugar as a single natural resource, Algeria has more than one of these and is developing an industrial base which could supply Third World nations.

The very longterm outlook for this emerging North African nation remains hopeful, even with the fear her oil may run out too soon.

Ottawa, Pilot Talks Continue

OTTAWA (CP) — With a threatened airline pilots strike still approaching, the transport department is holding further talks with the pilots ed the controversial problem of bilingual air traffic control, Transport Minister Otto Lang said Wednesday.

The minister said outside the Commons that transport department officials are going into further detail with the pilots on new procedures for dealing with increasing traffic at Quebec City.

He repeated the government's main concern in the bilingual air control issue is safety. This point had been made clearly ,by top officials of the Canadian Air Line Pilots Association (CALPA).

Attitude Change

OTTAWA (CP) — Marc Lalonde, federal minister responsible for the status of women, said Wednesday a change in attitude is more important than legislative change where women achieving equality with men is concerned.

Seek Aid

COBURG, Ont. (CP) — Police here have asked the Canadian Armed Forces air-sea rescue service to search the Lake Ontario shoreline for Kenneth Linton, of Cobourg, and Derek Matheson, of Vancouver, missing since Saturday.

Rent Controls

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — John Rhodes, Ontario housing minister, asked Ottawa Wednesday to meet with interested housing ministries and authorities to discuss rent-control proposals contained in Monday's economic guidelines.

In a telegram to Barney Danson, federal housing minister, Mr. Rhodes said the proposals should be discussed immediately.

No Replacement

OTTAWA (CP) — Government House Leader Mitchell Sharp said Wednesday no replacement has yet been chosen for Communications Minister Pierre Juneau, defeated Tuesday in a federal byelection.

He told the Commons that Transport Minister Otto Lang will answer questions in the House concerning the communications department until a decision is made.

Contract Proposal

TORONTO (CP) — Local 79, Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE), representing 4,300 Metropolitan Toronto and city office workers, submitted a contract proposal to the city Wednesday asking for a 21-per-cent pay increase over one year.

Roy Darling, Local 79 business agent, said the union will ask for time to revise its proposals in light of provincial and federal wage restraints.

Under the federal wage-and-price restraints announced Monday, provincial and municipal governments are to keep wage increases to 10 per cent in the first year of a contract.

Basket Drops

TORONTO (CP) — The price of the monthly Ontario Food Council market basket dropped 11 cents to $100.38, the Ontario agriculture ministry reported Wednesday.

The ministry said fresh fruits and sugar declined in price while increases were recorded for beef, beverages, vegetable oils, cereals, baked goods and pork.

The price of the basket, covering the period between the first week of September and the first week of October, is the average cost of 127 items priced at five major supermarkets in Metropolitan Toronto.

No One Injured

COLLINGWOOD, Ont. (CP) — A company official said no one was injured Wednesday in an explosion and fire that caused $10,000 damage to the National Starch and Chemical Co. plant.

The official said the dust explosion, in a starch-drying machine and air intake duct, blew out the walls of one section of the plant and started a fire.

Mercury Can't Be Accounted

OTTAWA (CP) — Eight tons of mercury which cannot be accounted for by a Domtar Ltd plant in northwestern Quebec may have evaporated or been carried into the ground, Environment Minister Jeanne Sauve said Wednesday.

Mrs. Sauve told the Commons the metal, used in a chlor-alkali process at the Domtar pulp facility in Lebel-sur-Quevillon, is extremely volatile and it is not known exactly how it disappeared.

The minister was replying to Gerard Laprise (SC—Abitibi) who expressed concern about high concentrations of mercury found in fish from water systems in northwestern Quebec.

Published reports said last week that more than 14,000 pounds of almost 25,000 pounds of mercury used at the Domtar plant in the last three years cannot be accounted for.

An environment department official said Wednesday that distilled mercury, which costs about $20 a pound, evaporates easily, especially in warmer temperatures.

Considers New Plan

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister James Richardson says he is considering a new plan that would allow him to both demonstrate Canada's good intentions toward NATO and Europe and delay purchase of $1 billion to $2 billion worth of interceptor aircraft.

He said the proposal would involve the use of CF-5 fighter aircraft, now in storage, as ground support for the Canadian forces in Europe. It probably also would involve an increase in the 3,000-member NATO force.

Emphasizing the proposal is only under study and no firm decisions have been made, the minister said in an interview using the CF-5 in Europe would demonstrate an intent to improve the Canadian forces without massive expenditures of money.

OUT OUR WAY by Neg Cochran

Love Sculpture Remains Unfinished

OTTAWA (CP) — The controversial 36-foot modern sculpture Love by Henry Wanton Jones of Montreal lies in three pieces on a site in neighboring Hull, Que.

Mr. Jones says it will continue to lie prostrate unless the federal works department gives him more money.

The Montreal visual-arts instructor says his $28,000 glass creation, fabricated at Renfrew, Ont., may cost more than $100,000 by the time it is erected. He wants a meeting with works department officials to present his demands for more compensation.

The department's fine art advisory committee wants Mr. Jones to assemble his work in front of Place du Portage, site of new federal office buildings, and then haggle over additional costs. Mr. Jones says no: "I can be pretty stubborn."

The cost rise spectacularly when as misfaction of the sculpture, said to represent a rump or a breast, proved too large to transport to the site by truck. An armed forces helicopter had to be brought in to do the job.

Oil Price Controls Should Be Lifted

WINNIPEG (CP) — C. William Daniel, president of Shell Canada Ltd., said today removal of provincial oil price controls is urgently needed.

"The continuation of price freezes will result in a slowdown in activity by the companies "by are most likely to discover and develop new resources," he told a Rotary Club luncheon.

The provincial price freezes are estimated to have cost the oil industry many millions of dollars in lost revenues, he said.

"We estimate that the price freeze in Ontario of 4½ months will affect our company alone by some $25 million in lost revenue."

Prices are also frozen in Manitoba, he said, while British Columbia has allowed increases for some products but not others. Nova Scotia requires that fuel price changes be approved by its Public Utilities Board and New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island are now calling for their own reviews.

Mr. Daniel said when the industry agreed to co-operate with the federal government's request for a 60-day delay in passing on increased energy costs to the consumer, the industry did not anticipate additional price freezes being imposed by the provinces.

The oil from Alberta and Saskatchewan costs the oil companies $8 a barrel but, with the price freezes, the companies can recover only $6.50 of its raw material costs, he said.

"We have no choice but to pay the higher cost because an integrated system such as ours must immediately replace at the in end each barrel of oil used when the product leaves the out end. We cannot allow the system to run down. There must be continuous flow."

A text of his speech was released in advance of delivery.

Controls Ignored

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Teachers employed by the Lincoln County Roman Catholic school board have ratified a one-year wage contract giving them a 31.6-per-cent increase—more than three times the 10-per-cent ceiling called for Monday in the federal government's economic controls. Involved are 380 elementary separate school teachers.

CMHC, MHC Being Re-organized

OTTAWA (CP) — The Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. (CMHC) and the urban affairs department are being reorganized with MHC president William Teron gaining greater authority.

An aide to Urban Affairs Minister Barney Danson confirmed Wednesday Mr. Teron will become acting secretary-equivalent to deputy minister-of the urban affairs department while James MacNeill is commissioner-general of the Habitat conference on human settlements. Mr. MacNeill will oversee preparations for the conference, to be held in Vancouver.

Mr. Teron, 42, will retain responsibility for CMHC, but Ray Hession, CMHC executive vice-president, will become administrative head of the Crown corporate, the minister's aide said.

The CMHC president, a former house builder, will remain chairman of the corporation's executive committee, a policy-making body. But day-to-day operations will be handled by Mr. Hession, a 35-year-old computer data expert who joined CMHC as executive-director of data and systems in April, 1974.

Mr. Teron, CMHC president since mid-1973, will have more power than Mr. MacNeill, a whose sole responsibility was for the urban affairs department.

Mr. MacNeill, 48, who was raised in Sturgis, Sask., has had a distinguished career as a public servant in the federal and Saskatchewan provincial governments.

Watergate Scandals Still Unsolved

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite intensive investigations, the special Watergate prosecutors never were able to crack some of the scandal's most-celebrated mysteries, such as who intentionally erased 18½ minutes in one of Richard Nixon's White House tape recordings.

Another of the unsolved mysteries surrounded the handling of a $100,000 campaign contribution funneled from industrialist Howard Hughes to Nixon's best friend, Charles Bebe Rebozo.

And in its final report Wednesday, the Watergate prosecution force shed no new light on why the original burglary at the Watergate offices of the Democratic party was undertaken. It did not even address the question.

The Watergate prosecution report said Nixon escaped indictment for Watergate crimes because of murkiness in the U.S. Constitution. The report said a constitutional amendment should clarify whether an incumbent president can be indicted.

"The worst time to answer such questions is when they arise," the report said. "Perhaps the best time is the present, while the memory of relevant events is fresh."

The report, submitted to Congress and the public by outgoing special prosecutor Henry Ruth, contained few surprises and described its own recommendations as "modest."

More than 50 individuals and about 20 corporations were convicted during the 28 months covered by the report. Those cases included the Watergate cover-up and plumbers, individual and corporate campaign contributors including the giant Associated Milk Producers Inc. and the "sale" of an ambassadorship in return for campaign contributions.

A recurring theme in the report was the agonizing among the prosecutors over whether to seek Nixon's indictment for the cover-up.

In the end, Ruth's predecessor, Leon Jaworski, turned his evidence over to the House of Representatives judiciary committee, which recommended impeachment. Nixon resigned before the issue came to the full House.

In 124 pages and a 123-page appendix, the report detailed the methods, successes and failures of the prosecutors.

It called Watergate "an isolated climax to practices long unchallenged by branches of government, the public and the press.

"Democracies do not survive unless elected officials do what they are supposed to do and citizens maintain vigilance to see that they do," the report said.

At the height of the Watergate crisis, a survey taken in mid-summer 1973, 42 lawyers and 44 other staff members worked for the special prosecutor. Only three lawyers will work under Charles Ruff, the fourth special prosecutor, to clean up remaining business after Ruth leaves today.

In an interview, Ruth amplified on the report's statement that it contained no previously undisclosed facts about alleged crimes.

Economic Restraints Runs Into Opposition

By THE CANADIAN PRESS — The Federal government attempted Wednesday to explain more fully its economic restraints but ran into some opposition.

Meanwhile, the Toronto stock market's industrial index fell to its lowest level since January and some analysts were blaming the controls, especially those relating to dividends.

Finance Minister Donald Macdonald said it will be the anti-inflation review board's job to decide in each case whether a union in negotiations must follow the selective wage controls imposed Monday night.

He told Parliament the board can give special consideration if a contract being renegotiated was signed before 1974.

The review board's chairman, Jean-Luc Pepin, told reporters he believes the board will be selective in going after price increases and pay awards.

In Victoria, Premier Dave Barrett of British Columbia vowed to fight the program unless the federal government agrees to major changes in the plan.

And Eric Blythe, president of the Guelph, Ont., local of the United Electrical Radio and Machine Workers of America, said his local will defy the wage guidelines regardless of any penalties that might be imposed.

He added that the present fine of $250 is not really a penalty but rather the price to many corporations for the purchase of a licence to open on Sunday.

Toes Stuffed

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Two Colombians wearing large shoes were stopped at the international airport by police. They found plastic sacks containing a half pound of cocaine stuffed in the toes.

Moonlighting

HALIFAX (CP) — Private guards in Halifax are upset that moonlighting by city policemen is taking jobs from them, H. E. (Skip) MacKenzie, president of Maritime Investigation and Security Co. Ltd., said the competition among the 400 private guards is difficult enough without city policemen getting involved.

In other developments Wednesday:

—Robert Bandeen, president of Canadian National Railways told the first public hearing of the Hall commission on grain handling that the railways should not have to continue to haul grain at 1899 prices as required by 1925 federal legislation.

—Statistics Canada said consumer borrowing from banks, life insurance companies and finance firms and credit purchases from department stores was up 15.4 per cent at the end of August from the same time last year.

Macdonald Says Controls Deal with Income Too

TORONTO (CP) — Finance Minister Donald Macdonald said Wednesday that Prime Minister Trudeau's proposed wage-and-price restraints deal with regulation of prices as well as income.

Speaking on the CBC radio program As It Happens, Mr. Macdonald said the anti-inflation board will monitor prices and rely to some extent on public response to catch unjustified price increases.

He said a consumer objecting to any price increase can submit a complaint to the anti-inflation board. If the price increase is not justified the firm concerned will be required to reduce the price and give refunds.

Complaints can be made by calling Revenue Canada or by calling a toll-free number, 1-800-4000.

Any complaint filed will be considered by the anti-inflation board, he said, and he expects complaints in the areas of food and rents will be most frequent at first.

"Food up to the farm gate we aren't going to control," the minister said. "But food processing, packaging and distribution . . . will be subject to control."

The anti-inflation board will serve as "a pretty good restraint" if a firm knows it may be faced with a fine and possible criminal charges if it engages in unjustifiable price increases, Mr. Macdonald said.

Union Head Claims Low Earners Hurt

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — The 10-per-cent limit on salary increases proposed in federal legislation announced this week will be especially discriminatory to low-income workers in Northern Ontario, a union leader said Wednesday.

Clarence Dungey, in a brief to an open cabinet meeting, challenged Premier William Davis to provide a solution for such workers.

Mr. Dungey was one of about 70 representatives of various groups to present briefs. Other union leaders argued against Sunday store hours and discriminatory labor legislation.

Mr. Dungey said wage ceilings were much tougher for Northern Ontario workers because of the higher cost of living.

"I know of social workers in Northern Ontario who are earning $8,700 and these are people with university degrees," said Mr. Dungey in an interview after his presentation.

Mr. Dungey, a national representative of the Canadian Union of Public Employes (CUPE) said it would be "absolutely impossible" for some of the lower paid workers to get along under the new guidelines.

He cited employees in such jobs as Children's Aid Societies, welfare workers, sales clerks, waitresses and some employees of banks.

Mr. Dungey told the premier he was negotiating for employees working for the Humane Society who now earn $2.37.

"How do I justify that measly increase to them?" he asked. "Better still, Mr. Premier, how will you justify it to those employees that will only be able to receive a 25 cent-an-hour increase?"

Robin McArthur, representative of the Retail Wholesale Department Store Union, argued that the government should act quickly to bring in legislation ensuring that Sunday is a day of rest.

"You are listening today to the very persons who, if action is not taken by your government, will be relegated to perform Sunday work," the brief said.

"The time has arrived when to excuse whatever can be used by your government to not take action on stopping Sunday shopping now."

Oil Changes Indian Life

EDMONTON (CP) — Chief Raymond Cardinal remembers the bad times when his people were hungry, without work and relying on coal lamps for light and wood-burning stoves for warmth.

It all seems far away as he stands near an open field on the Enoch reserve, three miles west of here, and points to a stark white oil pump, one of 35 on the 39-square-mile reserve that has made his band a multi-million-dollar community.

He spread his arms farther north to indicate the portion of land his band has chosen for a $500-million development intended to ensure the wealth and economic security of the Enoch Indians.

During his 10 years as chief, the band has built youth and recreation centres, a carpentry business, agriculture and ranching departments and a fire hall. It has developed a sophisticated administration that provides on-reserve employment for its people, a housing scheme that grants $36,000 for Enoch Indians who need homes, and a monthly subsidy of $100 from oil revenues for each of the 572 band members, including children.

The band has built a four-plex unit for senior citizens and has started construction of a six-plex unit. There is also a school to be open to non-reserve children in the surrounding area.

The savings in the form of black crude oil was discovered on the reserve in 1960. Since the oil field has a projected life through the 1980s, the band developed the $500-million townsite scheme to compensate for the expected decline in oil revenue.

The development, to be called Kelsiktown—Our Land—will include family dwellings, high-rise apartments, shopping, centres, office buildings, industrial parks and 700 to 900 acres of recreational facilities.

The chief, a tall, solidly-built man talks of his people and the band's achievements with pride in language coloured with the lyrical nuances of his race.

Driving along the eastern border of the reserve, he points out the area farther east, the 19 square miles involved in the $56-million land claim the Enoch band has filed with the federal government.

The government has to provide a defence to the claim that alleges the government got the land through "gross breach of trust, deception, fraud, extortion and forgery." The band says it has a series of documents, including government correspondence, to support its claim.

Calgary lawyer Mill Harbence, counsel for the band, said the federal government's duty to act in the best interest of the band as administrator of reserve land, a duty defined in the Indian Act, has never been challenged before.

The area was subject to surrender by the band to the federal government in 1908. The band claims Frank Oliver, superintendent of Indian affairs at the time, instructed one of his staff to convince the band to surrender the 19 square miles.

LEARN NATURALLY

Looking for a university? A different university?

A young university — modern but not faceless. Large enough to have what you're looking for: small enough so you keep your identity — no big, impersonal classes, no nameless numbers.

A university where you can learn, naturally — without crowds, without hassles — in a part of Ontario that still has room to breathe, space to move around in.

Lakehead University rests at the heart of Canada, in the rugged and glorious Superior Country — set on a strikingly beautiful campus overlooking the city of Thunder Bay, Ontario — a place where Canada's past and future meet in vigorous harmony.

The Thunder Bay area has all the advantages of urban living in the heart of a forest wilderness.

The Canadian shield country around Lakehead is an outdoorsman's paradise. There is canoeing, hiking and backpacking for that the best anywhere. And, in the winter, the hills are full of skiing — both downhill and cross country.

Here is a clear, natural alternative to the confining concrete cocoons, the strobing, confusing images of the mega-city landscape.

Sure, at Lakehead University the buildings are well-planned, the classrooms, laboratories and library facilities plentiful and well-stocked. Yes, Lakehead University is young, modern and progressive.

But it's not sterile. It is a dynamic, natural place for learning, growing and being. LU is a place where you can feel you belong.

So, while you're deciding what your future will be, think about Lakehead University — it could be the place for you.

ALL IN THE FAMILY by Isabel Huggan

When Your Child Won't Eat, What Approach Do You Use?

"Mu-um! I can't eat this! I'm not hungry!"

If you're a parent, you've heard this routine before.

Sometimes it happens because snacks and sweets have been nibbled immediately prior to dinner. Sometimes it happens because the food being served is unusual (kids are remarkably conservative, clinging to the belief that if they haven't already tried it, they'll hate it!) or traditionally "icky" (such as liver, spinach, mushrooms and eggplant).

And just as often, you suspect, not eating is part of an attention-getting game, aimed at diverting everyone's interest away from normal conversation and onto something really worthwhile — the child, and how to get her to eat a decent meal.

What to do?

Techniques vary. But success is always measured by how quickly the child settles down and eats what is put in front of her, without whines, sniffles, spillings and sulks.

The "my word is law" approach, favored by the authoritarian set, sees refusal to eat as a rebellion against parental discipline. Tough measures result.

For example: "You will sit at this table, young lady, until every scrap of food on your plate is gone. If you can't eat when the rest of us do, you'll have to suffer the consequences of being late (for school, or Brownies, or whatever the child has planned to do after the meal). Maybe this way you'll learn to do as you're told. Now eat up!"

What usually emerges from these confrontations is a resentful child with a nervous stomach who will have strong food dislikes for the rest of her life. (She'll also have picked up useful tricks like how to stuff pockets with cold turnip when you're not looking.)

On the other side are the lenient parents, who hold that food should not be made an issue at all. If the child objects to what's being served, let him eat something else.

It doesn't take much to see what happens here. Not only is the child spoiled into thinking he doesn't have to do things he doesn't like; but you also have a child whose erratic eating habits are bound to be less than wholesome. Ungulded, most kids will scrounge cookies, chips, or soft drinks instead of turning to nourishing foods to fill up.

Just as irritating is what happens to the mother, who ends up serving different meals to her family members once they learn that she can be manipulated into preparing "only things they like". And in the process, she can easily lose track of what she's feeding everyone, so that any attempts to balance meals properly will eventually fail.

In between these extremes are a multitude of other foolish attempts to control the picky eater. Perhaps the most harmful, to child and parent, is the bribery that seems so useful at the time and then only leads to further trouble.

For example: "If you'll hurry and finish those parsnips, you can watch television an extra half hour (or whatever treat has current bargaining power)."

Within days, the child learns the bartering system and within weeks will have the well-meaning parents over a barrel. Unless privileges follow, meals will be a series of pushed-away plates.

So, what does work?

Dr. A.H. Chapman, a psychiatrist who has made a career of analyzing child behavior, suggests that above all, parents keep cool heads. Rather than threatening, giving in or bribing, he says that parents should ask the child to leave the table if she is finished eating all she can. She must not disturb the rest of the family, nor can she return for dessert, or eat between that meal and the next.

Although a stubborn child may persist in non-eating behavior for several days, Dr. Chapman says that several days of fasting will not harm a healthy child. In a short time, basic animal hunger takes over, and the child will be more amenable to the rules of the table.

Well, this system has an obvious virtue, whether it works or not: the dinner table will be a lot more pleasant for the rest of the family once the bratty dawdler has been removed.

Does it work? Who knows? If any of you have battled this problem successfully, perhaps you'll write and tell us what your secret is.

Ann Landers

Get a Lock, Says Ann

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 14-year-old girl with a horrible problem. My mother's brother is 26, very nice when he is sober, but he drinks a lot more than she realizes.

Mom works a late shift from 7 p.m. till 3 a.m. several nights a week and Uncle Hal drops over to see how I am. I've let him know I don't need a babysitter and have told him he should be taking out girls instead of coming to see me. He says he feels better knowing I'm OK.

Lately I have awakened in the middle of the night and found Uncle Hal in my bedroom. He just stands by my bed and looks at me. It's very scary. I've asked him please not to do it, but he pays no attention.

Last night I awakened and he was unbuttoning my nightgown. He had been drinking. I told him to leave me alone. He left me at once and asked me not to mention anything to my mother. Well, I did mention it to Mom and she accused me of dreaming. She also called me a troublemaker and said I didn't appreciate what a wonderful uncle I had.

What can I do about this? I am afraid to go to sleep at night because Uncle Hal has a key. Please help me.—Afraid Of The Future

Dear Afraid: A 14-year-old girl is old enough to make it abundantly clear to a 26-year-old uncle that she doesn't need a "babysitter" and he'd better knock it off or else. She is also old enough to go to a hardware store and buy a chain-and-slot lock for her bedroom door. Install it herself and get a good night's sleep.

Show Salutes Women's Year

A salute to International Women's Year was the theme of Meidanski Brothers and St. Joseph's Catholic Women's League Fashion Show Wednesday evening.

Marcia Addy appeared in Judge's robes, while other models portrayed various occupational fields: medicine, business, sports and industry, to the extreme of greasy overalls, hard hat, and work boots of the laborer, worn by Arlene Dempsy.

The world-wide fashion scene followed, as the models reappeared showing fashion styling influenced by international manufacture. Oriental necklines, flowing flared skirts in soft fabrics were featured in both daytime and evening wear.

The warm tones of earth colors in suits, sportswear, coats or dresses were accented by complementary scarves and hats. Fur street wear the hemline shown was definitely lower. Full-length capes and cloaks completed with coats in varied shapes.

Fashions were co-ordinated by Marie Nash, with Sheila Nash and Mary Teresa Trusisch acting as commentators. Doris Chartrand was CWL convenor.

Models for the evening included: Marcia Addy, Ingrid Buleman, Pat Burrowes, Bev Campbell, Bev Deacon, Arlene Dempsey, Nadine Dolan, Deb Doyle, Lois Foster, Jo Gist, Dorothy Massini, Susan O'Brien, Nancy Soden, Denise Stansfield, Rosemary Stanton, Vivian White and Shirley Woodcox.

People and Events

WOMEN'S STUDY GUILD

The Women's Study Guild opened their fall season with a meeting at the home of Leslie Reynolds with Olive Smith and Win Wilkins acting as co-hostesses. Jill Cox, president, welcomed the member and guests present to hear Laurene Kerr give a resume of the life and work of Pauline Johnston. Mrs. Kerr read excerpts from the poems and prose of Pauline Johnston, bringing nostalgic memories to member educated in Canada, but barely known to those educated in other countries.

Pauline Johnson, daughter of an Englishwoman and a Mohawk chief, grew up on the Six Nations Indian Reserve near Brantford. She later travelled throughout Canada, giving readings of her poetry, and by 1892 was an established poet, with work published in the United States and England.

After many tours she settled in Vancouver, when she spent the years until her death 1913 in chronicling the legends of the Squamish Indians.

Her verse was extremely popular, especially school poetry texts, for several decades in Canada. She is best known for lyrical ballads such as "The Son My Paddle Sings."

PLAINFIELD WI

Maude Harrison was hostess for the October meeting of the Plainfield Women's Institute.

Roll call was answered by "My first thought when unexpected company arrives".

Delegates for the area convention in Campbellford will be Hilford Hodgson.

During the meeting Florence Marshall was made a life member of the institute and given a pin to wear.

Betty Sullivan, convener of the program arranged for Catherine Gow and Sharon Thompson to show slides of their Mediterranean tour, and to talk about the different countries they visited.

It was decided to have a turkey supper later this month.

QUEENSBORO UCW

The general meeting of the Queensboro United Church Women was held in the church Thursday evening with Ruth Holmes in charge of the business. Women in Unit 3 presented the worship service.

Hastings Manor Auxiliary Holds Annual Bazaar

Crafts made by residents of Hastings Manor Bazaar were featured at the annual fall bazaar sponsored by the Hastings Manor Auxiliary Wednesday afternoon.

Convener for the event was Helen McLaren. Greeting guests at the door were Marguerite Wessels, auxiliary president, and Mr. and Mrs. Glen Whitehead.

A tea room provided a place for refreshment for the visitors to the two craft rooms where early Christmas decorations and gifts were displayed.

Head of the rehabilitative crafts department at Hastings Manors, Dorothy Kerr, was present during the afternoon at tables of handicrafts made by bed-ridden patients.

Funds from the bazaar are used for supplies and activities provided by the auxiliary for the residents during the year.

Sell Your Shovel

What do you associate with the following words? Snow, ice, shovel, scrape, slip, slide, stuck, what comes to mind is sore muscles, injuries, late for work, lost wages. ServiceMaster, 179 Pinnacle St. (at front), 967-1672 say that it need not happen. They have in stock a marvelous product called X-73 ice remover. Easy, fast effective way to melt snow and thaw ice. This fantastic product makes rock salt obsolete. As an example a 100 lb. drum of X-73 equals the melting power of 2,000 lbs. of rock salt at 0°F. degrees. X-73 even works at 50 F. degrees below zero and that's one claim that I am not anxious to prove. It's the perfect thing for driveways, porches, in fact anywhere you care to use it. Carry some in the trunk of your car in case you get stuck—it's non-toxic, harmless to metals, animals and vegetation. Get in touch with ServiceMaster and get a free demonstration and instead of shoveling snow, make it disappear.

Winters will also come and go, but there is a way to cure the dryness. Please Your Mate

Do you stay up late at night, scared to go to bed because you know that in the morning you'll wake up with an aching back, and be out of sorts with everybody around? The problem could be your mattress. Wray's Home Furnishers, 306 Front St. would like to pass on a few hints concerning your mattress. Not everybody needs the same mattress, if you're a heavy person, you need a different mattress than a light person; the coil count in a mattress doesn't really mean anything, but what counts is the quality of the steel in the coil, never test a mattress by pushing down with you fingers, lie down on it, and see if it fits. As the average person spends one third of his or her life in bed, Wray's Home Furnishers would like you to be as comfortable as possible, and of course your mate will be happier. Pleasant Dreams!

Man's Best Friend

Japanese Revive Alberta's Old Mines

LUSCAR MOUNTAIN, Alta. (CP)—Until about five years ago, the coal-rich eastern slopes of the Rockies lay dormant dotted with old mines that had been closed since the mid-1600s but the Japanese now have brought the resource back to life.

With the advent of the use of diesel fuel in railway engines and natural gas in home heating, the Luscar Coal Ltd. mine shut down in 1956 after more than 30 years of operation. That mine site, 165 miles west of Edmonton, known now as Cardinal River Coal Ltd., a joint venture of Luscar Ltd. and the American giant, Consolidation Coal Ltd., is producing 1.5 million tons of coal a year for the Japanese market.

The Cardinal river mine illustrates the revival taking place along the slopes from Coleman in the Crowsnest Pass area of southern Alberta to Grande Cache north of Jasper National Park, bringing with it new economic activity and a heated environmental debate.

George Coates, senior vice-president of Luscar, said the interest in the slopes is based on the formation of bituminous coking coal, as opposed to steam coal used for thermal generation of electricity, which runs through the foothills.

Cardinal River reopened with a 15-year contract to supply coking coal to Japanese steel makers in 1970 and intreased its output from one million long tons (2,240 pounds per long ton) a year to 1.5 million in 1973 with a renegotiated contract.

The Japanese, said Mr. Coates, are accommodating customers who prefer long-lasting relations with suppliers, and so were willing to change the terms of the contract and adjust prices to keep the coke coming.

Mining is a risky business, he said, and without the Japanese interest and their offer of long-term contracts, the rebirth of coal mining could not have taken place.

The mine started with a work force of 150 and now employs about 450, most of whom live in Hinton about 25 miles to the north. It has three work shifts a day, seven days a week, producing coal that is processed to the point where it is ready for the coke ovens in Japan.

There is no shortage of labor, with top-rated workers getting as much as $29,000 a year when benefits and bonuses are added in. Like most other mines in the area, the contract with the United Mine Workers of America expires at the end of the year. The mine was hit with a 45-month strike in the summer of 1974.

As well as the 450 jobs created directly by the mine, Mr. Coates said the area benefits from a stimulated economy that brings numerous small businesses and service and supply firms to towns like Hinton.

The province at present levies a 10-cents-a-ton royalty on coal But the tax is being reviewed and environmentalists are calling for it to be increased to as much as $5 a ton.

Cardinal River gets its coal by digging massive pits, which Mr. Coates admits are anything but attractive, especially considering the mountain setting which brings visual joy to so many tourists, campers and sportsmen.

Canada Lacks Script Writers

TORONTO (CP) — Film director Don Shebib, who is starting on a new movie, says Canadian script writers are no good.

"There hasn't been a decent feature film script written in Canada," he said as he prepared to start shooting Second Wind, the script for which was written by an American.

The writer was Mel Ackerman, a newcomer to the field.

Mr. Shebib said in an interview he bought the script from Mr. Ackerman because "There just aren't good enough (writing) properties floating around Canada."

"When I say that," he added, "I am including the script for The Apprenticeship of Duddy Kravitz and those of my own films." His previous films were Goin' Down the Road, Rip-Off and Between Friends.

Mr. Shebib said that one of the reasons for poor Canadian scripts is that there has been no money to develop them.

"My biggest complaint about the Canadian Film Development Corp. (CFDC)" he said, "is that it has spent a lot of money making really bad films, tic or make money or do both." projects it knew from the outset Mr. Shebib added, "But so would not go anywhere and many of the CFDC-sponsored would not interest anyone."

"Films should either be artis-

Young Artist Survives on Work

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Twenty-five-year-old Brian Jones is proving that young artists can indeed survive purely on their art.

After graduating from H. B. Beal Secondary School where he took a special two-year art course, Brian started selling his water-colors through an art store, which provided rent money and some extra for food.

"That worked very well," he said, "and I continued until about three years ago when Nancy Poole became my agent."

Agent arrangements stopped that procedure, which is usual when an artist comes under the "cover" of a commercial gallery. Sales have gone on, through the Poole outlets in London and Toronto.

"I've been lucky. I've been able to keep going on the money I get from sales. I haven't done any teaching or worked at other jobs."

For a couple of years, Brian received a few hundred dollars from the Ontario Arts Council under its policy of subsidizing promising artists who are not yet sufficiently established to be able to make an adequate living solely from the sale of their works.

"That certainly was a break and I'm very grateful to Paddy Gunn O'Connor at the London Public Art Gallery for recommending me," the artist said.

His first break, though, was in 1972 when he had a drawing accepted for entry in the Western Ontario Exhibition.

It led to inclusion in a four-man graphic artists show at the London Public Library the next year. This year he was included in the London-Windsor Exhibition.

The Canada Council Art Bank bought two water-colors and a drawing in the last few years.

"I think the hardest years are over," he said. "I have a name in London and a bit of a name in Toronto which should be increased with my show this winter."

His recreation includes canoeing in good weather. He also enjoys listening to record-buys—especially while he's painting. He reads voraciously—art books, which he borrows from the public library and then buys for himself if they are important to him.

He played guitar in a rock band at school in his native town, Chatham, Ont.

"I was influenced by the Beatles of course. Now I like classical music more and more."

Brian rates two artists as his greatest influences. They are Vermeer, the 17th-century Dutch painter, and Jack Chambers, the London, Ont., artist, who has been a mentor to him.

Like them, he wants to present realistic paintings rather than abstracts. The latter don't interest him at all at the moment although he concedes that they may in the near future.

He feels the need to stretch his knowledge of the Old Masters to see originals of Vermeer works. He has seen only reproductions.

"I want to go to Europe," he said. "Even New York would be a help. But I don't have the money to go."

He admitted he hasn't alerted himself in the past nearly enough to opportunities of learning about art history and seeing available exhibits at Detroit or Toronto.

He calls himself a paint and brush artist. He forsook egg tempera when he left art school. He now prefers oil canvases to water colors.

Brian is also spending some time on lithographs because he is caught up in the interest of tone. Color and tone are his chief concern rather than line.

"Drawing is a means to an end," he said and for him photographs rather than drawings are sketches on which his paintings are based.

Travelling Just A Way of Life

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — For Wayne Rusch, the cream of abandoning home and job for travel, is an annual reality.

After seven years of on-and-off travelling, Wayne says travelling is his profession and work is just a way of making further travels possible.

"When I work I have to make good money to keep me going for the next six to eight months on the road."

He was not always so footloose.

For five years, he worked as a lab technician at the 3M company in London.

Then he says, in 1968 he decided, "Well, there's got to be other things," and away he went.

At 31, he estimates that he has travelled 130,000 miles and visited 40 countries.

Although his next travel route has not been decided, Wayne expects to work in an aluminum smelter in Kitimat, B.C., to earn his excursion money.

While at home, he keeps in touch with past travels by reading the 10 notebooks, journals chronicling his experiences.

Records of where he went, what he saw, and where "my head was at" enables him to relive those experiences.

Among the bulk of slides from his last trip to South America are scenes of Machupicchu, an ancient Inca city in Peru, which Wayne describes as "the most magnificent" thing he has seen.

"I think it was the mountains around that really freaked me out."

Visiting the ruins, he had "this heavy feeling of being in a really important place."

Every morning he would get up at 5 a.m., and climb up to the ruins to catch the sunrise and explore the city before the daily influx of tourists.

Scotians Now Use Museums

HALIFAX (CP)—Nova Scotians are showing a mounting awareness of their heritage and are beginning to use the province's museums in greater numbers as a means of keeping their awareness of that heritage alive.

Visits to historic sites in the province this year are up eight per cent over a year earlier. That represents a quarter of a million visits.

The same interest is being shown in all types of museums, both the traditional type and what are known as living museums - areas that still support families as they did generations ago.

With the interest of Nova Scotians and visitors to the province on the rise there has been a corresponding increase in the interest of government to support restoration projects.

An example of that is Clifton, the home of Thomas Chandler Haliburton, which was built in the Hants County shire town of Windsor in 1836. It was there that Haliburton created his Sam Slick. Visitors still can see where he worked on the Sam Slick characterization thanks to the restoration efforts of interested Nova Scotians.

Controls Force Unions To Re-examine Demands

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The national price and wage curbs program comes at a complicated time for Belleville's civil service.

Contracts for all city workers — from police to public works employees — run out at the end of the year.

Proposals by labor negotiating committees now have either been completed or are in the process of being packaged for presentation.

Then, this week the government introduced controls — including a 10 percent ceiling on wage increases.

Now, several bargaining spokemen indicate a second look may now be necessary at the terms on which contract negotiations will be based.

For two groups guidance may come next week in Toronto at the national convention of the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

CUPE locals represent city hall workers and public works and parks employees.

Stanley Little, CUPE national president, now says the convention will be asked to pass a resolution opposing the controls.

Bob Cooke, president of CUPE Local 167 — agent for 83 works, parks and arena workers — says personally he'll be backing the Toronto resolution.

Mr. Cooke says he's "not happy" with the 10-per-cent wage freeze about he doesn't believe prices — including food, mortgage rates — can be controlled.

Local 997's new contract proposals have been drafted — but not yet presented city hall management, said Mr. Cooke.

Don Dalrymple, president of CUPE Local 148 — membership of 41 — representing staff of city hall receptionists, said his group handed in proposals for 1976 contract negotiations to the city manager's department last Friday.

Local 140 is on a one-year contract which granted a 16-per-cent increase this year.

He said he didn't object to wage controls — if the same ceilings were imposed on prices. The government program permits prices to increase to recover only costs.

But, said Mr. Dalrymple, this could see labor locked into a 10-per-cent increase while prices could rise as high as 30 per cent.

"It should be 10 per cent on wages, and 10 per cent on whole bill," he said.

City police and firemen also are nearing the end of a one-year contract.

Bill Williams, president of the 30-member Belleville Firefighters Association, said his negotiating committee will discuss the controls program this week.

"I think were going to take a long look at it," he said.

As yet the firefighter's have not presented their proposals for 1976.

The Belleville Police Association also has yet to come to a decision, which involves it with the city's police commission — instead of directly with city halls administration.

But Det. Sam Morgan admitted the group may "have to at least taking another look" at the proposals package which is not yet ready for presentation to the commission.

Chamber Backs Wage And Price Controls

Belleville chamber of commerce moved Wednesday to support wage and price controls announced early this week by the federal government.

"We're pleased to see the federal government taking strong action against inflation," president George Thompson said following a board of directors meeting.

"We feel if our efforts are to be successful it will require the support of all segments of the economy and we would like to encourage everyone, in particular, labor and management, to do so."

He said although the chamber feels the free enterprise system is best, they acknowledge "these controls are necessary in the short run".

Director Fred Smith, however, said: "It's too little too late."

Director W. M. Moffat said in order for control of prices and wages to work there will have "to be a lot of cooperation from labor and management.

"If they're going to apply guidelines to their own," said Mr. Thompson, "it will be a step in the right direction."

Telegram Office Moves

CNCP Telecommunications located on Bridge St., near Toronto Dominion Bank is moving to new quarters at 217 North Front St. today.

All customers are advised that telephone numbers for telecommunications services remain unchanged.

Anyone wishing to pick up telegrams, cables or money orders are asked to come to the office's new location. Business hours will also remain the same.

Learning the Ropes

Centennial Secondary School Grade 12 student Teresa Conley, 17, Wednesday begins the long process of learning the ropes from Bert Gerling, staff member with the Quinte Information and Assistance Centre. Miss Conley will work in the consumer-help agency until June under the Community Involvement Program with the Hastings County Board of Education.

Official Plan Chart Course

Belleville civic and planning officials are meeting with provincial government representatives today to help the city's official plan clear its highest hurdle.

City manager Wilbur Purcell said Wednesday he expects the plan will be ready for final city approval around Nov. 3.

Meeting with local officials — Bill Dolman and John Lively of the official plans branch of the ministry of housing.

Two weeks ago Mr. Dolman sent a 6-page letter to city hall commenting the plan.

"The work we will complete today is just clarification of some points and some rewording," said Mr. Purcell. "The province has relayed to us that they are happy and that local effort has held off in a good plan.

"The main thing to get cleared away at this meeting today is what steps council must take to properly present the plan for ministerial approval.

"With the changes we make, I intend presenting the plan to council Nov. 3 for approval," said Mr. Purcell. "The plan will then be re-prepared including any revisions and then sent to provincial approval. I expect it will take about two months."

It is expected today's meeting will be the plan's highest hurdle and that once the revisions proposed by the province's professional staff have been regimented by the municipality, the plan should receive speedy political approval by the province.

In the event there are objections to the plan, the document can be passed in part and objections once resolved may become amendments, said Mr. Purcell.

The plan, once approved, will clearly sort out secrets of the city and outline what general land use development can take place in each area.

Transit Demands Higher

Belleville, Transit Commission chairman Marylee Burtt said Wednesday the union representing the commission's 23 employees is asking for more than a 10 per cent wage increase in a new one-year contract with the city transit authority.

But Local 126 president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, Hugh Kerr would neither confirm nor deny the sought-after wage hike.

He maintained Wednesday his previous position that no details of union demands would be released until the union and the Belleville Transit Commission first meet.

Pay data, no meeting has been set up.

The commission received demands from the city local's Ottawa union negotiator this week.

Asked for comment on demands, commission chairman Marylee Burtt said no statement is now planned.

Mr. Kerr said, however, that union demands are more than Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau has offered in the first year of a three-year federal government program to curb prices and wages in Canada.

Federal employees would be allowed a 10 per cent increase in pay under the government anti-inflation plan

The union earlier this year won a 21.2 per cent wage increase that gave mechanics roughly 20 cents an hour more than the $5.40 drivers received.

Teacher Awareness Debated

Belleville's Chamber of Commerce wants to meet with local teachers to make them more aware of what business and industry is all about.

Cecil Brown, chairman of the education committee, said Wednesday at a board of directors meeting that allowing teachers "resist and resent" input from business and industry — guidance teachers have to somehow find out —.

Manager Don Sutton said after the meeting the chamber will "endeavour to meet with education officials to plan a seminar or meeting for guidance and vocational teachers.

"They think the business community is trying to rip people off," said Mr. Brown.

President George Thompson said students should approach business with an open mind.

Mr. Brown said students don't know what kind of jobs are available and guidance teachers turn to higher academic levels for information rather than to local industry.

"We're not critical of the educational system," said Mr. Sutton," but we want to make them more aware.

"One of the prime aims for the coming year is to get ourselves in contact with the students, if we can," said Mr. Brown.

The practical insight of graduates, said Mr. Sutton, is "pretty negligible".

Teachers, director W. M. Moffatt, are often "sadly lacking" in knowledge of the business world.

As well as vocational students, said Mr. Brown, students in general and university courses are lacking in contact with the business community.

A Season Closes

Slowly the scene changes as fall advances and the season for warm-weather outdoor recreation fades for another year. The transformation is highly visible at a centre like West Zwick's Island . . . not so many weeks ago througed with people . . . where a solitary youngster dawdles on play equipment against changing skies.

Apartments Now Free Of Poison's Residue

Two Belleville apartments, accidentally sprayed with a high-concentrated residual insecticide, have been declared fit for re-occupancy by the provincial ministry of environment ioffice here, says Don Raddon, ministry pesticide control officer.

The two families, who will soon be able to return to their homes, are the Hill family of Harriott St., and the Dainard family at 33 Isabel St. A third apartment was also affected, but the residents have permanent accommodation.

Their apartments were sprayed Oct. 3 with chlordane 8E, a 50-per-cent concentration which is not supposed to be sold to the general public. Name of the vendor has been withheld pending further investigation.

Mr. Raddon said Wednesday, "levels fof chlordane in the air are down as acceptable for re-occupancy.

He said a back-up test was conducted Wednesday as a precautionary measure and results will be known later this week but added, "we're convinced there's no need to do this test.

Mr. Raddon said the landlord, Mark Kathis, has been given the go-ahead by the ministry to re-decorate the apartments prior to the families' return.

They have had to secure other accommodation while ministry chemists swabbed down the apartments and did air tests, sending swab and air samples to Guelph for examination.

Seven children and a mother from three families were treated and released from Belleville General Hospital for insecticide inhalation following the spraying.

Wintario Aid Sought For Yardmen Centre

Mayor Ben Corke said he expects a meeting will be held later this week between city officials and representatives of the province's Wintario program to determine what funding will be available for the Belleville Yardmen Sports Centre.

The multi-million dollar athletic and recreation centre is scheduled to be constructed on Cannifton Rd. near Riverside Park.

Since last summer the city has been conducting investigations to determine how much provincial support would be forthcoming for such a project.

During an interview following a meeting of the Quinte Home Builders Association Wednesday, Mayor Corke said the city is looking for about $2.5 million in Wintario aid and possibly another million dollars from the Federal Olympic lottery scheme.

Oops! Wrong Store

Peter's Grocery and Lunch Bar at 3 Wilkins St. was robbed of between $50-$60 in cash sometime late Tuesday night early Wednesday during a break-in and not Peter's Lunch at 266 East Dundas St. as reported in Wednesday's Intelligencer.

New Film Coming

Isn't It Good To Know, a new film that abandons traditional story lines to involve the viewer in the life-experiences of real people, will be shown Sunday at 7 p.m. at Centennial Free Methodist Church at 135 Avondale Rd. All area families are invited to attend. Centennial Pastor Paul G. Johnston made the arrangements for the special free showing.

City Won't Act On Store Hours Issue Says Corke

By QUINN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Mayor Ben Corke says his administration will not legislate for or against Sunday store hours — a question he says must be answered by the province and not by individual municipalities.

He made this comment following a meeting of the Quinte Home Builders Association Wednesday.

Mayor Corke said during his speech to the association, "I have some real concerns about Sunday store hours and about opening until midnight — both for the staff who will have to work and for the additional policing.

If we have to run buses for the staffs of these stores, it would be a financial disaster for the transit commission," he said.

Later, Mayor Corke said, "There's no way we can legislate to close the big stores and allow small stores to stay open.

"I don't think the citizens of this city will accept all stores being closed on Sundays," he said.

"We're hoping against hope the province will take a stand on this matter . . . as it has promised to do," said the mayor.

Mayor Corke commenting on the closing bylaws already on city books said, "we have some absurd legislation . . . allowing some stores to stay open but closing others."

Arts Centre Study Now in Second Phase

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

An interim report on the second phase of a study into the proposed Quinte Arts Centre to be located at Loyalist College will be available on about Nov. 15 to the committee of the study slated for Feb. 15, 1976, the college has announced.

In a news release issued this week, the college said the interim report will present profile sizes and an analysis of building requirements".

In addition, the interim report will give fund-raising feasibility will be presented sometime in January, 1976.

The second phase is the design development phase to provide complete documentation of the proposed centre and a detailed fund-raising study and plan.

Definition of the space use programs and preliminary planning studies will enable detailed capital and operating cost forecasts and the preparation of presentation materials for a fund-raising campaign, the college says.

The first phase study investigated the need and provided a concept for an arts centre. A basic feasibility analysis of locating the arts centre at Loyalist was done and unveiled during a press conference at the college in late August.

The first phase was coordinated by the Community Arts Future Committee, composed of college and Quinte Arts Council representatives.

That committee has been disbanded and replaced by a large body known as the Quinte Arts Centre Task Force.

Its members are Friedl Beljedeli, chairman, Douglas Walmsley, Duncan Campbell and Allen Anderson of the college board of governors; president, Paul King, dean of faculty and academic services, Glen Harry, director finance and Nick Fraser, director of planning and physical facilities, of the college administration; Frank Murray, Mayor Ken Sprechin, vice-chairman and Chester Hull of the arts council; and one delegate to be appointed from each of Hastings, Northumberland and Lennox and Addington counties and the city of Belleville.

Docks Works Project

Construction of a fisherman's pier and additional floating docks will be the major winter projects for the city's harbor improvement committee, says committee chairman Ken Meeks.

"The demands for docking facilities is increasing in Belleville and the committee is trying to meet the demand," he said.

Earlier, city council gave the committee permission to secure work space in the federal building at the foot of South John St. where Aid. Meeks said the docks will be fabricated.

Blood Clinic Under Way

Local 228 of the Civil Service Association of Ontario (CSAO) are sponsoring a blood donor clinic today and tomorrow at Sir James Whitney School, in western Belleville. The clinic will be held tonight in the gymnasium from 6 to 8:30 p.m. and Friday from 9 to 11:30 a.m. and 1 to 3:30 p.m.

Seniors Put New Life Into Concert of Old Favorites

Local residents next week will have the chance to appreciate how mellow music can be mixed by mature performers into sprightly performance.

What they'll are and hear is one of Ontario's most novel musical ensembles — The Stratford Festival City Rhythm Band, whose 25 players count their average age at 74 and are all amateurs.

Nonetheless they have had some prestige invitations — including Toronto Exhibition, Expo '67 and in the United States.

The band presents its repertoire of music, dancing, singing and dancing Oct. 22 at L. Centennial Secondary School.

The production is under the auspices of the Belleville recreation department.

The concept of a production involving elderly performers first came to reality in Stratford in 1967.

The progress since then has involved it before a variety of audiences — from senior citizens groups to school children and parades.

The band played at Queen's Park in August and later at the Toronto Exhibition.

Last year the group was asked to perform at Expo '74 at Spokane, Wash., but the expenses involved made it impossible to accept the invitation.

Tickets for the Belleville show are available at the city recreation centre office on Pinnacle St. and McKnight's Variety store on Front St.

Volunteer Bureau Aids City's Elderly and Shut-Ins

The Central Volunteer Bureau deals with everything from delivering hot meals to elderly residents in Belleville to helping new Canadians adjust to a new culture.

The reason for so much diversity in one agency is simple—volunteers, here are always at least 500 people on hand to help out.

This United Way agency acts as a centre for nonprofit organizations that need volunteers; for people that need information about where to get help and a resource centre showing community agencies projects they can help with.

Miriam Bishop, president of the Volunteer Bureau and the Belleville Children's Services Committee, set up to organize the Child Development Centre which will open November, says she is pleased with the smooth-running operation.

"There are a lot of people involved and the personal touch is never lost," she said.

Services such as Meals on Wheels provided with the cooperation of women's groups in Belleville churches; day nursery schools for handicapped children and a furniture exchange are only a small part of the routine.

Volunteers are visited, transportation is arranged, reading aid for adults is provided and a Christmas Sharing Program also assists the needy.

All the volunteers are trained by members of the agency. The budget, supplemented by a small city grant, was approximately $4,000 last year allowing for a small office and the initiation of Child Development Centre project.

Crafty Boston Ace Squirms Out of Trouble—Series Tied

LUIS TIANT

CINCINNATI (AP) — The magic of the Cincinnati Reds at Riverfront Stadium is nothing compared to the magic of Luis Tiant.

The crafty Boston right-hander broke Cincinnati's home field spell with some sleight of hand Wednesday night in the fourth game of baseball's World Series.

Squirming out of more jams than a Houdini, Tiant turned the Reds 5-4 with a courageous performance and led the Red Sox into a 2-2 tie in the best-of-seven series.

The man has done the job all year long," said Boston manager Darrell Johnson, who will start Reggie Cleveland of Swift Current, Sask., against Cincinnati's Don Gullett in tonight's fifth game. "He was out there at the end tonight, and he did the job again."

The Reds have been almost impossible to beat at home this year. They had a 67-17 record here Wednesday night's game.

At first, it looked as though they were going to continue their domination at Riverfront against Tiant.

Boston's star pitcher, who had shut out Cincinnati at Fenway Park in the series opener Saturday, was obviously not himself with only three days' rest. The Reds gave the roaring Riverfront fans a lift two quick runs off the chunky right-hander in the first inning.

"My breaking ball was not as good as it was in Boston," Tiant, stroking his famous Pancho Villa mustache, told the press later. "I used my fastball more tonight.

"Also, the mound is higher here than in Fenway Park. That bothered my control."

But the gutsy Cincinnati runs didn't take the heart out of Tiant. If anything, he pitched with more heart as the game wore on.

Down 3-0 in the first, Boston didn't stay behind for long. The Sox chased Cincinnati left-hander Fred Norman with five runs in the fourth inning—and suddenly the Red Sox had a 5-3 lead.

Tiant was still struggling, though. He had walked in the fourth, he gave up two runs. And Carlton Fisk thought for a moment that Tiant would be driven to shelter.

"I thought we lost him," said the catcher. "He just wasn't pitching a typical Luis Tiant game.

"He had better control in the opener at Fenway. His breaking ball just wasn't working."

Johnson said, however, that he had no intention of taking his best pitcher out of the game.

"Luis did seem to have a breakdown with the mound a couple of times," Johnson said. "But it took a couple of batters for him to straighten himself out. He was on his way again."

That worked out of the jam in the fourth. The right-hander had nervous times in the fifth, gave up hits in the sixth and eighth and then found himself in big trouble in the ninth.

Tiant gave up a leadoff single to Cesar Geronimo and then a sacrifice bunt to Ed Armbrister that moved the potential tying run into scoring position.

Working with extreme care to the dangerous Pete Rose, Tiant walked him to put men on first and second with one out. Then Ken Griffey hit one of Tiant's pitches way back in centre field and Fred Lynn raced back to make a catch over his head.

"He didn't get that good a jump on the ball, but I thought he would catch it," right fielder Dwight Evans said of his teammate's catch. "He's a great outfielder."

Then Tiant faced Joe Morgan, the Cincinnati spokesman who is the Reds' hero Tuesday night, and got him on a harmless pop-up to Carl Yastrzemski at first.

That did it, and Tiant's joyous team-mates swarmed over the extraordinary Cuban, who made 161 pitches in nine innings.

Tiant worked his magic in a splendid World Series setting. The game had everything. Yastrzemski, the Boston captain, said, "It was one helluva game."

"You didn't know until the last out who was going to win. And that's the way a World Series game should be played."

Doubles by Griffey and Johnny Bench in the first inning produced two Cincinnati runs before the Red Sox came back with their game-breaking inning in the third.

Evans tripled home two runs to tie the game and Rick Burleson, a defensive star all through the series, doubled home another to give the Red Sox their go-ahead run.

Then they wrapped up the win when a fourth run scored with the help of an outfield error and a fifth scored on Yastrzemski's single.

Former Wimbledon champion Stan Smith, playing in Australia for the first time in four years, also won, dumping India's Anand Amritraj 6-2, 6-2.

First Canadian to Start

Cleveland Faces Gullett Tonight

CINCINNATI (CP) — Reggie Cleveland of Boston Red Sox will become the first Canadian pitcher ever to start a World Series game tonight.

Boston manager Darrell Johnson announced the Swift Current, Sask., native would get the assignment after the Red Sox defeated Cincinnati Reds 5-4 to tie the best-of-seven series 2-2.

Johnson and manager Sparky Anderson of Cincinnati Reds named their starters for the remaining three games of the Series.

REGGIE CLEVELAND

Johnson said left-hander Lee will start Saturday's game and right-hander Luis Tiant, who has won both Red Sox games, will start Sunday if the Series goes to seven games.

Anderson's picks are left-hander Don Gullett tonight, right-hander Jack Billingham on Saturday and Gary Nolan on Sunday.

Tonight's appearance will be the second of the Series for Cleveland. When reliever Jim Burton failed to stop a Cincinnati rally in the fifth inning of Tuesday's game, Cleveland took over and got the third out.

He retired four batters in order before being lifted for a pinch hitter, getting two of the hitters he faced on strikeouts.

He was the starting pitcher in the second game of the American League playoffs on Oct. 5, lasting five innings. Relief pitcher Dave Hamet got the decision in the 6-3 Boston win.

Cleveland was traded to the Red Sox by St. Louis Cardinals after the 1973 season. He was a disappointment last year and got off to a rocky start this year before hard work with Boston pitching coach Stan Williams began to pay off in better control.

He finished with a 13-9 record and Boston observers considered him the team's No. 3 pitcher by the end of the season. He won four games during September as the Sox stood off a stubborn challenge from Baltimore Orioles.

The 27-year-old right-hander was signed by the Cardinals out of Cold Lake, Alta. His winter home now is St. Petersburg, Fla.

There have been other Canadian pitchers in World Series games, but none of them were starters. Other Canadian starters were non-pitchers.

The last Canadian to appear in a World Series was Ron Taylor of Toronto, who made two relief appearances for New York Mets in 1969, blanking Baltimore on both occasions.

In 1968, John Hiller of Toronto made two appearances for Detroit Tigers against St. Louis Cardinals, giving up six hits and three earned runs in two innings.

In 1953, John Rutherford of Belleville, Ont., took over for Brooklyn starter Joe Black in the eighth inning of a game the Dodgers lost to New York Yankees 2-0.

Such outstanding Canadian pitchers as Russell Ford of Brandon, Man., who pitched for New York Highlanders of the American League in the early 1909s, Phil Marchildon of Perth-Andover, Ont., who pitched for Philadelphia Athletics of the American League in the late 1940s, and Ferguson Jenkins of Chatham, Ont., currently a member of Texas Rangers, never played for a pennant-winner.

George Selkirk of Huntsville, Ont., may have had the most World Series experience of any Canadian-born player. Selkirk, who replaced Babe Ruth as the Yankees' right fielder, appeared in six Series.

The first Canadian to appear in a World Series is believed to be George Gibson of London, Ont., who caught all seven games for Pittsburgh Pirates in the 1909 Series.

Sandy Hawley Will Be Up

TORONTO (CP) — Dahlia, the great French filly, heads a field of 22 horses expected to go to the post for Canada's richest thoroughbred race—the Canadian International Championship Stakes at Woodbine, Oct. 26.

The probable field also includes Toronto industrialist E.P. Taylor's Snow Knight, winner of last Saturday's Man O'War Stakes in New York and one of the hottest turf runners of the season; Contesse de Loir, in the money the last two years in the Prix de l'Arc de Triomphe; Paul Mellon's Overbrook Farm and Stonewalk, a four-year-old colt that outran Foolish Pleasure in an allout race last Friday at Belmont Park.

Sandy Hawley will be aboard Dahlia when the five-year-old mare attempts to make it two in a row in the 1½-mile run on the Marshall turf course.

The $150,000-added purse is expected to top $200,000.

Other probables in the field are:

—Admetus, owned by Sir Michael Sobell of England which boasts a victory over Dahlia in last year's Washington, D.C., International;

—Bakunjie, a five-year-old stakes winner trained by Horatio Luro;

—Tommy Kelly-trained Salt Marsh, another five-year old; trained by Brookmeade Stables;

—Royal Glint, Dan Lasater's five-year-old gelding with five stakes victories to his credit this year;

—Intrepid Hero, a three-year-old colt owned by American Ogden Phipps and the best American-bred in this month's running of the $500,000 Arc which will run as an entry with Shady Character;

—Princess Gray, a four-year-old mare owned by Donald McKellar of Chicago;

—Gab Bag, a three-year-old chestnut colt owned by New York banker John Schiff;

—Yreiot, seven-year-old winner of the Niagara Stakes at Fort Erie, Ont., earlier this year and owned by P.O. Johnson; —Cruiser 2nd, a California-owned six-year-old gelding;

—Carney's Point, owned by George Gardiner of Toronto and trained by Lou Cavalaris;

—Bakuba, a five year old owned by art dealer Daniel Wildenstein;

—Ashtaret, a three-year-old colt, and Unimpeachable, owned by Harry Hindmarsh of Toronto.

Stars Score First Win For Coach Ted Harris

By GLENN COLE
The Canadian Press

Life behind the bench of Minnesota North Stars has not been all that pleasant for rookie coach Ted Harris.

Harris, a 15-year veteran of the National Hockey League, took over the Minnesota coaching reins this season with a vow to make the North Stars competitors in NHL's Smythe Division.

Minnesota finished a poor fourth last season with 20 points, just 12 ahead of the expansion Kansas City Scouts. The North Stars were anything but bright lights during pre-season play as they floundered to a 1-3-3 record.

The regular season got off to a bad start as the North Stars dropped a 3-2 home-ice decision to Vancouver Canucks and then were outscored 9-5 by Philadelphia Flyers, the team Harris played for last season as they won the Stanley Cup.

However, Harris now has his team in NHL coaching win follows the Minnesota's 6-1 triumph over the travel-weary California Seals in one of five games played Wednesday night.

In other action, Pittsburgh Penguins bombed Toronto Maple Leafs 8-4, New York Rangers edged Atlanta Flames 3-1, Los Angeles Kings nipped Washington Capitals 4-3 and Chicago Black Hawks came from behind to tie Detroit Red Wings 4-4.

In Minnesota before just over 8,135 fans, Bill Goldsworthy scored his 500th and 250th career goal to lead the North Stars to victory.

Goldsworthy opened the scoring with a power-play goal at 16:37 of the first period. He zoomed in on California goaltender Gary Simmons and lifted a backhand shot home at 16:35 of the second period for his second goal of the night.

Defensive lapses cost Toronto in its game against the Penguins, who now are 3-0 on the year.

"The Penguins have a good scoring team," said Leafs coach Red Kelly, who once coached Pittsburgh. "If you don't check them you are in trouble.

"We played the stick and not the body. You just cannot do that. The defence didn't play well. They were shoved off the puck. We should learn from this. If we don't, we're in rough shape."

Penguins defenceman Ron Stackhouse broke a 4-4 tie in the second period to start the Penguins to their win. The goal came against Doug Favell, who replaced Gerry McNeil at the start of the second period.

In New York, Walt Tkaczuk took a goalmouth pass from Greg Polis at 16:58 of the second period for the winning goal as the Rangers defeated the Flames.

Centre Vic Venasky scored on a power play with 4:38 remaining in the third period to give the Kings their home-opening win over the Capitals. The win was the second in four games for the Kings while the Caps now are 0-3.

Only 11,000 fans were on hand at Chicago Stadium for the Detroit-Chicago contest which saw Ivan Boldirev score two goals late in the third period one after a faceoff and the other on a pass from Cliff Koroll to give the Black Hawks the tie.

In games tonight, Philadelphia is at home to St. Louis, Boston Bruins visit Detroit and Chicago travels to Buffalo to meet the Sabres.

The Flyers will have hard-rock winger Dave Schultz in their lineup. Schultz has been out two weeks with an ankle injury.

The Bruins will be without the services of winger Don Marcotte, out with a hyperextension of his right knee suffered when he slid into a goalpost during Sunday's game against New York Islanders.

Hynes a Sharpshooter

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Dave Hynes scored four goals, two of which he didn't lay a stick on to lead Rochester Americans to an 8-3 win over Springfield in the only American Hockey League game Wednesday night.

Twice in the first 4½ minutes of play team-mates slapped shots that bounced off Hayes' best goaltender Bob Taylor and into the Springfield net. A goal by Gordie Clark gave Rochester a 3-0 lead at the end of the first period.

Springfield tried to make a game of it with two goals in the second period. Norm Dube and Jerry Kemp both beat Rochester goalie Ross Brooks for power play goals.

Hynes third goal put Rochester up 4-2 after two periods.

The Americans broke the game open in the last period. Hynes scored his fourth goal at 2:46, Brian Murphy scored at 8:29, Paul O'Neil hit at 9:11 and Murphy scored again at 13:34. Gary Coalter got the last Springfield goal at 19:37.

Rochester outshot Springfield 30-23 in a contest peppered with penalties. Springfield sustained seven minor penalties and two majors while Rochester was charged with 12 minor penalties and two majors.

Six of the eleven goals were scored on power plays.

Play resumes Friday night with Nova Scotia at New Haven and Springfield at Providence.

Warriors Down Bears 8-3

BROCKVILLE (CP) — Brockville Warriors registered their second Central Junior Hockey League win in three games Wednesday, defeating Smiths Falls Bears 8-3.

It was the only game of the night scheduled for the six-team league.

Bruce Northrup set the pace with two goals as the Warriors outshot the Bears 42-20 and held 5-1 and 5-2 second leads.

Other Brockville goals were scored by Kevin Ostler, Brad Maxwell, Dave Chase, Bob Voorneveld, Ron Breau and Bob Mitchell.

The three Smiths Falls goals were assembled by Bruce Guthrie, Pete Hunter and Doug Harvey.

The game was fast and clean with only 10 minor penalties—six to Smiths Falls, eidnet.

Next league action is Friday when Gloucester Rangers are in Smiths Falls and Rockland Nationals are in Brockville.

The Going Is Rough In Crusaders' Victory

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

"It wasn't really hockey. It looked like a football game out there," said goaltender Gerry Cheevers.

His Cleveland Crusaders defeated Minnesota Fighting Saints 8-4 in a World Hockey Association game which wound up with 205 minutes in penalties.

The Crusaders received 107 minutes including one 19-minute misconduct, four game misconducts, five majors and 16 minors. The Saints were assessed two misconducts, three game misconducts, four majors and 14 minors for 98 minutes.

In another game, Ron Climie's second goal of the game at 6:32 of a sudden-death overtime period gave New England Whalers a 5-4 home-ice win over Edmonton Oilers before 7,129 fans.

It was the Oilers' third defeat in four starts and the Whalers' first win after losing their opening game 5-0 to Houston.

At St. Paul, Minn., before a crowd of 10,742, Cheevers turned back 38 shots in the final two periods to help the Crusaders beat the Saints.

The teams were tied 4-4 after the first period and Cleveland scored three unanswered goals in the second and one in the third for the win. The Crusaders outshot the Saints 44-41.

Cheevers and opposing goalie Mike Curran were among 29 players charged with penalties in the game handled by referee Ron Asselstine.

He ejected six players—Jim Harrison, Gerry Pinder and Paul Baxter of Cleveland along with Steve and Jack Carlson and Carl Brackenbury of Minnesota—after a second-period melee.

Jack Carlson and Harrison started the brawl with a stick flight.

However, the lone casualty during the wild contest was Minnesota's Rick Smith, who suffered a broken nose and required 10 stitches after apparently being speared in the second period.

"We proved we wouldn't be intimidated by anybody," said Cheevers. "The Saints have to be one of the toughest teams in hockey and we more than held our own with them."

Harrison scored two goals in the first period for Cleveland and Al McDonough and Ray McKay added single goals to keep the Crusaders in stride with Minnesota, which got goals from Dave Keon, Pat Westrum, Ted Hampson and Mike Walton.

After the second-period brawl, Russ Walker scored two goals in a three-minute span and Terry Holbrook and Ron Ward followed with shorthanded scores to clinch the win.

In Hartford, Conn., the Whalers trailed 4-2 going into the third period. They tied the score on Tom Earl's shorthanded goal at 7:29 and Mike Byers' tip-in at 12:34.

Ken Baird and Norm Ullman each had a goal and two assists for the Oilers.

Final Statistics

Bright Spots For the Macs

By TOM GAVEY
Sports Staff

Final statistics have now come in for the 1975 Ontario Football League season. The team which many felt could win it all over the season finally did. That was the Hamilton Waxman Scrappers.

The Hamilton club had Bill McMellis, 15-4 over the season and Wally Dick, 8-10. In the hitting department they had Ed Nieuwdorf, top home run hitter in the OFL, with 10 over the fence last year. Ted Debruiner had seven four bagers while Dick Busher was near the top in RBI production with 17 runs driven in.

The surprise was that the Scrappers had a dismal season, and had to fight with Woodstock for the last playoff spot. When it came down to the money though, the Scrappers were true to their colors. They defeated the Oshawa Tony's in the finals to take the OFL championship.

As for the Belleville McDonalds' They ended up in the cellar in the East Division, with an 11-42 record.

Certain statistics such as the teams ERA show the Macs didn't have such a bad season after all. Scott Reid, Ted Waite and Jim Chase combined for an ERA of 2.15. That is, to say the least, respectable in any league.

Chase's ERA was an impressive 2.41. It's unfortunate the pitchers won-loss record can't indicate such effectiveness, as Chase was 2-7 while appearing in 15 games.

Scott Reid was 5-14 over the year with a 3.24 ERA and two shutouts. Ted Waite was the squads hard luck hurler, he was 2-15 although he struck out 104 batters.

The Macs finished third in the OFL in fielding, with a percentage of .968. Peter Harrison came up with a sparkling .991 fielding average in 37 games, playing catcher, first base and left field. Terry Meacher, playing second base and third base, had a .983 in 41 contests.

Steve Ling was in 51 games over the season, just two short of playing in every game the Macs played. Scott Reid appeared in 48 games. He was on the mound 28 times.

In the hitting department Gary Goyer had the best batting average. Goyer batted .304 over the 19 games he played. He did not have enough at bats to challenge for the OFL batting championship.

The rest of the story is not so bright, with Wayne McTaggart batting .225, and Larry Mavety .220 to come second and third on the team. Mavety mixed in four homers and 16 RBIs though, which makes him the most valuable of the Mac hitters. Glenn Carleton finished at .214 with two homers, and Steve Ling hit .218 to round out the over .200 hitters.

Chase ended the season well over .300, having six hits in 14 at bats.

The rest of the Belleville stats are comparable to any other team in the league. A few more .250 hitters in the OFL and the Macs will definitely be going somewhere in 1976.

Centurions Surprise Trojans

Centre Hastings Secondary School surprised a lot of people with their 25-6 victory over Moira Trojans in Bay of Quinte Football League action Wednesday. Included in those hey surprised were them selves.

"We felt confident we could beat them," said the Centurion senior head coach, Barry Tyrar, "but I never though we'd win by such a wide margin."

The Madoc crew broke an 8-8 half time tie mid-way through the third quarter and never looked back.

In Wednesdays junior contest, Prince Edward Collegiate suffered their sixth straight setback of the season; a 28-6 loss at the hands of the Bayside Red Devils.

In Madoc, the big story once again was tailback Harley Willemsen; the power runner carried the home team 178 yards downfield marking his third straight contest with rushes totalling over 150 yards.

Willemsen did more than just put the ball in scoring position, he drove his way into the end zone twice. Included in his charismatic drives was a 90 yard sweep for the game winning major.

"It was supposed to be off-tackle run for short yardage," explained coach Tyrsar. The Centre Hastings squad gambled several times on third down and short yardage during the course of the game.

"They (Moira) were ready for the run up the middle and closed it right up," explained the coach. Willemsen, second guessing the Trojan defence, spotted the opening outside and galloped from his own 20 into the visitors' end zone.

"Once we got a couple of touchdowns ahead we just tightened up on defence" said Tyrar, "we expected them to go to the air and run reverses to try to catch us, we played them that way."

Wednesday's was the final game of the regular season for both schools and they finished the year with identical 3-3 records. That mark, believe it or not, is enough to put them is a tie for first place. There are only two game left in the regular season and quite possibly four clubs could end up with 3-3 records.

Scott Simpson, the Madoc quarterback, and Joe Brooks accounted for the other Centre Hastings majors. Tim McConnell hauled down a two point conversion and punter V.J. Singh booted a pair of singles.

Roger Sprague scored the only TD for Moira. He also collected the extra two points.

At Bayside, the Red Devils rolled to their second win of the season by a convincing 22 point margin.

It's been a dismal year for the Prince Edward junior and to add to their misery they've lost quarterback Peter Kempegaan for the remainder of the year with a broken ankle. Kevin Ferguson, Prince Edward's speedy wide receiver, filled in for Kempegaan Wednesday and scored his club's only TD.

Mitch Houle, Bayside flanker, accounted for two major and a couple of two point conversions. Stuart Fairley and Bob Cote, both running backs, got the others.

Compare! THE CHRYSLER WARRANTY
It's a 12 month unlimited mileage warranty, and that means from the moment you slip behind the wheel of your '76 Plymouth you're covered for a full year: no matter how many miles you drive. Covered for any part that proves defective or wears out including shocks, mufflers, brake linings, disc brake pads. Even the tires are covered, by the people who make them. All you have to do is perform normal maintenance like changing oil filters and wiper blades. (Warranty for taxis and police cars is 12 months or 12,000 miles, whichever comes first.)

Compare! '76 Plymouth Electronic Ignition
It's the proven electronic ignition system. Proven in every car Plymouth has built for the past three years. Proven to give sure-lire starts in any weather, to be practically maintenance free. Where others are still experimenting, '76 Plymouth has the proof.

3-game Test for Cats Could Tell the Tale

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

This is the one. This is the weekend that spins the wheel of fortune for the Belleville Bobcats. They could finally end up in sole possession of first place in the Metro Junior B East Division or they could find themselves stuck in the land of mediocrity with a .500 record half way between the top of the ladder and the bottom rung.

The Cats roll into a three game stand beginning tonight and ending Sunday. It's their first stiff test since they began exhibition and regular season play nine games ago.

"We know we're in for a tough time," said coach Meehan Bonnar, "but I'm sure we'll do alright. Our conditioning is going to be a big plus in our favor.

The Cats rolled through six straight exhibition game without a loss and duplicated that feat in three consecutive regular season contests. However the win streak tonight brings a gleam to Bonnar's eyes.!

"What the heck," he said, "if we win two out of three everybody will be happy. Let's face it you can't win all the time. Sooner or later no matter how good you are you've got to lose."

The Cats square off tonight in an 8 p.m. encounter against Kingston. Though Belleville defeated the Voyageurs twice in exhibition action and once this far in the regular season, the Limestone City crew is just now beginning to jell. With a few late cuts from the OHA Major Junior A Canadians, the Voyageurs will be looking to put a halt to Belleville's undefeated string.

After facing the hustling Kingston squad Thursday, the locals will come right back to the Memorial Arena to take on the bears from Whitby. The Young Bruins, known throughout the league for crude tactics and the ability to win, will be in town Friday at 9 p.m.

If the Bobcats can withstand the combined strain of outhusling the Voyageurs and come out of Friday's contest without too many injuries they'll skate right back into the Memorial Arena on Sunday to renew an old rivalry with Cherry Bassin's Pickering Panthers.

The Panthers, East Division pennant winners the last two years in a row since Bassin's arrival as coach, are to a very familiar position in the standings. In five games they have won four and are tied with Oshawa for a share of top spot. If that isn't enough to have the Cats playing a cosy game, the Pickering Power Squadron is hot off a 13-3 buzz over Whitby.

Belleville Bobcat coach, Meehan Bonnar, keeps a watchful eye on his pupils during Wednesday night's practice at the Memorial Arena. Pete Delimat and Joey Edwards (right) were among the Cats in attendance. Bonnar put the Cats through a rigorous two hour workout in preparation for the upcoming series of games. The Metro Junior B squad faces its toughest test this weekend with three encounters in four days.

Turner, Edwards In the Lineup

When the Belleville Bobcats travel to Kingston for their contest with the Voyageurs tonight there'll be a few new, but familiar faces in the lineup.

Joey Edwards and Neil Turner will both be manning the blueline for the 8 p.m. contest.

Edwards, a 19-year-old three year veteran of junior hockey, has consistently proven his ability on the blue line. His experience and heads up play will be a welcome addition to the locals' watered down defensive corps.
